Rosie was not sold. She was not sold the second time and, at the third attempt, the auctioneer created an incident at the start by asking how much was he bid for, giving father's name clearly, the three-teated brindle. I was hiding behind the manure spreader, out of sight of the ring, and I still remember how ashamed I felt.

Father just went into the ring seized hold of Rosie and stalked off with the cow in tow. He never spoke to the auctioneer again. The next day he started to put the grain to Rosie to fatten her up and early spring he sold her as a canner.

"One of the best cows we ever had," insisted father, as the truck containing Rosie pulled away.

COLLEGIATE NEWS

ASSEMBLY

Last Wednesday morning, the assembly was conducted by form G9B, Miss Priest's form. The assembly was under the able chairmanship of Bob McLuskie. G9B showed the assembly that the upper grades do not have a monopoly on talent. Frances Thompson sang "In the Garden," which was enjoyed very much by the audience.

Next came a series of announcements for the Girls' Athletic Society, the Hi-Y Club and the Elevator. Dick Stackhouse gave us the complete "lowdown" on the forthcoming school play. More complete news about the play may be found elsewhere in this column. Also there was an announcement about the girls' volleyball jamboree held at O.S.D. on Wednesday. The results of this affair may be found in the "Girls' Sports" section.

The program went musical again with a piano solo by Shirley Hermon, entitled "Albumblatt." (whatever that means!).

Then President Airth, (slightly) assisted by some prize examples of feminine pulchritude at its best, (our hubba hubba cheerleaders) exhorted us to raise the rafters cheering for a touchdown. I'd like to know how Jim expects us to keep our minds on the cheers when we are led by such "stuff", (not you Jim). Seriously, we ought to give a cheer to our cheerleaders, for the fine job they have done this year.

Next on the program was a number, "Stardust", by the B.C.I. Band, which made everyone want to get up and dance. It was better than Benny Goodman, Tommy Dorsey or Harry James, could have done it. It was even nearly as good as the Serenaders. While the students entered the auditorium the band played the march, "Through Night to Light" and while the students were "hurrying?" to period 2, another march "The Line-up", was played.

The Assembly concluded with a film "Ski Skills," which showed the beauties of Canada's great winter sport at its best. You know what skiing is, — two parts snow, two parts skiis and five parts linament, which always gets you in the end.

Talking about end — so long, till next week.

—Bernard L.

"Every Family Has One"

With the premiere performance of the B. C. I. V. S. Dramatic Club's annual presentation but a week away, the art crew and stage crew are as busy as the traditional bee. Huge squares of canvas are gradually taking the form of living room walls, and spot lights are being fixed into position.

This year's play by George Batson is a comedy entitled "Every Family Has One." Featured in the cast are several newcomers including Mary Bongard, Marcia Blatherwick, Marion Rawson, Gerry Staring and Kip Summers.

The story tells of the misunderstanding that a mother (Mary Bongard) gets into when she tries to get her daughter (Donna Ferguson) married to the son of socially prominent New York parents (Gerry Staring). An old flame (Kip Summers), turns up and with assistance from grandma (Janette Ashbury) manages to win back his old love. The Wisharts continue to give fine performances and Broose was never wackier and Leo never more mechanical.

We have been fortunate again this year in having the very capable directing of Miss N. P. Merry and Mrs. E. Reed.

The kids have all worked hard for over seven weeks to insure a perfect performance — so come out and see what every family has and then go home and look in your own closet. See you Nov. 13th and 14th.

—By Bruce Walmsley.

GIRLS' SPORTS

Th schedule followed out from October 31, to November 4th for volley-ball is as follows:

Tuesday, November 4—GIXE vs CIXA—Scored 40-18 for GIXE—Referee Donna Sills.

Wednesday, November 6—H9A vs C9B—Scored 29-9 for C9B—Referee Mary Bongard.

Thursday, November 6— The Girls' Athletic Society held a meeting. There are rumors of a Sadie Hawkins dance on November 19. Let's keep that date open eh?

November 5 was Volleyball day and in all opinions it evidently was pleasing to everybody. It started at 4.30 with players representing Trenton, Stirling, Brighton, Campbellford, O.S.D., Picton, B.C.I., Napanee, Marmora, Albert College Wellington. Each school had both junior and senior teams. Six games were played at one time. Most teams played five games. The referees were C. Spring, L. May, J. Ashbury, B. J. Houston, J. Wright, J. Scott. The scorers were D. Flintoff and M. Kerr. The linesmen were, D. Ferguson, M. Chambers and S. Creeggan.

The Junior team: D. Sills, B. Reid, S. Empey, K. Mills, S. McKewen, J. Allen, B. Boyce, R. Robson, M. Miller.

The Senior team: B. Gibson, B. Zebedee, J. Geneja, M. Marinoff, K. Mills, S. Mott, P. Kane, B. Rees, J. Campbell, Marion Kerr.

The senior won five games out of five thus winning the championship. No other school won all games.

The junior won four games out of four as did Trenton. In the play off Trenton won by six points.

There was a very enjoyable dance after the final games, which included tag dances, Paul Jones and elimination dances.

As the dance ended at ten the boys and girls from all the schools then went their way home, tired but happy. Betty Holway and Doreen Bell are now forming the Junior House League Basketball having their practices on Wednesday at noon and Friday after four.

BOYS' SPORTS

Flash!!! CX11B captures Upper School Championship—Yea; team.

Yes, those flashy boys from that flashy commercial form upset the favored Industrial form IX11B rather handily in two out of three games. The first game on Friday, Oct. 31, was a pushover. With flashy aerial and ground plays the commercial lads slashed to victory 18-5. The second game on Monday was a battle of the lines with the score ending 7-1. Although the commercial lads had 6 downs on the 1 yard line they were unable to push over a touch. These commercial whiz-bangs have even been challenged by outside teams. Considering there are only seven boys in the whole form I think we did pretty good.

In the first of the Lower School Championship on Thursday, IXB defeated IIXB in a bloody battle 14-6.

Today the seniors and juniors journeyed to Peterborough to play a double-header with those squads. The juniors hook up in their game for the Junior Lakeshore Championship, while Seniors are finishing out the schedule in the senior loop.

The trophies for the field day champions arrived and are really spiffy. These boys should be proud of their achievements in winning these handsome trophies.

Mr. Phillips has urged more 9th grade students to turn out for basketball. Who knows? You might be a future basketball star.

Incidentally junior and senior basketball will start next week. Anybody interested in trying out are urged to be there when practice is called.

—"Mert" Massey

THE GLEE CLUB

Rehearsals have started at last for "Purple Towers". This operetta is a mystery comedy in two acts by Don Wilson, written in modern musical language. The time of playing is about two hours. Like Rubinoff, we believe our performances should be educational, as professional as possible, inspiring, and we know what you like and you'll get that too.

We had a chance to look over "Purple Towers" for the first time on Monday night. Gwen must have been one step ahead of us because while everyone was busily engaged in reading the music for the first chorus in Act One, she modestly inquired, 'What are you going to do about all those love scenes in Act Two?" After considerable pondering it was decided that we would be forced to act them out. Now everyone wonders who will take Phil Bradley, a role opposite our golden-voiced soprano. One of our baritones has been straining his vocal chords until the small hours of the morning and has high hopes of getting the role when try-outs come around next week (if by then, he isn't too sleepy to sing).

The Glee Club has consented to supply the background for a Christmas Pageant being presented next month. This will possibly be open to the public for one night. However, more about that later. I must go now because I promised my mother I would help her with my homework tonight. You will please refrain from reading either this column or "Pookie".

—Myrtle Reid.

GETS NEW POST

Walter W. Dawson, 53, formerly of Regina, Sask., who was in charge of the Japanese relocation camp at Moose Jaw for the Federal Department of Labor, was recently appointed acting associate director of agriculture, fisheries and lumbering in the Federal Department of Labor, Ottawa. Mr. Dawson was director of relief in Saskatchewan during the depression years when half of the province's population was on relief.

In Manhattan

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 8 (CP) —Let it be recorded that least one British play, Terance Rattigans "The Winslow Boy," has found favor on Broadway this season.

Two previous London productions "Duet for Two Hands" and and "Under the Counter" proved resounding flops in Manhattan. But if the public follows the lead of the critics, "The Winslow Boy" will do much to restore Britain's somewhat wilted dramatic prestige here.

The Rattigan drama is away to a good start at the Empire Theatre where Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontaine teamed successfully last season in the same author's "O Mistress Mine"

Cadet's Case History

"The Winslow Boy" is the case history of a 13-year-old naval cadet who was dismissed from the naval academy at Osborne shortly before the First World War on the grounds that he stole and cashed a five-shilling money order. His father, convinced of the boy's innocence, fights the case against the entrenched power of government and the admiralty, and finally clears his son's name.

The cast shows excellent teamwork under the direction of Glen Byam Shaw with Allan Webb excelling as Mr. Winslow and Frank Allenby as the family lawyer.

Puzzle: What's the Meaning?

The curtain went up Monday night at the Ethel Barrymore Theatre on "This Time Tomorrow" but the critics are still puzzling over the meaning of this play by Jan de Hartog. The author introduces a girl dying of tuberculosis and young researcr scientist and elderly chief, both seeking a cure for cancer.

Aided by hypnosis, hallucinations, thunderstorms and blackouts, de Hartog's characters discuss the nature of death and of love and try to find out what keep live the girl, who according to X-rays of her condition should be dead. The upshot apears to be that death is not the end for man, something that has been claimed before in less confusing language. Sam Jaffe as the elderly scientist heads a cast that does its best with unwieldly roles in this theatre guild production directed by Paul Crabtree.

Light Entertainment

Two other openings this week were F. Hugh Herbert's "For Love or Money" at Henry Miller's Theatre, an agreeable and sophisticated comedy, and "trio Honeymoon," by Conrad Smith, a wispy piece of bedroom humor nonsense at the Royale.

"HAPPY VEGETARIAN"

Manchester, England —(CP)— About 5,000 members of the Vegetarian Society, described by Secretary J. Hough as the happiest people in Britain because they are not "eternally worried about food," recently celebrated the society's centenary.

REMEMBER WHEN?

Johannesburg, South Africa —(CP)— During the current meat shortage in South Africa a butcher placed this sign beside a small beef-steak: "Portion of rare animal known as an ox. Used as food in ancient times. Now practically extinct."

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Fitchett were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dafoe of Carmel, and Mr. and Mrs. David Hollinger and Jimmie, of Oak Lake.

Anniversary church services in this district concluded on Sunday, with that of West Huntingdon United Church. The weather was ideal and large crowds attended both morning and evening services conducted by Rev Paul H. Christensen, of Springbrook, who brought inspiring messages. The choir under leadership of Mrs. William Grant added much to the singing of the hymns and also in the anthems and solos rendered.

MARSHALL ASKS $597,000,000 EMERGENCY AID

Russia Prepared To Compromise Palestine Partition

Agrees to Most Proposals By Canadian Delegate

Lake Success, Nov. 10 (CP)— Soviet delegate Semen K. Tsarapkin said today that Russia is prepared to make concessions in an effort to reach an agreement with the United States on enforcement of the proposed partition of Palestine into separate Arab and Jewish countries.

An official source, meanwhile, said Russia had formally introduced a new proposal at a closed meeting of a "Working Party" composed of Canadian, Russian, American, and Guatemalan delegates from the United Nations assembly's "partition" sub-committee.

Tsarapkin made his statement of Russian willingness to compromise as he entered the secret session.

The Soviet delegate said Russia would agree to "most" of the suggestions for compromise submitted last weekend by Lester B. Pearson, Canada's Under-Secretary for External Affairs.

Pearson suggested that Britain end her mandate over the Holy Land Jan. 1 but continue to administer Palestine until separate Arab and Jewish regimes are established.

U. S. Attitude Uncertain

It was not known immediately whether the United States was prepared to accept the Canadian compromise suggestions which also call for a U. N. commission to be elected by the 57-power General Assembly but directly responsible to the 11-power security council.

The Canadian compromise suggestions on which Russia said she was prepared to make concessions were based on three questions:

1. Will the U. S. and Russia agree to terminate the British mandate in Palestine Jan. 1?

2. Would the two powers agree to have a commission of the general assembly named to take charge of Palestine and make its report to the security council?

3. Would they ask Britain to stay on until the administration of the United Nations to supervise law and order?

Before the Canadian play was submitted, Russia and the United States were split on the Palestine issue.

Nine Injured, Pilot Seriously In Crash-Landing

St. Catharines, Nov. 10—(CP)— R. C. Shepherd of Windsor, Ont., only one of nine men injured here Saturday when their plane, making a forced landing, crashed into a 12-foot ditch, is still in hospital here today and reported to be in favorable condition. He suffered serious spinal injuries.

The eight others, all of Buffalo, N. Y. — including five officials of the Buffalo Courier-Express — were removed to Buffalo early Sunday in three special ambulances.

The plane, owned and piloted by Shepherd, was chartered by the Buffalo pheasant - hunting party after the vessel which was to have taken them across Lake Erie from Pelee Island was forced to tie up because of bad weather.

Weather reports showed no hazard when Shepherd took off on the trip from Windsor to Buffalo, expected to take one hour and 40 minutes. But near here reports reached the plane, already buffeted by gale-force winds and its wings icing rapidly, that a snow storm was raging over Buffalo making landing there impossible.

Shepherd's wife at hospital said her husband told her he did not want to land at the airport here because of the absence of night lights on the field.

The sound of the twin-engined plane's motors attracted members of a flying club, but rescue operations were hampered by the cold, darkness and position of the plane which made it necessary to carry the injured over a deep ditch to waiting cars and ambulances.

THIEVES STEAL MOTOR OF CHURCH ORGAN

Huntsville, Nov. 10 — (CP) — There was no organ accompaniment for singing at All Saints Church here yesterday. During the night thieves entered the church and stole the motor which operated the pipe organ. The mechanism of the organ was da maged and the choir members' surplices were used as wipe cloths for greasy hands.

New Premier Named in Siam In Bloodless Coup

Bangkok, Nov. 10 (AP)—Luang Aphaiwongse today was appointed Premier of Siam and a five-member Privy Council was named to head the government following a bloodless coup yesterday directed by wartime Dictator Pipul Songgram.

The new Privy Council replaces the regency for King Phumiphon, who attains his majority next month. The monarch, now in Switzerland, is expected to return to Siam next month.

The Privy council immediately promulgated a new constitution reviving some of the monarchial powers relinquished in 1932. Under the new constitution Siam's legislature will continue as a two-chamber body, but the members of the senate will henceforth be appointed by the King instead of being elected.

Meanwhile is was reported from London that a breakdown in communications with Siam obscured details of the bloodless coup in which Songgram, former dictator and Japanese collaborator, overthrew the regime of Premier Thamrong Nawasuwat before dawn Sunday and assumed control of the government.

Earlier dispatches reported that Nawasuwat was in hiding along with former Premier Pridi Phanomyong and Police General Adul Detcheas. There was speculation that they might be planning organized resistance against Songgram and his followers.

Last reports were that Siam was outwardly quiet following the coup, which was accomplished without a shot being fired.

Murray Favors Reuther's Re-election As President of United Auto Workers

Atlantic City, Nov. 10 (AP)— President Philip Murray of the Congress of Industrial Organizations endorsed Walter Reuther for re-election as President of the United Automobile Workers.

He gave the endorsement at a press conference after making a speech at the U.A.W. convention.

Replying to a question, he said he favored Reuther's re-election.

Then he was asked if he would say the same for the re-election of George Addes as Secretary-Treasurer and R. J. Thomas and Dick Leonard as Vice-Presidents.

Murray replied: "What I said about Reuther is as far as I care to go.'

Stepping into the hot presidential political fight in the big C.I.O. union, Murray gave high praise to Reuther in his convention speech.

He had milder words for Reuther's bitter political opponents.

Murray referred to Thomas as "old R. J." and said "he's sometimes a little mischevious, but not a bad guy."

Of Secretary-Treasurer Addes, Murray said "I think George Addes is a man of integrity. He has certain outstanding qualities."

There was a loud cheer when Murray praised Reuther.

Murray told the convention that the U.A.W. is perfectly free to have its officers file non-Communist affidavits under the Taft-Hartley Labor Act. He said, "any C.I.O. union can do so without violating any National C.I.O. policy."

Sixty Canadian delegates, representing 60,000 Canadian members of the U.A.W. are present at the convention led by George Burt, Dominion director. The Canadian delegates hold about 270 of the 7,500 votes at the convention.

Burt is understood to be opposed to Reuther while Tom Brennigan of Windsor, Ont., supports the president.

Today the situation shaped up as follows:

1. Addes and Vice Presidents R. J. Thomas and Dick Leonard, their jobs at stake in an election campaign, accused Reuther of "steam-roller tactics" and "dictatorship."

2. Reuther, claiming to have a big majority of the 2,000 delegates behind his program, said the other three officers "lack the personal capacity to fit into a leadership team" and will be beaten in the elections which start tomorrow.

CANADIAN FASCIST PARTY REVIVED, ARCAND RELEASED

Former Fuehrer Attacks Jews and Communists

Montreal, Nov. 10 — (CP) — Fascism returned to Canada yesterday when its pre-war fuehrer, Adrien Arcand, voiced the old party cry that Jews and Communists are out to conquer the world. His tirade came at a secret meeting of some 500-hand-picked followers assembled to hear his first big speech since his release from wartime internment.

Arcand did not mince his words as he blamed all the ills of the world on the Jews and held them responsible for the last war.

"Communism is the weapon of the Jews to conquer the world including Canada," he reportedly said at a "birthday party" in his honor.

The press was barred from the meeting and at least three reporters were ejected when they failed to produce special invitation cards to doormen closely scrutinizing all comers.

Reliable sources who gained entrance quoted the tall and lanky leader, whose pre-war "Blackshirts" were trained with semi-military drill, as saying that "the time has not yet come for political action" but the meeting was regarded by his followers as the official rebirth of the pre-war national unity party which was declared illegal in 1939 and whose leaders were returned.

Follows Same Lines

Arcand was introduced as the man "who suffered so much in concentration camp to defend the ideas which will help save Canada from its impending doom."

Generally following the same lines of his pre-war speeches which were responsible for his incarceration, Arcand said that the leaders of the movement were all behind him and that they were holding frequent meetings to map out plans.

He bitterly denounced his internment and that of his lieutenants which he said were the result of attacks by the Communists led by Fred Rose, former member of parliament.

"We were denounced as spies for foreign powers and consequently jailed for five years just because of Communist attacks. These charges were not proved against us.

"Now, the Communists have been proved to be spies for Russia and Fred Rose is in jail. But, while we were not given a fair trial which would have cleared us, he got one and was found guilty," Arcand was reported as saying.

"Today, Soviet Russia dominates the world and the Jews are using Communism in their attempt to conquer the world, including Canada and we must start now to fend off this threat. . ."

Peers Crowd Galleries As Morrison Launches Battle to Curb Lords

London, Nov. 10 — (Reuters)— — The battle of the House of Lords, expected to stir political passions in Britain, opened unexpectedly in the Commons today.

With peers crowding the side galleries, Herbert Morrison, the leader of the House, launched the attack.

Morrison argued that there was no "sanctity" in the present powers of the peers to delay government measures for three parliamentary sessions. There would be administrative disorder if urgent economic measures were retarded and it was necessary to ensure in advance that parliamentary government was not subjected to unnecessary interruptions.

Tension increased when Sir David Maxwell Fyfe, leading for the Conservatives in the absence of Winston Churchill, in bed with a cold, followed Morrison's explanation with an attack on the government's proposals to clip the Lords of some of its power. Sir David said the government bill had no mandate, no justification and lacked all public demand.

The bill reduces from three sessions to two and from two years to one the period during which the predominantly Conservative House of Lords can hold up legislation, and contains a special proviso ante-dating the new regulations to the start of the present session, presumably to ensure that the iron and steel nationalization scheme can go through before the labor government faces the electorate in 1950.

5 STEP-CHILDREN, FOSTER MOTHER BURNED TO DEATH

Trapped in Their Beds by a Blaze of Unknown Origin

(By The Canadian Press)

A foster mother and five of her six step-children were burned to death in their home in the remote Gaspe Peninsula village of Riviere Aux Renards, Que., and nine other persons met violent deaths in Eastern Canada during the weekend.

A Canadian Press survey today showed that along with the six burned to death five died in traffic accidents, two from falls, one was drowned and one other was crushed to death between a freighter and a wall of the Cornwall Canal.

The foster mother and the five children were trapped in their beds by a blaze of unknown origin. The dead: Mrs. Patricia Roy, 41; her four stepsons, Jean Eudes, 15; Jean-Yves, 13; Georges 11, and Piere, 9, and a step-daughter, Celine, 8.

Father of the children, Dr. Antoine Roy, was absent attending a patient and the other member of the family, 12-year-old Monica Roy, was in a Rimouski convent.

The only member of the household to escape the blazing inferno was the maid who jumped through a second-storey window and suffered undetermined injuries.

Ontario had four traffic fatalities, Mrs. Ruth Henry, 37, of Marshall, Mich., was killed and her husband, Burrell, suffered severe injuries when their car went out of control near Delhi. In the Kitchener area Clifford Huehn, 41, of Heidelberg, was fatally injured when a truck crashed into his garage tow car while he was pulling another vehicle from a ditch.

Norman Kipps, six, of Dickinson's Landing, was struck by a car as he crossed a highway and died in hospital in Cornwall.

Child Killed Instantly

Diana Linda Hanson, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Hanson of Ottawa, was killed instantly Saturday and her mother taken to hospital with undetermined injuries when the automobile in which they were riding was in collision with a passenger-ladened truck on a highway on the outskirts of the city.

Richard Harley, 78, of Dartmouth, N. S., was the fifth victim of week-end traffic accidents. He was killed Saturday when struck by a car which had rebounded from a collision with another vehicle.

Frank Mackenzie Simpson, 67, retired telephone engineer, was killed Saturday when he fell from the roof of a seven storey downtown Toronto hotel while taking pictures.

At Peterborough, Theodore Simpson, 63, was drowned Sunday when a motorboat overturned in Katchacoma Lake, 40 miles north of Peterborough. A companion Lt.-Col. Vincent Eastwood of Peterborough clung to the boat until rescued.

STORM WARNINGS STILL FLY ALONG THE GREAT LAKES

Expect to Free Grain-Carrier William C. Warren From Rocky Shoals

(By The Canadian Press)

A storm expected to continue along the Great Lakes for most of today brought the first snowflurries of the season to Ontario and Quebec cities, left a foot of snow in Northwestern Ontario, crippled two lake freighters and wrecked an airplane in a crash-landing.

Storm warnings still fly along the lakes but the westerly winds which during the weekend churned the waterways and buffeted shipping probably will diminish late today, weather men predict.

Owners of the grain-carrier William C. Warren said they expected the 400-foot vessel, aground off Presque Isle Point in Northern Lake Huron, would be freed from the rocky lake bottom some time today. The tug Favorite is standing by the freighter which went aground in a gale Saturday.

The same storm disabled the 3,000-ton freighter Jupiter and forced her, anchors dragging, toward the rocky shoreline of Lake Michigan. The Coast Guard cutter went to her aid and yesterday the cutter Mackinaw towed her to Milwaukee, Wis.

Nine Injured

At St. Catharines, nine men were injured when a chartered plane crash-landed after being turned back from Buffalo, N. Y., by a snowstorm. Pilot William Shepherd of Windsor, Ont., suffered a broken back. The injured passengers included five top officials of the Buffalo Courier-Express. They had been pheasant hunting on Pelee Island and chartered the plane after the storm prevented their return by boat.

A 38-mile-an-hour gale on Lake Huron battered the grain - laden freighter Mohawk here Saturday but she made port safely at Goderich.

The ferry Pelee battled wind and waves on Lake Erie to take 300 pheasant hunters across the 18-mile stretch from Pelee Island to Kingsville. The last of the hunters who participated in a 2-day shoot reached Kingsville last night.

Onion farmers near Erieau expressed fear that a shift in the wind would cause giant waves to rip through a dyke protecting 1,600 acres of land and send lake water over the rich black loam of the onion marshes.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Nov. 10— (CP)—Synopsis: Skies are mostly clear in Southern Ontario this morning. In Northern Ontario some cloudiness and scattered snowflurries are reported. This weather is expected to persist most of Monday. A current of warm air which is flowing northward from the Gulf of Mexico is expected to cause increasing cloudiness in Southwestern Ontario on Tuesday with occasional light rain late in the day. In Northern Ontario the weather will be mostly clear on Tuesday with little change in temperature.

TRIO TRAPPED WITHIN BANK, ONE INJURED

One Robber Shot By Police Officer

Hampton, N.B., Nov. 10 —(CP) — Two men faced arraignment in police court here today while a third, with a police revolver bullet in his groin, remained under guard in hospital at Saint John after an unsuccessful attempt to rob the Bank of Nova Scotia's Hampton branch .

All of Montreal, the men held without charge were identified as Wilfred LeClerc, 21, Emile Robidoux, 26, and Willie Shernuck, 31, the latter, said wanted in Montreal on two warrants, was shot trying to escape. His condition was reported not serious.

Things began humming about 4.30 a.m. yesterday when a pounding noise awoke the bank branch manager, Charles Fleming.

"I was the scardest man in four counties," said Mr. Fleming after it was all over. "I'm a light sleeper and woke to hear noises. The bank is about 75 feet from the front of my house. I called police at Saint John and Sussex (20 and 250 miles respectively from here) then R. L. Dales of Saint John, the Bank of Nova Scotia supervisor, and then waited."

First on the scene, Corporal James Grierson and Constable Angus Gardiner of Sussex trapped the trio inside the building. Shernuck jumped out and was shot by Grierson when he failed to stop after the corporal had fired two warning shots. The police then entered the building to arrest LeClerc and Robidoux, who was unarmed and surrendered without resistance.

A big hole had been ripped through the 19-inch vault wall. Fifteen safety boxes were torn open, with cash and securities amounting to about $50,000 stacked in readiness for a getaway, police reported.

A report that a fourth man might have been involved could not be confirmed. Nor was it known if any money was missing.

Paper on Tuesday

Although Tuesday is a public holiday in the city, the Ontario Intelligencer, along with all other Ontario dailies, is publishing as usual.

Several Hundred Drowned in Flood In South Turkey

Istanbul, Nov. 10 — (AP) — Several hundred persons were reported today to have drowned in a sudden flood which engulfed villages along the Seyhan River in Southern Turkey.

Press reports from Adana said the toll might reach 2,000, but officials said they doubted it would go that high.

Surrenders After State-Wide Hunt In Double Slaying, Kidnap Case

Rockford, Ill., Nov. 10—(AP)— Glenn Marsh, 27, sought by police in a 24-hour four-state manhunt in connection with a double slaying and the kidnapping of a woman friend, surrendered unexpectedly yesterday and told a story of a frustrated love affair.

"I didn't mean to kill those men," Glenn Marsh told reporters after he gave himself up at the home of his father here. "If they'd sat down when they saw the gun they wouldn't have been hurt."

The hunt for Marsh began after the fatal shootings Friday night of Vernon Anderson, 28, and Grant Muhrlein, 52, of Northport, Mich., and the kidnapping of Mrs. Katherine Anderson, 26, mother of three and wife of Vernon. The shootings occurred in the home of Vernon's parents. Muhrlein was Mrs. Anderson's father.

Police said Marsh was booked on charges of murder and kidnapping.

Marsh gave police this account of the shootings and a frantic 100-mile flight over seldom-used roads with Mrs. Anderson as his captive until she escaped from him early Saturday morning at Morris, Ill., when he left the car to seek accommodations at a tourist court.

"Thursday afternoon my wife, Audrey, Kit (Mrs. Anderson) and I had a conference and agreed to divorces so Kit and I could leave Rockford, go to some place else and start over again.

"But later, my wife told me Kit had talked to her lawyer and learned that she'd lose custody of the children, so she told Audrey 'it's all off.' "

Marsh related that he later went to a tavern and after drinking for four hours "decided to go and find out for myself if it was true that the divorce was off."

At the Anderson home, he added, "the two men jumped on me and I pulled the gun and started shooting."

Marsh said he forced Mrs. Anderson to get into his car but that he remembered only vaguely the flight with her.

"Real and Urgent" Need in France, Italy and Austria

'Risks Real' but 'Chances Of Success' Are Good

Washington, Nov. 10 (AP)— State Secretary Marshall today asked Congress to provide $597,000,000 for emergency aid in Europe until March 31, 1948. He estimated an additional $7,500,000,000 will be needed in the 15 months starting then.

Eventually, Marshall told a joint meeting of the Senate and House of Representatives Foreign Committes, long-range European recovery costs will range between $16,000,000,000 and $20,000,000,000.

Putting Europe back in good health was the goal of all the major Allies except Russia. Bluntly, Marshall said, "the Soviet Union does not for its own reasons share this aim."

Marshall's calculation of the total cost of long-range aid was considerably higher than the estimated submitted to President Truman by a 19-man Citizens Committee headed by Secretary of Commerce Harriman. This group had placed the cost of the four-year, self-help program at $12,000,000,000 to $17,000,000,000.

However, Marshall said it is impossible to compute the amount with accuracy at the present time.

The secretary said that the $597,000,000 in stop-gap funds is necessary to meet a "real" and "urgent" need in France, Italy and Austria.

$1,500,000,000 From March to June

After that emergency period, he estimated that $1,500,000,000 will be required from March 31 until the end of the fiscal year June 30, and an additional $6,000,000,000 for the full year beginning July 1.

While Marshall confined his report largely to Europe, he said the situation in China "continues to cause us deep concern" and "we should extend to the government and its people certain economic aid and assistance." Republican leaders have insisted that China should be included in any stop-gap aid program.

Marshall said a definite proposal for China is being prepared for early submission. And, he said, the United States and all other world powers recognize the National government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek as the "sole legal government of China."

This was the first indication from any top government authority of future United States policy toward China.

Marshall told the legislators in a statement that in the aid program the "risks are real" but the "chances of success are good" in helping the people of Western Europe reserve their free soriety.

Occasionally Criticizes Russia

Marshall occasionally criticized Russia, saying at the start that while Britain, France and the United States formed policies to restore Europe to health, "it is now clear that only one power, the Soviet Union, does not for its own reasons share this aim."

He said, the fact must be faced that despite American efforts to help the whole European community "not all of the European nations have been left free to take their place in the community of which this is the natural part."

Consequently, Marshall said the graphic scope of the recovery program contemplated by the United States "is limited to those nations which are free to act in accordance with their national traditions and their own estimates of their national interests."

Marshall omitted in his request for emergency aid any estimate of additional help for the British-American occupation zone in Western Germany, plus the zones in Japan and Korea. Since this is a United States army department matter, presumably any recommendations must come from Defence Secretary Forrestal or Army Secretary Royall.

Occupations Cost High

The additional occupation cost is expected to run about $400,000,000.

Of the $597,000,000 for emergency assistance, Marshall said France needs $328,000,000, Italy $227,000,000 and Austria $42,000,000 to carry them through March, 1948.

By then, Marshall said, it is hoped Congress will have decided on the broad, long-range recovery plan bearing Marshall's name. This will be outlined in detail later, probably after Congress reconvenes Nov. 17.

Interim aid, Marshall said, would be concentrated largely on food, fuel, fertilizer, fibres, seeds and medical supplies.

Marshall made it evident that the United States administration regards the economic situation in non-Communist Italy as the most serious in Western Europe.

"Italy's financial situation," he said, "is even more serious than that of Austria or France."

Strictly up to Congress

Marshall left it strictly up to Congress to determine how the long-term program should be administered. Some sentiment has developed in Congress for a separate agency outside the State Department.

But he did give this outline of how he thought the program should work:

"As a general principle, aid should take the form of grants or loans, depending in each case upon the capacity of the particular country to repay and the effect which accumulation of additional external debt would have upon sustained recovery. The precise determination in each case should be made by the administrative agency with the advance of the Department of State and the National Advisory Council.

Economic effects of the aid program, Marshall said, will be felt far beyond the boundaries of the 16 countries involved. In a sense, he said, it is a world recovery program. He made this point:

The annual meeting of the Belleville Boy Scout Association was held Friday evening at the Kiwanis Centre. Guest speaker for the occasion was A. H. Snelgrove of Trinity College School, Port Hope, who talked on the need for leadership for the youth of the community in modern living.

In January a leadership course was held with 120 cub leaders from Eastern Ontario attending the course. In February and March over ten tons of scrap paper was collected by the scouts and cubs during the Boy Scout National Campaign to collect paper. In April, 45 leaders were sent to attend a one day training course in Kingston. Five scouts were sent to Ganaraska Camp at Port Hope in May where they qualified in forestry.

During the summer, camps for scouts and cubs were held, the cubs going to Kiwanis Camp at Roblin Lake where 110 cubs were accommodated enabling them to experience the greatest thrill of their entire year's scout work.

Camp Has Everything

The scout camp on Little Salmon Lake, 61 miles north of Belleville, was the year's highlight for the Boy Scouts. One of the scouts when asked for his opinion of the camp location said "the camp has everything." All agreed that the Association should endeavor to establish a permanent camp site in the Little Salmon Lake vicinity.

Softball and baseball leagues were organized for the scouts and cubs during the summer with competition being exceptionally keen and the players enjoying immensely the summer's activity.

In October an Eastern Ontario Jamboree was held at the fair ground with over 1,200 scouts attending the two-day gathering. Apple day was held on the Saturday before the Jamboree with a financial return of $745.

Reporting on the year as a whole Mr. Simpson said that all financial obligation had been met and that the most serious concern was the problem of obtaining leaders for the different troops.

District Commissioner R. L. Brown reported on the training in the troops. He stated there were six scout leaders, 15 cub leaders, 76 scouts and 157 cubs in Belleville. During the summer 49 scouts and 110 cubs had gone to camp and there had been 17 church parades.

'Blue Plan' Men Blamed for Fires In French Plants

Paris, Nov. 10 — (Reuters) — Men of the "blue plan" were blamed for a series of recent "criminal" fires in French textile warehouses by the National Committee of Textile workers for France and French overseas territories.

A resolution accusing men of the "blue plan" — a plot to overthrow the republic, uncovered last March by the Ministry of the Interior — was adopted by the committee in expressing indignation over the recent fires, particularly at Le Havre a week ago Sunday, when 20,000,000 francs (about $2,000,000) worth of cotton was destroyed.

They alleged "these men take their orders from the new Cagoule (secret fascist organization) and the neo-fascist rally of which General de Gaulle has taken the lead, thus facilitating the intrigues of American Imperialism."

Quinte Motorcycle Club Holds Fall Trials

It was over unused roads up and down hills between trees and through ditches.

There were a few spills during the day but no one was hurt and a very good time was held by all who participated in the trials.

Several observers marked points against the riders who defaulted in the various sections.

Winner of the trial was Jerry Jenkinson with 983 points, second was Frank Thorn with 957 points and third place went to Ray Hay with 898 points.

Remembrance Day Services Will be Held at Cenotaph

Impressive services will mark the first joint Remembrance Day here tomorrow when young and old veterans of two World Wars will unite in paying memorial tribute to their honored dead, sponsored by the Canadian Legion.

The service will take place at the city Cenotaph on Station Street and will be in charge of Major John Foote, formerly of Madoc, Canada's first and only padre Victoria Cross winner. Major Foote who was captured at Dieppe, refused to leave his men and was a prisoner of war over a perior of years.

Veterans will fall in at the Bridge Street Armouries at ten o'clock and the parade will move off twenty minutes later. All veterans regardless of affiliation are requested to turn out and pay memorial tribute to the comrades who "went west."

The general public is cordially invited to attend the services. Wreaths will be deposited on the Cenotaph following the service proper, and those organizations which have secured Vetcraft wreaths are reminded to pick up their wreaths which will be transported to the Cenotaph prior to the parade.

Veterans are requested to wear berets and medals, or ribbons. A banquet will be held in the evening in the Armouries.

H. N. Pickford, General Manager, West End Motors

Former intelligence officer in the Income Tax Division of the Department of National Revenue and stationed in the Belleville area for the past year, Mr. H. N. Pickford today assumed new duties as the general manager of West End Motors in Belleville.

The position is a new one with West End Motors, the appointment being made to permit closer supervision thus effecting economies which will reflect on dollar values and assure the public a square deal.

Although the used car business is new for Mr. Pickford he brings with him to West End Motors a wide experience in dealing with the general public. For the past year he has been investigator with the Income Tax Division and prior to that was chief investigation officer for the Ottawa Region of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

A native of England Mr. Pickford is a veteran of two wars having served in the First World War, enlisting as a private and rising to the rank of captain in charge of an armoured car battalion. In the last war he enlisted with a captain's rank as field security intelligence officer, organizing a unit at Ottawa and taking it overseas. Later he was transferred to the R.C.A.F. and on discharge continued war work as inspecting officer with the Inspection Board of the United Kingdom.

Prior to the last war he resided in Toronto and was associated with Confederation Life being assistant purchasing agent and supply department manager.

For many years he was in the employ of the Canada Cement Company and was engaged at the company's plant at Exshaw, Alberta, near Calgary, prior to being transferred to the plant at Point Anne twenty six years ago. He filled the position of storekeeper and in the regard of the officials of the company and his fellow employees he held a high place. To many friends his sudden death has brought much regret.

Belleville Man Injured On Cycle

Clayton Archer, 27, of Belleville, suffered a fracture of the right leg and multiple bruises when the motorcycle he was riding crashed into the back of a car on No. 2 Highway near Dunbarton, yesterday afternoon. Provincial Constable Robert Williams said that Archer was riding west at Dunbarton and when the line of traffic in front of him stopped his machine skidded as he applied the brakes and ran into the car ahead.

George Gaston, also of Belleville, a passenger on the motorcycle, received a gash on the left forearm but climbed on the motorcycle and left for home before Constable Williams arrived at the scene of the accident. Archer was taken to the Oshawa General Hospital for treatment by a passing motorist.

ANGLO-PORTUGUESE AGREEMENT

London, Nov. 10 —(AP)— The government said last night that Britain and Portugal agreed in Lisbon last week on financial measures for "further development of mutually advantageous trade," on the decline since Britain encountered monetary exchange difficulties last summer.

Potato Rationing Added to List In Great Britain

London, Nov. 10. (AP)—Potato rationing was added Saturday to the long list of restrictions harassing food-short Britons.

Food Minister John Strachey—following up recent cuts in the British meat, bacon and fats rations—announced that after today potato sales will be limited to three pounds a week a person as the result of a shortage caused by the Summer drought.

Candy rations, he added, will be cut 25 per cent—from four to three ounces a week—beginning January 4.

Strachey told a press conference that floods in the Spring and the Summer drought, the worst in 50 years, had cut the potato crop 10 per cent below the average yield. If rationing were not decreed, he commented, "sometime in the Spring potatoes would have run out, and that would have been a catastrophe."

Potato rationing, Strachey concluded, will be a particularly hard blow to big British families, who have depended largely on potatoes to provide the bulk of starch diet since bread rationing was invoked last year.

Children under five will be limited to 1 1-2 pounds weekly, while children between the ages of 5 and 18 will get an increase of seven ounces weekly in their bread rationing to help offset the potato restriction.

The ration order affects England, Scotland and Wales, but Northern Ireland is not included.

Maurice Button Named President Boy Scout Assoc.

Maurice Button, Kiwanis member who has shown keen interest in the scout movement in Belleville, was named president of the Belleville Scout Association with Robt. L. Brown being re-elected as district commissioner. Vice presidents are F. T. Symons, A. H. Jones, N. Edwards and H. W. Warner. Treasurer is Len Fozard.

Group representatives are as follows: 1st group—W. J. Page and H. Nicholls; 2nd group, O. Owen and Mrs. M. Kemp; 4th group, W. J. Doyle and F. Churchill; 8th group, A. R. Symons and R. Poste.

Scout and cub leaders of the city came in for praise by guest speaker Mr. A. H. Snelgrove, Master of Trinity College School, Port Hope, for accepting responsibilities associated with the guiding of youth. The results of their guidance, he pointed out, were clearly revealed at the meeting by the scout and cub demonstrations held at the annual meeting of the Scout Association at Kiwanis Centre.

Continuing Mr. Snelgrove stressed the importance and need for leaders and leadership for the youth of the community. This need was just as vital for youth of today as was the need for leaders like Churchill and Roosevelt during the war. The two great dangers to youth, the speaker believed, were liquor and the Communist attempt to secure control over the young people.

Proper Guidance

Only through proper guidance and leadership could youth develop the moral basis necessary to decide whether the situations they have to face were the right situations or the wrong temptations.

A true leader, Mr. Snelgrove explained, was a person who believed that youth could make its own moral decisions when given the proper background. A leader also had to have faith in himself so as to give to youth the proper background.

A leader usually achieved this result, not by saying "do this, don't do that," but rather by doing what was right and implying "follow me, do as I do". Boys look up to the adult so adults must set the right example by Christian living.

The speaker was introduced by District Field Commissioner Jackson and thanked by George Brown.

During the meeting cub demonstrations were given by the 1st and 2nd cub packs these indicating the fine results of training. The 8th scout troop presented a short humorous skit which was thoroughly enjoyed.

Winners of the Summer sport activities were congratulated by President Button and were presented with flashlights. The softball award was won by the 4th cub pack and the baseball award by the 2nd scout troop. D. F. C. Jackson, from provincial boys scout headquarters, Toronto, congratulated the Belleville Association for the remarkable progress shown.

A.N. & A.F. Vets Attend Divine Service Sunday

Marching behind their colors and to music supplied by the Belleville Pipe Band more than one hundred members of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans Branch No. 201 attended divine service in Christ Church on Sunday morning in observance of Remembrance Day. The parade moved off from the Armouries under command of Robert Browning, swung along Bridge Street and thence along Coleman Street to the church. Following the service the veterans paraded across the footbridge and then marched down Front Street to the Memorial Hall where the parade was dismissed. The veterans looked smart in their berets and medals and the Pipe Band, who serve on every occasion played stirring music along the parade route.

Church Filled

The church was filled to capacity and Wing Commander, J. Grant Sparling, M M. and Bar, rector of Christ Church, welcomed the veterans to the service on behalf of the congregation and addressed them on the subject "For there is no discharge in this war." The all-male choir under the able direction of Gordon McCully Black sang the anthem "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" by Bach. In his sermon the rector stated that old soldiers never die. "They may grow old but keep on fighting" said Mr. Sparling. "In the Second Great War the young were cut down but we older veterans were spared and this was done for a purpose of that there is no doubt". The rector paid tribute to those who had made the Supreme Sacrifice in two wars and it was due to their courage, sacrifice and devotion that Canada and the British Empire emerged victorious and no word would be adequate to amplify their fighting qualities and the spirit that was behind their effort.

What Was Spirit

"What was the spirit in their heart?" asked the speaker and then stated he did not believe they were so proud as to how we are living. "We have gotten away from their spirit that motivated them. We are engaging in self indulgence and going around in circles," said Mr. Sparling. "We have lost our dependability and some of our loyalty is gone and our sense of fair play. Domestic life has been badly upset and we have been shopping around for something new and interesting.

"I believe we have reached the philosophy of despair," said Mr. Sparling, "and have taken the attitude what is the use of going straight. The explosion of the two bombs at Hiroshima and Nagasaki should never have been used because the Japanese had applied to terms to Russia two weeks before the atomic bombs were used." He stated that the fear of Hell would have kept us straight but now there is a greater fear in the world. For three years nothing has happened and we have gotten in the habit of living a life of ease and it is naughty but it is nice. He cited Brock Chisholm as saying the bacteriological war that would come with another outbreak of hostilities would make the atomic bomb look like a Sunday School picnic.

Adds Tremendous

"I can say,' continued the speaker that those who died allowed no such philosophy to mold their lives. The odds against them were tremendous and Britain never at anytime in two wars had supremacy of manpower but they did have the supremacy of heart and that is the spirit that we must catch. The rector claimed that politics won't give us a better life but the Spiritual Christ is the answer. "I believe the Christian Civilization of today is trying to operate on Christian principles but without the principal "Christ". In this solemn hour all must rededicate themselves to Christ and take him for the Master and then this world will be a better place to live in, concluded the rector.

The Last Post and Reveille were sounded and the National Anthem sung.

Quinte Sea Cadet Corps Launches Campaign for $6,000 to Equip HMCS Quinte for Training Purposes

Many organizations in the country have taken up the gauntlet of challenge hurled down to them by the terrific pace of a post-war world and its effect on the youth of the Dominion.

Realizing the necessity of training and equipping Canada's young boys and youths for the sterner tasks of the future, the Navy League of Canada has accepted this gauntlet and through its wide ramifications and Sea Cadet Corps is doing an outstanding job in training the youth of today so they will be the better citizens of tomorrow.

In Belleville members of the Quinte Sea Cadet Corps are now the proud owners of the former South End Athletic Club building now known as "HMCS Quinte". This fine building was purchased by the Navy League for $4,000 and presented to the Quinte corps.

But much more money, is needed to effect necessary repairs and equip it for sea-cadet training purposes.

The large number of boys at present members of the corps receive excellent training from an efficient group of officers and instructors, at no cost to themselves. They are taught seamanship, drill, leadership, responsibility, sailing and swimming and above all fair play and teamwork. They are being fitted for the life that lies ahead of them so they will not only take their place among their fellows but be a credit to the community.

The Quinte Sea Cadet Corps this week is launching a campaign to raise $6,000. The work has the endorsation of prominent men in business ,industry and the professions as well as outstanding organizations.

Chief of Police Walter Probert, who knows whereof he speaks, has the following to say regarding the campaign. "I heartily endorse this campaign and want to add that I believe the Sea Cadets work in this city is a most important factor in holding down juvenile delinquency. My experience has been that these boys do not appear in police courts. I am firmly in accord with the movement and urge all citizens interested in the youth of the city to aid them in the drive for funds.'

All or any donations may be made to Mr. Henry Becker, manager the Bank of Montreal here, finance chairman. All donations are exempt from income tax.

SLIPS ON SOAP CAKE, CRASHES THROUGH WINDOW

Brantford, Nov. 10 — (CP) — The cartoon that shows someone slipping on a cake of soap in the bathroom became a reality for Dan McMillan when he slipped on soap while washing the floor of his second storey apartment and crashed through a window narrowly missing a dangerous fall. He managed to catch a piece of metal jutting out near the window and hung on until friends pulled him to safety.

DONALD RAYMOND

A typical AO worker in Belleville

Associated with AO for the past five years, Donald is typical of the nearly 190 AO people in Belleville who produce the finest of ophthalmic lenses utilized by professional men in the correction of vision.

Versatile and skilled, Donald's duties are many. Toolmaker for the one-piece bifocal lens department, he creates wax polishers (as illustrated above) felt polishers and metal grinding tools. In addition, he sets up lenses on grinding blocks and then adjusts the complex machines used in lens grinding and polishing operations.

Like so many of his fellow-employees, Donald is intensely interested in the company, its welfare and its activities. More to the point, he translates his interests into action. He is president of the AO Service and Social Club, a popular employee organization to which he gives unstintingly of his time and energy.

Donald has other interests too. Having a liking for lodge activities, he is affiliated with the Oddfellows Lodge. Fishing, also, is a favorite activity. All in all, we'd say Donald Raymond extracts the utmost out of life through his manifold duties and hobbies. His wife Jean, by the way, was previously employed by AO for more than four years and so there's a real tradition of AO service in the Raymond family.

Summing up, Donald is one more reason why we believe in the future of the AO Belleville plant. The success of any business enterprise is dependent on the teamwork and ability of its employees and certainly Donald Raymond typifies why AO in Belleville has progressed and expanded throughout the years.

Remembrance Day

Far from their own Canadian land
They sleep beneath an alien sky,
Our heroes brave—a valiant band—
Who loyally went forth to die
That freedom and the truth might live
In spite of despot's loud acclaim,
And to our land the honor give
Of sharing in a glorious name.

Grieve not for those who restful lie
Beneath the crosses pure and white,
Who sleep where autumn breezes sigh,
Where poppies raise their faces bright;
For not like us shall they grow old
Nor feel the burden of the years,
Their names with heroes e'er enrolled
We owe them neither sighs nor tears.

But may we live for truth right,
For Freedom's cause for which they died,
For which they spent their youthful might
Amid the battle's crimson tide.
Raise high the torch that they have flung
Into our strong and vigorous hand,
That Freedom's song may e'er be sung
O'er all our wide Canadian land.

Wellington, Ont. —Helen B. Anderson.

Carrying the Torch

Remembrance Day finds the world of free nations seeking to achieve the ideals for which so many millions of the gallant youth of the world died in two world struggles. The anniversary of Remembrance brings poignant expression of the hopes of humanity that these aims will be achieved. To attain that happy state of a warless world is what humanity is pledged to achieve to repay the tragic outpouring of life and treasure which the youth of the nation was called upon to pay. Nations are in deadly earnest on this anniversary of Remembrance Day to reach a world order which will forever make a repetition of war impossible.

Remembrance Day brings personally to mind those who gave all for their country and freedom. War's ravages have been so heavy that there is no one who has not been brought close into touch with the havoc which has been caused. In tens of thousands of communities tribute will be paid to the men from those settlements who bore the brunt of the battle to preserve their countries against the aggressor. Those who fell are held in remembrance and their names are revered.

Their sacrifice inspires the leaders and friends of the democracies to struggle for the attainment of a reign of peace which cannot be broken. Man has realized what war's ravages have meant in the loss of the rich young lives of many lands of whose services their countries have been deprived through the war-lust of aggressors.

"To you from falling hands we throw the torch," said Lieut.-Colonel John McCrae in his poem, "In Flanders Fields." The world today has acted in the spirit of that battle cry and has taken up the torch. Mankind knows what efforts have been made and are being made to bring about harmony of the nations so that the world may never have to pass through such tragic experience again as the two World Wars.

Exhibition of School Work

There has been on display in the window of The Quinte Bookshop an exhibition of samples of the work which the children of the schools have been doing .The display is a fitting comment on the high class of work of the schools today in the broadening influences at work which are enriching the lives of the pupils. The exhibition was prepared in connection with Education Week and reflects credit on the teachers and their success with the pupils. It attracted a great deal of attention and praise of the success of the training which the children are now receiving.

During the past week parents were brought close into touch with the work of the schools and many took the opportunity to take part in the Education Week program.

Lights on Bicycles

Occasionally there is a bicyclist who rides without a light at night though the law requires that a light be carried on the machine for the protection of the public. The rider and bicycle become an almost invisible object in darkness unless the machine is lighted.

The unlighted bicycle is a serious hazard on the streets. One may dart out of a side street and the unsuspecting pedestrian and even motorist may come into collision with the rider and the bike and there may be a tragedy or near tragedy.

Unless bicycles bear lights they are almost invisible to other traffic until it is right upon them, when it may be too late to prevent an accident.

For their own sake as well as for others the riders of bicycles should follow the law very strictly for the regulations as to the use of streets and roads are very clear and were drawn up to include lighting of bicycles when on the roads and streets when darkness comes on.

John G. Winant

"During the London blitz a woman stood gazing desolately at the rubble that was all that was left of her home after an air raid. A car drew up behind her, and when she turned to look she recognized the rugged Lincolnesque features of the American Ambassador.

"His eyes were full of tears as he gazed at her lonely figure, but he said nothing. Compassion and awkwardness were written on his face. Suddenly her heart swelled out in gratitude for that unspoken understanding, and she thought: Here is America.

"Such an incident may help Americans to understand why the British loved John G. Winant, who brought away heavy burdens from his service to the cause of Anglo-American co-operation during the war. In his own country, too, he was loved and admired, and his achievements as Governor of New Hampshire, as head of the Social Security Board and the International Labor Office were deeply respected by those who knew how to value them. Yet his character and capacities well might have won him a higher role in American life than any he had yet played," says Christian Science Monitor.

"Compassion must mark his awkward exit. It is up to Americans to fulfill in themselves the nobility of aim and humility of purpose that rare men like John G. Winant find at the heart of common American life."

Parking Problem

Parking meters, those hitching posts of the current age, are showing up some further oddities in human behaviour. There was an instance recently in Victoria, where, by the way, they have painted the parking meters to blend with the hanging flowers and the general loveliness of the city. However, even Victoria has at least one peculiar citizen. This one got into his parked car, along with another man whom he had offered to drive home. Instead of driving away the motorist just sat there, looking at the meter beside which he had parked nearly an hour previously. At last the passenger inquired what was holding them up. Alas for the frailty of the human mind. It is a sad fact that the driver replied he still had two minutes of his parking time left.

So he went on sitting there, watching the meter, while two minutes of his life ticked away.—The Printed Word.

Some business concerns have some pretty catchy slogans to advertise their wares, but the barber who thought up this masterpiece must have done more thinking than the customary talking. Under a picture of a man's head he put this message: "We need your head in our business," says Kitchener Record.

A tug at the coat and a pat of the hair,
"Up with the shoulders, the eyes over there!"
Then always this phrase, which for life is most fit,
Though just for your picture: "The chin up a bit!"

A touch at the necktie, a pull at the vest,
All just to make sure you will look your at your best;
And then this reminder, as straight up you sit,
Ere the shutter flies open: "The chin up a bit!"

Oh, man at the camera, bulb in your hand,
How often I've tried to obey your command.
'Tis just for one second or less, I admit,
Yet failing your warning: The chin up a bit!"

'Tis just for their pictures, I know you suggest

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What does "armistice" mean?

Like many other military terms, "armistice" was borrowed by English from French. The French word was formed from Late Latin "armistitium," which is derived ultimately from Latin "arma," arms, and "sto," to stand. Literally it means to stop fighting. In its military sense "armistice" signifies a brief temporary cessation of hostilities by mutual agreement.

Although "armistice" occurs in English as early as 1707, the term did not become common in either England or the United States until after the signing of the armistice between the Allies and the Central powers in 1918. This armistice, the most famous in history, was signed at dawn on November 11 in a French railway car at the village of Rethondez a few miles east of Campiegne on the right bank of the Aisne. Eleven o'clock that morning was fixed as the time to cease firing on the Western front. Records show that 213 members of the American Expeditionary Forces were killed in action on Nov. 11, but there are no records of any battle deaths after 11 a.m.

An armistice is neither a partial nor a temporary peace in the strict military sense of the term. It is only a truce or temporary suspension of hostilities. The armistice of 1918 was renewed three times before the First World War was terminated May 7, 1919, by the signing of the peace treaty at Versailles. Since the United States did not ratify that treaty the country continued technically at war with the Central powers until July 2, 1921, when President Harding signed an act of Congress declaring peace with Germany and Austria. The treaty of peace made at Berlin under that resolution was not ratified by the U. S. Senate until October 18,1921.

The Hague Peace Convention of 1899 declared: "An armistice suspends military operations by mutual agreement between the belligerent parties. If the duration is not fixed, the belligerent parties can resume operations at any time, provided always the enemy is warned within the time agreed upon, in accordance with the terms of the armistice."

For all practical purposes the signing of the armistice of November 11, 1918, ended the First World War and made such a profound impression that "The Armistice" has referred specifically to that event ever since. Many States began to make November 11 a legal holiday by acts of their legislatures or by the proclamations of their governors.

On June 4, 1926, Congress passed a concurrent resolution declaring "That the President of the United States is requested to issue a proclamation calling upon the officials to display the flag of the United States on all Government buildings on November 11 and inviting the people of the United States to observe the day in schools and churches, or other suitable places, with appropriate ceremonies expressive of our gratitude for peace and our desire for the continuance of friendly relations with all other peoples."

On May 13, 1938, President Roosevelt approved the following act of Congress: "That the 11th. day of November in each year, a day to be dedicated to the cause of world peace and to be hereafter celebrated and known as Armistice Day, is hereby made a legal public holiday . . . ."

Port Colborne, Nov. 10 — (CP) — Capt. R. Scott Misener, president of Sarnia and Colonial Steamships Ltd., said yesterday that four steamship companies had served 60 days' notice on the Canadian Seamen's Union that they will not re-negotiate with the C.S.U. after present contracts expire Dec. 31 until the union has "cleaned house of avowed communists at its head."

Capt. Misener said termination of the contract would leave the companies free to deal with any union or none.

THE TEETH AND RHEUMATIZ

When I speak of "rheumatiz" here I am not facetious. I use the term because I believe it is as good a name as any for the long-continued, progressive, chronic joint pain stiffness and disability which various doctors at various times have called this or that kind of arthritis rheumatoid arthritis, chronic rheumatisim or how do you like it.

It is humiliating but I suppose I must keep reminding readers that I don't know the cause or cure of rheumatiz. To the best of my understanding nobody does.

Believe it or not, my first thought concerning the teeth and rheumatiz is not whether one or more teeth may possibly harbor a septic focus, a little abscess or an area of infection which is the source of the joint infection. That may be so in some cases, and when it is so the patient may get a good start toward recovery or at least a considerable degree of improvement from whatever dental treatment the septic focus requires or would require regardless of the rheumatiz.

No, there is another and, in my opinion, far more important relation between the teeth and rheumatiz which, I am afraid, most physicians and dentists too fail to consider so, if they think of it at all. When an individual subject to rheumatiz mentions casually that he or she has had most of all of his teeth removed at the order of a physician who reached that verdict after a cursory inspection of the mouth, one wonders whether that physician knows what function, if any, teeth serve, and one wonders what sort of wishy-washy training could have made a dentist perpetrate the atrocity in blind deference to the doctor's command. One yearns to knock their heads together and give 'em shovels and put 'em at some work they are qualified to do.

—The first thought of everyone who is seriously concerned about health or the lack of it should be about the functional efficiency of the teeth—the natural teeth or te artificial dentures installed by the dentist. Upon the efficiency of the mastication or chewing process depends good digestion, the assimilation of the minerals and vitamins of food as well as the calories. Upon assimilation depends good nutrition and upon nutrition depends the general health, vite and longevity.

Irrespective of focal infection that is, joint inflammation secondary to neglected foci or infection about the roots of teeth or in the gums, one should regard dental prophylaxis—regular inspection, cleaning and any necessary treatment by the dentist —as an excellant form of health disability from rheumatiz as one gets along in years.

I'm still afraid many readers will not understand what I'm trying to teach so say we settle for a brief quotation from the author of Little Lessons in the Ways of Health, titled Save Your Teeth (for copy send twenty-five cents and stamped envelope bearing your address):

"So called 'dead' teeth... if I had a pulpless tooth serving a useful purpose in my mouth I'd want more than ... an equivocal X- ray shadow ... to convince me ... On the other hand if I were developing some vague chronic joint condition not otherwise accounted for I'd gamble the tooth ..."

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Six Year Difference in Age

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 16 and have met a very nice fellow, 22. We have been many places together and had swell times. Most of the time we have gone out with my older sister and her older boy friend.

Do you think he is too old for me? He does not know my age and takes me for 18. If you think he is too old for me, how should I tell him? "J.S.C."

Dear "J.S.C.5": As a general rule 16 and 22 do seem a little bit far apart. A difference of six years between a girl and a young man is much greater, from the psychological standpoint, at your age than is it later on in life. The reason is that as people grow older and wiser and more experienced in life, they usually are closer together from the standpoint of maturity, even though they may not be in years.

You can see yourself that a teen - age girl presumably in school, would hardly have had opportunity to reach the degree of maturity that 22 years might be supposed to bring.

However, if you and this young man enjoy going out together and having no idea of taking each other seriously, I see no harm in it, nor do I see any particular necessity for telling him about in the difference in your ages. I think that time will straighten that out itself.

A Playboy is Not Worth Bothering About

Dear Miss Fairfax:

What do you think of a fellow you have known for a long time who asks you to go out just when he happens to feel like it? I love him, but he doesn't know it.

When he does ask me to go out before the evening is over he is sure to try to persuade me into an affair with him and it makes me feel bad. I tell myself I never want to see him again, but that is not so.

Ever since I have known him, I can't see anybody except him, but I would rather not see him if he is going to be like that. I think I'm right don't you?

Penny

Dear Penny:

I certainly do think that you are right, and I hope that you will stick to your sensible way of looking at things. No boy who behaves in this way is worth your time and thought and you would be much wiser to tell him that if he can't act like a gentleman you don't intend to go out with him any more at all. Then stick to your resolution.

If he has any sound stuff in him, he will respect you for such a decision and like you better than before. And if he is just a playboy, why bother with him? You could find somebody better than that.

Things Never Stay The Same

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 16 and went with a very nice boy about eight months. Then I met another boy and went out with him. But after awhile I found I liked the first one best.

Now one of my best girl friends like him and I believe he likes her, although he's told me that he still loves me, too. I want very much to go with him again, but I don't want to tell the second boy that I still like the first boy, and I don't want to hurt my girl friend. Please tell me what I should do.

"Confused"

Dear "Confused":

The trouble about changing one's mind in this world is that it is rarely possible to retrace your steps if you change it back again. In other words, time always marches on, and events move along with it, so that you never can leave a situation and then go back and find things just as they were before.

Since you walked out on your first boy friend, you could hardly expect that he was going to sit around and wait to see if you weren't going to come back. If he and one of your best friends have found each other congenial that is hard luck for you, now that you want him back. But I don't believe there is much you can do about it.

My advice is to be a good sport, and leave things as they are. No doubt you will soon find another boy friend and will have learned a lot from experience.

Boys Who Get Fresh

Dear Miss Fairfax:

About a year ago I met a boy who was very nice and polite, and I always thought he respected as well as liked me. But on one occasion just recently he has gotten fresh. He told me afterwards that he was sorry, but should I accept that as an excuse and what should I dionETAO and what should I do if it happens again?

I have been told by a friend that this is a stage through which all growing boys pass. Do you agree?

"Doubtful"

Dear "Doubtful":

It is possible that some boys pass through a stage when they have a tendency to be "fresh" with girls, but I don't think that boys who are gentlemen at heart are apt to do so.

Since your friend apologized for his behavior toward you, I think you might accept his apology and forget this one incident If it happens again, however, then his apology was not very sincere and I would let him know very definitely that you don't care to go out with any young man of his type.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 16 year of age and in love with a boy 18. I went out on a date with him once and he seemed very friendly and likeable, but after that I didn't see him for awhile, and now when I meet him on the street he hardly bothers with me.

He is a very shy boy. Maybe that has something to do with his coldness. Can you give me some advice on how to win back his friendship?

"Anxious"

Dear "Anxious":

No boy is so shy that he suddenly acts coldly to a girl whom he has taken out. It is lack of interest, not shyness, that makes boys stop paying attention to girls.

As for "winning back" his friendship. I can't see that you have ever had it. Don't be silly as to think yourself in love with a boy of whom you have seen as little as this one.

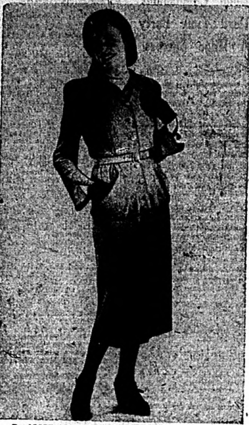
Styled for a Social Life



By ALICE ALDEN

The wife of the conductor of a great symphony orchestra must of necessity lead a busy social life, and so requires clothes that can go places from afternoon until dawn and yet never be out of place no matter the occasion or setting. We asked the wife of Efrem Kurtz, conductor of the Kansas City Philharmonic Orchestra to pose in her ideal outfit. Here it is, in sumptuous silver lame. The suit is simply styled and the jacket has small pockets, a self belt, self buttons and easy sleeves. The hat is of matching lame. This Trigere model is suitable for afternoon parties or informal evenings yet gay enough for cocktails, theatre or concerts, says Mrs. Kurtz.

Fashion Flashes

Inching up on black, both for clothes and accessories, is brown A beautiful evening frock is of brown silk lace, the skirt with three softly flared tiers, the bodice with elbow-length sleeves. Scallop detail softly finishes the deep V neckline and is repeated in a dipping low line on the hips.

Indispensable is the hat that is a nice balance between the dressy afternoon hat and the very plain, just-trimmed-with-a-band casual felt for morning wear. In between comes the softly tailored hat. One model has a full-fitting crown and a wide-sided, off-the-face brim. It is of pine green felt trimmed with gold ribbon with long, fringed-edged ends in back.

Something to see are those new coats and capes of silver fox so worked that all the dark hairs have been eliminated and there is only a haze of silver. Better a tiny jacket of this than one of those big, long coats with the ordinary markings, say the style experts.

Up goes the curtain and many women sitting in the audience are pretty sure to be wearing ankle-length two-piece theatre suits. Pure silk satin in gunmetal make a handsome suit, the jacket top richly worked in matching sequins in heavy bands around the collar, down the front and around the flaring peplum. The skirt, cut with full circular swing, is ankle length.

There's nothing to touch white for evening. White silk chiffon makes an exquisite frock. The high waisted bodice is criss-crossed with scarf ends that continue down the back in trailing panels. The bodice and scarf ends are edged with rhinestones and tiny rhinestones glitter here and there on the skirt.

Lots and lots of gray in the current fashions. A beautiful fur garment is a cape of natural gray Persian Lamb with high-riding collar and a hemline that dips softly in black.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

She's Foolish Not to Take Advantage of this Opportunity

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

After my graduation from college last June I got a very interesting position which meant that I came to live in this city where I know very few people. I live with a very delightful family who have a daughter about my age. I have just received an invitation to the wedding and reception of a girl who was in my class in college (she lives here with her family and I would very much like to go. I don't want to go alone, because I probably wouldn't know anyone there but the bride and her mother (whom I've met only once) and I'm sure I'd feel lost. Would it be correct for me to invite to go with me the daughter of the family with whom I live?

Pamela

I'd like to urge you to reconsider and go to this wedding and reception alone. You have been given a wonderful opportunity to enlarge your social contacts, to meet people whom you should get to know and enjoy in this new city where you are to make your home, and you should sensibly take advantage of this opportunity.

It would be not proper for you to invite this girl to go with you to the reception, but if you know the bride-to-be very well it is proper for you to ask her if you may bring a friend to the wedding. But please don't take the girl merely as a prop to your self-consciousness.

When a Widow Remarries Questions About In-Laws and In-Laws To-be

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I have been a widow for almost four years, and have two children, nine and five years old. In December I am to be married again, to a man who has not been married. We are of different racial extraction, and his family wishes to follow their custom and have a church wedding and a large reception. I'd like to do what is right, and I wish you would tell me what kind of costume I should wear, and if I should have attendants.

2. Should I invite my in-laws of my previous marriage? They have met my fiance on several occasions. D.R.

1. Usually when a widow remarries, she wears an afternoon dress, street--length, and hat. Or you may wear an afternoon dress of formal length, with a harmonizing hat; or a dinner - type dress, preferably with long sleeves, and with a small smart evening hat perhaps fashioned of flowers or small feathers.

Correctly you may have one attendant. If your nine-year-old child is a girl, you may, if you wish, have her as your attendant.

2. Yes, indeed you should invite them. Apparently there is no reason why you don't wish to ... apparently every reason why you do ... and it is important that you do everything possible to build up a fine relationship between the family of your children's father and their stepfather.

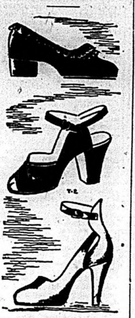
When Giving A Shower Doesn't Make Sense

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Next month I am to be maid of honor (the only attendant) for a bride who is a divorcee, and I wish you would advise me as to whether or not I should give her a shower. Personally I do not especialy want to give a shower inasmuch as I am the only attendant and therefore would have to turn either to my mother or to her mother for help in the arrangements. I have spoken to the girl's mother who says she knows that her daughter does not want a shower and who further maintains that she thinks it is not proper to give a shower for a girl who has been divorced. There is also one more point: this girl has most of the gifts she received at showers and for wedding presents at her previous marriage and which because of circumstances were not used (she has stated to me that she will use these gifts in her new home after her second marriage). I would appreciate your advice as to what I should do.

Since you don't want to give the shower and the girl and her mother don't want to have a shower given, I certainly see no reason why you should even consider giving it. Instead of giving this party which would be unwelcome all around you might, if convenient give a little tea-party, or supper party in honor of the bride-to-be ... a party with no gift-giving attached.

New Footprints Of Fashion



Suede used in three styles.

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Shoes take on new and different contours as fashion changes its ways. Heels are higher and where heels are medium, the shoe is likely to be of more delicate design than the usual walking model. Black suede is used for a dress-up pump made with lowish but broad heel. It is edged with a perforated double ruffle, also suede. Black suede, too, for the sandal made with cut-out back, criss-cross vamp, and cut-out at the toe. The towering heel marks the third shoe as new, as does built - up back with an ankle strap. It is fashioned in cocoa brown suede, and looks as though its happy destiny is that it will be worn with a mink coat!

Safeguarding telephone wires for trouble-free Service

THE WORK of burying telephone wires or placing them in overhead cable continues year after year. Today, over 4 million miles of telephone wires, 95% of our total, are in cable, safer from storms. Service interruptions caused by weather are fewer, and still our constant aim is to provide even better service.

Not only is our service becoming more dependable, but it's growing, too. We are filling orders for telephones just as fast as new equipment is available. More telephones plus more dependable service — and always at the lowest possible cost — mean greater telephone value for every user.

WEDDINGS

WANNAMAKER—MERCER

Baskets of white 'mums were used in the decoration of Bridge Street United Church, recently, when Corona Vivian Mercer, daughter of the late Rev. W. E. and Mrs. Mercer, became the bride of Chesley (Bud) Wannamaker, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. Wannamaker, West Moira Street, with Rev. S. Spurll, brother-in-law of the bride, officiating, assisted by Rev. D. C. Amos.

The bride, given in marriage by her twin brother, Mr. Douglas Mercer, was charmingly gowned in white slipper satin featuring a slight train. She wore a fingertip veil and carried an arm bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Miss Ruth Mercer, of Peterborough, was her sister's only attendant, in a gown of pale blue brocaded satin, with matching headdress. She carried an arm bouquet of Rapture roses.

Mr. Carl Wannamaker was his brother's groomsman, and the ushers were Messrs. Robert Brennan, brother-in-law of the groom, and Richard Mercer, brother of the bride.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brennan, where Mrs. S. Spurll, sister of the bride, received with the bridal party, wearing an ensemble of rose and black accessories, and a corsage of roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother in a gown of blue with black accessories and a corsage of roses.

For travelling to Toronto, Niagara Falls and Hamilton, the bride chose a suit of Loganberry shade, with black accessories. Her corsage was of roses.

After their return Mr. and Mrs. Wannamaker will reside in Belleville.

WHITE—CHRISTOPHER

Bayside parsonage was beautifully decorated with white bells and streamers for a quiet but pretty wedding at six-thirty o'clock, the evening of November 3, when Mildred Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Christopher, R.R. No. 3, Belleville, became the bride of James Douglas, son of Mrs. V. White and the late Mr. White, of Belleville. The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. C. McCallum, minister of Wesley United Church.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in a street-length dress of romance blue rayon crepe with sweetheart neckline, and short sleeves. She wore a half-hat in white with shoulder length veil and white elbow length lace mitts. Her only ornament was a single strand of pearls and her shoulder corsage of pink roses, white baby 'mums and maidenhair fern.

Mrs. Jack Elliott was her sister's only attendant. She wore a brown suit with matching accessories and a shoulder corsage of yellow roses, baby 'mums and maidenhair fern.

The groom's gift to his bride was a birthstone ring in yellow gold setting, with a large centre stone and two matching shoulder stones.

The happy couple left immediately after the ceremony for a trip to Western points. For travelling the bride chose a brown-striped tailored suit, with brown mouton fur coat and leopard skin off-the-face hat with matching shoulder bag.

Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. White will reside in Belleville.

Women's Activities

BRIDGE ST. W.M.S.

The regular monthly meeting of Bridge St. W.M.S. was held in the Church parlors Friday Nov. 7 with the president, Mrs. W. Finkle, in the chair.

Mrs. Gilbert's and Mrs. Schryver's group was in charge of the meeting, Mrs. Gilbert taking the devotional with Mrs. F. Houston at the piano and Mrs. K. Bird as soloist. Rev. Donald Amos was the guest speaker using as his theme, "The Romance of the Bible." His opening statement was that the Bible is the root and seed of eternal things, speaking a word to every generation around this Mr. Amos built his theme.

A number of rather interesting statements which he brought to the attention of his listeners were as follows:—

"There is no original manuscript in existence from which the Bible was written." He outlined an interesting variety of writers who participated in the story of the Bible's growth. "Through thirteen centuries of absorbing adventures this book has led the western world into new areas of spiritual growth, culture and progress" This inspired author to record these facts in the book which has been adopted as the W.M.S. Study Book.

A romantic function of the Bible is the unfolding of the spirit of God throughout history A student of history cannot help but see, the revelation of God's work and sympathy, as revealed to every seeker after truth and in the desire of such to meet the needs of the people."

The romantic challenge of the Bible has been that of exposing to man the conditions and needs of the human family everywhere."

Mrs. Schryver gave a resume of printing of the Bible bringing to the meeting many ancient copies, that were of great interest; one such copy being printed in 1630. Another printing of the Bible dated 1806 was of interest in that the type used is very similar to that in use today.

Another interesting book was a collection of sermons dated 1715, which revealed in a striking manner the theological beliefs of that period. Also on exhibition was a Gaelic Bible, a Latin Bible, a French New Testament and by way of contrast a copy of the present day Moffats Translation.

Mrs. Gilbert thanked the speakers, bringing to a conclusion a most interesting meeting. A social hour followed.

Good Companions Hard Time Party A Huge Success

"Hard Times" struck the Good Companions Club of Tabernacle Church Friday evening. Some of the members were so hard up they had to wear mismated shoes, clothes with a number of patches even shoe laces and white cord were needed to tie back their fair locks. Some of the gentlemen had to resort to binder twine or rope to hold up their oversized trousers.

Mr. Albert Mulvey the president welcomed the group and called upon the Misses Thelma Schlivert, Minnie Ferguson and Nora Dane, who were responsible for the interesting program. The singing of the Old Songs led by the different groups started an evening of fun.

The club kept in mind the need to conserve electricity, so lanters and lamps were used to light the Sunday School Auditorium. While K-K-Katy and Oh! Susannah led in the games and contest.

At one end, help yourself service, were loaves of brown bread, a print of butter, a bread saw, dishes of home-baked beans, doughnuts and coffee. At the other end were piles of white and blue granite pie plates, granite cups and long-handled mixing spoons. Mrs. Hall and her committee are to be congratulated on their sumptuous repast.

Auld Lang Syne, sang in the friendship circle, closed a very happy and successful evening.

Canada Booming, No Depression in Sight - - Abbott

Toronto, Nov. 10 (CP)—Canada is booming and there is no reason to look for a depression, her Finance Minister believes.

Finance Minister Abbott, who returned to Ottawa last night after an unofficial day in Toronto, said in an interview before his train left that there had been a much higher level of business activity than the experts dared to count on and industrial expansion was at a tremendous rate.

"We are enjoying a prosperity we have never known before, and it's a healthy prosperity," he said.

Because of this unprecedented activity, the Finance Department had underestimated its revenues. But this year's surplus, estimated at $500,000,000 for the first six months, should be taken with a grain of salt. The year was not over yet.

"Besides that surplus does not taken into account the $700,000,000 worth of goods we are selling on credit to other countries. If we used the United States method of computing, there wouldn't be a surplus."

He reiterated a previous statement that the cost-of-living index would level off in the neighborhood of 145. The latest two-point rise had resulted mainly from abandonment of the flour subsidy but recent drops in egg, butter and poultry prices had not yet been reflected in the index figures.

Prices right now were just 20 points above the 1926-29 prosperity years, for which the cost-of-living index reached 122. In view of generally higher wage levels and the effect of U.S. prices he thought this yas not unreasonable.

Low Water Level Disrupts Navigation In St. Mary's River

Amherstburg, Nov. 10 —(CP)—Strong southwest winds across the Great Lakes lowered the water level more than four feet in some places and partially disrupted navigation from the St. Mary's River through to Lake Erie yesterday.

Many heavily-laden ships were delayed from 18 to 24 hours after finding they were drawing more water than the levels allowed, it was reported here last night by United States Coast Guard officials.

Several ships were anchored in Lake Erie at the mouth of the Detroit River last night awaiting the winds to subside and subsequent return of normal water level.

The Detroit River light, seven miles south of here, was damaged Saturday by high seas and was still out of order yesterday. As a result, boats proceeding up the river have been telephoning the Canadian Livingstone channel light opposite Amherstburg to get water readings before deciding whether to chance it up the river.

The Coast Guard said it had no indication of the total number of ships held up throughout Lake Huron by the storm although some 35 vessels had taken shelter in the St. Mary's River.

Peiging, Nov. 10 —(AP)—Fighting on a scare unparalleled since the bitter siege of Szepingkai early this year raged today at Shihkichwang, 170 miles southwest of Peiping, and 100,000 Chinese Communists arrayed against the rail city.

Front-line dispatches reported 10,000 of the attackers were casualties in the initial fighting in which government planes were used in unprecedented strength on orders of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

In Manchuria, meanwhile, government dispatches told of 7,000 Communists killed and 1,000 captured in a "great victory" near Changwu, 60 miles north of Mukden. More conservative accounts placed the Communist dead at 4,000 and the captured at 500.

The government air force flew 450 sorties yesterday and today, leaving Communist troop concentrations and strongpoints disrupted and Red-occupied villages ablaze.

Air power was reported to have two-thirds of the 10,000 casualties about the rail juncture city.

With the Reds striking in almost unprecedented strength, however, the government's position at Shihkiachwang still was precarious. Every man within the city was put to work building defence works.

In the Manchurian fighting, the official Chinese news agency said 7,000 Communist dead actually were counted on the battlefield after the engagement which lasted from 3 a.m. Friday until nightfall. Central News estimated the Communist strength there as 20,000.

The sport of greyhound racing is being revived in Canada at the Carner Country Club near Hamilton. A crowd of 500 turned out Saturday to see the races in spite of the bad weather. The speedy dogs are seen leaving the starting pen during one of the races.

Mayor to Probe Alleged Use of Riding Crops

Toronto, Nov. 10 — (CP) — Mayor Robert Saunders said last night an investigation would be made of alleged use of riding crops on students by two mounted policemen during a "battle of the goal posts" following Saturday's intercollegiate football game here between Varsity and Queen's.

University of Toronto officials also said a thorough investigation would be carried out. J. P. Loosemore, member of the University athletic directorate, said he had heard that the police used whips on the students. Mr. Loosemore said he had been informed one Queen's student had been struck by a riding crop and that another student apparently fainted but had been rescued without any trouble.

A statement from Police Chief John Chisholm's office said the mounted officers had gone to the assistance of an officer on foot who had been knocked down by the crowd. It added that several hundred students were involved in the melee around the goal-posts and that some had grabbed the reins of the horses.

"One of the goalposts fell and hit a horse but did not hurt it," the statement said. It said one of the two mounted constables "used sufficient force" to disperse the crowd and prevent a "further breach of the peace." Police officials declined to elaborate on the term "sufficient force." The mayor said on investigation

You Can Afford The World's Largest-Selling Fine Car!

The Frazer Manhattan has broken every sales record in the long history of the automobile industry. Never before has any big, luxurious fine car sold in such volume in less than seven months from the date it was first announced! It has had a truly phenomenal public acceptance—more than 25,000 buyers in less than seven months!

Henry J. Kaiser and Joseph W. Frazer put the seal of their approval on this new product of Willow Run, last March. They knew they had put into it supreme beauty and luxurious appointments, smooth power and maximum performance, unusual safety features and long-lasting dependability—plus the balance and poise that would make it the easiest riding car in the world. They knew they had spared no expense—in engineering, in materials, in precision manufacturing methods. They knew, in short, that this car had what the world wanted! Then they priced it "right"—hundreds of dollars below what would have been justified by such superlative quality. To everything else they added value! For they wanted to make and sell this great car in volume.

They were right in their planning. For while Frazer Manhattan production has been increased five-fold since last April, public demand has never yet been filled!

Come and see—and drive—this big, handsome, roomy, ultra-modern motor car. You will agree with its makers that it has everything you have hoped to enjoy in a post-war automobile—and at a price you can afford to pay!

Ronald Robbins Injured When Struck by Car

Bancroft — (Special) — Ronald Robbins, twelve-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Robbins of Bancroft was injured last Friday night about seven o'clock when he was struck by a car. Arnold Franksy driving one car and towing a second car handled by Emerson Franksy on Hastings Street North. The two Robbins boys were playing tag across the highway and when the first car went by the second boy darted across the road after his brother and was struck by a fender of the towed car and thrown into the ditch. He was rushed to the hospital by a passing motorist, Patrick Reid, where he was treated for cuts and bruises to the body and head and remained overnight in the local hospital and was taken to his home Saturday morning. Village Constable Roy Robinson investigated the accident and no charges were laid against the drivers of the cars.

Hunters Pouring In

The first sign of winter put in its appearance early Saturday morning when snow was falling in the Bancroft district for several hours covering the hills about with a white mantle. Hunters from every corner of the Province are pouring into this district for the usual good hunt and are they ever keen with the change in weather conditions and are anticipating an excellent holiday of sport.

Brown Claims King Should be Cyclist

Toronto, Nov. 10 — (CP)—In Joe Brown's estimation, Arthur King should be a cyclist and Joe says he'll make it a knockout tonight in their eight-round meeting at Maple Leaf Gardens if the Toronto puncher will hop off his bicycle.

Brown, the New Orleans Negro puncher, makes his second ring appearance here in the headline bout against the youngster he met and decisioned handily a few weeks ago.

"King didn't cause me much difficulty and I had a soft night," said the ever-grinning Brown. "The only thing that caused me any trouble at all was his running and holding. If he'll leave his bicycle at home and fight me this time, I'll knock him out."

To back up the headliner, Toronto boys Teddy Swain and Rudy Pasquale will meet in an eight round semi-final match.

London's classy Bobby Flannigan meets Bruce Richardson, Toronto, and is looking for another decision over the latter — a repeat of the result when the pair met on the same night as the Brown-King tussle. Pete Zaduk crosses dukes with Jimmy Marsden of Toronto to round out the show.

Kansas City Pla-Mors Hand Millers First Loss

(By The Associated Press)

Kansas City Pla-Mors knocked off the hottest team in the United States Hockey League, then bowed to the circuit's coldest crew in weekend games.

The Pla-Mors gave Minneapolis Millers their first defeat of the season Saturday 5-3 and last night gave Tulsa Oilers their first victory 4-3.

Minneapolis bounced back on the victory trail last night by trimming St. Paul for the third time this season, 3-1 largely thru the efforts of goalie Harry McQueston, who stopped 42 shots by the Saints.

In the southern division, Dallas downed Houston 3-2 Saturday to step back over the Huskies into second place, and Fort Worth beat Houston last night 4-3.

Omaha needed an overtime period to defeat Tulsa 4-3 Saturday with Joe Ianarelli potting the winning goal unassisted at 8:18 in the extra period.

IN THE COURSE OF A YEAR, the International Nickel Company buys about 7500 tons of sulphuric acid and 250 tons of muriatic acid. About 2300 tons of soda ash and 1500 tons of salt are used annually, as well as large quantities of xanthate and other chemicals for the flotation process.

In the manufacture and processing of chemicals, Nickel and its alloys are in almost universal use for tanks, kettles, pipe, pumps, valves, evaporators, and practically every other piece of equipment which comes in contact with the corrosive substances.

The wide use of chemicals by the Canadian Nickel industry provides employment in the chemical industry. Non-Union Worker Not Entitled to Benefits of Act

Winnipeg, Nov. 10 — (CP) — court of referees set up under the dominion unemployment insurance act yesterday ruled that a non-union employee thrown out of work by a strike and prevented from returning to work by picket lines was not entitled to unemployment insurance benefits.

The applicant was Frank Carr of Sherridon, Man. A non union employee of Sherritt Gordon, Ltd. He did not vote for the wages-hours strike which has tied up Sherridon working since Aug. 13. His wages were discontinued and picket lines prevented attempts to return to work.

He filed application for unemployment benefits, August 29 but one fly in the ointment was a rand formula in the agreement the union sought to revise. This obliged Carr to pay $2 a month to the United Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (C.I.O.) though not a member. The rand may not be compelled to join unions they may be obliged to pay dues as, presumbly they benefit from union activities.

The court of referees said that the Unemployment Insurance Act, section 39, provided that a person becomes unemployed because of a work stoppage is qualified from receiving benefits if:

1. Stoppage is caused by a labor dispute;
2. The claimant is participating in or financing, or is directly interested in the dispute.

Confirming an earlier disallowance of Mr. Carr's claim, the court ruled, "there was a stoppage of work to a labor dispute, and as the claimant was directly interested in the dispute, and to a limited extent helped to finance it, the appeal is disallowed and the claimant disqualified from receiving benefits."

Man Who Served 10 Years On Floor of House Must be Introduced Formally to Speaker

Ottawa, Nov. 10 (CP) —When parliament meets Dec. 5 its peculiar traditions will be spiced with the strange spectacle of a man who served more than ten years on the floor of the House having to be introduced formally to the Speaker.

Although Milton F. Gregg, the new fisheries minister, served throughout the '30's as Sergeant-at-Arms, tradition demands that he be introduced to Mr. Speaker as though he were meeting him for the first time.

Mr. Gregg former president of the University of New Brunswick was elected in a by-election Oct. 20 for the New Brunswick constituency of York-Sunbury. As a new member he will have to go through the introduction procedure just like any other member.

The formality is dispensed with when parliament meets after a general election but is complied with when there are by - elections between sessions.

Mr. Gregg, who succeeds the late Hon. H.F.E. Bridges, will wait outside the doors of Commons until Mr. Speaker reads the result of by-elections held since the last session. Then Prime Minister King and one of his cabinet ministers—possibly External Affairs Minister St. Laurent or Justice Minister Ilsley — will leave the chamber to meet Mr. Gregg and escort him into the commons.

Also to be introduced at the new session is John Dickey, who was elected as a Liberal member last July in the by-elections for one of the seats in the dual constituency of Halifax.

While the Liberal government would like to see its confederation proposal for Newfoundland accepted and concluded as quickly as possible, it has no expectation of introducing legislation on it at the new session of parliament.

This will not be done until the people of Newfoundland have signified formally that they will accept the Canadian terms. That will not likely be until late next spring or summer.

Even after this step there are certain necessary forms to be followed. As a colony, Newfoundland can't go ahead and unite with Canada. So she would have to revert briefly to the status of responsible government and revive her legislature, which would vote the island into confederation. After that single act, the legislature would dissolve, to be succeeded by a provincial legislature.

Studies Proposals Of Confederation

London, Nov. 10 (CP) — Text of the proposed arrangements announced at Ottawa yesterday for entry of Newfoundland into Confederation with Canada has been received by the Commonwealth Relations Office and now is under study.

Officials said no British comment on the proposals is planned, as the next action must be taken by Newfoundland at a national convention which will inform the British government what it proposes for future status.

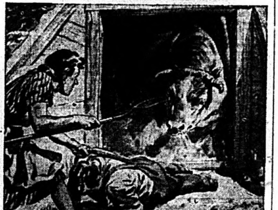
Woman Fights Off Mad Bull, Saves Injured Husband

WINS DOW AWARD



Mrs. HENRY CHESLOCK
OF TAVISTOCK, ONT.,
battles animal in courageous rescue

Henry Cheslock was about to lead the animal from a root cellar to its pen in the barn. He had just taken the bull by its nose ring when, for no apparent reason, it became enraged. A toss of its head knocked Cheslock to the ground. Before he had a chance to get up, the bull had butted the helpless man repeatedly. It then tossed him over its head, and rolled him against the cellar wall.

WIFE GOES TO RESCUE

Fortunately for Cheslock his wife heard his shouts for help. Without thought for her own safety, she ran screaming into the cellar to draw the bull's attention from her husband. As the bull turned on her, she seized a pitchfork.

FIGHTS BULL WITH PITCHFORK

While holding the dangerous animal at bay with the pitchfork, she began to drag her injured husband out of the cellar across the barnyard. The bull attacked all the way, but gallant Mrs. Cheslock managed to hold it off until she finally brought her husband to safety.

We are proud to pay tribute to the exceptional courage of Mrs. Henry Cheslock of Tavistock, Ontario, through the presentation of The Dow Award.

THE DOW AWARD is a citation for outstanding heroism and includes, as a tangible expression of appreciation, a $100 Canada Savings Bond. Winners are selected by the Dow Award Committee, a group of editors of leading Canadian daily newspapers.

ELECTRICITY IN ONTARIO

WHEREAS the requirements of war production and the scarcity of materials since have restricted the construction of electric power developments;

AND WHEREAS the demand upon the Commission for electric power is substantially in excess of its electric power resources, and the Commission is of the opinion that a state of emergency exists and has so declared;

NOW THEREFORE the Commission makes the following regulations:

REGULATIONS MADE BY THE COMMISSION UNDER THE POWER COMMISSION ACT

Toronto Maple Leafs Score Two Victories Over Weekend And Move into Second Place

Chicago Hawks Win First Game of Campaign With Traded Players Shining

By ROBERT CLARKE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Although 13 is commonly accepted as an unlucky number, it's quite possible today that Toronto Maple Leafs and Chicago Black Hawks fail to subscribe to such a theory.

By coincidence, the number 13 played a part in the weekend National Hockey League activities of the two clubs. Leafs slammed home that number of goals scoring two triumphs, beating New York Rangers 7-2 and Detroit Red Wings 6-0. Hawks, in the other hand,broke into the victory column for the first time this season in a game that produced 13 goals. They defeated Rangers 8-5.

Through the two victories, Leafs moved into second place in the standing where, with 22 points, they are a point away from the leading Wings. Although trounced by Leafs Sunday night in Detroit before a record Olympia crowd (for schedule play) of 14,746 fans, Wings came through with a 3-1 triumph in Montreal Saturday over Canadiens.

Among the developments of weekend play were:

1. Coach Frank Boucher of Rangers disclosed he had made an official protest to N.H.L. President Clarence Campbell over what he described as the "deliberate" rough play of Toronto's Bill Ezinicki.
2. Max Bentley scored his first Leafs.
3. Walter (Turk) Broda hung up his first shutout of the season and the fourth scored in the N.H.L. this season.

Wants Ezinicki Curbed

Boucher reported his protest as a follow-up to an injury suffered by centre star Edgar Laprade in Saturday night's game in Toronto between Leafs and Rangers. Laprade suffered a minor concussion in a collision with Ezinicki which prompted Boucher to ask for an immediate "curb" on Ezinicki's activities.

Managing Director Conny Smythe of Leafs described the crash as "a hard but perfectly legal check" by Ezinicki. Meanwhile, Campbell said in Montreal last night he had not received the telegram containing Boucher's protest.

Leafs held command of the play throughout aganist Rangers, particularly in the final period when they scored four goals Syl Apps, with two, Ezinicki, Teeder Kennedy, Harry Watson, Vic Lynn and Bill Barilko were the Toronto scorers while both New York goals went to Buddy O'Connor.

Against Wings, Leafs reversed the procedure they had applied against New York and scored four goals in the opening period. They went to Lynn, Joe Klukay, Barilko and Wally Stanowski.

In the second period Max Bentley clicked for his first Leaf goal since coming to the club in the history-making five-for-two deal with Hawks. Howie Meeker got the final goal in the last period against netminder Tommy McGratton, who had replaced Harry Lumley in the Detroit nets.

Suffers Chest Injury

McGratton, Detroit's practice netminder, was called upon when Lumley suffered a chest injury when banged into the post by teammate Bill Quackenbush. The shutout for Broda evened a score since Lumley had blanked Leafs 2-0 in their second meeting earlier this season.

Wings had little difficulty defeating the Habs Saturday night. Their close checking left Canadiens disorganized and stubborn defence work by Jack Stewart, Quackenbush and Lumley kept Montreal chances at a minimum. Ted Lindsay provided Wings with two goals while Gordon Howe scored their other counter. Rookie Jacques Locas tallied for Canadiens late in the last period.

Hawks, beaten in their seven previous starts, finally came through with a vengeance against Rangers. The Flying Forts—the complete line obtained from Leafs in the Bentley trade—opened and closed the scoring. But Polle picked up a goal near the close of the opening period and Gus Bodnar tallied in the 14th minute of the last session. Gaye Stewart, third member of the line, produced a goal in the middle session.

Johnny Gee and Doug Bentley each scored twice for Hawks while Alex Kaleta accounted for the other Hawks score. Rangers, behind all the way, got goals from Rene Trudell, Bryan Hextall, Phil Watson and Grant Warwick with Warwick clicking for two.

WEEKEND STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

Syl Apps, Toronto, who picked up two goals and two assists in Leafs' two weekend victories.

Walter (Turk) Broda, Toronto, who chalked up his first shutout of the season as Leafs blanked Detroit 6-0 Sunday.

Ted Lindsay, Detroit, who figured in all three goals as Detroit whipped Montreal 3-1 Saturday, scoring two and helping on the third.

Buddy O'Connor, New York, who notched both Ranger markers as the Blueshirts lost 7-2 to Leafs Saturday.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

These Batawa Shoemen who twice have been "bridesmaids" in their quest for the Intermediate "A" baseball championship need not worry about holding the "hosts" title. What the lads may have lacked in diamond ability, and after all it was a spirit of generosity that they displayed in "handing" over the title to the Chatham Shermans in that second game, they more than made up for when it comes to social events.

• • •

On Saturday night the Shoemen held their annual dinner and dance with all the lads with nice clean faces, garbed in their Sunday best, on their best behavior — and they had the little women in tow.

• • •

It was a grand party with M'sieu Bill Easton diamond impressario of the Shoe boys, as excited as a baby with a new toy, dashing hither and yon in a highly successful effort to make his guests feet at home. Chairman Ralph Armstrong, president of the baseball team, an amiable sort of a fellow also did a grand job seeing that his boys and their friends were satisfied inwardly. He complimented the team on its splendid showing and judging from the reception the boys gave the prexy, he can hold that job down for quite a while yet.

• • •

There was a grand dinner dished up by the lads in the cafeteria. Speeches were short and few, which is as it should be and these were confined to Ernie Summers, OBA representative, yours truly, the prexy, Bill Easton and a few of the boys. Jack Devine, CJFQ and Don Thomas, president of the Belleville District Baseball Association, sent their regrets because of other unavoidable engagements.

After the inner men and ladies were satisfied, the party adjourned to the Community Hall where dancing and cards were enjoyed for the remainder of the evening. It was a most enjoyable event and the Shoemen proved themselves exceptional hosts. And before leaving the subject, it must be said, that the lads are most discerning where the little woman is concerned. The ladies proved themselves equally good hostesses as their baseball hubbies, and believe us these Batawa gals do not lack for beauty or charm.

The Belleville ANAFS minus the services of Vern Goyer, and others scored a dying minute goal in Kingston Saturday night to earn a six-all tie with the Saints of that village after the redshirts had held a 5-3 lead at one time. Walt Gerow skimmed over the ice after the Limestone lads had rammed home three quick last period goals to take a 6-5 lead to blast the rubber past Udy Udall to even-stephen the game. The night previous our lads had tacked a 4-3 defeat on their arch-foes from Lorne Cook's balliwick.

It was hail and farewell for Walt Gerow. The smooth winger dunked the rubber to open the festivities after a minute had elapsed in the first period and the tall speedster evened the count with seconds to go in the third. He sandwiched a third goal in between at the ten minute mark in the second period.

Timmy Williams, aided and abetted by Leo Goyer scored the second marker before the Saints' Plumb drew first blood for Kingston. Ken Murphy made it 3-1 but Kenny Potts got that one back before the first period ended.

• • •

Gerow and Potts hit the rigging for goals in the second chukker and the score was 4-3 going into the third. Porky Yorke raced down the right boards and going in close took Murphy's pass to make the count 5-3—and then it happened. The Saints flashed to scoring life and before you could say Jack Robinson, Goodfellow, Ohlke and Casterton had poked the rubber home to put the Saints out in the lead for the first time in the game. And the slim margin looked good as the seconds ticked away until Walt Gerow with twenty seconds to go, started a goalward foray with Timmy Williams in tow. The pair raced in on the Saints defence and Gerow made no mistake.

• • •

The grapevine has it that the ANAFS will play a home and home series with the Queen's University intercollegiate team in the immediate future. O.H.A. gossip has it that there is a possibility of Queen's, Saints, Belleville, Oshawa and two Peterborough teams hooking horns in on O.H.A. grouping in the coming season. Nothing definite on that as yet. It would be a good setup as Kingston, Oshawa and Peterborough, all ancient foes in sport of this city would prove good drawing cards.

• • •

At a meeting in Geneva, N.Y. yesterday, the board of directors of the Border Baseball Class "C" league deferred action on the applications of Peterborough and Belleville. A special meeting will be held on November 19th when the decision to allow or reject the Canadian entries will be made.

• • •

Much must happen here between now and that date if this city is to be represented in the Border League next year. Those interested here have already put up sufficient money to finance the franchise and the team, but more funds are needed if the Exhibition Park diamond is to be put into some semblance of playing conditions.

Efforts, we are given to understand, are now under way to raise the necessary finances, and it is hoped the matter will be cleared up in time for the next meeting of the Border loop. The Petes team had ten thousand smackers dropped into its lap by Pete Campbell of the Toronto Maple Leafs, sponsoring club, but it is understood the city will raise another $17,000 to finance lightand other diamond necessities.

Staging a fighting second half rally, "Red" Townsend's B C I senior football squad threw a scare into the powerful Peterborough CI team on Saturday although they went down to defeat by a 24-11 score. The Petes held a 23-0 lead at the end of the first half and it appeared to be a case of how many. But the BCI'ers paced by the fine quarterbacking of fifteen-year-old George Locke who played that position for the entire game, and the good work of Bobby Moore flashed to life and outscored the foe 11-1. The defeat was the swan-song for the BCI crew, which gave a good account of itself throughout the season.

BCI Juniors also went down to defeat before the Petes kids by a 17-0 count in the first game. According to reports from the game the "officialing," an old story, was not what it might have been and the kids are not picking on this as an alibi for their defeat.

Albert College seniors rang up a win at the expense of the Oshawa CI on Saturday in Oshawa, chalking up an even dozen points to two for the home town knowledge seekers. The team will not go on into the playoffs and Peterborough will carry COSSA seniors hopes into the finals.

Young blood will battle in the Belleville District Hockey Association doubleheader at Memorial Arena tomorrow night when Point Anne making its seasonal debut hook up with "Smoky" Harris' Belleville juniors. The Ox Pointers are said to have a strong young aggregation and will include Clare Williamson and Jack Semark on its roster. In the nightcap, two former Trent Valley enemies will clash when Madoc meets Campbellford. This should be a thriller as both teams boast plenty of power going and coming, and it should be a fine entree for the Juniors-Point Anne appetizer. First game, 7.30.

Draft Meeting Supervised by Commissioner

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 10 (AP)—Major League baseball unties the grab bag today and reaches into the sack for the top talent of the minors at the annual draft meeting supervised by Commissioner A.B. Chandler.

Comparatively few of the 8,000 "bushers" on the eligible list are expected to get a beckoning finger.

Last year only 20 were added to the major league roster through the draft, 11 clubs paying $184,000 for the "ivory." Double-A, $7,500, class A $6,000, class B $5,000, class C $2,500 and class D $2,000. Payments must be made within 10 days.

Last - placers in the 1947 pennant chases get first pick, with St. Louis Browns leading-off and Philadelphia Phillies second, and then the choices alternate upward thhrough the standings. As as a club reaches the player limit of 40 it loses its right to make further selections, and players taken in the draft may not be assigned to a minor league club until after next April 1. The selecting club assumes responsibility for the players physical condition and for his reporting for duty. A club may not cancel a selection after making it.

Among the available talent of former major league players who have faded to the minors, but some had interest-attracting records last season which may earn them another shot under the big top.

They include Max West, former Cincinnati and Boston Brave outfielder who slammed 43 home runs to lead the Pacific Coast League in circuit drives and runs batted in, and Ed Heusser, the veteran Cincinnati hurler who won 19 and lost three for Montreal after being shipped there by the Dodgers.

WINDSOR SETTING SIZZLING PACE IN JUNIOR RACE

Marlboros in Second Place Tie With the Oshawa Generals

(By The Canadian Press)

Jimmie Skinner's Windsor Spitfires, setting a sizzling pace in the Junior A loop of the Ontario Hockey Association, won their fifth straight game by defeating Guelph Biltmores 6-5 in an overtime game at Windsor Saturday.

In the Senior A loop Toronto Marlboros broke the three-way top place tie with Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen and Hamilton Tigers when they blanked Brantford Redmen 7-0 Saturday at Brantford.

The four other junior games Saturday saw St. Michael's College/Majors finally vacate the league's cellar position by taking a 6-2 victory from Toronto Young Rangers at Maple Leaf Gardens. Toronto Marlboros defeated Galt Rockets 2-1 in the other game of the Gardens' twin bill which put Marlboros in a second place tie with Oshawa.

Stratford Kroehlers defeated St. Catharines Teepees 5-1 at Stratford for their third victory in five starts. Oshawa Generals chalked up their fourth victory in five starts with a 7-2 win against Barrie Flyers.

At Windsor the Spitfires outshot Guelph 59 to 31 but outstanding goal work by Hank Lawson, former Kenora, Ont., goalie, saved Biltmores from a heavier defeat. Johnny Wilson led Windsor scorers with two counters and Gord Haldy, Max Quackenbush, Jack Taylor, and Eddie Busch completed Spitfires' scoring. Guelph scorers were led by Gord Miller with two counters, over Guelph goals tallied by Lorne Ferguson, Neil Gordon and Stan McClellan.

Free-For-All

It was a regular free-for-all in the senior game at Brantford Toronto's Ray Hannigan took a 10-minute misconduct penalty when he mauled referee George Hainsworth. Bob Paul, Al Buchanan and Ray Hannigan each tallied twice for Toronto and Johnny McClelland once.

Stratford Kroehlers avenged their 3-2 defeat in St. Catharines Friday night when they handed St. Catharines a 5-1 setback at Stratford. George Armstrong with two goals led Stratford scorers. Dinny Flanagan, Elwood Small and Pierre Cadieux each tallied once. Tepee's lone goal came from Fred Hilderbrand.

Flashes of precision-like passing plays of former St. Mike's teams were seen with Joe Primeau's present squad. Brian McAllister and Ray Barry each tallied twice, and Gord Hannigan and Pete Whelan once for the Majors. Rangers' goals came from Mel Hawkrigg and Johnny Thompson.

Marlboros' over - eagerness around Galt's net kept them from much higher winning score. Ray Timgren tallied both Toronto goals and Wiggie Wylie the lone Galt counter.

In Oshawa, the Generals tamed the rough house Barrie Flyers with little difficulty. Frenchy Mayer, Ted O'Connor, Dick Gamble scored twice and Chuck Blair once for Oshawa. Barrie's counters came from Gerry Reid and Sid McNabney.

ARGOS SNATCH LAST MINUTE WIN OVER OTTAWA

These Two Teams Open Their Playoff for Big Four Title on Tuesday

(By The Canadian Press)

Ottawa Rough Riders and Toronto Arganouts threw all the past performance records out the window today and prepared for the business at hand — settling of the Big Four football title in a two-game total-points playoff.

Argos finished out the regular schedule Saturday by edging the Riders 12-11, in Ottawa in a game where nothing was at stake. Montreal Alouettes defeated Hamilton Tigers 27-19 in the day's other Big Four encounter.

Rounding out the Saturday play on the Eastern Canadian gridiron scene, Ottawa Trojans humbled Toronto Balmy Beaches 16-7 in a sudden-death Ontario Rugby Football Union semi-final playoff while University of Western Ontario Mustangs won 22-0 over McGill Redmen and University of Toronto Blues topped Queen's Gaels 15-5 in intercollegiate contests.

Riders and Ottaw open their two-game round in Ottawa tomorrow, then swing back to Toronto for the second game next Saturday. In their clash last Saturday, Riders blew an 11-point lead worked up in the first quarter. Argos, for their part, came through with a dozen points in the third quarter for the victory.

Krol Plays Major Roles

Joe Krol played a major role in the Argos' victory although he actually accounted for two points —converts on the two touchdowns scored by Argos.

Quarterback Fred Doty brought Argos back into the ball-game with a flashing run for a touchdown. Krol kicked the convert from placement. In the Ottawa kickoff Krol caught Riders by surprise by returning the kick. The Riders fumbled and the ball was dribbled over the Ottawa goal line wherre Len Cassidy fell on it for a major score. Krol's convert was the game-winning point.

In the first period, Riders worked up a seemingly comfortable margin when George Hall and Beaver Dalton crossed the Argonaut line for touches. Rookie Buck Rogers, up from high school ranks, kicked a convert on Dalton's touch. Coach Sammy Fox of Riders utilized his second third stringers freely throughout.

Trojans capitalized on Balmy Beaches fumbles to push Beaches from the playoff picture in the O.R.F.U. George Gilmour scored a touch for Trojans in the first-quarter after a fumble on the Beach seven-yard line and Joe Farley kicked the convert. Beaches took over the lead in the second quarter when Norm Millen scored a touch, converted by Bruce Coulter, and then Bob Cunningham kicked a single. But a field goal by Farley put Trojans ahead again before half-time.

Trojans Meet Wildcats

A miscue on Toronto's 11-yard stripe allowed Wally Masters to go over for another Trojan touch in the third quarter and Farley and Jim McFaul picked up single points for the Ottawas in the final quarter. Trojans now meet Hamilton Wildcats in the O.R.F.U. final playoff.

Mustangs found a muddy field no handicap against the Redmen. George Curtis, with 2, Bob McFarlane and George Arnott were touchdown scorers for the western brigade. That by Curtis was the most sensational, an 88-yard run in which he outsprinted the entire McGill team. It was Western's fifth victory in as many games this season.

Varsity Blues kept alive a chance of forcing a playoff with Western when they whipped the Gaels But to achieve that end they must defeat Mustangs in the college windup next week, and not even their most optimistic supporters hold much hope of such an upset, Johnny Roe and Ted Toogood clicked for Varsity touches against Queen's while Bruce Cummings came through with a placement and two converts. The Gaels' total came from a field goal by Al Lenard and two roughes on Lenard kicks.

Queen's Slithers Way to Victory

Kingston, Nov. 10 —(CP) — Queen's University slithered their way to a 27-9 victory over Peterborough Saturday in an O.R.F.U. intermediate game on the muddy, semi-snow covered Richardson Stadium field. The victory kept alive their hopes of forcing a first-place deadlock with Cobourg. A win over the Ghosts next week will give them the tie for first place.

It was a game of fumbles, blocked kicks and wild snaps with the Gaels showing plenty of power on the offensive and particularly on the defence. Two of the Queen's touchdowns resulted from Peterborough fumbles, one of them behind the goal line.

The game also prdouced a new one for the books. In the last quarter, with the Peterborough kicker standing behind his own goal line, the snap passed wide. The ball hit the boal post, caromed off to one side rolled over the line and was picked up by Sedler of Queen's for a touchdown.

Hockey's Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Syl Apps, Toronto's veteran centre, picked up two goals and two assists in Leafs' twin weekend victories and jumped into first place in the National Hockey League scoring race with 12 points, made up of five markers and seven assists. Buddy O'Connor of New York notched two goals to move into a second-place tie with Montreal's Maurice Richard, who was held scoreless. Each has 11 points. Elmer Lach of Canadiens holds down fourth spot with 10 points, then come Bryan Hextall of Rangers and Toe Blake of Montreal with nine points, while Jim Conacher and Ted Lindsay of Detroit and Harry Watson of Toronto each have eight points.

HORNETS, BISONS NECK AND NECK IN WEST LOOP

Philadelphia Rockets Only Play One Game Over the Weekend Defeating Providence

(By The Canadian Press)

Pittsburg, Hornets and Buffalo Bisons continued to hold the spotlight in the American Hockey League today, racing neck and neck at the top of the loop's western section. However Bisons have played two more games than the Hornets.

Last night Pittsburgh scored seven goals in succession to down Indianapolis Capitals 9-7 after knocking off St. Louis Flyers 3-1 on Saturday. The Bisons also reaped a double victory over the weekend, tripping Providence Reds 4-2 last night after edging Springfield Indians 4-3 Saturday.

Hershey Bears continued their climb up the ladder with a win and a tie in two games at the expense of New Haven Ramblers. Yesterday they earned a 2-2 stalemate with Ramblers after downing the same team 6-4 in New Haven Saturday night. In the only other game played last night, Cleveland Barons handed the St. Louis Flyers a 6-1 setback their fifth straight loss.

Philadelphia edged Springfield 7-6 and Indianapolis downed Cleveland 6-3 in other A.H.L. contests played over the weekend.

Bob Dawes was the big gun for the Hornets yesterday rapping in two goals. Fleming Mackell, Les Costello, Jackie Hamilton, Johnny O'Flaherty, Syd Smith, Hank Blade and Bus Benson notched one goal each. Lloyd Doran was the top marksman for Indianapolis with three goals and was followed by team-mate Hugh Millar with two. Tony Licari and Enio Schlisizzi scored one each for Caps Phil Samis, Syd Smith and Tod Sloan were Pittsburgh goal-getters on Saturday while Rookie Steve Black accounted for St. Louis' lone tally.

Halderson Leads Bisons

Len Halderson led Buffalo on Sunday with two goals while Murdo McKay and Les Hickey each scored once, Providence goals were scored by Harvey Fraser and Ray La Plante.

Buffalo was led by Doug Lewis with a brace of tallies in their win over Springfield Saturday. Les Hickey and Murdo McKay bagged a goal each for the Bisons. Paul Coutreau, Alan Huntz, and Bill Summerhill notched one each for Indians.

Frank Mario, scrappy centre star, scored Hershey Bears' only goals as they tied New Haven 2-2 last night. Buck Davies and Steve Hrymnak's bulged the twine for the Ramblers.

Mario was the star again on Saturday, notching two tallies. Mark Marquess also scored a pair of goals for the Bears while singletons went to Herbie Cain and Johnny Pierson., Jackie Gordon, Sherman White, Jean Lamirande and Scotty Cameron put one shot each in the Hershey nets.

Ad Demarco, Bob Sclinger and Johnny Holota scored two goals as Cleveland topped St. Louis. The Flyers lone goal was credited to Hec Pozzo. Saturday night, the Barons were not as fortunate, losing 6-3 to Indianapolis. Fern Gauthier was the star for the Caps with three goals while Nels Podelsky, Cliff Simpson and Don Morrison each scored once. Pete Leswick, Holota and Julian Sawchuck accounted for one marker each for the Barons.

Steve Wochy paced the Philadelphia Rockets to a 7-6 win on Saturday with a pair of goals. However, it took Phil Hergesheimer's tally with only 47 seconds to play to give Rockets the edge. Jim Drummond, Hec Kilrea, Johnny Mahaffy and Chuck Kaiger also scored for Philadelphia. Carl Liscombe and Whitey Prokop scored two goals each in a losing cause for Providence. Other goals went to Laplante and Roger Bedard.

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Nov. 10 — (CP) — There isn't a team in football's Big Four which can match University of Western Ontario Mustangs' speed in the backfield, says Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll, taking a turn in the discussion of what Mustangs might do if they came up against Toronto Argos or Ottawa Rough Riders.

Most talked-and-written-about football team in the country, the Mustangs have earned themselves such labels as the Merciless Metrasmen and Murder Inc., and Dink recalls that McGill's Vic Obeck and Bob Elliott, Queen's coach, met recently and sympathised with each other for defeats their McGill and Queen's teams absorbed from the Mustangs.

"Welcome to the M. B. M. society," was the way Obeck greeted the Queen's coach.

"By this he meant 'murdered by Mustangs,' "says Dink.

The Montreal sports writer notes that such well - versed football men as Toronto's Ted Reeve and Lew Hayman of the faltering Montreal Alouettes don't think Western would win against the top Big Four teams. To this Carroll says:

"We can't see them being too badly outplayed by any line in the Big Four. They would be outweighed but those Western linemen are fast and well-drilled in the fundamentals. There isn't a team in the Big Four that can match the Mustang's speed in the backfield.

"If you give any of them the slightest start, they are long gone and that's all there is to it . . . their timing is perfect."

Carroll gives credit to coach Johnny Metras for this surprising Mustang edition. He made his plays available to high school coaches all over Western Ontario and in the end this has meant a new crop of players who, by the time they hit Western University, were already well-versed in what Metras was going to ask of them on the field.

The collegians have decided to go back to their books when the college playing season ends so they'll not tackle any Big Four team which causes Carroll to lament: "This dream game will never come off so we might as well stop talking about it."

A REALLY NEW KIND OF TIRE ASTONISHES AUTO ENGINEERS

New Super-Cushion By Goodyear Is First To Absorb Lateral Shock Satisfactorily

Bigger, Softer Tire
Runs on Only 24 Pounds of Air
—Gives Amazing Comfort,
Safety, and Mileage

HARD-BOILED automotive engineers aren't the kind of men who go overboard.

"Let's get that tire on our cars as soon as possible."

What is there about this tire that made these engineers so eager to get it immediately? Why do they call it one of the really important postwar improvements?

Read what they found out when they tested it.

At first they couldn't believe it

Those engineers put Super-Cushions on test cars and drove them over good roads and bad. Then they compared notes.

"This is impossible," they said. "There's practically no sign of lateral shock. Can the tire be absorbing it? No tire has ever done it satisfactorily before."

They tried it again, and the same thing happened. For the first time they were testing a tire that satisfactorily absorbed lateral shocks.

Why should this excite the engineers? Because lateral shocks were one of the few things that still had to be engineered out of the modern motor car. Automotive engineers knew that if these crosswise shocks could be done away with, an automobile would ride better—not just a little better—but a lot better.

The surprises had just started

As the tests went on, these automotive engineers ran into one surprise after another. Let them tell you:

"The Goodyear Super-Cushion," read one report, "is bigger than a conventional tire, and requires only 24 pounds of air.

"And I have confirmed Goodyear's report that the Super-Cushion builds up less pressure on the road. This means it gives greater comfort. This means it runs cooler. It means less tire trouble, since heat is the greatest single cause of tire failure."

"It's a different car with these tires"

Another report read, "These Super-Cushions make a small car feel like a big one. The car holds the road better. You seem to float in and out of traffic. These tires make any car easier and safer to handle, especially in taking turns.

"And believe it or not, they make a car ride more comfortably—not only on rough roads, grade crossings, and cobblestones but even on smooth roads.

"Fatter and tougher"

"This fatter tire rolls with the punch," reported one engineer. "It's a safer tire. Instead of resisting impacts, it yields when it hits an obstacle, broken pavement, or railroad tracks. So there's much less chance of bruising, cutting, or breaking it.

• The speed with which leading car makers accepted this new kind of tire indicates definitely that it is the tire of the future. Auto engineers call it the first tire in 15 years to make a positive contribution to driving comfort and safety.

"Because it's a softer tire with stop notches (saw-tooth grooves molded across the tread), it gives noticeably better traction. You're conscious of this every time you step on the brakes or gas."

"They dress up any car"

From still another report—"It's surprising how much these fatter tires improve the appearance of our cars. This is true, to some extent, even of our largest car. But what it does for the small car is something you have to see to believe."

"It's almost like floating"

"These Super-Cushions," read the final report, "make such a tremendous improvement in riding comfort that any layman can drive a car equipped with them and readily notice the difference."

What about mileage?

What about mileage? Goodyear had the answer to that one. Goodyear showed these automobile engineers records of millions of test miles driven on these tires, where Super-Cushions consistently averaged more mileage than the best standard tires.

SUPER-CUSHION TIRES ARE BIGGER!

Super-Cushions on New Cars

Any day now some new cars equipped with Super-Cushions will be rolling off the production lines.

Your new car may have Super-Cushions. And the purpose of this advertisement is to give you a preview of the incredibly finer ride you will get from this really new kind of tire—the Goodyear Super-Cushion.

• Super-Cushions are bigger tires. They require only 24 pounds of air—in contrast to 28-32 pounds in most conventional tires. Super-Cushions also build up less pressure on the road. This means they maintain riding comfort on a long drive, and run cooler. This, in turn, means greater mileage—for heat is a tire's worst single enemy.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Tough breaks are plentiful in a bridge game. Somebody always gets the worst of it. If not one side it must be the other. Because one side or the other must always take a loss.

Your biggest peeve, perhaps, comes from a loss when you think you have the best hand. What burns you up is to see your good hand go to waste instead of profit.

Somehow a player reconciles himself to losses on hands in which opponents have better cards. He may blame the cards or his luck. But he hates to lose when his own cards are superior.

South opened the bidding with an immediate blast of four hearts in this deal:

NORTH
♥8
♦J 8 4 3 2
♣A K 8 3 2

WEST
♥9 5 3
♦A K Q 7
♣Q J 10

EAST
♠10 9 7 4
♥10 8
♦10 6 5
♣7 6 5 4

SOUTH
♠J 5 3 2
♥A K Q J 6 4 2
♦9
♣9

Such a bid does not promise a strong hand. All it admits is a long suit. He does not say the suit is strong. He says only that it is long and he makes no promise of outside strength.

Place yourself in the position of west. Consider the strength in this west hand. It would be a shame to sit there and do nothing about it. But what would you do?

Partner may have nothing. If you bid something you may step into a loss at that high level. If you force partner to bid, it may end in a contract that you are unable to make.

On the other hand, partner may have some strength and not know if you can help him. For all you know, your partner may have a slam. It is a tough spot to be in.

Most west players would double, no doubt. This seems to be the best bet. It shows strength to partner. If he does not care to do anything about it, make opponents lose as much as possible.

With south at four hearts doubled, west took two spades and king of diamonds. Then he led a trump to prevent a spade ruff in dummy. Show south how to take the remaining ten tricks.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 10 —(AP) — Hollywood is out to refute the claim that it is not a family community.

Local maternity shops are doing a banner business from screen luminaries and a bumper crop of babies is due in future months. Among those expectant are Betty Hutton, Dinah Shore, Deborah Kedd, Eleanor Parker, Mesdames Dana Andrews, Kay Kyser, MacDonald Carey, Red Skelton, Van Johnson, Robert Ryan, Richard Conte, Alexander Knox, John Payne (Gloria de Haven), Burt Lancaster (expected momentarily).

This year's mothers have included Bette Davis, Betty Grable Jeanne Crain, Anita Louise, Mona Freeman, Barbara Hale, Mrs. Dick Haymes and Mrs. Lou Costello. Even Lassie had a litter.

Weekly Wooing

Humphrey Bogart, looking worn reprts he goes to work Dec. 8 with wife Lauren Bacall in "Key Largo"...Van Johnson is being mulled for "Three Musketeers" ... things at MGM are still in a stew and few stars know what they'll be doing next, if anything.

Memorable Night

Charles Chaplin invited the Circle Theatre Players, of which his two sons are members, to his house after the premiere of Saroyan's "Sam Ego's House." It was a memorable evening for the youngsters, with Chaplain holding the floor for five hours and relating the events of his life. ...

Al Jolson is recording 40 songs before the Dec. 31 deadline. Even the longhairs are getting everything they can on wax before the Petrillo ban. Oscar Levant will be off the Music Hall broadcast for a week while he goes East for record sessions with the Philadelphia and New York Philharmonic Orchestras.

Bing Crosby tells us to watch his Pittsburgh Pirates next season. The team will be sparked by new, young blood, and will concentrate on speed says the groaner.

The venerable legend of crashing the movies is becoming more remote every day. Virtually no field in the motion picture industry is open to newcomers, except acting. And the odds against becoming a film star are stratospheric.

The situation was brought to my attention by a noted screen writer, who has a son who wanted to get into the movie business. The writer, who has good connections at several studios, tried to get the boy in any department —costuming, photography, production. He was balked, either by Union rules or overcrowding on jobs.

As a lark, the boy joined a small local theatre. In his first stage role, he was tabbed by a trade paper review as a likely bet for movies. Now he has an agent and is taking a test at a big studio next week. He had to turn to acting as a last restort to get into pictures.

Talk of the Town

The talk of the town is not the congressional investigation, but Kay Thompson and the Williams Brothers, a song-and-dance act that is packing Ciro's nightly. Irving Berlin has been there night after night, and even stay-at-homes like the Bing Crosbys, the Dick Powells and Clark Gable have been among the palm-pounders. It's the best new act in years.

This points a lesson— with vaudeville dead, new talent must come from the night clubs. Examples: Red Skelton, Danny Thomas, Peter Lind Hayes, etc., and if Americans must seek good live talent in niteries, this may have a serious effect on future generations.

Picture the future, night-clubbing citizen. His shoulders are stunted from being cramped into a space not large enough to house a phone booth for midgets. He is near blindness from peering throught a smoky haze and deafened by the dinning of public address system.

The buffeting on a dance floor that resembles a rush-hour subway has made his body a mass of welts and bruises. He is laden with psychoses from the frustration of trying to catch the waiter's eye.

Obviously, he is broke.

But he has been entertained.

Little Benny's Note Book

My cousin Artie stayed at my house for supper, and we were up in my room waiting to be called down to eat and talking and arguing about different subjects, and pop and ma both called up to us at the same time to be more quiet with our voices, pop saying, For Peet sake are you civilized human beans or are you wild beasts in the jungle? and ma saying, For land sakes you'd be better off not to speek to each other at all than to indulge in sutch loud angry tones tords each other.

The result being me and Artie felt our feelings being hert, and Artie said, I bet they'd be the ferst ones to be sorry if we really did stop speeking to each other.

Giving me a idea, and I said, Well hay, let's try it and see. Let's pertend we're mad and dont say a werd to each other all during supper, I said.

Which we started to do, being fun during the soop but starting to feel like a strain during the meat and vegetables, and ma said to pop, Have you noticed a certain unusual lovely silence, William?

Indeed I have, pop said, It reminds me of a bewitful quiet night in the country under the silent stars and the werdless moon. Just the gentle mermer of the speechless little angels chewing, like a faint far away breeze in the topmost branches of the distant trees, he said, and ma said, It's so refreshing, I could go on listening to it, or rather I mean not listening to it, forever, it's so divinely peacefill.

It's almost poetic, pop said. What was that sound—the gentle twitter of berds? No, I think it was the soft muntching of cellery, he said, and I said, Aw heck, what's the use?

Sure, what do we care let's talk and argue all we feel like, Artie said.

Which we started to, making the rest of the meal sound more like normal.

ROSE OF SOLEDAD

By George E. Holt

CHAPTER 30.

"Shane! Shane O'Hara!" Rose heard herself crying.

The minister was offended. "Let us proceed. This is sacred—"

But Shane O'Hara was upon them now. He looked at Don Timoteo.

"Is it—finished?" he asked.

Don Timoteo shook his head. Shane smiled an odd smile. God was good.

"It never will be, then," snapped Shane. He swung upon Don Frenando. "I want you, mister, for instigating murder, opium smuggling, and quite a lot of other things, too numerous to mention."

"Shane!" cried Rose. "Shane—are you crazy? What are you saying?"

"Out of my way, girl," said Shane. "Here, Don Timoteo, take care of Rose!" He pushed her away from Fernando, into her grandfather's arms, which opened gladly to receive her.

There had been perhaps two or three minutes for Don Fernando to plan his course. Two or three minutes after he had perceived that the aviator was Shane O'Hara. His first action was to damn the soul of the Rattlesnake—he had let them escape, after all. The second was...to stand pat until the minister had said the fateful binding words. As the husband of Rose of Soledad, he might be ableq to beat this rap; Don Timoteo was powerful, and he certainly would not care to have his granddaughter's husband go to the pen.

And then the minister had stopped the service.

There had been perhaps thirty seconds after that. Thirty seconds in which Fernando saw the game was up, saw a gallows ahead of him, saw the only way out, and thanked his luck that he had put his automatic in his trousers pocket.

Now he leaped back,, drew the gun, covered Shane No more pretense. Fight now; fight for liberty—in Mexico— And yes— for this girl. That would even things up with this cursed O'Hara.

The fat minister recoiled in horror at his violence, this sacrilege. Don Timoteo swung Rose behind him, pushed her through the doorway, followed her. Turned into the library and picked up his old forty-five from where it lay on the mantel over the fireplace. Why hadn't he known that Don Fernando....

Mrs. Delane screamed, ran into the house after them. Tried to turn Don Timoteo back, but Don was thirty again, and his eyes were blazing.

Teddy stared — gasped—Rose, holding on to Dick. The ranch hands uttered exclamations, scattered; bullets were to be avoided.

Rose followed her grandfather from the house, seized the hand that held the pistol, Fernando jerked it loose swept her into his other arm, jammed the gun against Shane's breast.

"One move from you, and you get it," he warned.

He pushed Shane before him, toward the big car which was in waiting for the bride and groom—and Mexico.

Then came close to the chair by which Teddy and Dick stood—and then. Teddy became a hero—and a cripple for the rest of his life. For he deliberately thrust his bandaged leg between Fernando's feet, twisted. Fernando almost fell. But he leaped aside, regained his balance, kicked brustally at the boy's crippled leg.

"Beast!" cried Shane O'Hara, and leaped at the pistol.

Fernando whirled, aimed at Don Timoteo, standing by the doorway pistol in hand. And holding him aim he backed, with the girl, toward the car. Once within it...Mexico—his only chance. Not San Diego, they would have him stopped there. But Tecate—or one of the many holes in the Line which he knew so well. He'd have to knock the girl out. Do that when they got to the car.

Shane O'Hara moved. Reached for the gun in his pocket. What a fool he felt he had been not to have it in his hand. Fernando shot again, but too quickly for good aim; the bullet spurted dust over Shane's head.

Don Timoteo strode forward now, gun ready. But he could not shoot. Fernando laughed at him, and swung the girl before him.

But Rose had seen.

"Now, Granddaddy!" she cried—and threw herself out of Fernando's grasp, upon the earth.

Fernando's gun crashed first—but old Don Timoteo's was only a hair's breath behind it! The old man staggered backward—but not before his great old-time forty-five—the forty-five with which he had won his wife from the midst of the Apaches—had roared its last message.

A telegram came from Miss Porter, who was a young woman addicted to telegrams. They were the only means of communication that could ekep up with the mutations of her mind. It read:

"Mr. Shane O'Hara, San Feliz, Calif.

"Have changed my mind again stop sailing on honeymoon with Rupert tomorrow stop good luck. Billie."

Shane read the message and laughed into Rose's eyes.

"I told you so," he said. "When you gave me that other message. Billie's a great girl—in some ways. But thank heaven I never was engaged to her.

Don Timoteo walked with the wife of his heart in a better world.

Lame Teddy sat in the chair he was to use so long, and Dick Truesdale sat beside him, perched on a chair arm.

Mrs. Delane wiped her eyes and was content.

A little silver bird circled the house of Soledad, high in the air, once and twice and thrice.

Then it winged its way toward the blue hills in the east.

Shane O'Hara and the Rose of Soledad were taking their honeymoon in silver wings.

Italians Arrest 10 Jews Landing From Sail Boat

Rome, Nov. 8 (Reuers)—Italian police arrested 10 jews whom they found landing from a sailing boat Numana near Ancona on the Adriatic coast, according to a correspondent of the Messagero newspaper.

Seven of them were Polish, one Czechoslovak, one Hungarian and one a Lithuanian, the report said, adding that a large sum of money including sterling was found in their possession.

They told police they had landed because they were without food and that they were attempting to go from Venice to Palestine.

(A Paris report last night said secretly for Palestine from Algiers that 300 Jews tried to embark Thursday night and half of them got away in an unidentified cargo ship.)

King is Called Most Experienced Prime Minister

London, Nov. 8. (Reuters)—The Daily Express today welcomed the arrival of Prime Minister Mackenzie King from Canada with a short editorial which announced: "The most experienced Prime Minister in the Commonwealth lands on our shores.

"The people of Britain greet this immensely distinguished visitor with admiration. To Canada, he has been a faithful watchman; to us, a generous and noble-hearted friend."

RUSSIAN LOSSES

Russia reputedly lost almost 17,000,000 of her population in the Second World War.

PREDOMINANT FAITH

About 97 per cent of the Italian population are Roman Catholics.

Lieut. Philip Mountbatten and his fiancee, Princess Elizabeth, are shown at left as they entered the royal box (flower-bedecked for the occasion) at the London Palladium to see a variety (vaudeville) show with other members of the Royal Family. They stole the show from the stage. At right are Queen Elizabeth, King George and Princess Margaret Rose.

Princess Elizabeth and Lieut. Philip Mountbatten took time out from the gay pre-nuptial whirl to remember those who died in their country's cause. Princess Elizabeth places a cross in the Field of Remembrance while her fiance looks on.

Textile Workers Agree to Terms, Return Monday

Montreal, Nov. 10 (CP)—Terms of settlement reached Friday night between the Dominion Textile Company Ltd., and the Catholic Confederation of textile workers were still vague today although it was official that the one-week strike at four Quebec Province mills was over.

The only two points of the agreement which were made known last night by both the company and the union were that the 6,000 workers affected will get a general 20-cent an hour increase and that the new contract will run for one year.

The settlement was the climax of four days of discussions presided over by provincial labor Minister Barrette who offered to act as conciliator on the first day of the walkout last Monday.

It was expected that work would resume Monday at the Dominion Textile plants at Drummondville, Magog, Sherbrooke and St. Gregoire de Montmorency.

The strike came after 10 months of negotiations with a arbitration board. Three weeks ago, the board made public its recommendations.

The company immediately agreed to a wage increase of 15-cents an hour recommended by the board but balked at accepting other recommendations regarding working conditions.

The walkout followed last Monday and Mr. Barrette immediately called the company and the union into conference.

The agreement reached provides for the general 15-cents an hour increase retroactive to April 15 plus an additional five cents an hour from Nov. 10 in exchange for certain concessions from the union.

This will mean a 20-cents increase for all employees of the four mills where the Catholic syndicate is bargaining agent.

and two Pere Marquette ferries rode as close as possible to windward of the stricken ship to break the force of the wind and waves.

The larger cutter, Mackinaw, arrived and got a two-inch steel tow cable aboard the Jupiter at eight o'clock Saturday night, and the rest of the trip to Milwaukee

Jupiter Hauled Out of Danger By Coast Guard

Milwaukee, Wis. Nov. 10 (AP)—The disabled 3,000-ton freighter, Jupiter arrived here yesterday in tow of the United States Coast Guard cutter Mackinaw after a hard battle against the elements to save her from crashing into the rocky Michigan shore near Ludington.

After delivering her charge, the Mackinaw immediately started to the assistance of the grain carrier William C. Warren, in difficulty off Rogers City, Mich.

Coast Guard officials said they believed the Jupiter would attempt to proceed to Chicago after repairs were made to her steam pipes.

Lieut. R. H. Bergh of Manitowoc, Wis., skipper of the Coast Guard cutter Sundew, first to reach the stricken freighter when she was dragging anchor toward the shore in a gale Friday two miles off the Ludington shore, told of the battle to haul the Jupiter out of danger.

Bergh said his small, 150-foot craft left St. Joseph, Mich., Friday night to answer the Jupiters distress calls, making the 126-mile run in "very fresh seas" with a west wind reaching 45 to 50 miles an hour in gusts in 10 hours.

He said that 10-inch Manila hawser was hauled aboard the freighter from the Sundew about 11 a.m. Saturday and the little cutter began its tow directly into wind and seas, but that the tow-line parted after they had gone six miles in two hours.

Freighter Drops Anchor

A second manila line parted shortly after the Jupiter was taken in tow again, and the freighter dropped anchor. The Sundew was made without incident.

The salt-laden freighter, with its crew of 28, was turned over to two Milwaukee harbor tugs here, but Bergh said he considered she was safe at her present anchorage.

At Rogers City, Mich., on the Lake Huron shore the grain carrier Warren, a Canadian vessel, was reported fast on the rocks, where it had nosed in Saturday seeking refuge from the storm.

The tug Favorite of the Great Lakes Steamship Company arrived alongside at 5 p.m. and immediately began towing operations, but as yet has been unable to budge the vessel.

Capt. H. P. McBeth said the Canadian grain carrier is in no immediate danger, and the Rogers City lighthouse keeper said the vessel appeared undamaged. It would be safe, he added, so long as the wind continues from the southwest.

As yet no report has been made to unload part of the Warren's cargo.

SERVING CANADIANS C-I-L THROUGH CHEMISTRY

"Chemistry? IT'S MY GREATEST ALLY!"

THE DOCTOR is the one man who sees below the surface, who knows from first-hand experience what Chemistry means to health and to our general well-being.

Aside from its great work in water purification through chlorine and in disease prevention through pest destruction, it helps the medical man in countless other ways.

Chemistry produces light-conducting "Lucite" to be fashioned into instruments for internal examinations; X-Ray film, and chemicals for developing it; skin-grafting cement; sutures of nylon monofilament; cellulose sponges; anaesthetics and many other medical and surgical aids.

Yes, Chemistry is with us everywhere, ever seeking and finding new methods and materials. The C-I-L oval is the symbol of an organization devoted to serving Canadians through chemistry.

FIRST GERMAN GROOM-TO-BE ARRIVES

They met again and their romance blossomed in Paris in 1945, when she was an army nurse and he was a prisoner of war. Mueller's wife and two children were killed by Allied bombs in Leipzig.

Tweed Voters Will Register Franchise On Local Option

With the sale of liquor and beer having been banned in the village since the centre adopted local option 33 years ago, voters in Tweed will go to the polls on Wednesday to decide whether local option will be retained.

Three questions are to be decided by the vote. The first question is whether there is favor for the establishment of government stores for the sale of beer for residence consumption; secondly, whether voters favor the establishment of a government store for the sale of liquor, and thirdly whether voters favor the sale of beer only under a public licence for consumption on a licenced premises to which men only are admitted.

The result of the vote on any one of the questions will have no effect on the others. All the questions may carry or only one or two.

Supports for the "drys" and for the "wets" are taking a purely business viewpoint of the matter. The "drys" claim that under local option the village of Tweed has prospered and more than doubled its population in the 33 years which local option has been in effect.

Losing Business Claim

The "wets" claim generally that Tweed business men are losing trade to Belleville and to Madoc because of local option in Tweed. The nearest beer parlor to Tweed is at Stoco, four miles away.

Harry Parker, campaign chairman for the "wets" estimates that approximately 80 per cent of the merchants and business men of the village support the opinion that Tweed is losing business because of local option.

On the other hand, Chas. E. Way and T. C. Graham, campaign manager and campaign chairman for the "drys" insist that exactly the opposite is true. Every merchant in Tweed is doing all the business he can, they point out. Young business men are coming to Tweed, taking over established businesses and are doing much more business than was done at the old stand.

T. C. Graham stated that beverage rooms do no place any good, "but they do lots of harm" he insists.

Taximan Feared Slain When Cab Found Abandoned

Ralph Margeson Missing In Toronto After Trip

Toronto, Nov. 11 (CP).—Taxi-driver Ralph Margeson, reported missing early today, was feared slain when police found his cab, the upholstery stained by blood and particles of matter, abandoned in North Toronto.

Police said they learned his last trip shortly after midnight was driving two fares from a Queen street hotel. They had no information on the passengers but were seeking them for questioning.

Margeson was reported missing when he failed to return to his suburban York Township home after his customary 2 a.m. quitting time.

The cab was found at mid-morning near the scene of a former "hobo jungle", the stockyard district around Weston Road and St. Clair avenue, where police at one time were seeking the body of 13-year-old Arlene Anderson. The girl's violated body was later found near the northwest Toronto home last Thursday but her slayer is still at large.

Margeson, 32, is the father of five children, all between three and eight. His wife, expecting another child, broke into tears when police relayed the news of finding his cab.

Police said robbery may have been a motive. "We think that we will find his body in a culvert in some lonely spot," said Inspector Archie McCathie.

HUNT CONTINUES FOR FOUR MISSING PERSONS IN ONT.

Searchers Successful in Finding Two Other Persons in Widely Scattered Areas

(By The Canadian Press)

Successful in finding two missing persons in widely separated areas of Ontario, one after a five-day hunt through the bush, search parties and police in four other sections continued today to look for four other persons who disappeared, including an eight-year-old boy and an 15-year-old girl.

One of the persons found was Harold Keeler, 63, of Dewey, Neb., who walked out of the woods near Clearwater Lake in northwestern Ontario after a 72-hour disappearance. Search parties in the district, 45 miles northwest of Fort Frances, had feared he was dead after encountering sub-zero temperatures and a heavy snow storm but his condition was reported "good."

The other was Claude Raymond, 18, discovered cold and hungry on the Ontario Nickle Mine road north of Falconbridge. He left a hunting party Sunday to track deer.

But two other individuals had disappeared into the northern Ontario bush. A week after eight-year-old John Gougeon of Haileybury was lost in the dense forest near Haileybury police admitted they were far from a solution. The boy was feared to have drowned in Lake Temiskaming but the lake was dragged for his body without success.

Rod Mason, 40-year-old war veteran, has been missing in the rugged Algoma bush 20 miles northeast of Sault Ste. Marie for five days and searchers are continuing their hunt between Trout Lake and Lake Elizabeth. He strayed from a hunting party last Wednesday.

Twelve days ago 15-year-old Lorraine Stephenson of Hamilton did not come home for supper and police have searched fruitlessly for her ever since. She was last seen by fellow-employees at a pottery plant where her father also is employed.

Delhi, Ont., police were investigating a report that Thomas Cummins, 28-year-old insurance agent and war veteran had been seen in Rodney, Ont., Friday night. He has been missing from his home for a week. Relatives believe he may be a victim of amnesia.

North Bay, (CP) — Sleet and rain in the Haileybury District today kept search parties inactive in their nine-day quest for Johnny Gougeon, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Gougeon of Haileybury.

The boy was last seen near the Lake Temiskaming waterfront in the northern Ontario town 100 miles north of here, November 2. Since then search parties, dragging parties, aircraft and a professional diver have combed the entire district in an effort to find the child.

Timmins — Fifty-one-year-old Sam Duilus of Timmins walked into town last night to end a three-day air and ground search by Provincial Police.

A prospector, Duilus went missing in Turnbull Township about 12 miles west of here Saturday. He was inspecting claims in the township in company with two mining engineers. When he walked into the bush and failed to return his companions instituted a brief search, then contacted police here.

Yesterday a ground party led by veteran bushman Engene Servais of Timmins started the search and a plane was pressed into service. Plans for a bigger search party and recruiting of additional aircraft were ended when Duilus made his way back alone.

MIMICO'S COUNCIL OPPOSES ACTION ON MARGARINE

Toronto, Nov. 11 (CP)—A resolution protesting the "unfairness" of legislation "rushed through the House of Commons" banning the manufacture and sale of margarine was adopted yesterday by suburban Mimicos council.

Says Mother Admits She Drowned Sons In Scalding Water

Ravenna, O., Nov. 11 — (AP)—Sheriff George E. Shields today said Mrs. Edward McVeigh, 29-year-old Sunday school teacher, has admitted in a verbal statement drowning her two children late yesterday in a half-filled tub of scalding water.

The officer said the woman will be charged with murder today in the deaths of Malcolm, five, and David, two months, at nearby Geauga-on-the-Lake.

He quoted her as saying she threw David into the tub and then chased Malcolm into the basement. After beating his head against an iron post and the stairs, she placed him in the tub also and then attempted to drown herself in a shallow pool behind the house, Shields said.

He declared the woman gave a reason for the act, but declined to disclose it. She was held under police custody in hospital where she was taken in hysterical condition.

HELD IN STRANGULATION DEATH

Springfield, Mo., Nov. 11 — (AP) — Mrs. Letha Lake, 26, was held without charge today in the strangulation death of her three-year-old son. Police quoted Mrs. Lake as saying she felt "an urge to kill someone" as she at listening to the radio and, after swallowing a liniment in an unsuccessful attempt to end her own life, strangled her son.

Bosoms Win More Attention Than Bravos as Audience Outshines Cast

New York, Nov. 11. (AP)—Bosoms attracted more attention than "Bravos" last night as the Metropolitan Opera opened its 63rd season with enough 100-watt diamonds in the glittering audience to pale the house lights.

The "new look" was reflected in a number of daringly low-cut evening dresses that brought wolf calls from bystanders assembled in the lobby and on the streets to watch fashion's darlings parade into the Diamond Horseshoe tier.

There were acres of white ermine —enough to snowblind a careless man—subdued only by the tawny simplicity of broad expanses of expensive mink.

As is usual in the pomp of opening night at the Old "Met", the cast of Verdi's gaudy "The Masked Ball" played second-fiddle to the spectators, gathered in splendor for the kick-off of New York's social season.

There were the Duchess of Talleyrand; Argentine Ambassador Oscar Ivanissevich; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Chrysler, Jr.; Thomas J. Watson, the cash register man, and Mrs. Watson; Mrs. Warren Austin, wife of the Chief United States delegate to the United Nations; Opera Singers Gladys Swarthout and Dorothy Kirsten, and Frank Sinatra, who also sings.

Mrs. George Drew, wife of the Premier of Ontario, attended as a guest of her father, Edward Johnson, general manager of the Metropolitan and former resident of Guelph.

Two other hardy perennials of opera openings were also present—Mrs. Dasha Paretzkin, who stood in line thirty hours to become for the second successive year the first 'standee" admitted, and Mrs. George Washington Kavanaugh, wearing her normal six diamond bracelets. She didn't drop a carat.

Mrs. Kavanaugh lost a $5,000 bracelet at the 1946 opening and paid the Brooklyn housewife who found it a $250 reward.

The opera itself was something of an anti-climax. "The Masked Ball" is an elegant extravaganza, sung in Italian, of a Swedish King, who makes free-and-easy with the wife of his secretary and is subsequently stabbed to death by the enraged husband.

Shown in flight here is the U. S. army's P-84 Thunderjet fighter plane. The ship can fight at nearly sonic speed. Seventy thousand rounds were fired from six guns during the firing tests, more than 75 per cent of which were fired at plane speeds in excess of 600 miles an hour. In addition to an undisclosed number of Thunderpets now in use, the army air force recently ordered 550 more from Republic.

CANADIANS BARE HEADS IN TRIBUTE TO WARS' DEAD

Ceremonies Marked Throughout Dominion

(By The Canadian Press)

Thousands of humble Canadians bared their heads today under rainy skies beside the great of the land as they stopped for two minutes to remember with gratitude the sacrifices of those who died in two world wars.

Led by the governor-general, Viscount Alexander of Tunis, who took the salute of a parade to Parliament Hill at Ottawa, mayors and high officers of the services officiated at similar ceremonies in other Ontario centres, large and small.

The day — anniversary of the armistice of the First World War —is set aside to honor the 62,817 dead of the First World War and the 41,992 who died in the second.

Ontario school children had a holiday and a Canadian Press survey showed that most centres also marked the whole day as a business holiday. Those which did not, observed either the morning or two hours covering the 11 o'clock ceremonies before community cenotaphs and private

At Kingston, Col. M. P. Bogart, Officer Commanding the Army's Eastern Ontario Command, took the salute at a parade of detachments of the services, cadets and other organizations at a service at the Cross of Sacrifice. Showers held down the size of the crowd.

Because of rain, Belleville's ceremony was held at the armouries, where Rev. John W. Foote, V.C., the heroic padre of Dieppe, was the chief speaker.

Solemn Religious Service

The line of wreath bearers before Hamilton's cenotaph was one of the longest since the services have been held in spite of driving rain. Veterans of the Northwest Rebellion and the Boer War led the parade to the cenotaph at London.

At Owen Sound because of heavy rain the service was held at Westside United Church rather than at the cenotaph. About 100 veterans paraded to the church.

A military parade through wet streets featured Remembrance services at St. Catharines and Kitchener. St. Thomas started its observance with a community service at Knox Church. Later a Cagress.

Impressive Tribute Paid Gallant Dead of Two Wars At Remembrance Day Services

Maj. John Foote, V.C., Addresses Veterans, Citizens in Armouries

With drizzling sullen skies, strangely reminiscent of that memorable day of November 11, 1918, preventing the traditional parade to the city cenotaph, veterans of two World Wars today paid reverent memorial tribute to their gallant dead at impressive services held in the Bridge Street Armouries.

The last minute change to the parade floor of the building was made due to the inclemency of the weather. Rain fell steadily all morning, and as the hour neared, officials in charge decided to hold the services in the Armouries instead of at the Station Street Cenotaph.

Grey-thatched veterans of Ypres, Passchaendale, the Somme, Vimy Ridge, Loos, Festubert, Mount St. Eloi, Zillebecke, St. Julien, Sanctuary Wood, Hill 60 and other memorable First War battles, stood shoulder to shoulder with their younger comrades, heroes, of Ortona, Caen, Falaise, Sicily, Italy, Africa, the Seven Seas and the flack-strewn skies of the world, in a Remembrance Day observance that was not dulled by the whims of the weather-man.

Veterans of Two Wars

Be-medalled and bereted, the First War Veterans slowed up by the passing of time, bravely stepped out to the martial music of bands, their medals and ribbons and divisional colors flaunting defiance to the elements, alongside, the younger brisk - stepping youngsters wearing the flashes and regimental badges of the immortal Hastings and Prince Edward Regiments and other famous fighting units, the navy, the air force and the merchant marine.

Sharp at eleven oclock, as a city paused in its everyday routine, heads were bared and "faces turned to the west" as memory bridged the chasm of years, and in the reverent hush of the two-minute silence, these men, some of them battle-scarred, others permanently disabled by the holocaust of war, and a large crowd of relatives, friends and citizens, paid silent tribute to their gallant comrades who lie in foreign fields, ocean depths, or unknown graves in order that civilization might survive.

Scouts, Cadets Attend

With them was a flight of R. C. A. F. personnel under the command of Flight Lieutenant C. S. Gilliatt, Boy Scouts under Scout Commissioner Maurice Button and the Quinte Sea Cadet Corps under the command of Midshipman C. Summers.

The band of the Salvation Army under the baton of Bandmaster Wardle played for the service and also offered several selections prior to the opening of the ceremonies.

Onetime War Secrets Including Atom Research Data Broadcast

Washington, Nov. 11 (AP).—Onetime war secrets by the million, including some atom research data and formerly top secret military maps and charts, are being broadcast—and indirectly to any foreign powers that may be interested—by the Library of Congress.

Disclosing this today, the Library said it was acting "with the full co-operation of the military services," which are removing sheaves of maps and documents from the secrecy list so that they can be distributed to 150 libraries throughout the United States.

In nearly all these libraries the information can be studied and copied by anybody—"including, I suppose, persons who could pass it on the Soviet Union," a library spokesman said.

Some documents concern such things as hydrogen ionization and fluorine flow from the Oak Ridge Atomic Research Centre. An explanatory note said they were condensed from reports still on the "classified"—secret—list.

Dr. Burton Adkinson, chief of the Congressional Library's maps division, leafed through new-released Office of Strategic Services maps on China and aeronautical charts showing the locations of United States radar stations in the Caribbean.

"The idea seems to be," he said, "that these are either out of date or else that they don't contain anything which the Russians couldn't find out somewhere else. We know that the Russians are buying American maps by the dozen. No, we don't buy many Russian maps. Can't get them out of Russia."

Library officials said the newly-declassified maps and documents are being distributed to bring university libraries, in particular, up to date on technical and other developments withheld during the war. They also are expected to prove useful to industry and to American business firms with dealings abroad.

Heavy-Set Man As No. 1 Suspect Sought by Police

Toronto, Nov. 11 (CP) — A heavy-set fair-haired man of medium —height today was sought as the No. 1 suspect in the strangle-slaying of 13-year-old Arlene Anderson.

As detectives moved among the mourners and the hundreds of spectators at the funeral of the partially-paralyzed girl yesterday in the hope of finding clues to the identity of the person who strangled the child with her underwear and then raped her, new details of the description of the man believed to have spirited her away from home Nov. 2, came into the hands of police.

Fred Sharp, who lives in the west end of the city, said he saw a child he believes was Arlenee walking with a heavy-set man.

"I saw only their backs as I alighted from a bus," Sharo said. "I didn't even get a side look at the man's face. But I do know he was heavy-set and of medium height. He would weigh between 175 and 190 pounds.

"I noticed them because the girl was dragging her foot along the curb. It seemed almost as though she would fall into the roadway. The man wasn't holding her hand, though, and made no effort to help her."

SOVIET EXPLODED FIRST ATOM BOMB ON JUNE 15, 1947

Five Years Behind U.S. In Bomb Manufacture

Paris, Nov. 11 (CP)—Paris exploded her first test atomic bomb last June in an isolated area of Siberia, the Moscow correspondent of the Paris newspaper L'Intransigeant reported today in a dispatch marked "filed from Moscow via Prague".

The report said the June 15 test was successful and since then experts had been working in "ultra-secrecy" on reports for Prime Minister Stalin.

Reuters News Agency quoted the report as saying 280 atom specialists and government officials watched the test. Reuters said the correspondent was a John Griggs, who reported the bomb was a small one, weighing only about 13 pounds, but that the explosion was felt over a radius of 19 miles.

The Associated Press quoted Griggs as saying the small bombs were being made experimentally at a mushroom factory city deep in Siberia, called "Atomgrad". Griggs reported the Russians had not yet developed "production belt" methods, but were attempting to reach that goal.

"Although the Soviets have discovered the secret of exploding the bomb, they have not the smallest chance in the world of manufacturing it on a mass production basis for the moment," he added.

The dispatch asserted, however, that atomic research held top priority under the new Soviet five-year plan and claimed the Russians had constructed several huge atomic industrial centres behind the Ural mountains in the centre of Asia.

The report followed the claim last week by Foreign Minister Molotov at the 30th anniversary celebrations of the Russian Revolution that the secret of the bomb had ceased to exist.

The correspondent added he had "ultra-confidential" information that the Soviet experts conceded Russia to be "five years behind America" in the development of atom bomb production methods.

The article said the Russians were being aided by a number of German scientists who had accepted Russian offers of positions at Atomgrad.

Griggs reported that the Russians were using radioactive ores mined in the Uzbek Soviet Republic, the Urals, the Karelian Isthmus and the region of Lake Bakpukh.

L'Intransigeant said the Russian test was held in the presence of three high Soviet Army officers and of Servei Vavilov, director of the Soviet Nuclear Research Service.

Boy Choristers of Abbey Singing For Places at Wedding of Princess

By JOAN CAPREOL

London, Nov. 11 (Reuters) — Twenty-seven boys of Westminster Abbey choir school were singing hard today to earn their places at Princess Elizabeth's wedding in Westminster Abbey Nov. 20.

Their clear notes rang out from the abbey song school over the cloisters and people stopped to listen to the boy sopranos' "Praise Him, Praise Him, Praise Him."

The boys ranging from nine to 14, sang full-throated under the direction of Dr. William McKie, organist and master of the choristers of Westminster Abbey.

"They think they are the luckiest boys in Britain because if they reached out they would be able to touch her as she passes them on her way to the altar," Dr. McKie said.

The boys, hand-picked from all over the country have been training for the last two months for the Royal wedding.

There was extra excitement among the 10 senior boys, one of whom will be chosen to sing the solo at the wedding.

On the wedding day, the boys will be resplendent in scarlet cassocks and white surplices.

Ten boys from the choir of the Chapel Royal at Saint James's Palace, known as "The Children of the Chapel Royal," will wear gold and scarlet livery, black knee breeches, black stockings, and black shoes with big silver buckles.

Six boys from Saint George's chapel in the grounds of the Royal Castle of Windsor will wear a darker red.

There has been no combined rehearsal of the three choirs yet, but one is scheduled for the end of the week. And then gruelling practices will take place daily.

Churchill Charges Attlee Govt. With Dictatorial Aims

Leads Debate Against Bill to Curb Peers' Powers

London, Nov. 11. (CP)—Winston Churchill told the House of Commons today "we are approaching very near to ditatorship in Britain" under the Labor Government and "as a free-born Englishman what I hate most is being at anybody's mercy—be it Hitler or (Prime Minister) Attlee.

The Wartime Prime Minister, ignoring the advice of his physicians, rose to lead his Conservative Party's fight in the Commons against the Labor government's bill to curb the power of the House of Lords on delaying legislation from two years to one.

Churchill, who will be 73 this month, did not appear yesterday at the start of the debate because of a cold. He said his presence today "was under some protest from my medical advisers."

Leading the opposition attack and replying to taunts of Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison, a long-time political foe, Churchill accused the government of 'sinister intrigue' in its proposal to curb the peers' powers.

Obviously mindful of the heavy Conservative gains and Labor losses in recent voting for municipal officials in England, Wales and Scotland, he said:

"If there was a general election tomorrow, the Socialist majority (in parliament) would vanish. If they wait another year they themselves will vanish for a considerable period—unwept, unhonored, unsung and unhung".

Charging the government with dictatorial tendencies in its bill to restrict the powers of the House of Lords, Churchill said incompetent ministers "who say 'to hell with the will of the people' " had brought Britain many miseries.

"The government feared the popular will, and by this artful and insincere scheme they hope to substitute government decisions for the will of the people."

Raising his voice to drown Labor protests, Churchill warned that "single-chamber government is especially dangerous in Britain, which has no written constitution."

Emphasizing that the lords' veto was the only guarantee against the passage of measures never put before the people, Churchill asserted:

"What is aimed at now is the dictatorship of ministers. As a free-born Englishman what I hate most is being at anybody's mercy — be it Hitler or Attlee.

"We are approaching very near to dictatorship in Britain -- a dictatorship without its criminality or its efficiency."

Filly Foal Gift To Princess

London, Nov. 11 —(CP)—Princess Elizabeth's wedding gift of a filly foal from the Aga Khan has roused speculation in turf circles on whether she will follow precedent and, as heir to the throne, have her own racing stable. The Princess has not yet registered racing colors, but her keen interest in the turf is evidenced by many gifts of riding equipment she has received.

Attlee Labels Red Accusations As "Baseless"

London, Nov. 11 — (CP) — Prime Minister Attlee labeled "baseless" last night Russian accusations that Britons are imperialists, war-mongers and traitors, and said "such language is most unusual from members of a government against members of another government with whom it is in friendly relations."

Attlee extolled "democratic principles" and said the British Commonwealth and the Empire "not only preach, but are actually carrying out" such principles.

"Yet in the press of the U.S.S.R. and of countries in which its influence is all powerful," he went on, "we have a constant stream of abuse of the people of Great Britain and of members of the government as imperialists and even war-mongers and traitors.

"Such language is most unusual from members of a government against members of another government with whom it is in friendly relations. A recital of the facts is enough to show how baseless are these accusations."

Attlee cited self-government for India, independence for Burma, "constitutional advances" for Ceylon and Malta and the study of federation for the West Indies in his denial of imperialism under the labor government.

"If there is imperialism in the world today — by which I mean the subjection of other peoples by the political and economic domination of a powerful nation—it is certainly not to be found in the British Commonwealth, he said.

FRIGHTENED DOG DELAYS TRAIN

St. Louis, Nov. 11 (AP)—. A great dane, apparently vicious from fright and hunger, ruled a baggage car on a Pennsylvania train all the way from Indianapolis to St. Louis yesterday. The black dog defied all attempts at baggage removal at four stops and was the reason for the train arriving an hour and a half late.

100 HENS MISSING FROM ROOSTS

That chicken thieves are active in the Foxboro district is indicated by a complaint to police from Frank Hamilton that approximately 100 hens had disappeared from the hen roost some time Friday night. Hamilton told police that he had approximately 150 New Hampshires and when he went to feed them Friday morning there were only about fifty left. Police are investigating the report.

Four Principles of Democratic Way of Life Illustrated in Remembrance Day Address

The four great principles of the democratic way of life were impressively illustrated by Major the Rev. Arthur Smith, rector of St. Thomas Church here, and one of Canada's "original" padres of the Second Great War to the Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon yesterday.

In an appropriate address on "Remembrance Day" Major Smith in simple yet forceful eloquence illustrated the four freedoms — "speech, religion, fear and want" —with personal experiences gained during his lengthy tenure of service overseas with the Canadian army.

"Many of us who were overseas fighting, were not sure of what we were fighting for," Major Smith said in his opening remarks. "So the great leaders, Churchill and Roosevelt met one day on a battleship and clearly enunciated a program so we knew exactly what we were there for."

The four great principles they laid down still stand as the great way of the democratic idea of life. —freedom of speech, religion, freedom from want and from fear.

Finally Cost Life

Referring to freedom of speech, Major Smith told the clubmen of an officer who served with his regiment overseas. A fine leader, a born soldier yet this man was of argumentative disposition. He argued for the love of it. He took opposite sides to nearly everything, even if he was wrong. "He was the most independent man I ever knew," the padre said, "And it was his idea of freedom of speech that finally cost him his life.

"There was another character I met," the speaker went on, "who was unsoldierly, unkempt, did not keep himself clean and did not take kindly to army discipline. I talked with him one day and asked him why he did not "soldier" like the rest. Why he did not submit to army discipline—and keep himself neat and clean."

"This man told me his story," Major Smith continued. "He told me he did not remember his parents — how he had been born in the slums — had no education. 'I know I'm a bum — and will always be one,' he said. I pointed out to him that we were fighting to make the world a better place in which to live. The man looked at me. 'If that is what we are fighting for — if I can do anything to help the lot of fellows like me — then I'm for it.,"

This soldier, the padre said, went to Ortona and turned out to be one of the best soldiers in the unit. "That was his conception of Freedom from Want. God bless such men as this one."

Illustrated Freedom

Major Smith illustrated Freedom of Religion with an experience of a soldier who had gone to an English mission and become converted. "His spirit was the right one and he tried to convert everyone else.

"One day he walked into the office of his commanding officer with the question 'Are you saved?' The soldier survived the C.O.'s military blast, but later the officer talked with the man for an hour.

"There was no other army in the world except the democratic ones where a man could talk his religion like this man did," the speaker declared.

"This man was an engineer, and in Sicily when his unit was engaged in building a bridge across a deep but narrow ravine, he walked cooly among the men, under a hail of bullets, calmly directing operations. When asked about it, he said, 'the Lord was with me.'

Jittery Driver

Speaking on Freedom from Fear, the padre drew on another of his experiences in the war zone. He with another padre was looking after the dead following a battle and after the duty had been completed had retired to a shack for a cup of tea.

A jittery jeep driver drove to the place and "he was almost scared to death" after being subjected to heavy shellfire. "The soldier could hardly hold a cup of tea in his hand, he was that afraid."

Officers and men stood around the door of the shack, the speaker related. There was a solemn hush in the air. War appeared to be far removed. Then came a deafening explosion.

"When the dust and smoke had cleared the driver lay on the ground with a gaping hole in his stomach. We carried him inside and had his wounds attended to—but he was too far gone. He died a half hour later and dying, with eyes glazing, he whispered, 'Father take me home.' As far as physical fear is concerned, this man gave his life so that no man need to be afraid as he was afraid."

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Grant Sparling with club appreciation expressed by Rotarian T. Y. Wills.

Restaurant Licences Discussed And Recommendation Passed At Short Session of Council

Routine Business Only Transacted, Some Motions Turned Back

The much discussed question of restaurant sanitation again came up for discussion at city council Monday evening when a delegation of restaurant owners, headed by Mr. George DeVuyst, appeared before members asking that the city by-law with respect to public eating places be rigidly enforced.

Mr. DeVuyst charged that discrimination had been shown in the enforcement of the restaurant by -law in that slip-shod places, such as wagon lunches and poolrooms were permitted to operate without the required sanitation facilities when restaurants were forced to comply to the letter with regulations.

"There is too much pussy footing around," stated the speaker. "We are wondering if council is interested in proper eating places or whether they are more interested in licence fees. We are asking only for fairness and that the present by-law be strictly enforced."

Suggests Recommendation

Alderman Butler suggested a recommendation instructing the sanitary inspector to rigidly enforce the by-law while Alderman Tice pointed out that any time the inspector brought a recommendation to council regarding insanitary condition of restaurants that it had been acted upon.

Here Mr. DeVuyst pointed out that council issued licences without the approval of the health inspector. "Council used broad judgment in preparing their restaurant by-law but it is not being enforced equally," he said.

Alderman Duffy declared that the onus for enforcement of the by-law was on the health inspector. "We make the law but enforcement is up to the Department of Health," he stated. "I admit they have been neglectful."

Claims Alderman Misinformed

"Ald. Duffy is misinformed," returned Ald. Follwell. "The city has full authority to revoke any licence which they issue."

Ald. Chamberlain was of the opinion that licences should not be issued to any place which did not conform with the by-law regarding sanitation.

Here a recommendation was placed before council by Ald. Armstrong calling on the city to issue no further licences for restaurants unless with the approval of the local Board of Health. Sanitation facilities were to comply with the present by-law. The recommendation carried unanimously.

Several recommendations from Thursday night's committee meeting saw brief discussion before they were either ratified or turned back to committee for further consideration. Ald. Follwell objected to a recommendation refusing building covenant extension to Mrs. Cooper. The alderman claimed discrimination was being shown as with the current shortage of materials many covenants were being extended by council.

To Stop Trafficking

"This particular covenant was not extended because council wanted to put a stop to trafficking in city owned lots," pointed out Ald. Allin. "There have been cases where city-owned lots have been bought for a nominal fee and then sold for two and three hundred dollars."

The recommendation, carried with Aldermen Allin. Armstrong, Chamberlain, Clarke, Duffy, Harvey, Hyde, Lattimer, Lazenby, Tice, Wilbur and Vanner approving, and Aldermen Follwell and Butler voting against.

On objection by Ald. Hyde a recommendation barring the use of sound equipment on city streets was turned back for further consideration. "To bar all sound equipment is going just a bit too far," stated the alderman. "There are several people who have spent a good deal of money on sound equipment and it is a good form of advertising."

Voted to Buy Coats

After a bit of bickering council voted to purchase raincoats for the veterans working on traffic control for the protection of school children while they are crossing intersection near their respective schools.

Alderman Butler asked that the coats be purchased while Alderman Clarke disagreed stating that the veterans should supply their own coats.

"I am continually amazed at the attitude taken by the acting mayor," said Alderman Follwell. "Alderman Clarke has continually opposed traffic control at the schools despite the fact he was a school inspector for many years. Surely the lives of our school children are worth the $30 per month which these four men receive and they do need the raincoats. I think it is a very petty matter."

"If I wanted a raincoat I would buy it," returned Alderman Clarke.

"Maybe the acting mayor could buy a raincoat; these men cannot," was the reply.

Doing Excellent Job

Here Alderman Tice as chairman of the special committee through which the guards were employed, stated that the men were doing an excellent job. "The children have already learned to use the intersections where the guards are working and I think it is money well spent."

The recommendation to supply the raincoats carried.

Communications from the local public utilities commission and from a local gas user were read, the communications asking that the date for closing the gas plant be set back from Dec. 31st owing to the inability of users getting the necessary electrical replacement equipment. The requests were referred to the next committee meeting. However council will again request the utilities commission to supply an inventory of property comprising the gas department, the information to be supplied by November 24th.

Turned Back

A recommendation from the Parks Board that council apply to the Municipal Board to issue a debenture for completion of the recreational centre at the exhibition park for construction of additional seating accommodation, a new fence around the recreational field and a club house to afford proper dressing rooms, was turned back to committee. The debenture suggested was for $25,000.

Under inquiries Alderman Allin asked why city accounts had not been published in the newspaper as requested by council recommendation.

Alderman Tice replied that the newspaper publisher had not seen fit to publish the accounts as a news item but that if council wished to have them published as a paid notice then they would be published.

"I thought that was the original intention," said Alderman Lattimer.

Alderman Allin also wanted to know if figures regarding expenditures and appropriations would be forthcoming at the next meeting.

Alderman Follwell stated that he had been informed by the Comptroller that no city departments were overdrawn and asked Alderman Clarke as chairman of finance if this was not so. Mr. Clarke replied that the auditor would have the figures by the next meeting.

Alderman Follwell also wanted to know if the age limit for employees of the fire department was being lived up to. To this Alderman Wilbur as chairman of fire replied "No."

Asked when the age limit was going to be enforced the chairman of fire returned the by-law in this respect would be enforced by him "when the council forces me to enforce it."

Point Traverse

Radio-Telephone Installed at False Duck Is.

Point Traverse — (Special) — A radio-telephone apparatus has been installed in the fog station of the False Duck Island. Communication can now be carried on between the False Duck light station and the government operated marine station at Kingston at the eastern end of the lake.

The False Duck Island is some 30 miles from Kingston. It is uninhabited except for the lighthouse keeper K. A. McConnel and his assistant. A 63 foot tower erected in 1828, is situated on the east side of the island. The station will be in operation for about four weeks more, until the close of navigation sometime in December.

Visits Island

Mr. John Foster Dulles, prominent lawyer and owner of the Main Duck Island, paid a brief visit to his summer home there last week.

Lighthouse tenders have returned to the Ducks from a visit to the mainland and are now awaiting the closing of navigation about December 15th., when the lightship Grenville will take them from their post and return them to their respective homes ashore.

Many Cormorants

Many double crested cormorants are disporting about in local waters.

Many net fishermen look with considerable trepidation on the increase of cormorants living on a fish diet. These big birds, which are about three feet in length and have a wing spread of some five feet, are sometimes blamed for getting into the net and either eat or destroy a share of the contents of the net.

Briefs

Residents here received their first taste of winter on Sunday with high winds and intermittent snow flurries. Great seas lashed the lake and all masters took precautionary measures to insure the safety of their vessels.

in charge of the service. Assisting were Wing Commander, the Rev. Grant Sparling, rector of Christ Church and the Rev. F. R. Harback, minister of Tabernacle United Church.

Major John Foote, formerly of Madoc, Canada's only padre Victoria Cross winner was the guest speaker. Regimental Sergeant Major Angus Duffy, "Hasty Pees" was in charge of the parade with Major Jack Thomas in charge of the veterans. Ernest Dainard and Roy Madden were in charge of the parade and wreath arrangements respectively.

The "Last Post"

At the conclusion of the service proper, the haunting notes of the "Last Post" rang out in the building following the two-minute silence. Then came "Reveille", played by a trumpeter of the Salvation Army Band.

Wreaths were deposited at the foot of the cross-topped Cenotaph with Mrs. William Pepper, Chatham Street representing the Province of Ontario, Alderman H. J. Clarke, represented the city and the following organizations and individuals slowly laid their floral tributes with the others:—Canadian Legion; Canadian Legion Ladies Auxiliary; Canadian National Railways veterans; Belleville Retails Merchants; Belleville Chapter 55, O. E. S.; Argyll Chapter and St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E.; Knights of Columbus; Optimist Club; Minerva Chapter Order of the Eastern Star; Kinsmen Club; Rotary Club; Salvation Army; Local 533 UEW (CIO); Moose Lodge 1004, and wreaths to the memory of Pte. Lee Keech, W.O. Kenneth Shoener and Rifleman Bobby White.

Major Foote in a brief address pointed out that it "was not only our duty to hold services of this nature but to renew again the significance of the event, and to teach the meaning of the service to our children and to generations to follow."

Stating that people too often reckoned the cost of war in increased taxes; cost of material, and national debt, Major Foote told the veterans that material things do not represent the true cost of war as the price of freedom. Memorial services, he said, were a challenge to all to cherish and defend that which was won.

Sacrifice for Freedom

Some take a cheap view when they say nothing was won by war, he went on. Human sacrifice was made so that we remain free men and as such to continue the sacrifice and serve so that what was won will be preserved."

"It may be in our time or the next generation when Canadians are again called upon to fight for their precious freedom and way of living. It is necessary that we be prepared for such a contingency, not only to maintain an army but the character of our young men and women so that they can feel that what they have will be worth fighting for."

If war does not come, Canada has responsibilities if she is to hold true to the fellowship of those who died, Major Foote said. "We have civic, provincial and dominion duties, and the responsibility to maintain unity in Canada. Our duty as private citizens is to remove intolerance and prejudice, racial and religious. We cannot afford to be lazy and shirk our responsibility in our own sphere of life.

"If we do this," he concluded, "we have no right to say we have fellowship with those who gave their lives. Nothing is worth achieving without sacrifice. Those who are dead, lead the way. Let us follow by a rededication of our lives to those ideals for which they fought."

NEWFOUNDLAND'S GIFT TO ELIZABETH

The second wedding gift of mink to Princess Elizabeth, which comes from the people of Newfoundland, is now being made by the London firm of Links, whose head, Calman Links, recently took the patterns to Buckingham Palace for the Princess to choose the style in which the coat will be made. The skins, which have already been sliced up to ribbons by a knife — the correct way to start making up a mink coat — are now being machined into a stylish coat. The first mink gift was from Canada, this being made up in Montreal. Here two workers admire a number of skins which are being used to make up the gift.

Steady rain caused a last minute decision to transfer Brantford's service from the cenotaph to the Brantford Armories. Rain also cancelled plans for an outdoor service at Stratford and the memorial ceremony was held in the city hall auditorium.

Gen. Crerar, retired commander of the first Canadian army, placed a wreath at a service at the Essex county war memorial at Windsor.

Many centres had memorial services Sunday, including Cornwall, Guelph, Waterloo and North Bay.

Gift of Bedspread Brings Invitation To Palace Party

Galt, Nov. 11 — (CP) — Two months ago, Mrs. Robert Bracey of Galt sent a hand-tatted bedspread which took her eight years to make to Princess Elizabeth as a wedding gift.

Today she is one of the happiest women in Canada, for she has received this invitation:—"The Lord Chamberlain is commanded by Their Majesties to invite Mrs. R. Bracey to an afternoon party on Tuesday the 18th of November, 1947, from 2.30 to 4.30 p. m. St. James's Palace."

Mrs. Bracey said she couldn't accept the invitation.

The bedspread has more than 1,000 colored medallions on the front of it and it was lined with 12 yards of yellow satin.

Old Bay Mare Better Than What She Used to Be

Baltimore, Nov. 11 — (AP) — Maybe Dolly, an old bay mare, ain't what she used to be, but those who saw her "maiden" race, performed under the unorthodox handicap of a load of junk, believe differently.

Dolly was pulling her wagon along in her usual placid style yesterday when she was startled by the noise of a street car.

She started to gallop, and with the wagon swaying behind her:

1. Hit a carriage containing a two-month-old baby, who escaped with a bump on the head:
2. Scattered "rags, bones and old iron" over three blocks;
3. Knocked down a scaffold which shattered a plate glass window as it fell;
4. Hit three parked automobiles and two street lamps;

The last street lamp separated Dolly from the wogan and she stopped running.

Request From Corbin Strikers To City Council Referred Back As No Immediate Action Taken

Briefs Presented by Strikers and Management Also Report by Ald. Lazenby

City council will take no immediate action regarding a further request from the strikers at Corbin Lock to head up a committee to act as a fact finding board and thus through force of public opinion bring about a meeting between the striking workers and Corbin Lock management.

Briefs from both the striking workers and from Corbin Lock management were read before the council but as no recommendation was forthcoming from council suggesting the suggested committee be set up, Acting Mayor H. J. Clarke laid the entire matter over until the next council committee meeting.

At the last council meeting two weeks ago council appointed the Chairman of Labor, Ald. James Lazenby as a committee of one to act as an intermediary to bring about a meeting between the strikers and Corbin management. However, when management objected to certain of the strikers' committee members, negotiations to arrange a meeting fell through.

Report Read To Council

A full report of efforts to arrange a meeting between the two factions was read to council by Ald. Lazenby.

In his report Ald. Lazenby told of asking for the names of the committee who would be chosen to meet with the Corbin management. This list consisted of C. Wannamaker, J. Haggerty, A. E. Foster, G. Alcombrack, Mrs. A. Canning and Mrs. A. O. Graham.

When Mr. McLean had been contacted he had objected to two names on the proposed committee of workers. These men, namely, J. Haggerty and G. Alcombrack, were not considered by Mr. McLean as strikers as they had been laid off prior to Oct. 6.

The workers had then made a substitution for the two names objected to and named Roy Reid and Wilbur Wright as members of the committee to meet with management of Corbins. However, Mr. McLean had again objected to the name of Wilbur Wright, claiming he had been laid off prior to Oct. 6th. The strikers would not again substitute names of the committee while Mr. McLean stated his original agreement was to meet or settle with a committee of the striking employees only.

Mr. Lazenby had asked both parties to reconsider the set up and stated he would wait 48 hours for a reply. There had been no reply from either party and was later informed by both parties that no further changes would be made.

Suggest Committee

In their brief to council last evening the strikers stated that they believed the only thing which would change the company's attitude would be a representative committee of citizens, composed of members of council, clergymen, professional people, merchants and workers, this committee to make a thorough investigation of all matters pertaining to the present strike and would likely then make recommendations to both parties in the dispute.

Corbin Lock management in their brief to council stated the company would re-open the plant as soon as possible after the picket lines were removed and would call in the employees as of Oct. 6 as quickly thereafter as they were required to operate the plant.

Second Proposal

As a second proposal the company stated they would meet a committee of employees as of Oct. 6 with the object of discussing with them the object of re-opening the plant. Persons not on the Corbin payroll as of Oct. 6 would not, however, be accepted on the committee.

Union organizer N. E. Hamblin spoke of the urgency of the matter and stated that many people were suffering. "We are not asking the council to take sides," he said. "We are merely asking council to take the lead in setting up a fact finding board."

District organizer for the UE-CIO, Mr. Ross Russell stated that the Union representatives had tried every conceivable means of bringing about a meeting between the workers and Corbin management and now as a last resort were asking council to set up a tribunal to act as a fact finding board. The only force possible to bring about a meeting between the workers and management was that of public opinion, he said.

No Complaint As To Wages

James Haggerty, Corbin employee who was let out prior to the strike stated that he had had no complaint as to wages or working conditions but that he did have a complaint because of the lack of job security. He declared it was the right of a Canadian citizen to join a union and demand job security.

Thomas Rees, president of the Belleville District Trades and Labor Council, asked council to do all in their power to bring the workers and Corbin management together. This, he declared, was the duty of council.

He took exception to action of council two weeks ago when they appointed a one man committee to make an effort to arrange a meeting between the workers and Corbin management. There was no use, he said, of sending a boy to do a man's errand.

"I want you to know that I also am a union man, and I am no boy," protested Ald. Lazenby.

Again rising to his feet Mr. Russell commented on the report given by Ald. Lazenby. "Ald. Lazenby made no attempt to obtain the facts. He merely tried to arrange a meeting between the two parties," he said.

"That is exactly what we intended," returned Acting Mayor Clarke.

Explains Reason

Alderman Duffy explained the reason why council cared to take no action regarding the strikers' request was because of the brief received from Corbin management indicating what the company was prepared to do.

"I am sorry the council is taking that attitude," returned Mr. Hamblin. "There is nothing impossible." Continuing he claimed that according to labor laws the workers laid off at Corbins are still employees of the firm and as such should be entitled to sit on the strikers' committee.

A voice from the audience claimed council was taking no action in the matter because the strike did not affect them personally. If council members had sons or daughters working at Corbins it would be a different matter. "As it is no member of this council has guts enough to get up and say that he will take action."

No recommendation regarding the matter was forthcoming from council so Acting Mayor Clarke referred the matter to the next committee meeting of council.

RCAF Auxiliary Squadrons Take Part in Exercises

Royal Canadian Air Force auxiliary squadrons from Hamilton, Toronto and Montreal will take part in operational exercises at Toronto during the coming weekend, Air Vice Marshal E. E. Middleton, C.B.E., Air Officer Commanding Central Air Command, Trenton, announced today.

Two fighter squadrons from Montreal, Nos. 401 and 438 will fly to Toronto on Saturday morning on an operational exercise. The Toronto auxiliary, Squadron No. 400, will not know the time of arrival of the units over the city, but with the use of their radar equipment will be expected to detect their approach, take off and intercept them.

Assisting the Toronto squadron in the defence of the city will be Auxiliary Squadron No. 424 from Hamilton.

In the afternoon, further exercises will be carried out with all four squadrons participating, in which all modern operational facilities available will be used.

An interesting feature of the exercises will be the fact that ground crews will be flown from Montreal to take part in the training.

"She sure hauls them!"

When Bill and his crew go into the woods now, they get timber out twice as fast as they used to. That new tractor Bill bought really handles those logs!

Back in town, the saw-mill is running full blast, taking all Bill's crew can deliver . . . And this extra activity, this extra income spreading around through the community is largely due to the fact that Bill went to see his bank manager and arranged a loan to buy the tractor . . .

In lumbering towns and rural hamlets, in big seaports and tiny fishing villages, bank credit — money at work — helps to increase business activity in whole communities. Your bank manager's job is to help men and women grasp opportunities and to put the bank's facilities to work for you and your neighbours.

Saving

Canadians have been subscribing well to the new issue of savings bonds though there has been not much promotion.

These bonds are being sold for the convenience of the people, a maximum of $1,000 to an individual. The sale is carrying out the principle, which so many Canadians learned to follow in the war years, of investing in government securities.

Many will hope that this policy of offering these bonds will be continued in order to keep before the people the thought that saving is a very commendable habit in an individual and in a people.

By means of these bonds individuals are putting away for good purposes something which will stand them in good stead in the future.

That is a happy nation whose people are energetic and thrifty.

Pack Parcels Properly

The Canadian public has been advised by Postmaster General Bertrand to exercise care in preparation of gift parcels for the United Kingdom. It is essential that those mailing parcels should take care in packing the gift parcels of foodstuffs for their friends in the British Isles. If parcels have to be reconditioned it will mean loss of time in delivery and it may mean that something of the contents has been lost.

According to the Postmaster General great numbers of parcels of food have been received in Britain in a damaged condition with the result that they have had to be reconditioned by British postal authorities before being sent on to their destinations. Parcels have been sent without protective packing and some wrapped in brown paper and mailed or in shoe boxes or other frail containers that have crumpled under the weight of other parcels. Some have not even been tied but were held together merely by gummed paper. Some of the damaged parcels were mailed in thin paper bags though they contained such articles of food as sugar and flour, placed among tinned goods, containers of which have cut the paper. Push lids have come off tins and syrups and jams and such like products have caused damage to the parcels in which they parcelled up.

During the war period, most senders of parcels made certain that the containers would hold the contents. The Post Office advises a strong corrugated container and suggests strong cotton fabric sewed about the parcel to provide additional protection.

Senders are advised not to pack sugar or rice or like foods in thin paper containers but rather in receptacles that will stand the wear and tear of a long voyage. They are asked not to send articles which may leak and spread. If it is necessary to send such articles they ought to be placed in leak-proof metal containers with lids soldered all the way round. Glass jars or bottles must not be mailed. It is against the law to mail matches, safety matches or lighter fluid.

The parcel should after it has been very carefully and compactly packed in a strong container be wrapped tightly in several folds of thick, heavy wrapping paper and tied securely with strong twine.

Then it is advised to address the parcel correctly, prepay postage in full and enclose a slip with the name and address of sender.

The United Kingdom Information Office, Ottawa, has also sent out this note for the benefit of those sending parcels to the Old Country:

"No duty or tax is at present levied on parcels containing gifts of food (provided that they conform to the usual limits of 22 lbs, or 20 lbs if sent by parcel post), and that the recipients in Britain do not have to surrender ration points for any items of food in such parcels. The parcels must, however, be bona fide unsolicited gifts and must be marked as such."

Care in making parcels secure will mean a happier Christmas for it will assure their arrival for the Yuletide festivities.

Winter on Its Way

Though there was a faint hint on Saturday that winter might be not so far away when snow fell for a short time in the rainfall, milder weather has resumed its rule. But over the weekend references on radio programs were made to snowfalls in the United States just south of the International Boundary. A few days before the newspapers carried stories of the whitened prairies of Canada's West.

There is a tang in the air now which was unknown in October that has just gone leaving a train of pleasant memories in its wake and making it more difficult for November to satisfy the taste of the public as far as weather is concerned.

In six weeks' time the winter solstice will have come. Before that winter will have been ushered in with some of the severity with which it is associated. But before that will be Indian Summer unless it has slipped by in the guise of the mild weather experienced last month. Weather observers say that Indian Summer is preceded by Squaw Winter, a spell of cold weather.

The mild and pleasant weather known as Indian Summer usually comes towards the end of autumn. It has been called "second summer" and was first noticed about 1800. This season is marked in other parts of the world besides America. Analogous terms are "St. Martin's Summer," "All Hallow Summer," "St. Luke's Summer," and "Old Woman's Summer."

The unusual weather has been welcomed as saving in fuel and making possible a great deal of outdoor work and the clearing up of chores left over from the active season of the year.

Floating Factory at Sea

The first trawler to assume the proportion of a factory ship has just been launched from a shipyard at Ardrossan, Scotland. Fish caught by this vessel — the Fairfree — will be filleted, quick-frozen and packed at sea within a few hours of being caught. Specially-designed trays give a handy two-pound block of quick-frozen fillets which, placed in cellophane bags and sealed, are not touched by hand again until bought by the consumer. Production of the Fairfree's refrigerator is one ton of whole or filleted fish per hour. Packed in 42-pound cartons the filleted fish are taken by conveyor belt and chute to the refrigerated hold, which has a capacity of 150 tons.

Gay Millinery

Gaiety is the highlight of the new millinery shows in London this autumn. It is as though with the prospect of more austerity women have decided that at all costs they must look gay about it. As a result, hats are attractive without looking crazy. There is more than a suggestion that this new millinery is not suitable for the very young; in fact, a definite dividing line has arrived. On one side you have hats for the 'teens and the twenties; on the other, for the elegant woman who likes to appear with a well coiffured head and a rather elaborate hat. For the latter there are berets, toques, tricorns and modified bonnets and, although these are in velvet and material which is pleated, folded or even shirred, the outline is always clear cut.

Picking Apples

Most who munch meditatively on an apple just take it for granted. In urban centres, people buy them at stores, and think no more about it. If they had to go out and pick it, and bushels like it, they might appreciate more the eating of the fruit.

An aged Sarnia man has been injured by a fall from an apple tree, and this causes one to wonder whether any statistics have been compiled of the number of persons who have been hurt in this way. Because it is a rather risky business, especially if the trees are old and not kept well pruned.

All of which puts another thought in mind. Does anyone dry apples anymore? We don't mean the factory produced stuff, but rather that delectable product made by slicing the apples and suspending them on a long string until they are withered and dry.

My, the pies and applesauce made from dried apples! The memory still makes the mouth water. — Windsor Star.

I have often maintained that fiction may be much more instructive than real history. — Foster

REMEMBRANCE DAY

I wonder if our glorious dead,
  Who died in freedom's cause, can hear
What day by day is being said
  By men who still each other fear?

A second war the world has swept
  Since that in which they dared to fall,
The pledges made to them unkept;
  And, oh, the pity of it all!

Unchanged, the hatreds old remain.
  Evil and bitter tales are spread.
And now, there's talk of war again,
  As if forgotten were the dead!

How long, how long until the day
  When men to plan for war will cease
And in good faith prepare the way
  For brotherhood and lasting peace?

SPECIALISTS ARE ALL VERY WELL BUT LET'S NOT BE SILLY ABOUT THEM

A woman who is 11 and 1 propaganda, and she decided to discovered a lump just under the breast. She had been studying the cancer prevention do something about it immediately. That was wise—that is what any woman should do in such circumstance.

But just what to do about it? That was the question that remained in her mind even though she had studied the cancer prevention propaganda attentively. Having lost several nights' sleep the woman had a, well, I'm going to say she had a happy thought—Doc Brady. So she asked if he would kindly name a surgeon who would know how to deal with a lump in the breast.

I advise anybody who asks my advice to consult a physician, and leave it to your physician's judgment to select the specialist whose counsel or skill may be helpful.

I told her that if I were in her place I'd consider surgery only if or when my physician decided that it would be necessary, after careful examination.

The woman accepted this advice—and her phyisician removed the little lump in the office under local anesthesia, and confirmed by biopsy that it was a benign (harmless, not cancerous) tumor. So, in a few days, without upsetting her routine of life, the young woman was back where she had been before she discovered the little fibrous or fatty lump or tumor—don't let the word tumor worry you, folks—it means nothing but lump, swelling, and bears no relation whatever to cancer, carcinoma, sarcoma, malignancy, epithelioma or other serious new growth.

This woman is a college graduate with a degree and one might think she ought to know better, but as I sometimes deplore in these screeds, college and high school graduates are as silly, uneducated and credulous as any other class of people in Yankeeland, for such subjects as human physiology, anatomy, hygiene, parenthood, infant care and the like are still regarded as too nasty for the innocent minds of children in many high schools and colleges.

The very fact that today about one out of every three physicians in practice holds himself out as a specialist goes to show, doesn't it, that most of you college and high school graduates are pretty silly about these things.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Who was the first American ambassador?

The United States did not have diplomatic representatives above the grade of minister plenipotentiary until 1893. In that year, soon after Cleveland became President the second time, the grade of ambassador was created and James F. Bayard of Delaware was appointed ambassador to Great Britain. Later in the same year Sir Julian Pauncefote became the first British ambassador to the United States.

The Continental Congress, desirous for recognition and foreign military and financial aid to carry on the Revolutionary War, sent various diplomatic agents to France, Spain, Holland, Russia and other countries, but the Federal Government under the Constitution was at first conservative in its policy of exchanging diplomatic representatives with other countries.

Congress debated a long time before authorizing the expense of sending ministers to countries with which the United States had little intercourse, and several such missions recommended by the President were rejected by the Senate.

Under date of March 26, 1790, President Washington wrote in his diary: "Had a further conversation with the Secretary of State (Jefferson) on the subject of Foreign appointments, and on the Provision which was necessary for Congress to make for them — the result of which was that under all circumstances it might be best to have Ministers Plenip'p at the Courts of France and England (if any advance from the latter should be made) and Charges des Affaires in Spain and Portugal — Whether it might be necessary to send a person in this character to Holland — one in the character of Resident — or simply a person well skilled in commercial matters among other characters being questionable, nothing finally was decided — but it was concluded that the Secretary's information to a Committee of Congress with whom he was to converse on the subject of the Provisions to be made, that the salaries allowed to our Diplomatic characters was too low—that the Grades which wd. be fixed on, to transact our affairs abroad would be as low as they cd. be made without giving umbrage, that therefore, about 36,000 dollars might answer as a provision for the characters to the Courts before named — or that it might take forty-nine or 50,000 dollars if it should be found that the lesser grades will not answer."

On May 7 of the same year Washington wrote:

"As the House of Representatives had reduced the Sun, in a Bill to provide for the expenses of characters in the diplomatic line, below what would enable the Executive to employ the number which the exigencies of Government might make necessary, I thought it proper to intimate to a member or two of the Senate the places that were in contemplation to send persons in this line — viz: — to France and England (when the latter manifested a disposition to treat us with more respect than she had done upon a former occasion (Ministers Plenipotentiary — and to Spain, Portugal and Holland Charg des Affaires, and having an opportunity, mentioned the matter unofficially both to Mr. Carroll and Mr. Izard."

It was decided that the branch apply for the legislative grant.

Collection amounted to $1.46.

"Current Events" given by Mrs. F. Campbell, covered a number of interesting events taking place in the community and also mentioned the coming historical event, in the marriage of Princess Elizabeth.

"Historical Research" was the month's topic and Mrs. H. Detlor, convener, asked Mrs. F. Lindenfield to read a paper, naming several towns in the province of Ontario, giving the history pertaining to each and how each had derived its name, also how the provinces had derived their titles.

Mrs. Detlor read a delightful paper entitled "The Evolution of Dress" taking the group back in thought to times when man dwelt in caves and under rocky cliffs and wore very little in the way of clothing and through the different eras of fashions, until the present day.

Mrs. Detlor also told them of many history pieces of art, located in this province, but unknown to many of us, such as the historical bell at Parliament Hill, Ottawa, and a silver communion service at the Anglican Church in Elora, which was a gift from Florence Nightingale to her cousin, the Rev. John Smithurst.

She spoke also of another silver service in a church at Mooretown in Lambton County and of the linen used with this service being in existence since 1842.

Mrs. Detlor also spoke of the marble quarries at Bancroft from which the marble used in the east block of Toronto Parliament buildings came, and that the marble in the arch of the Peace Tower at Ottawa, is also supposed to have come from these quarries.

Sewing Groups Will Be Organized By Red Cross

An urgent appeal has been received by the local branch of the Canadian Red Cross for clothing for Britain and it was decided at the last regular meeting that volunteer workers would be asked to assist in this worthy project.

Local groups will be organized similar to those that did such outstanding work during the war years and the Red Cross sewing rooms will be re-opened immediately. Accommodation has been secured in the Court House building and the room is now being put into shape for the sewing groups.

To Hold Meeting

Mrs. M. E. Bulger, convener of the Woman's Work Committee, has announced that an organization meeting is to be held on Friday November 14th., to which every local woman's organization will be asked to send a representative. These representatives will be asked to contact the members of their respective clubs and secure as many workers as possible. Volunteers will be asked to give a little time each week sewing at the Red Cross rooms, or, if this is not convenient, work may be done at home and turned in to the local branch.

All material is, of course, supplied by the Red Cross as well as complete instructions, cutting service etc., for the required garments.

While experienced sewers will be most heartily welcomed there are many jobs that can be done by the less proficient and at any time volunteers in this worthy service will be appreciated.

AROUND THE WORLD THE SLOW WAY— TWO MONTHS

Pausing for a two-day rest in Alaska before taking off for Los Angeles, George Truman, left, and Clifford Evans stand beside one of their small cub planes shortly after landing at Elmendorf Field in Anchorage. The flags painted on the plane represent countries they have crossed in their flight around the world. The leisurely globe-girdling trip began when they took off from Teterboro, N.J., on Aug. 9.

One store, however, will have its display window all lit up, and nicely, too. At 1222 Yonge St., Toronto, Eleanor's Studio, dealers in antiques, is using a number of ancient oil lamps to take the place of electricity, and the lamps do well, as the picture above, made by lamplight, will show.

But to keep a windowful of oil lamps going is a bit more complicated than snapping an electric switch. Barbara Trevor, daughter of the owner, is finding out the hard way, as, after trimming wicks and filling kerosene reservoirs, she settles down to the task of making each lamp chimney efficiently crystal clean.

TIN VESTS OR NO TIN VESTS?

One of the problems worrying the arrangers of the wedding ceremonies for Princess Elizabeth and Lieut. Philip Mountbatten on Nov. 20 is whether the escort of household cavalry should wear routine uniform or don full-dress. Household cavalry officers are taking no chances. They are preparing for full-dress if that is what is finally decided. Here is a young trooper wearing full-dress helmet and cuirass during a dress rehearsal. Off-duty comrades usually help the troopers in arranging the trappings.

SERIOUS INJURIES MAR PHEASANT SHOOT

Eight Buffalo businessmen, and their pilot, returning from Pelee Island pheasant hunt in Lake Erie, were injured, some seriously, when their plane crashed at St. Catharines airport Saturday. Officers W. McBride and N. Fach remove some of 26 birds from plane.

Marooned on island by the storms, the hunters were attempting to get home in a plane piloted by Bill Shepherd. The plane began icing, it is said, and an emergency landing was attempted at St. Catharines, Ont. The wrecked plane, seen here, ran over field, jumped a ditch.

Dr. Blair Urges Co-ordinated Health Plan

Ottawa, Nov. 11 (CP) — The Federal Government was urged last night by Dr. W. G. Blair, Progressive Conservative member of parliament for Lanark, to cooperate with Provincial and Municipal authorities in the establishment of a co-ordinated National Health Plan.

In an address prepared for delivery before a joint meeting of Women's Progressive Conservative clubs here, he said thousands of Canadians were dying unnecessarily each year because the Federal administration is "engaged in a quarrel of its own making" with Ontario and Quebec.

The Dominion should take steps now to implement the health proposals embodied in the taxation agreements placed before the unsuccessful Dominion-Provincial Conference of 1946 instead of seeking "to turn a grave national crisis into a weapon of political advantage."

Dr. Blair said 37,600 deaths each year could be prevented by an adequate health plan.

With Canada's Naturalists

(By The Canadian Press)

Countless ages before men learned the secret, wasps were making and using wood-pulp paper. In times equally remote they injected anaesthetics into their insect food victims; made pottery of sun-baked clay, and had mastered the art of making their nests windproof and waterproof.

In making wood-pulp paper wasps gouge out bits of decaying wood with jaws that grind inwards, like pincers held horizontally. Masticated to a pulp, the paper is spread, layer on layer, to form the insects' nest. One of these nests removed from an apple tree, measured 11 by 13 inches, and weighed one pound 11 ounces.

There was a series of combs in the centre of the nest, three completed and made up of cells packed with eggs and developing grubs a fourth with cells for the most part empty.

A month or so later enough wasps had hatched from the first eggs to assist in completing the paper structure. When the nest was removed in late September, from four to 500 wasps were natives of the insect city. Door to the wasp apartment house was, as always, at the bottom. It is said that sentry wasps are stationed near these doors to deal with intruders.

In a stretch of woodland overlooking Lake Ontario at the mouth of the Niagara River, and not far from Niagara-on-the-Lake, grow some fine flowering dogwood trees. Because this beautiful species reaches the northern limit of its range in Southern Ontario and is rare, if not actually disappearing in many areas there, the Federation of Ontario Naturalists has taken steps to preserve in perpetuity the woodlot.

Sometimes called the loveliest of flowering trees, and certainly the most attractive among native Canadian trees, the flowering dogwood has been labelled with an unfortunate name. In the England of long ago many dogs were cured, it is said, by an astringent made from the bark of another species—and the name stuck tenaciously to Cornus Florida, the flowering dogwood of superb beauty.

When the male bird flies to his nestlings perhaps four wide-open mouths are to be filled, and there isn't a trace of grub or berry in his bill. But, from his distended throat in quick succession come insects and ripe cherries, enough to satisfy, at least for a few minutes, all the quadruplets.

Pure gold in disposition as well as color, papa goldfinch is a thoughtful and generous provider for his family. Not only are seeds coughed up for babies, but his incubating mate is fed the same way while she sits on her nest. And on each visit from her devoted husband, she flutters her wings in obvious appreciation and delight.

One record of "revenge" by a Canada goose came to light in a Toronto hospital when an Orangeville, Ont., farmer was admitted for treatment after X-rays had disclosed a fractured collarbone. He had been knocked from his horse in a deliberate attack by a goose. This bird and mate were semi-domesticated on the farm—and the same horse drinking at a pond, had stepped on the nest some days before.

CHICAGO HAWKS STRUT STUFF AGAINST TORONTO

Lester Patrick Selected for Hall of Fame and Will be Presented With Scroll

By JACK GRAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The revived Chicago Black Hawks, pounding their chests after a blood transfusion from Toronto Maple Leafs, strut their stuff at Toronto tomorrow night in what may be the first clash to really show whether the cellar-dwelling Chicagoans are now able to thump other National Hockey League teams.

They certainly thumped New York Rangers Sunday night when they blasted the Gothamites 8-5. But if they can repeat the stunt against the Leafs, now only a point behind the league-leading Detroit Red Wings, Hawks' boss Bill Tobin can thank his lucky stars for the trade which gave him five Toronto players for his star centre Max Bentley and a rookie.

The fact that three of the former Leafs, Bud Poile, Gaye Stewart and Gus Bodnar, banged in goals against the Rangers may give an inkling of the doings to come at Maple Leaf Gardens. At any rate, Hawks have made a good start in their climb to overtake New York, now four points ahead.

When Rangers come up against Boston Bruins in the other scheduled league tussle tomorrow night they expect to have centre Edgar Laprade back in uniform.

Rangers of years ago will be seen again on the ice of Madison Square Gardens, it was announced last night, in ceremonies honoring Lester Patrick, manager of the New York team for 20 years until February, 1946.

Hockey's silver fox will be notified formally during the ceremonies of his selection for the International Hockey Hall of Fame.

A scroll of membership is to be presented by Mayor J. Stuart Crawford of Kingston, where the Hall of Fame is located, and Capt. James T. Sutherland, founder of the hall.

New York, Nov. 11 (AP)—A pair of twins from Kirkland Lake are causing consternation this season among scorekeepers in the American Hockey League.... Danny and Frank Porteous, 24-year-old centre and right wing respectively of the Washington Lions, have caused confusion as to who scored and who assisted.. The hockey-wise Lester Patrick says they are the only twin combination on the same team in the history of hockey...Frank turned professional at 21 with Omaha of the United States League when Dan entered McGill University.. Frank scored 21 goals last season ...Dan returned to hockey action last season with the Valleyfield Braves of Quebec senior hockey league after a year in the R.C.A.F....Winfield Mousseau of Powassan, Ont., on left wing completes their Washington line.

CANADIAN HORSES LEAD THE FIELD IN TWO EVENTS

New York, Nov. 11 — (CP) — Canadian horses lead the field in two events at the 64th Annual National Horse Show which ends tonight.

Poppy, an aged chestnut mare owned by Lieut. W. R. Ballard of Weston, Ont., is atop the open jumping competition with 16 points, its nearest rival three points away. Twelve points may be won, however, in contests today.

In the military events, a comeback is expected for Chamorro, the hunter which won the championship as a civilian entry in the show last year.

Sqdn. Ldr. Douglas Cleland of Toronto rode the big chestnut gelding to fourth place in the international military championship challenge trophy event last night. Capt. Jonathan R. Burtin of the United States team, which to date leads the military teams of Mexico, Eire and Canada, won the event and retired the cup.

Other caddy entries which placed in the non-military events yesterday were Lightland, 4th among lightweight thoroughbred hunters and Flying Colors, 4th among ladies working hunters.

Senator, another Ballard entry was fourth in the lightweight thoroughbred class.

SENIOR MARLIES SCORE VICTORY OVER STRATFORD

Primeau's Kids Demonstrating Youth More Than Match for Age, Experience

(By The Canadian Press)

The exuberant vitality of Joe Primeau's youthful Toronto Marlboros, steadily overcoming the handicap of the heaviest early schedule in the senior Ontario Hockey Association race, gave another demonstration last night that it is more than a match for age and experience.

The Dukes romped in with a third-period, four-goal splurge to down coach Punch Scherer's Stratford Indians 5-3 in a senior A fixture at Stratford and solidify their hold on first place with five victories in seven starts.

Rugged checking slowed down the pace in the third period, when nine penalties were handed out including majors to Billy Flick of Stratford and Ike Hildebrand of the Marlboros, the latter retiring to the dressing room with blood streaming from a cut in his head. Alex Davidson of the Marlies and Joe Fitzpatrick of the Indians also lost a few teeth by high sticks.

The teams split a pair of goals in the first frame but Stratford was up two goals at the end of the second stanza, only to falter in the final frame when they played shorthanded for 13 minutes, and at one time were two men short.

Johnny McLellan led the victors with two goals and Ike Hildebrand, Johnny McCormack and Leo Curik sank the other Toronto counters. Stratford tallies came from Pete Long, Mike Dziura and Mickey Roth.

Tonight the Kitchener - Waterloo Flying Dutchmen will try to break the senior A's second-place deadlock with Hamilton Tigers when they visit Owen Sound Mercurys.

In the junior loop the top place Windsor Spitfires will gun for their sixth straight win without a loss this season when they meet Toronto Marlboros in the opener of a twin bill at Maple Leaf Gardens. The second game will see Guelph Biltmores and St. Michael's Majors. Toronto Young Rangers visit Galt Rockets in hope for their first victory this season.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

Executive members of the Belleville District Hockey Association put the official foot down at a special meeting on Sunday on member teams that so far had not submitted signed player certificates. With four squads erring, the executive laid down Wednesday, Nov. 12 as the final deadline for this chore. It also decided that all players which have played with teams thus far shall be considered as signed players. In case of exceptional circumstances, the immediate executive, the president, vice president and secretary was given power to act on substitutions.

• • •

The master - minds also decided that each team may dress and play any or all of the 18 signed players, and not be held to fourteen as was formerly the case. The name of Harry Brown Madoc, was added to the referee's roster. Attending members of the executixe expressed themselves as being well satisfied with the officials — thus far.

• • •

After some discussion, it was decided that sectional playoffs be arranged with the first and third and second and fourth teams in each section playing off in sudden death games. Final series between the sectional winners will be arranged later.

• • •

That big smile "Speedy" St. Louis is wearing these days is not attributable to refunded income taxes; a winning sweepstake ticket, or a legacy. The other day, Sunday to be exact, Speedy became the proud poppa of baseball player No. 2 of the St. Louis clan, with mother and Lil Joe doing very nicely thank you. Tis said that the new St. Loo is a bouncing little buckaroo, and the first thing he yelled for after spotting his old man, was a baseball bat, it being understood, of course, that it was batting practice he wanted, and not to inflict cranial or other injury on the person of the paternal parent. In fact the new arrival has more upholstery on the infantile bean than has his poppa. Sports fans hereabouts will wish Speedy, Mrs. St. Louis, and the brother of Gordon the best of luck with the new member of a future baseball battery.

• • •

Be careful what you say and do if by perchance you happen to know any of the RCAF Olympic candidates who will be here on Friday night for an exhibition game with the Trenton Flyers. For the Mr. Edstrom who is president of the International Olympic Committee has notified A. Sidney Dawes, prexy of the Canadian Olympic Association that "in order to participate in the Olympic games, it is necessary for each participant to declare, on his honor, that he is an amateur, according to the rules of the International Federation in charge of his sport, and that he gives himself to sport solely for pleasure and without receiving any material gain."

• • •

"Despite this very clear definition" M'sieu Edstrom goes on, "it would seem that certain sports executives believe that 'prizes in kind' may be given and that material gain may be given those to intend taking part in the Olympic games."

• • •

In Bulletin No. 10 of the Canadian Olympic Association it is pointed out that A. W. Picard, of Regina, Sask., President of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, has announced that a hockey team will be sent to represent Canada at the Winter Games at St. Moritz in 1948. This news will be well received by the sportsmen of every nation interested in international winter competions. To them hockey immediately suggests Canada.

• • •

The announcement has clarified a somewhat bewildering situation. At the recent meeting of the International Ice Hockey Federation in Switzerland, the Canadian delegate was the only representative, among some thirteen nations, who opposed the acceptance of the definition of an amateur as approved by the International Olympic Committee. Most people could not understand why Canada with some 40,000 competitors in hockey could not provide a team which could meet any definition of an amateur.

• • •

It is reported that the C.A.H.A. considered several possibilities including the selection of a team composed of players from various Canadian universities, and from the Armed Forces, and finally decided on a team from the Royal Canadian Air Force. It is probably not generally known that the choice of a team rests solely with the C.A.H.A. which holds the alliance with the International Ice Hockey Federation.

• • •

The Canadian Olympic Association is pleased with the action of the C.A.H.A., and, as President A. Sidney Dawes has announced, must accept any team certified by the C.A.H.A. as complying with regulations of the I.O.C. The players on such a team, in common with all other competitors in the Olympic Games, must sign a declaration of eligibility and take the Olympic oath.

• • •

The Belleville Juniors with one win tacked under their belts will be gunning for their second District Hockey Association victory tonight when they meet the Point Anne squad. The Ox Pointers show plenty of strength on paper and should give the "Smoky" Harris crew the battle of their beardless lives. It is the baptism of fire for the Murney Green crew and if they live up to advance notices, the game should be highly interesting.

• • •

Coach Harris will send his regulars out there against the Point Anne invaders and strengthened by a new right winger named Nolan, the potential OHA junior entry should give a good account of itself. While the coach has not announced any line-up as yet, it is expected the kids will be at full strength. The Juniors were awarded the services of Goalie Art. Wright, who signed with the Hornets in the District Loop but who was officially released to the Juniors at the executive meeting on Sunday. Wright's release came on the basis of the Hornet announcement that they had signed the sensational Plumley, Napanee netminder, and one of the best guardians in the district.

• • •

In the second tilt Madoc meets Campbellford and some kind of fur should fly when these two old enemies clash on the ice. Madoc showed plenty of power in their first appearance here and Campbellford did likewise despite the fact they emerged on the short end of the score against the strong Cobourg outfit. These teams play in the nightcap and this game alone should be worth the price of admission.

ARTHUR KING SCORES DECISION OVER JOE BROWN

Southern Boxer Outpointed, Out-Boxed and Outsmarted by Toronto Mittman

Toronto, Nov. 11 — (CP) — Joe Brown, husky 134½-pound Negro mittman from New Orleans, discovered to his sorrow at Maple Leaf Gardens here last night that a boxer on a bicycle is nothing to laugh at.

Before his return match with Toronto's Li'l Arthur King, Brown — who only two weeks ago decisioned King handily — remarked that if Li'l Arthur would only "leave his bicycle at home and fight me this time, I'll knock him out."

But Li'l Arthur took a clean-cut victory last night by the eight-round decision route in a fine exhibition of fistic technique. The cock-sure, smiling Brown was outpointed, out-boxed and outsmarted by a 20-year-old, 132½-pound boxer who seldom got within range.

Brown took an early lead, and in the second round dropped the Toronto Negro boy for a six-count. Half-way throughout the fight, however, the New Orleans puncher had lost his smile. Dancing beyond Brown's lethal fists, King piled up points with a left jab that was infallibly accurate and often punishing.

In a rousing preliminary match also eight rounds, Bob Flannigan of London, Ont., scored a technical knockout over Bruce Richardson, of Toronto at 10 seconds of the second round. Flannigan weighed in at 158½. Richardson, a former Toronto Argonauts football linesman, tipped the scale at 153½.

In the opener, Pete Zaduk, 151, a Guelph native who fights out of Toronto, was awarded a split decision over Jim Marson, 150, of Toronto. Both bouts were eight-rounders.

Montreal, Nov. 11 — (CP) — Fifteen years and more ago a black-thatched right winger was helping to make hockey history with the colorful Montreal Canadiens of that era.

You'll probably remember him as "the black cat of Chicoutimi," and he played with such stars as Howie Morenz, Aurel Joliat, Albert (Battleship) Leduc, Pit Lepine, Armand Mondou and the Mantha Brothers.

Now Johnny Gagnon, Le Chat Noir, is 42 years old, chief scout for the Providence Reds of the American Hockey League and anxious to take another fling at the game as utility man for the Reds.

Passing through Montreal the other day on a scouting trip, Gagnon told Roger (Montreal La Patrie) Meloche he thinks he can still turn in a capable game.

"Johnny certainly hasn't the endurance of a youngster, but he still has his graceful skating form, his fast and straight shot and plenty of hockey brains," wrote Meloche.

"We don't see any stickhandling and the weaving style of play like we had in my time," Johnny told Meloche. "If a player is big and fast and hits hard he will be a success today. And when the modern players find themselves in a tough spot they simply shoot the puck into the corner."

Johnny first became a star with the Sons of Ireland team of senior clubs 20 years ago. The boys would stop at almost nothing in those days to win. If they had a chance to steal an opponent's skates or sprinkle itching powder in his uniform, they wouldn't hesitate.

10-Team Intermediate Group Being Planned

Montreal, Nov. 11 — (CP) — Plans for a 10-team intermediate Intercollegiate Football Union, embracing five teams from Ontario and five from Quebec, are being worked out now, Vic Obeck acting physical director and head football coach at McGill University, said yesterday.

Possible Ontario entries in the circuit would be Royal Military College and Queen's University, Kingston and St. Patrick's College, Carleton College and University of Ottawa, Ottawa. The Quebec teams would be McGill, Dawson College, MacDonald College, Bishop's College and Loyola College.

Obeck said these teams are not definite entries but that most or all of them are expected to come in.

Dr. Bennet F. Avery, United States adviser to the Iranian health ministry, said the nature of the 'plague' had was not yet known here.

YOUTH HELD IN PAL'S SLAYING

This touching scene was recorded when Anna Mae Evans, 17, bid good-by to Howard Lang, 12, at a coroner's inquest in Chicago. Young Lang, a frail, tow-headed youngster, was ordered held to the grand jury on a murder charge in the forest preserve slaying of seven-year-old Lonnie Fellick. Anna Mae, who has been described as Lang's friend, told the coroner's jury how she disposed of Howard's bloody clothing at his request by throwing them into a thicket while horseback riding.

PRESENT FOR THE PRESIDENT

When President Truman ordered "Poultryless Thursdays" for the U. S. to aid the food conservation program for Europe, he didn't foresee the effect illustrated here. Mrs. R. L. Cooper and her son are crating chickens to be delivered to the President — right on his desk if possible. They are doing as hundreds of other U. S. poultry-raisers are doing — protesting that they can't feed and can't sell their chickens.

Apps Leading Scoring Parade With 12 Points

Montreal, Nov. 11 (CP)—Syl Apps, who holds down the imposing position of Ontario Athletic Commissioner when he isn't slamming pucks past National Hockey League goaltenders, is having one of his best seasons in his 10 years under hockey's big top.

Official league statistics released today show the 32-year-old Toronto Maple Leaf centre star leads the scoring parade with 12 points, made up of five goals and seven assists.

Apps had a big weekend as he collected two markers and two assists in Leafs' two victories to take over top spot from last week's leader, Montreal's Maurice (Rocket) Richard.

Last season Apps finished in 12th place in the final N.H.L. scoring statistics with 49 points, 23 behind leader Max Bentley, and the way he has been going this campaign he should be right up near the top come next March.

Slim Buddy O'Connor, only an average producer during his tenure with Montreal Canadiens, is apparently finding the New York atmosphere to his liking. Buddy is the current sensation of the loop with seven goals and four assists for 11 points, which rates second spot with Richard, who has five counters and six assists.

Elmer Lach of Montreal is in fourth place with 10 points, while Bryan Hextall of Rangers, and Toe Blake of Montreal each have nine. Then comes Jim Conacher and Ted Lindsay of Detroit and Harry Watson of Leafs, all with eight points.

Badman honors in the circuit go to a fiery Montreal rookie, Jacques Locas, who has sat out 35 minutes in the penalty box.

Goalie Bill (Vezina) Durnan still tops the shutout column with two, one more than Walter (Turk) Broda of Leafs and Harry Lumley of the Red Wings. Frankie Brimsek of Boston has the best goals against average, 14 in eight games for a percentage of 1.75.

Indians Pick Up Southpaw Pitcher

Cincinnati, Nov. 11. (AP)—Cleveland Indians might have picked up the best bargain at the Major League baseball draft here yesterday when President Bill Veeck put the finger on William Kennedy, a southpaw pitcher owned by Louisville of the American Association, paying $10,000.

Kennedy, 29, has an eye-opening record in organized baseball. In 1946, he won 28 and lost only three for Rocky Mount, N.C., of the Class D Coastal Plain League—fanning 456 batters in 280 innings, thus shattering all strikeout records for organized baseball.

It's a long jump to the big time, but should Kennedy make the grade, the American League Indians, in the rookie and Bob Feller, would have the greatest one-two punch in baseball when it comes to retiring batters on strikes.

When the hour-long draft session ended, 13 clubs had selected 26 minor leaguers for a total purchase price of $245,000.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

Endeavour I and Endeavour II, unsuccessful in pre-war bids to wrest the America Cup from United States yachtsmen, will be converted from racing craft into cruising yachts.

Built as challengers for the cup in the '30s, they were offered for sale at auction last April and when no bids were received, were sold in bits. Since then private owners, whose names were not disclosed, obtained the hulls and the sleek racers will go to sea again.

Hoot Mon, champion of the 1947 Hambletonian, was the season's top money-winning trotter in the Grand Circuit with earnings of $56,810 for Castleton Farm, it was announced yesterday.

Oscar Johnson, 51, leading speed skater of three decades ago and later an outstanding coach, died Saturday in Minneapolis after an illness of two years.

George Agar, Houston Huskies' scrappy winger, accumulated 10 assists last week to boost himself into the scoring lead of the United States Hockey League with 23 points, loop figures showed today. Team-mate Paul Mundrick holds down second spot with 21 points.

Detroit Red Wings Goalie Harry Lumley is expected to leave the hospital today after the club's physician said his severely bruised chest had improved greatly. Lumley received the injury Sunday when a team-mate fell on him in front of his net. It's not definite yet whether he will be able to play Saturday against Toronto Maple Leafs.

Provincial Hockey League records today showed Veteran Tony Demers of Sherbrooke leads the loop's scoring parade with nine goals and four assists for 13 points. The hard-shooting winger holds a two-point lead over team-mate Herb Carnegie who has 11 points from five goals and six assists.

A protest by Toronto Indians of the Ontario Rugby Football Union over a decision in the sudden-death semi-final loss to Hamilton Wildcats Saturday has been withdrawn. Secretary Harold Bailey said the Indians withdrew their protest over a first quarter recall of a play "after an explanation was given".

Simon Morganson, father of Austin (Bunny) Morganson, Evening Telegram Sports columnist, died yesterday. Although 72, he was an ardent sports fan to the last and was one of the most loyal supporters of the now-defunct professional basketball venture in Toronto.

Gordon Richards, champion jockey of Britain for 20 years, yesterday broke his own record for the most winners in one season when he booted home his 260th winner, twenty twenty, in the Stoughton plate. The triumph enabled the 43-year-old rider to break his mark of 259 which he equalled Saturday by booting home three winners at Alexandra track in London.

Should Winnipeg Blue Bombers capture the Western Senior Football title, there is a possibility they will play an exhibition game against an eastern squad prior to the Dominion final, Club officials said. Art Chipman, Bomber president, said negotiations had been under way for some time and for a "warm-up" game against either the University of Western Ontario or Hamilton Tigers.

Cliff Simpson, crack Indianapolis centre, has taken over sole possession of first place among American Hockey League scorers on the strength of a sensational two-points-a-game average. He now has 26 points.

Amendments to constitution or rules and nominations for the Ontario Minor Hockey Association executive must reach Secretary J. L. Christie of Toronto, by Nov. 15, if they are to be considered at the annual meeting at Toronto Nov. 29, it was announced last night.

Plans for a 400-mile yacht race on Lake Ontario next Summer were disclosed at the annual meeting of the Lake Yacht Racing Association in Point Albine, N.Y., during the weekend.

The contest, with a $500 silver tea service first prize, will be held the last week in August. Sponsored by the Rochester Yacht Club, the race is expected to take about a week. The yachts will start and finish in Rochester over a course taking them to Toronto.

The L.Y.R.A.'s annual regatta will be held July 22-24 at the Clayton Yacht Club in the Thousand Islands. The 1948 Freeman Cup long distance race will take place July 19 starting from Sodus Bay, N.Y., to Clayton.

HANDS AT WORK . . .

LEARNING REFRIGERATION

ONTARIO'S productive capacity is the measure of her future prosperity. To assure this province a prominent place in domestic and foreign trade markets, skilled hands are needed. Increased production of refrigeration units will mean a greater need for skilled servicing. Veterans, basically trained in schools and ON THE JOB, will fill this need as they are absorbed into industry. For those who have mastered skilled occupations, higher wages, job security and better working conditions are within easier reach.

Through plans sponsored by the Department of Veterans Affairs and other agencies, hundreds of young workers are being trained for refrigeration servicing. Graduates of training schools are ready now to take their places in industry. Craftsmen of the future, they will have a share in Ontario's progress—an important part to play in her industrial development.

THE BREWING INDUSTRY (ONTARIO)

REFRIGERATION

D. C. Guiry, 23, of Toronto, a veteran of 15½ months' service in the Royal Canadian Air Force, is shown checking the operating pressures on a domestic training unit.

The Refrigeration Course gives the student a theoretical and practical knowledge of domestic, commercial and air conditioning units.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Possessing the keys to the needs for a squeeze you can bet your chemise it develops with ease. Make a note of the goat you intend to garrote and with cards you promote make him squeal like a shoat.

South was declarer at a doubled four heart contract in this deal:

♦J 8 4 3 2
♣A K 8 3 2

WEST	EAST
♠A K Q	♠10 9 7 4

SOUTH

West could have defeated this contract. He could do this with an opening lead of diamond for the first trick. Then take one of his top spades. And then lead a club.

One of the south spades can then be sluffed on the second top dummy club. But two more spades must be lost by declarer with plays that west will still have time to make.

Before declarer can save another spade, west gets in with one of his tops for the second round of spades. He returns a trump and declarer is then compelled to give up another spade trick.

But west started out with a different set of leads. He first took two top spades and followed these with diamond king. Then he led a trump to prevent a spade ruff in dummy.

This changed the timing and left declarer material with which to pull an easy squeeze for the ten remaining tricks. To watch it go into operation, repeat the cards left in each hand.

After five trump rounds, south has two trumps, spade jack with one, club nine. Dummy keeps A K 8 in clubs, diamond jack with one. West hangs onto a top in spades and diamonds with three clubs.

A south trump is now led. Protecting three suits, what can west do? Give up a club? Three dummy clubs are then good. On them south can sluff both spades.

Should west give up the spade? The south jack will be good. If west gives up a diamond, dummy jack is good. There is nothing west can do about it. He may as well give himself up.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 11 (AP) — Wallace Beery says he'll never retire. . . . back for retakes on "Alias the Gentleman", Beery was asked if he ever will call a halt to his 35-year film career. . "Naw," he rumbled. "I'll just go on acting till I drop."

His current film is supposedly his 250th, but Wally says the actual number is around 400, 'counting all those one-, two- and three-reelers I did in the old days."

Wally plans to do one picture a year and spend the rest of the time in travel or at his Jackson Hole, Wyom., ranch. He has nothing against the acting profession. In fact, when his daughter, Carol Ann graduates from High school next June, he plans to help her start as an actress in the movies.

Flying Home

Jimmy Stewart is the kind of a guy who seldom waxes enthusiastic about anything, but get him started on flying and he's a different man. On the "Call Northside 777" set he was speaking animatedly about the Howard Hughes flying boat, 'round-the-world fliers and Ty Powers' air journeys. But he's just a spectator these days.

"I've only flown a little since I got back," he said. "I had enough of that during the war."

Working Stiff

Bing Crosby is the hardest working man in Hollywood these days, believe it or not. He goes to work at 6.30 a.m. making records in preparation for the ban on musical discs. Then he cavorts at Paramount in "Conn. Yankee" until dusk. His radio troupe is recording two shows a week, also because of the Petrillo ban, and that takes care of his nights. Surprisingly enough, Bing doesn't beef.

"It's not work," he says. "All I do is sing."

Five Second Review

"The Lost Moment" (U-I), like most pictures, could have been better. It is a fantastic story of an American publisher (Robert Cummings) who seeks a great poet's love letters from a 105-year-old (Agnes Moorehead) in Venice. Also involved is a demented niece (Susan Hayward). The story offers some interest, but it could have profited by more action and less talk.

SENTENCED 'LIGHTLY'

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Nov. 11—(AP) — "I only hit her lightly, your honor," Henry Cooler, 28, told Magistrate Francis Giles in answering an assault charge alleging he had hit his wife with a piece of two-by-four lumber.

"If that's the case," replied Giles, "I'll only sentence you lightly."

Cooler got a 60-day suspended sentence.

Clarence House London Residence Of Princess

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 11 —(CP)— Clarence House, former bridal home of the Duke of Edinburgh, Queen Victoria's "sailor son," is to be the London residence of Princess Elizabeth and Lieut. Philip Mountbatten after their honeymoon, it was officially announced today.

Due to many repairs necessary, it will probably be a year before the house is ready for the royal couple.

Four stories high with a flat roof and massive, grey stone walls, Clarence House originally was built in 1825 for the Duke of Clarence, afterwards King William IV. It later was occupied by Queen Victoria's mother, the Duchess of Kent.

For 61 years, until his death in 1942, it was the London home of the Duke of Connaught. For 25 years he forbade anyone to disturb the first-floor apartment occupied by his Duchess, a famous beauty, who died in 1917.

From that day until the Duke's own death, only trusted servants were allowed to dust the Duchess' room. They were instructed to put back her papers just as she had left them on the desk.

The Red Cross and St. John Ambulance directed its overseas war work from Clarence House and in 1944 a German prisoner-of-war exhibition was staged there.

Sunninghill Park, originally chosen as a residence for the royal couple, was badly damaged by fire in August.

CHAPTER 1.

This bright May morning, traffic was heavy on the broad downtown streets of Deweyton. It roared as evenly and loudly as traffic in many a business street in greater populated areas.

Kay Millstrom drove slowly along Main street in her maroon streamlined roadster with the top down, her wide blue eyes intently searching the curb for parking space. This was the third time she had driven around this block trying to locate a place long enough into which to squeeze her car. Women who did their shopping by bus or street car actually did it easier, she thought, in sheer exasperation.

Finally, she tooled her car close to an outgoing sedan's shiny rear bumper, edged it in neatly by a parking meter. She turned the ignition key, jumped to the sidewalk, and dropped a nickel into the meter's slot.

"There!" she muttered in relief." That takes care of things for an hour! If I can't find a hat in that time, I've lost my sense of descrimination."

Kay's supple young body in its gray tailored suit swung easily along the crowded sidewalk. Men turned involuntarily to watch the slim five feet of her, to note again the proud poise of her little head, wondered if the curls hugging her neck beneath the black straw sailor could be naturally that blond. That they were, Kay had long since wearied of assuring the curious.

She shifted the silver fox scarf from her right to her left arm, pushed around a revolving door, and stepped into the exclusive Swansdown Shoppe.

"Good morning, Miss Millstrom, and how do you do?" said the manager, advancing to her with his customary smile.

"I'll do very well, Mr. Parker—if I can find a certain hat," she responded.

She dropped into the chair he pulled back for her before a triple-mirrored table.

"I believe we've suited you innumerable times, Miss Millstrom," he said suavely. "Just a moment, please. I'll call Miss Carr."

He left her then, his glistening black shoes easing noiselessly into the long room's deep napped, crimson elegance. At the entrance to the fitting-room corridor in the rear, he spoke quickly to a smart-figured young woman. She gave him a startled glance, frowned, nodded her head. With a constrained smile, she advanced to her customer.

"It's so nice to see you, Miss Millstrom," she greeted nervously.

In the mirror, Kay watched the girl's unsteady hands removing her sailor, laying it on the table's narrow top.

"I'm so glad you're free this morning, Miss Carr. Every time I've been in lately, you've been tied up with customers or away on one of your Paris jaunts. Did you bring back anything startling this time?"

Miss Carr appeared to hesitate. She asked guardedly, "What — what type hat do you wish?"

"Something to go with a print of tangerine, lemon, and sapphire against a black background — a redingote."

"Lovely! I've the very number! A modified kettlebrim of black taffeta and meteor straw."

"You're precious, Miss Carr. You always know what suits me," declared Kay, glancing at her diamond-studded wrist watch. She was due at Adele Sanders' luncheon bridge at one and couldn't waste too much time here.

Miss Carr soon set the hat on Kay's golden head. It made her personality more vivid than any beauty who had ever beautified the follies.

"Marvelous!" Kay declared, knowing a becoming hat when she saw one. "It's adorable, Miss Carr. I love it!"

"Oh, never mind, Miss Carr! You know I never haggle over prices. Send it, please—charge it to mother's account."

Kay was frowning slightly. Somehow, she felt annoyed. It was embarrassing when your personal checking account was flat, and your own mother refused to bolster it up—told you to charge things to her. "For the present, dear," she had explained vaguely, "because, goodness knows when I can turn over any more funds to you, poor child."

This was silly of Cora—Kay had the modern habit of using her mothers given name. Cora didn't used to be this way. It was a new, miserly streak in her. Well—not exactly miserly—Cora never could be that—but darned unpleasant for a twenty-two-year-old daughter to accept graciously.

"But, Miss Millstrom—" Miss Carr's cheeks were the shade of rosy peonies, she avoided Kay's questioning eyes.

Kay had slapped the black sailor on her head again, now stood facing the perturbed clerk. She said impatiently, "Well?"

"You see, Miss Millstrom—I'm terribly sorry—but Mr. Parker has received no check from your mother in ever so long—"

Kay's eyes opened wide. Angrily. "Are you trying to tell me mother's credit is not recognized here " she snapped.

Miss Carr's heavily roughed lips grew thin. "Mr. Parker said to explain that no further purchases could be sent to your home unless —you see the account has run for nearly three years, Miss Millstrom. I'm sor—"

After a long wait, in which Kay furiously paced the room in her little stilt-heeled pumps, inventing cutting remarks to throw at "that rat-faced manager," Miss Carr reappeared.

"Mr. Parker has gone out, Miss Millstrom," she said weakly.

"Oh, really," was Kay's sarcastic rejoiner. "You may tell him that hereafter mother and I will purchase our millinery elsewhere." She thought, "Thank heaven, there were no other customers in the shop."

Like an outraged princess, she flung herself out to the street. But inwardly she was seething with humiliation.

"Cora is always forgetting to pay her bills," she reflected, in vexation. "It's a pernicious habit. I wish she'd stop it. But she's just beautiful and careless—she never will know the value of money, I suppose."

Kay lagged down the street in a fit of deep dejection. This hat business had just about floored her. She wondered—

"What are you looking so glum about, Angelface?"

Startled, she glanced up at the pale, washed-out little green eyes of Hennington Blare. They looked level and mirthless, even when he smiled as he was doing now. But she was nearly glad to see him, to see any one who could restore her confidence in herself, make her believe that she was still the much sought, socially important Kay Millstrom.

Blare was of medium height, slightly stout, forty, rich and single. The two latter perquisites exactly suited Kay's mother. Lately, she had been trying to impress this in Kay, much to Kay's disgust. When she fell in love—if she ever did—it wouldn't be with a man she suspected of wearing a corset to improve his figure.

"Hello, Henn. I'm cross with the world, that's all," she returned, with assumed brightness. "What do you know this heavenly day?"

"Only one thing, may dear—the usual thing. I'm as much in love with you as ever."

He fell into step beside her, drew her arm through his.

She laughed lightly. "Declaring one's affection in noisy downtown traffic—you positively had to yell it—sours the romantic note."

He sighed, pressed her arm. "I've tried moonlight and glamorous settings—but what luck did I have? Exactly none."

"Honestly, Henn—you're in love with nothing but your stables of race horses and polo ponies — with the steel factories your grandfather handed down to you. I come from a blue-blooded line; I've taken doses of culture at finishing schools, at home and abroad. I'm widely traveled — and not too great an imbecile. You think I'd fit into your scenery. That's about it, isn't it?"

"We-ll—there's something to all that, certainly. A man in my position shouldn't marry a—a nobody. Yet if she were you, Kay, I'd have her—if I hung for it."

Kay giggled apprehensively, every nerve in her body reacting against this determined man. It was like fighting a battle or something quite as enervating. She had been facing his firing line — so long, she was getting tired of it. Yes—very, very tired. She was almost afraid if there were much more of it, he'd wear her down to accepting him. It worried her.

FERRYMAN REAPS AS THIRSTY SEEK FRONTIER SPIRIT

By LORNE BRUCE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Yellowknife, N.W.T., (CP)—If you want to buy a bottle of liquor legally in this northland mining town, you must travel on a rowboat ferry paying five cents each way for the 100-foot trip to and from Latham Island.

But the ferryman does a booming business at this frontier camp some 675 airmiles north of Edmonton. One took in $52 in an eight-hour day, mainly because many of his customers gave him 25 cents a ride.

Latham Island is the extremity of a rocky arm stretching into Great Slave Lake. Yellowknife is built on this point of land. In the haphazard development of the mining town, the liquor store happened to be built on Latham Island. The majority of other buildings sprouted further up the arm.

However, this little obstacle soon will be forgotten by residents of this town, far enough north to have daylight 24 hours a day during the Summer months.

A new townsite is rapidly nearing completion one mile inland from Yellowknife's present location. The old town, with its crooked and steep streets, is surrendering to a layout with running water, sewers and most other modern conveniences —and a new liquor store.

800 Lots Sold

Almost all the 800 lots in the mile-square new townsite have been sold and already an up-to-date 48- room hotel is operating. Nearly completed are a $1,000,000 airport and a Federal government administration building. Under construction are a 40 bed hospital, a $150,000 department store, a 14-room school. In the planning stage are a $75,000 theatre, a court house and a Canadian Legion hall.

A company has been incorporatde to operate a telephone system for the town and mines in the area and work is expected to start soon.

The Federal government alone is spending a sum estimated unofficially at $9,000,000 for sewers, roads and various buildings needed for administration of the area.

But the old area, almost surrounded by water, must remain the base for seaplanes operating into the 280,000-square-mile Yellowknife mining field. Supplies shipped across Great Slave Lake from Hay River post must still unload at the old town.

Although Yellowknife has a more reserved type of pioneer generally than the colored breed who made history in the mining camps of the Yukon and Northern Ontario, there is still a tang of individualism.

One of the original restaurant operators, a woman, found one day that a new rival, another woman, had named her place the "Busy Bee". To meet the challenge, the old timer who still had not named her business, set out a sign at midnight to surprise the opposition next morning with the "Roving Hornet".

Then there is Vince, "The Mad Driller of the Arctic". It is said Vince earned his title by drilling through solid rock in his off hours for several months until his secret tunnel brought him into the kitchen of the isolated mining camp. The kitchen's supply of lemon extract disappeared.

Meal Costs Moderate

The cost of meals at Yellowknife range from $1 to $1.75, comparatively moderate when it is considered all supplies must be either flown from Edmonton or hauled 450 miles over a winter road from the end of the rail-line, Grimshaw in northwestern Alberta.

For the same reason the price of approximately $5 for a 26-ounce bottle of rye at the Dominion government store is not considered unreasonable. The only complaint about the liquor situation is that in the late spring before the barge arrives with another year's supply, there is only rum and gin available—a hardship to beer, scotch and rye drinkers.

One of the outstanding annual events is the arrival of the beer barge and one church runs a sweepstake on its docking time.

This year the barge reached Yellowknife late in June, more than two weeks later than usual. While it was stranded in an ice floe for days some 20 miles out of port, arriving airplanes brought almost hourly reports of its progress.

When the ice cleared somewhat and the tugboat brought in the food barge first, leaving the beef barge anchored down the inlet, there was comment that the tugboat captain had a distorted sense of values.

NOW THE HARD OF HEARING CAN HELP THEMSELVES TO HEARING

The many hard-of-hearing in this city will have an exceptional opportunity to find out how they may once again experience relaxed, noise-free hearing. A FREE HEARING CLINIC will be held at THE NEW QUEENS HOTEL, on THURSDAY, NOV. 13, 2 to 8 p.m. by Mr. Putnam, at which time he will test the hard-of-hearing for individual hearing deficiencies. This clinic will also serve to introduce a new Acousticon development in hearing aids. This new hearing aid, by the world's first and oldest manufacturer of electrical hearing aids, offers clarity of tone without the harsh background noises usually encountered. This instrument, in spite of its power, is small, even with the batteries enclosed!

Letters have been pouring in from those who have already tried this new Acousticon saying how thrilled they were with this hearing aid. Many of them say that they have never experienced such a velvet-quiet background. The manufacturers of this instrument say that no one can even imagine what it may do for them until they hear it with their own ears.

Those hard-of-hearing who have been searching for the answer to their personal hearing problems are urged to attend the FREE CLINIC. Complete free information will be mailed if you cannot be there. Write to Mr. Putnam at 754 Stewart St., Peterborough. (Advt.)

Hospital atmosphere has practically disappeared at Sunnybrook. Rooms, decorated in pastel shades, are cheery and bright. Wards, of 24 beds (above), divided in three sections by glass partitions, give a feeling of spaciousness.

Occupational therapy plays an important part in rehabilitation of patients. Occupational therapist Eleanor Martin poses for amateur artist Tom Dowling.

Sunnybrook Hospital Open for Inspection

Toronto, Nov. 11 — (CP) — Sunnybrook veterans' hospital, a $14,000,000 structure on the city's northeastern outskirts, will be open to public inspection today. Following a dedication service, tours will be made through the eastern section which is the only part of the still-uncompleted hospital now in use.

First sod was turned Nov. 11, 1943, and construction was begun in 1944. The hospital is being built on the "unitaz plan." Each wing will have private rooms, 4-bed wards and 24-bed wards.

Separate blocks contain wards and specialized treatment rooms but all are connected by corridors, solaria and tunnels.

An effort has been made to eliminate "hospital atmosphere." White walls and white beds were ruled out. Walls have been decorated in pastel shades.

Many Well-to-do Englishmen Purchasing Homes in Eire

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Dublin, Nov. 11. (CP)— The peaceful, post-war "invasion" of Eire by well-to-do Englishmen shows no sign of slackening. In some districts the sale of homes to settlers from across the Irish Sea amounts almost to a boom.

The republic is developing an alien landed gentry.

The story goes that our Limerick real estate man told a reporter that "in this district we've sold all the available houses with roofs on and now we're selling the ones without!"

Most of the sales have been made during the last 16 months, even earliest arrivals have lost none of their keenness, ask why they left Britain and they are ready with a long list of reasons: An income-tax saving of 2s 6s, in the pound (12 1-2 cents in the dollar); better food; more servants; plenty of sport and recreation; more and cheaper drink and tobacco—in short, less of what the Englishman calls "austerity".

The Other Side

Broadly, these conditions do exist in Eire today. The question is whether they will last; and there are many Irishmen, including prominent economists, who don't think so.

During recent months the benefit of lower taxation has been reduced by sharp price increases. While the only scarce commodities are sugar, flour and tea, most other foods are much more expensive than in Britain, and the upward price trend continues, along with widespread demands by labor for higher pay.

A "tendency towards an unhealthy inflation" has shown a marked evidence of becoming worse, said the annual report of the general Bank of Ireland. It recommended drastic curtailment of public expenditure, government action to check price boosts, and "great caution" to avoid a general boost in wage levels.

Price Clamor

Prime Minister De Valera's government has been under heavy fire to curb prices. In three months the official cost-of-living index went up 14 points to a record 319—more than three times the 1914 level. During the same period, the United Kingdom index remained almost constant.

Opposition members of the Dail have demanded introduction of rent control. Trade unions have warned Cabinet Ministers that the current widespread claims for higher wages, and the almost inevitable increase in prices which would follow wage awards, may lead to widespread industrial conflict.

Danish Scientist Plans Third Expedition to Central Asia

By MARTIN KRUSE

Copenhagen. (Reuters)— The well-known Danish explorer, Henning Haslund - Christensen, who hopes to set out soon on his third expedition to central Asia, will cover about 1,800 miles from the Afghan border to the Pacific.

Starting from Bombay, the expedition will go to the Afghan frontier and thence to southern Tibet. There, it will divide into two parts, an eastern section which will make Peiping its headquarters, and a western section stationed in the west Himilaya area.

The most easterly point touched by the expedition will be the River Etsin Gol. The expedition is expected to last two years.

In his small office, full of souvenirs of his previous expeditions, Haslund-Christensen told me what he hopes to do on this new expedition.

"We want to explore that part of the world where the last remains of the Saurians are to be found," he said, "where the Mongolian empire was founded and where even today we find ancient nomadic culture.

"We shall gather legends and songs. We shall study the physical formation of the country, the flora, the fauna and the people themselves. We shall live with the nomads, study their habits, their art and their applied art, and we shall buy things we find interesting and of cultural value.

"Thus, we shall record the old songs and hymns of these people in order to preserve them for posterity. Here, in the museum, we already have 800 records of Mongolian songs,—the largest collection in the world, I believe."

Asked about the organization, financing and equipment of the expedition, Haslund-Christensen said:

Danish Financing

"The late King Christian X was protector of this all-Danish expedition. Apart from certain sums we have received from Danes in Sweden and Britain for the purchase of instruments not at present obtainable in Denmark, the expedition is being financed by the Danish state and the Carlsberg Fund.

"Our equipment includes in addition to ordinary camp materials, sound registering apparatus, cameras, and two jeeps to enable the scientists to cross the plains quickly to compare results.

"The ornithologist must have some sporting guns, but apart from these we shall carry no other weapons since these are apt to lead to misunderstandings and to arouse suspicion.

"Although we have to live with the nomads, we shall wear European dress. We are taking some food rich in vitamins, but otherwise we shall live on the sheep, milk and cheese which can be bought from the nomads—a friendly people when you know how to treat them.

"We shall establish various depots, especially gasoline depots, and contact between these will be maintained by our camel and horse caravans. Contact with the outside world will be by mail only."

Haslund-Christensen is an experienced traveller in the Far East and speaks all the Mongolian dialects. As a young man he studied the Mongolian, Chinese and Turkish languages in Peiping and later went to Urga, where he studied the Lama religion in a monastery.

Brantford Indian Beaten With Axe

Brantford, Nov. 11 — (CP)— Believed beaten with an axe and a shovel, Isaac Hill, 77-year-old Indian, was reported today in "fairly good" condition in hospital after being found semi - conscious in a garage behind his home on the Six Nations Reserve at nearby Ohsweken.

Police said they believed he lay helpless in the garage for more than 12 hours after the brutal attack before being found Sunday. He was evidently struck by a shovel on the back of the head and by an axe between the eyes but police had no clues as to the motive.

Still semi-conscious Monday, he was unable to give any information on the attack.

Parents Surprised At Disclosure

Brantford, Nov. 10. (CP) — Police today continued investigations into the skull-fracture deaths of two infant girls, children of Mr. and Mrs. George Draper, but no developments were reported.

Crown Attorney F. E. D. Wallace, denying earlier reports that an inquest would be held in the deaths which occurred 14 months apart, said no decision was reached yet on this point.

One of the babies, Nancy Carol Draper, died in Brantford General hospital Oct. 24 and Mr. Wallace said examination showed a skull fracture. Following this, the body of Betty Ann, who died in 1946, was exhumed and also showed a skull fracture.

Both parents expressed shock and surprise Friday when the manner of death was disclosed and Mr. Draper said he knew of "absolutely no way in which the babies could have been injured."

Warn Motorists Of Deer Jumping In Front of Cars

Hamilton, Nov. 11 — (CP)—A warning to motorists to drive carefully on Highways No. 5 and No. 8 and on township roads through Beverley township and adjoining territory, particularly at night, because of the number of accidents being caused through deer jumping in front of motor vehicles, was voiced by George Beattie, Wentworth county game warden, during the weekend.

Two such accidents, in which three vehicles were extensively damaged, happened last week, he said, and other "close misses" have been reported recently.

Withdraw Charges Against Eight Grain Dealers

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 11 — (CP) — Charges against eight Essex county grain dealers of selling eastern winter wheat at a greater profit than Prices Board regulations allow were withdrawn by Magistrate J. A. Hanrahan at request of Gordon L. Fraser, who represented the Board.

Two weeks ago Magistrate Hanrahan dismissed a similar charge against the Harrow Farmers' Cooperate in what was considered a test case.

At that time Mr. Fraser said he would await further instructions from the Toronto Prices Board office before deciding whether to proceed or withdraw the charges.

The charges hinged on the Prices Board regulation which allows a three-cent margin of profit on Canadian eastern winter wheat "laid down" at the elevator.

Magistrate Hanrahan ruled that 'laid down' meant after the wheat has been cleaned and elevated. Thus the two cents charged for cleaning and elevating were considered part of the "laid down" price rather than the profit.

Similar cases were pending in Chatham involving grain dealers in Kent county.

The firms involved in Essex were: Belle River Seed Grain Company; Comber Farmers Cooperative; Cottan Farmers Limited; Essex Farmers Limited; R. C. Flood and Sons; D. J. Gillanders and Son; Kingsville Co-operative Supply, and Oldcastle Farmers Limited.

BRITISH BUDGET DOUBLES TAX ON PROFITS

Woman May Hold Key to Solution Taximan Slaying

Ralph Margeson Believed Murdered for Sum of $58

Toronto, Nov. 12 — (CP) — With a $1,000 reward offered for the killer of taxi-driver Ralph Margeson, police said today that new clues were unearthed in the evidence of two women passengers believed his last fares before the fatal trip.

The reward was offered today by the Ontario government for evidence leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer or killers who shot Margeson, 32-year-old father of five children, through the head and dumped his body on a lonely road.

Police said they believed two men passengers, whom Margeson picked up shortly after discharging the two women, were the slayers, with robbery the motive. They said the women, who volunteered their evidence today, had helped them fix the district in which the men were picked up and the time, shortly after midnight yesterday.

Neither of the women knew anything that would help identify the two men, however, police said.

Margeson let the women fares off at a north-west Toronto house, police said. Somewhere between there and his Dundas Street office he phoned the office that two men had halted him to drive them to Port Credit, about seven miles west of Toronto.

Police said they believed one of the pair shot Margeson shortly after they left the city limits on the Queen Elizabeth Way, robbed him of $58, and dumped his body.

Less than two hours after the shooting, an attempt apparently was made to break into the 32-year-old cabbie's home. Mrs. Margeson, an expectant mother, heard a noise at a downstairs window at about 2:30 a.m. She notified the taxi company employing her husband and police were dispatched to the house. Police said a window was cracked in the lower right hand corner and the sills smudged.

The hunt through the west end began after Margeson's dispatcher reported the driver had completed a run to Dundas and Dufferin Streets and telephoned to ask permission to take a fare to Port Credit, seven miles west of here. The call was received shortly after midnight yesterday. Police checked a report from a motorist that he was almost sideswiped by a speeding taxi on the Queen Elizabeth way early yesterday. The cab was being driven recklessly and in it were two men.

Discovery of the body by a young girl followed the finding of the blood-spattered taxi in a lot on Weston Road in the north-west section of the city yesterday morning.

The body was found lying face up in the ditch, one arm thrown up on the bank, twisted as though thrown from the roadside.

The fact that the right side of the face was smeared with dirt and the right palm was muddied, strengthened police belief that the body had been dragged to the ditch or thrown there from a car.

Predicts Heavy Liquidation of Livestock in Year

Toronto, Nov. 12 (CP) — The Ontario Agricultural Department said today in the weekly crop report that high price and scarcity of feed grain, if continued, would result in "heavy liquidation of livestock within the next year."

Throughout the province there are reports of farmers killing off little pigs and poultry, both receiving exceptionally low prices. In Dufferin County many seven-week-old pigs sold for $1 and as low as 50 cents each, the report said.

Unusually slow sales were reported for large quantities of fruit, vegetables, eggs and poultry in Welland County.

Increased acreage of fall wheat has made exceptional growth, especially in Western and Southern Ontario where the fields in some centres are reported to be in "excellent" condition.

In Kent County sugar beet harvesting is 80 per cent completed, with some soybean crops yet to be harvested.

Lovesick Postie Ordered Jailed For Contempt

London, Nov. 12 — (AP) — Lovesick postman was ordered jailed Tuesday for trying to court the unwilling daughter of a peer.

A week ago Lord Norton obtained a court order banning him from the mansion for life. Accused of violating the order, Harrison was ordered committed for contempt of court. When the court asked what excuse he had, he replied:

Four DC-6s Grounded Pending an Inquiry

Gallup, N.M., Nov. 12. (AP) —At least four airlines grounded their huge DC-6 planes today, pending an inquiry into the cause of a fire yesterday which forced an American airlines ship to make an emergency landing.

The Douglas Aircraft Corporation, which builds the four-engined planes, also urged that all other users of them do likewise until cause of fires "have been established and eradicated."

Twenty-five passengers and crew personnel emerged unscathed.

Yesterday after the American Airlines' DC-6 en route to New York from San Francisco came in for a spectacular emergency landing at Gallup airport with flames spouting from beneath its fuselage.

One source termed the fire "beyond doubt a near parallel" to the blazing crash of a United Airlines DC-6 which killed 52 persons in Utah last month.

Meanwhile an informant here who declined to be quoted by name expressed the view that the flames in both instances apparently originated in the heater compartment below the pressurized cabin. He did not elaborate.

Accounts from passengers and crew of the ship forced down here stressed the impression that all aboard displayed amazing calm, although several said they could see flames from the right side while still in the air.

Warned by a smoke indicator, Pilot Evan Chatfield, discovered the flames about five minutes out of Gallup, circled to fly across town and brought the ship down in a steep dive.

Despite smoke filling cockpit and cabin he set it down smoothly at one side of the main runway, where the flames were extinguished by the local fire department.

Larger Grain Crops U.S. Need in '48 To Avert Meat, Dairy Shortages in '49

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP) — The United States government plans to ask farmers to plant nearly 6.5 per cent more land to livestock feed grains next year in an effort to replenish supplies cut short by this year's poor corn crop.

The agriculture department prepared to issue today a semi-final estimate on this year's output of corn and a few other major crops.

Officials expected little change from last month's estimate placing the corn crop at 2,458,674,000 bushels, a decline of about 25 per cent from last year's record crop of 3,287,927,000 bushels and a drop of about eight per cent from the 1936-45 average of 2,639,102,000.

Corn production goal for this year was 3,000,000,000 bushels, and the government will seek a crop of at least that much in 1948. Tentative plans call for a corn planting goal of 92,000,000 acres, or about 6.3 per cent more than the 86,400,000 acres planted this year.

The prospective goal for the principal feed grains—corn, oats, barley and grain sorghums — is 156,000,000 acres. That is about 9,300,000 acres more than was planted to those crops this year and about 5,600,000 acres more than the pre-war average.

The department already has recommended a 1948 wheat goal of 75,000,000 acres. While this is about 5,000,000 acres more than the 1947 goal, it is about 2,000,000 less than was actually planted for harvest this year.

Claims These and Other Countries Menaced by Communism

Paris, Nov. 12. (AP)—Gen. Charles de Gaulle today urged France to take the lead in forming alliances with the United States, Britain and other countries "who feel themselves similarly menaced" by Communism.

"France must take the initiative because she is the most menaced," the leader of the Anti-Communist Rassemblement du Peuple Francais told a press conference.

"France is the most menaced externally by this enormous power—the most formidable she has ever faced—and internally because, independent of her own force, this power has assistance within France," de Gaulle declared.

One of the aims of the R.P.F. which showed surprising strength in France's recent municipal elections, was to foster such a system of alliances as he proposed.

He declared that treaties should be concluded immediately with both the United States and Britain, but that these alliances must be for specific purposes, arrived at as equals.

France must not appear in the role of beggar. On the contrary she must "work in conjunction" with the United States on full equality.

The United States could furnish economic aid, while France could furnish her "geographical position and moral influence in Europe."

Must Organize

De Gaulle asserted that France must begin at once to organize western Europe for defence, and mentioned specifically the need of closer economic and political ties with Italy

He declared that his R.P.F. was "an element of force which echoes the instincts of the French people, who feel themselves menaced at home and abroad."

The party would continue to grow "like a tidal wave" until it "engulfs the whole nation except for the Separatists (Communists) and a few ferocious melancholics."

He repeated his previous assertion that France must not permit the establishment of a strong, centralized German government. Pounding the table, he declared:

LABOR ROLLS UP MAJORITY TO CURB POWER OF LORDS

Govt. Gives Second Reading Despite Churchill's Cry of Dictatorship

London, Nov. 12 — (AP)—The government's drive to clip the meagre powers of the House of Lords rolled steadily toward fulfilment today, despite Winston Churchill's cries of "dictatorship."

The government's whacking majority in the Commons trampled opposition to the measure of the eve of the budget presentation last night, 345 to 194, pushing the bill through its decisive second reading and toward final enactment.

The Bill would reduce the time the Lords may delay legislation approved by the Commons from two years to 12 months. Two Labor members, Ian Mikardo and J. Parker, offered an amendment today to cut this time still further to six months.

However, there was a clarification of the status of the peers under the new regulation of the Labor government to put all idle persons to work. London newspapers had asserted yesterday that many British Lords and ladies would be subject to the Labor draft, backed by a threat of fines and imprisonment.

A government spokesman said today that none in gainful employment would be affected. He said membership in the Upper House would be considered gainful employment in accord with British custom.

Present British legislative procedure would be revised under the bill to limit the power of the House of Lords. The House of Commons now can overcome the opposition of the House of Lords only by passing the rejected measure three times over a two-year period .

The curb bill itself could be delayed in that fashion by the House of Lords, but the government wields one powerful club to meet that threat. It could pack the Lords with a sufficient number of newly - appointed Labor peers to change the whole complexion of the Upper Chamber, now predominantly Conservative.

TWO JEWISH GIRLS, YOUTH KILLED IN GUN BATTLE

House Suspected Being Underground Hideout

Jerusalem, Nov. 12 — (AP) — Two Jewish girls and a youth were killed today in a gun battle with British troops surrounding a coastal plain house, suspected of being an underground Irgun Zvai Leumi hideout.

Two other young Jews were wounded in the encounter, between Raanana and Hezliya.

Military sources at Tel Aviv said 10 Jews were captured in a raid on the isolated house where the army was tipped the Irgun was conducting "armed exercises."

A British police sergeant was killed and three other British police officers were wounded by machine-gun fire while they sat in front of a cafe on the Kingsway, main street of Haifa.

A fifth British policeman in the party escaped injury in the attack, which officials said was directed at the seated group from a rooftop across the street.

The assailants escaped.

Police said they were young Jews, who assembled in the cafe as the policemen were drinking tea and then left. A short time later an office in the upper floor of the building across the street was robbed, apparently by the same group, and some of the Jews came out and fired down on the policemen. The cafe's customers scattered in panic.

Officials said the condition of the three wounded men was grave.

The attack came a short time after a military tribunal in Haifa sentenced two members of the Jewish underground Stern gang, which calls itself "fighters for the freedom of Israel," to 20 years in prison for possessing firearms, ammunition and two bombs.

SWAMPED WITH SUGGESTIONS

Toronto, Nov. 12 — (CP)—Police said today they have been swamped with stacks of letters and hundreds of phone calls offering tips or suggestions on tracking down the sex-slayer of Arlene Anderson, 13-year-old partially-crippled girl whose violated body was found in a vacant lot last Thursday. However, 10 detectives working 18 hours a day still are without tangible clues. Rewards totalling $3,500 are offered for the slayer.

FIRST WOMAN CHARGED WITH AUTO THEFT

London, Ont. Nov. 12 (CP) — The first woman in the memory of the oldest police officials here to be charged with automobile theft was arraigned in court today. She is Kathleen Iredale of nearby Centralia, and she was remanded to Nov. 19 without plea. Bail was set at $1,000.

The auto was located near London last night.

Heavier Duties Will be Levied On Beer, Spirits

Income, Tobacco Taxes Are Unchanged Says Dalton

London, Nov. 12 —(AP)— New imposts designed to curb inflation, including a 10-per-cent tax on money wagered in soccer pools and at dog racing tracks, were unfolded in a special autumn budget announced today by Hugh Dalton, chancellor of the exchequer.

Dalton also told the House of Commons he proposes to double the profits tax and make the higher rate retroactive to last Jan. 1, to increase the purchase tax sharply and to levy heavier duties on spirits, wines and beer.

Income tax will remain at the standard rate of nine shillings ($1.80) for each pound ($4) of taxable income. The duty on tobacco will remain unchanged, leaving the cost of a package of cigarets at three shillings four pence (67 cents) to which it was raised from two shillings four pence in the budget of last April 15.

10 P.C. Gambling Tax

The taxes on gambling include 10 per cent on all money wagered on totalisators (pari-mutuels) at dog racing and a similar tax on the extremely popular football pools, in which Britons forecast results of soccer matches. Both hitherto were tax-free.

Dalton said he is not at this time going to tax bookmakers because of the heavy diversion of tax officers which such an impost would require.

The purchase tax, applied on a graduated scale to luxuries and to many necessities as well, will be sharply increased as follows:

Luxury articles now taxed at 100 per cent will be taxed at 125 per cent.; articles taxed at two-thirds of value will be taxed at three-quarters; those at one-third will be taxed at one-half, and those at one-sixth will be taxed at one-third.

This was Dalton's profits tax announcement:

"I propose to double the profit tax as from Jan. 1, 1947. This will raise the rate from 12 1-2 per cent to 25 per cent on distributed profits and from 5 per cent to 10 per cent on undistributed profits. This will increase the yield by £85,000,000 in the full year, bringing the yield year to £170,000,000."

Dalton announced an increase of 33 shillings, 4 pence on a gallon of spirits; of 10 shillings a gallon on heavy wines and five shillings a gallon on light wines, and of one penny a pint on beer.

The spirits levey will raise the prise of a bottle of whisky by four shillings, three pence from 25 shillings, 9 pence to 30 shillings.

Big Surplus

An "unprecedented" surplus of £253,000,000 ($1,012,000,000) at the end of the first 32 weeks of the current financial year was reported by the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

"(We are within £5,000,000 already of the surplus I estimated for the full year."

In the April budget revenue for the financial year ending next March 31 was estimated by Dalton at £3,451,000,000 and expenditure at £3,181,000,000 with an estimated surplus of £270,000,000. Later further tax reliefs reduced the estimated surplus to £258,000,000.

The agriculture subsidy now costing £392,000,000 annually will be maintained but Dalton warned that it would be impossible to justify further increases.

Existing subsidies of leather, cotton and wool, now costing £33,000,000 annually will disappear next year, indicating the possibly of higher prices for clothing.

In future three-per-cent interest will be charged on arrears of income tax, surtax, profits tax and excess profits tax.

Dalton also decreed what amounts to a tax on advertising.

Advertising Restricted

Effective immediately, only half of a company's expenditures on advertising would rank as "allowable expenditures" for tax purposes. Formerly all advertising expenses were allowable.

"In these days, much of the advertisements are a serious waste of money and labor," Dalton contended.

The emergency budget will increase British privations. Dalton asserted it would drain off excess purchasing power and stave off inflation.

"Too much money running after too few goods is the unavoidable sequel in every country affected by a major war," he said.

Introducing the emergency budget designed to drain off some consumer purchasing power, Dalton asked for the doubled tax on company profits as a measure in the fight against inflation.

He said many companies have been declaring increased dividends contrary to his advice.

Dalton announced that the new taxes he proposed will bring in £208,000,000 in a full financial year and £48,000,000 in the remainder of the present financial year, ending next March 31.

Dalton's review of the financial situation and his announcement of new taxes occupied 57 minutes.

Divergent Policies Said Planned For Japan's Re-emergence as Power

By RUSSELL BRINES

Tokyo, Nov. 12 —(AP)— Influential Japanese diplomats have sketched two divergent policies while planning what they hope will be Japan's re-emergence as a major power, competent sources say.

They are significant at this time, when Japan is still denied foreign contacts, because the two men most instrumental in formulating these programs both have chances to become premier after Japan regains autonomy.

One program calls for an extensive gamble on American - Russian tension — or perhaps war — to lift Japan swiftly into a position of major influence as an American partner. It is led by former premier Shigeru Yoshida.

The second, more cautious plan, developed by the present foreign minister, Hitoshi Ashida, provided for close collaboration with China and other Asiatic powers. Japan by this scheme would be content to remain a small power for some time, without commitments to big countries and therefore free to play them against each other.

The goal is the same — Japan's restoration as an influential power in the shortest possible time.

These separate programs have been prepared already, say informants. The first step in implementing them will come during the imminent domestic political battles and the next will come at the peace conference.

Yoshida pursued the central theme of his plan before losing the premiership last May. He emphasized Japan's pro-Americanism and keynoted anti-Russian sentiment.

He wants to make Japan strong in one jump and is backed by the country's leading financiers and old-line industrialists.

Ashida meanwhile, emphasizes the importance of buffer states and the use of a strategic position as a means by which a small power may win concessions from mighty ones.

Informants say he proposes cooperation with China as a starting point for gradual extension of the Japanese position. Economically, he proposes to concentrate upon Oriental markets instead of seeking immediate world-wide business. Ashida represents influential Osaka industrialists and foreign traders.

ATTEMPT MADE TO STEAL GASOLINE

What appeared to be an attempt to steal gasoline failed Tuesday night at the Patterson and Wellbanks service station, as a glass in the gasoline pump and also in the service station was found broken. Owner of the station, after checking the premises, stated nothing was missing.

Entry to the station apparently had been gained through a grease pit window which was found broken, while the glass in the pump was apparently broken by a length of pipe which was found nearby.

OLD COMRADES MEET AFTER THIRTY YEARS

Reunion of old buddies after nearly thirty years took place in Toronto over last weekend when the Rev. Grant Sparling, rector of Christ Church here, addressed a get-together of his former comrades of a cycle corps of the First Division, C.E.F., World War I.

"It was quite a gathering," Padre Sparling said, "I had not seen some of the boys for nearly three decades. There was quite a difference in our appearance, but the old spirit was still there."

Padre Sparling remained with the cycle corps for a short time before transferring to another army unit.

NEW SCOUT WINTER UNIFORM DISPLAYED

A new boy scout Winter uniform was displayed at the annual meeting of the Belleville Boy Scout Association held at the Kiwanis Centre. The uniform shown was manufactured at the Belleville factory of Deacon Brothers Ltd.

Members of the scout association, as well as boy scouts, were enthusiastic over the appearance and suitability of the new Winter uniform. The uniform is made of green gabardine and consisted of a ski hat, ski slacks and hip length ski jacket with a fur trimmed parka. A very pleasing color scheme is achieved by placing a yellow scout crest of fleur-de-lis and shield on the front of the green jacket.

Owing to manufacturing limitations the new uniform will not be available for general distribution until 1948.

Jamieson Bone Re-elected Pres. Property Owners

Toronto, Nov. 12 (CP) — Samuel B. Pettengill of New York told a gathering of property owners last night that the facts demonstrate that rental controls "are the major cause of any housing shortage."

He was addressing the closing session of a two-day conference of Canadian Property Owners held under the auspices of the Ontario Property Owners Association.

The association earlier charged that landlords had been "exploited for years" by tenants under existing rental controls and passed a resolution saying that "no true emergency exists" for justifying a perpetuation of control over rentals when all other forms of control have been lifted.

"Appearance of such an emergency is due to continuing shortages of materials which are in great measure the result of unsound controls," the resolution declared.

Other resolutions passed called for immediate increase in the ceilings of permitted rentals for housing constructed prior to Jan. 1, 1947, and a definite announcement of an early end of rent control.

Delegates adopted a resolution by the Canadian Federation of Property Owners Association which said the number of housing units in Canada now is greater per thousand inhabitants than ever before. But house owners were "still unwilling to make houses available to tenants because of mistrust or rental regulations based upon experience of indifference to their claims."

Train Demolishes Brand New Car At Marysville

Aubrey Brandt, Renfrew, today is ruing the loss of the car which he purchased only the day previous, but at the same time he is thankful he escaped with his life when his car was completely demolished last night when struck by an east bound freight at Marysville.

Brandt had stalled his car on the track when in attempting to bring it to a halt at the approach of the crossing and had time only to jump clear when it was struck by the engine. The car was completely demolished the wreckage being carried approximately one-half mile down the track by the engine.

Brandt stated following the accident that he saw the railroad wigwag signal swinging as he turned the corner at Marysville but as he applied his brakes the car skidded on the wet pavement and stalled on the track.

The accident was investigated by Provincial Constable J. Richmond.

Hard Living in England Now Says Letter

Living conditions existent in England under strict rationing of clothes and food are graphically described in a letter recently received by Mrs. J. A. Robinson, Great St. James Street, from a housewife in Sunningdale, Berkshire, England. The letter is from Mrs. Olive Williams of that centre who has six children.

"I am writing to tell you how grateful we women in England are for the parcels sent us," writes the English woman. "It is very hard living in England now. We have 20 coupons to last six months. A coat takes 18 coupons so you just don't buy one."

Mrs. Robinson has forwarded a coat in a clothing parcel with Mrs. Williams being the mother receiving the coat.

"So you can see how pleased we are to get your parcels," the letter continued. "We don't get enough to eat and I know many mothers go without if they have a family . . . but we still laugh, so would you if you saw the little bits we have."

Vets of Two Wars Remember Former Comrades at Legion Banquet Held at Armouries

Those who served in Two Great Wars were honored by their comrades at the Armouries on Tuesday night, when the Canadian Legion Branch No. 99 observed Remembrance Day with a banquet with Honorary Major John W. Foote, V.C., as the guest speaker of the evening. Everett Liddle was Master of Ceremonies and Brig. J. E. Genet, C.B.E., M.C., the chairman for the function. It was a memorable night for the veterans of this district more than 500 sitting down to the fine repast prepared and served by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion and the thanks of all were expressed for the fine arrangements and the excellent food served.

As in all Remembrance Day services silent tribute was paid to those who made the Supreme Sacrifice. A cenotaph was arranged within the Armouries and when the toast was drunk to the departed all lights in the auditorium were turned out with the exception of a spotlight on the cross. Kneeling before the cross were members of the Navy, Army, Air Force and Women's Divisions in uniform. Out of the night Last Post was sounded by Mr. Wardle of the Salvation Army band and Leo B. Riggs at the piano played one verse of "Abide With Me." Reveille brought the veterans to attention and Miss Barbara Diment sang two verses of "O Canada," one composed by a veteran of the last war. It was an impressive ceremony and in the minute of silence the memory of those assembled went back through the years, remembering some comrade, who gave his all that others might live in peace and contentment.

Fine Band Concert

Before and during the banquet the Belleville Municipal band under the management of Harry Moorman and direction of L. F. Addison gave a most delightful selection of numbers and each time this organization is heard, it is better. The musicians played faultlessly and the large audience greeted each number most enthusiastically. "The Legion March" composed and written by Reg Hinchey, member of the band and former bandmaster brought the veterans to their feet.

The distinguished guest of the evening was introduced to the assembly by Honorary Major Rev Arthur Smith, and remarked at the outset that he was glad to be in the capital of his native county but stated that Belleville should not have all the credit for honors in the war because Captain Dick Chard of Stirling, demanded of him a certain amount of respect and thankfulness because that officer led the assault on the prison camp, where I was located and liberated me with many others. He spoke of his admiration of Reg. Hinchey, whom he knew as a boy and who always seemed doing something musically. He spoke on the subject "The pursuit of happiness" stating that we all have come back to troublesome times but that we cannot escape life by withdrawing from living. He claimed that life in Germany was hard at times but there were also some good times but the incarceration showed that man could not live within himself.

Certain Responsibilities

"It was somewhat of a relief to be away from the telephone and a certain relief in escaping responsibilities by being a prisoner but I would not recommend it," said the speaker. "There are certain responsibilities laid upon each of us and we cannot escape those responsibilities and it makes us happy in the performance of them." Speaking of the army he maintained that Canada should have one army for training and administration and it could be needed for defence because he stated "Canadians never want to see the day that any class of people could foist a way of life that they did not want." "We want to retain our democracy and way of life and the responsibility is ours and we must be prepared to defend it."

"There are some, the speaker declared, who feel we have a powerful nation to the south of us, but we have our pride and we want to do in proportion to our strength our share. The search for happiness is not easy and we can only find happiness through service and by showing our interest in other people. He wished for the veterans all the health and happiness in the world and claimed that the Padre Corps was always ready and willing to assist those in the service and those out, with any of their problems in order that they may find happiness in the world being formed.

Musical Entertainment

The musical entertainment was delightful. Miss Barbara Diment besides assisting in the service of Remembrance gave a dance number with Jimmy Corradi at the piano. Arthur Juby gave a couple of solos in his fine style, while Miss Helen Grant accompanied by the Municipal Band delighted with two xylophone solos and these were heartily applauded. Pipe Major Jamie Clarke piped the head table guests to their seats and also gave a couple of solos and brought back memories of slogging through the mud but heartened by the presence of the piper. The invocation was given by Honorary Wing Commander Rev. J. Grant Sparling and the toast to the King and Country was proposed by Honorary Squadron Leader Rev. F. R. Harback, after which the National Anthem was heartily sung.

H. N. Becker, manager of the Bank of Montreal and veteran of the First Great War, proposed the toast to the "Friendliest City in Canada" and this was fittingly responded to by Ald. H. J. Armstrong, who regretted the absence of His Worship Mayor Frank Follwell through illness. The Alderman congratulated those who served and asked for the same co-operation that was shown by these veterans in the reconstruction period that this city is now going through. "We have a fine county and a fine city" said Ald. Armstrong "and all that is needed is the citizens and veterans to put their shoulder to the wheel. The toast to the veterans of 1914-1918 was proposed by Lieut. R. C. Wood, R.C.N.V.R., and response was made in his own inimitable way by Honorary Captain Monsignor J. F. Nicholson, M.C. He stated that he retained fond memories of one of the finest Corps and was sure that the veterans of the Second Great War upheld their traditions.

President Given Hand

The toast to the veterans of 1939-1945 was proposed by Col. Roscoe Vanderwater, D.S.O., and ably responded to by Major Max Porritt, M.C. The introduction of the Legion president, Sgt.-Maj. Angus Duffy was given by Major C. F. Hepburn and Ald. Angus was given a great hand for the work that he has accomplished during his year of office. At the conclusion of the banquet the boys got together for a sing song and to recall pleasant incidents in army life. Jimmy Corradi and other pianists contributed and all the army songs that were sung in two wars were resurrected from the closet and given a going over.

The canteen under the direction of Ernie Dainard and Walter Harden did a thriving business. Boy Scouts of troops one, two, four and eight attended the Armistice Day service in the Armouries in the morning and in the evening ran the check room and obtained a nice sum of money to continue their activities. It was an excellent show and will long be remembered by those privileged to attend.

Searchers Scan Lake for Sign Of Missing Boy

North Bay, Nov. 12 — (CP) — Refusing to admit that the quest for eight-year-old Johnny Gougeon, missing from his Haileybury home since Sunday, Nov. 2, is over, Inspector Sid Oliver of provincial police at Haileybury, said today that searchers are "not giving up hope even though it's darn hard to know what to think now."

Bundled against the bitter cold, boatloads of searchers are scanning the surface of Lake Temiskaming around Haileybury in an attempt to discover an article of clothing or any tangible evidence that the child was drowned.

"Frankly, we're at a loss to know what to do now," the inspector said.

Following the lad's disappearance, search parties, aircraft and dragging crews engaged in a futile effort to discover a clue to his whereabouts. Police have circulated a description of the child throughout Ontario and parts of Quebec.

Cabinet Members May Leave When Mr. King Retires

Ottawa, Nov. 12 — (CP) — Reports were current here yesterday that eight or 10 members of the federal cabinet will retire when Prime Minister Mackenzie King leaves political life, possibly next August, or on the eve of the next general election.

These reports predicted the retirement, within the next year or two, of Mines Minister Glen, 70, Trade Minister MacKinnon, 66, Postmaster-General Bertrand, 59, Veterans Minister Mackenzie, 57, Solicitor-General Jean 57, State Secretary Gibson, 56, Works Minister Fournier, 54, and Labor Minister Mitchell 53.

It also was said that Reconstruction Minister Howe, 59, and Justice Minister Ilsley, 53, may retire before the next election.

A general election is not due until 1950, although the government may call one before that time.

Dutch Artist Goes to Prison For Fraud

Amsterdam, Nov. 12 (AP) — Hans Van Meegeren, 57, a Dutch artist, was sentenced today to prison for one year by a Dutch court which convicted him of fraud for faking and selling eight paintings signed with the names of old masters—pictures which fooled world art experts.

The prosecution, which charged that Van Meegeren's proceeds from sales of the cleverly-faked paintings amounted to approximately $2,800,000, had asked a two-year sentence. Buyers included Hermann Goering and the Rotterdam museum.

Van Meegeren acknowledged that he had signed the names of such old masters as Vermeer and Pieter De Hooch to his paintings, but he pleaded innocent to fraud. The trial put on record one of the most dramatic art scandals of modern times.

Internationally-recognized experts in the field of art had certified the authenticity of the paintings before chemical and X-ray tests proved they could not be what they purported to be — masterpieces of some of the greatest 17th century artists.

Van Meegeren said he had painted the pictures, not for the money, but to prove to the world that he was a great painter. For his 1937 picture, "disciples of Emmaus," in the style of Vermeer, he said he used canvas from a real 17th century painting and then cracked it to lend it the flavor of antiquity.

BAN CIVIL FLIGHTS

IN MEMORIAM

ARMITAGE — In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Dorothy Isabel Armitage, who passed away suddenly, November 12, 1945.

Remembrance is a golden chain
Death tries to break, but all in vain,
To have, to love, and then to part
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart.
The years may wipe out many things
But this they wipe out never,
The memory of those happy days
When we were all together.

—Sadly missed by husband and family.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 12 — (CP) — Golds softened in substantially reduced volume in the stock exchange's early session as industrials continued the upward trend in brisk turnover for newsprints. Base metals were firm on advances for better grade issues. Trading generally was quiet with no features in either industrials or mining stocks.

Volume for the first three hours was 509,000 shares, about 212,000 below Monday's similar period.

Algoma Steel was down about 2½ at 56½ in a generally weaker steel list as newsprints moved into action on rising prices but utilities were uncertain as key issues showed losses. Liquors were off as were McColl and International Petroleum in oils.

Senior golds posted fractional losses for Hollinger and McIntyre while the best of the few gainers in junior golds were Aumaque, Buffadison, Delnite, Giant, Kenville, Lencourt, Ogama, Osulake. For base metals advances were listed by Smelters, Eureka, Falconbridge and Nickel.

King Receives Honorary Degree Of Doctor of Law

Louvain, Belgium, Nov. 12.—(CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada today received the degree of Doctor of Laws from the University of Louvain in a hall dating from 1317, and said in an address of thanks that he had never been prouder to be a Canadian.

"No man ever living has received so much honor in such a short time as I since I have been in Belgium," he said, winding up a three-day visit to Belgium. He will leave for Holland later today.

"I've been proud of my country all my life but never more than this morning when I see how Canada, with its small population, is so respected and honored."

The ancient hall was crowded with cheering students and echoed with bands playing "The Maple Leaf for Ever", and "O Canada".

Mr. King was received by the Rector, Msgr. Honore Dan Waeyenebergh, and the dean of the Law Society, Jean Dabin, both of whom praised Mr. King's and Canada's accomplishments. Dabin referred to Flanders as being "sown with the crosses of Canadian heroes".

The Prime Minister said he realized the honorary degree was a tribute to the Canadian people who had gladly shared in the battle for liberty.

Built in 1869, the old Methodist Church building in St. George, Brant County, now houses two of the village's prominent industries—a pajama factory on the main floor, and a dairy in the basement. The building was sold for commercial purposes a few years after church union in 1926, when Methodists and Presbyterians decided to use the latter church building. Probably the only former church building in Canada with a bottling machine in its basement, Keith Johnston (right), dairy employee, is seen operating the milk-bottling apparatus.

LABOR ROLLS UP

A government bill to nationalize the iron and steel industry is expected to be introduced next year and many believe the Labor party does not want to chance the possibility of a two-year delay in getting it passed.

Attlee Backs Measure

Prime Minister Attlee, backing the Lords-curb measure last night, declared:

"We believe that the powers of the House of Lords are obsolete . . . we did not suggest reform of the House of Lords when we went to the electors. What we did say was that we should take powers to prevent obstruction, and that is exactly what we have done."

Churchill, still slightly hoarse from a cold which had kept him in bed for four days before he appeared in the Commons to voice his opposition to the bill, said he thought that "we are approaching very near to dictatorship in Britain — a dictatorship without either its criminality or efficiency."

Anthony Eden, former Conservative foreign minister, called the measure "a murky and miserable little bill, bred by dissension out of despair."

On another front in the government's battle against economic disaster, the British press greeted with such words as "slave state," "regimentation" and "totalitarianism" a new regulation which Labor Minister George Isaacs said would put all idle persons — including peers, 'spivs and drones' — to work. He indicated that those who failed to comply would be jailed.

Under the new regulation, which becomes effective Dec. 12, all men "not gainfully employed" and between the ages of 18 and 50 must register at Labor offices authorized to direct them into essential work. Women between 18 and 40 are likewise affected.

Darkness—More Traffic Danger

Despite ideal driving conditions in the best October weather the province has enjoyed in over a hundred years, 89 persons were killed on Ontario roads last month. This toll, while below the 95 dead for October of last year, emphasizes the need for greater care in the coming winter months.

Highway officials point out that people over 35 and under 65 are more exposed to traffic hazards this time of year and consequently accidents increase in this group. Traffic accident figures for this October show that of the 89 persons killed, 27 were between the ages of 36 and 65. Last October 25 of the traffic deaths involved people in this age group.

Accident statistics indicate that while fewer children, proportionately, are killed on the roads during the months of early darkness, more middle-aged and elderly people suffer injury or death. In cities and towns slippery streets and the tricky light of the dying day make the evening rush hour especially dangerous to the persons on foot.

At night the dark clothes worn by most adults make them difficult for motorists to see. Pedestrians are urged when walking down poorly-lit streets or along country roads to carry or wear something white.

Although there is less motor traffic on rural roads in the fall and winter months the added hazards make them the most dangerous. Early darkness, rain, sleet, fog, and ice call for extra care on the part of drivers and pedestrians. Rural accidents accounted for 46 per cent of the total accidents last year in Ontario. And November and December were the worst months in 1946 for accidents on country roads.

While the October record was comparatively good, considering the big increase in traffic, the Highways Department emphasizes that the last two months of the year are usually the worst months for the province generally and urges everyone to make additional allowance for the risks peculiar to this season of the year, particularly those between 35 and 65.

School Expansion

Britain is looking forward in the matter of schools. She has a plan to build two hundred million dollars of school buildings, according to United Kingdom Information Service. This undertaking will include two hundred projects which it is felt will meet the extra needs resulting from the raising of school-leaving age as well as for the provision for the increased birthrate.

Education looms more and more on the horizon of the nations. It is one of the forces at work today for the advance of civilization.

Everywhere peoples see the absolute need of training for the place the child of today will hold in the future. Education is a progressive force which works to raise the status of knowledge and interest in the nation and in the world.

Today education is made more efficient than it used to be as men and women, municipalities and governments see the wisdom in the state being able to offer the highest in education which can help to mold not one country but the world along the lines which it should follow.

Not only in Britain but in the United States and Canada and elsewhere the people are looking forward to widening the bounds of knowledge and making everyone efficient in the calling to which he will dedicate his interests and in general knowledge required for any position the future may offer.

Safety at Sea

Safety at sea is the subject planned for a conference of nations to be held in London to deal with the safety of life at sea. Britain has invited thorty-two nations to this gathering which will open in April of next year. It will have as its object to revise and bring up to date the International Convention which was signed in London eighteen years ago.

The Secretary General of the United Nations has been asked to send observers. Questions discussed will cover all aspects of safety of ships, passengers and crews.

Would See the Danger

If any bicyclist thinks he is not creating danger and courting probably an accident to himself or pedestrians or motorists these dark nights of early November if he rides an unlighted bicycle, not protected by a reflector, he should leave his wheel at home and go out some evening and watch to see if he can find a rider on an unlighted machine. He would then see that it is almost impossible for a person to discern the presence of a rider on an unlighted bike in the growing darkness. The rider and his machine appear an almost invisible shadow. Such ought to cure anyone of riding without the protection of a light and reflector which the law requires.

Henry VIII a Thin Man

Popular impression of King Henry VIII, based on Holbein's famous painting, is that he was a stubby, stout man, but with the return of the suits of mail worn by kings and nobles hundreds of years ago to their former resting place in the Tower of London, an examination of the suit of mail worn by Henry reveals him to have been, in his young days, such a figure as might have played the part of the thin man in the movies today. According to measurements of his armor, he was six feet in height and had a 34-inch waist. Probably one reason why he grew so obese is that in addition to being a heavy trencherman, he suffered from chronic ulcers in his legs, and there being no sulfa or penicillin in those days, he suffered for years and was unable to take any exercise.

The coats of mail, from helmet to boots, which the nobles wore in battle or in the jousting paddock, were very heavy, some of them weighing hundreds of pounds. A warrior had to be hoisted onto his horse, and it required a very strong man to operate in them.

It is common, however, for thin young athletes to develop into fat men when they quit the competitive field and give way to the pleasures of the table without restraint. — St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Building Own New Homes

While the housing shortage has brought for the many discomfortures and evils, one good quality has been brought out in no few cases — that of a spirit of self-reliance, and, quite often, of co-operation. Many houses have been built under peculiar circumstances. People who, under ordinary circumstances would never have dreamed of becoming "builders" have gone at the job themselves and made a fine success of it. Doubtless to them their homes will have a much greater meaning than to many who have acquired them by easier methods.—Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

World's Two Largest Eggs

The biggest egg ever laid wasn't a theatrical flop. Two eggs which measure more than a foot long and almost 10 inches wide, and which weighed 17 pounds when fresh some 2,300 years ago, were laid in Madagascar by a 1,000 pound bird now extinct. It might have been a relative of that very bird which took Sinbad the Sailor for a ride. He called it the Roc. modern scientists named it Aepyornis maximus, says Science Illustrated.

Now in the University of California, the two eggs weigh five pounds in their present fossilized condition. Nineteen such eggs have been found to date.

Loch Ness Monster

To attract tourists as in prewar days, Scotland is reviving the tale of its Loch Ness Monster, a giant dragon-like animal said to inhabit this Highland lake. Since its "discovery" on May 1, 1933, a thousand persons have claimed to have seen the monster. Yet an organized group of 20 men spent six weeks in a fruitless search for some trace of it. Today, a circus still offers $100,000 for its capture, and a newspaper will still pay $500 for a genuine photograph of the alleged creature, says Colliers.

Cleanliness in Packing

New standards of cleanliness in the packing and vending of frozen foods are now made possible by a machine that automatically forms cellophane bags, fills them with frozen food, exxhausts most of the air from them and then seals the bags, all in one operation and at the rate of 40 bags a minute. At no step do hands touch the food. — "Think" Magazine.

HOW TO BE OLD

Shake your head at them and scold,
They will say you're getting old.

Criticize the young today,
"Just old-fashioned!" they will say.

Mock their dancing and their song,
They will say you don't belong.

Tell them what you used to do,
They will merely smile at you.

You were young long years away.
They are being young today.

But if with them you can smile,
Bear with them a little while,

Share their thoughts from day to day,
"Just as young as we!" they'll say.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Who was the first U. S. Minister to the Vatican?

When the United States declared its independence in 1776 the Pope was not only the head of the Catholic Church but also the temporal ruler of the territories in Italy known as the Papal States. From 1797 to 1848 American political and commercial interests in the Papal States were represented by the U. S. Consul at Rome.

In 1848 President Polk decided that "a just regard to our commercial interests" made it "highly expedient" to have more formal diplomatic relations with the "States of the Church." Such representation was authorized by Congress, and on April 7, 1848, Jacob L. Martin of North Carolina was commissioned charge d'affaires at the Papal Court. Secretary of State Buchanan instructed Martin to distinguish between the spiritual and temporal powers of the Pope and to "carefully avoid even the appearance of interfering in ecclesiastical questions, whether these relate to the United States or any other portion of the world."

Martin died at his post the same year he was commissioned. His successor as charge d'affaires at Rome was Lewis Cass, Jr., son of the famous Lewis Cass of Michigan. Cass was commissioned charge d'affaires at Rome January 5, 1849, and was raised to the rank of "Minister Resident" June 29, 1854. He took his leave November 15, 1858, and was succeeded by John P. Stockton, who served from June 15, 1838, to May 23, 1861. Stockton was a son of Commodore Robert Field Stockton and later was a U. S. Senator from New Jersey.

On March 22, 1861, President Lincoln appointed as minister to the States of the Church Rufus King, Jr., grandson of the famous Rufus King. King was about to sail when Fort Sumter was fired on and he abandoned the appointment to serve as a brigadier in the Union Army, whereupon Lincoln appointed Alexander W. Randall, who served from August 6, 1861, to August 4, 1862, and who later was Civil War Governor of Wisconsin.

Richard M. Blatchford of New York was Minister Resident at the Papal Court from August 9, 1862, until October 7, 1863. Rufus King, Jr., was then reappointed and served at Rome from October 7, 1863, until sometime in August, 1867. He resigned in the United States January 1, 1868.

The American representative at the Vatican from 1848 to 1867 was purely political and commercial and was one-sided. During the nearly 20 years the United States had representation at the Court of the Papal States it did not receive an accredited nuncio from the Holy See.

Export of Coal From U.K. to Europe Seen in 1948

London, Nov. 12 —(Reuters)— British coal will be available for export to Europe in 1948, at least to the extent of the 6,000,000 tons specified by the Marshall Plan if British miners maintain last week's record output of 4,250,000 tons, it was stated in authoritative quarters today.

Britain is already exporting limited quantities of coal, mainly through the bunkering of foreign ships in British ports.

Working a five-day week in the nationalized coal mines, the miners have stepped up production under a voluntary overtime arrangement which is some cases involves Saturday working and in others a longer week day.

If maintained, last week's production, allowing for annual holidays and other factors, would give a net annual output in the region of at least 225,000,000 tons compared with the official minimum target of 200,000,000.

Lieut.-Col. A. E. Bliss, who arrived this week with Mrs. Bliss, at Stirling Castle, headquarters of the parent regiment, will personally make the presentation at the same time he gives the Princess the Hamilton, Ont., regiment's wedding gift, a sterling silver personal jewel box.

Reuther, Mazey New Top Men In the U.A.W.

Atlantic City, N.J., Nov. 12 — (AP) — Walter Reuther and Emil Mazey, the fiery No. 1 and No. 2 men C.I.O.'s United Automobile Workers, set about sweeping two more of their political foes out of union office today.

Now it was vice-presidents R. J. Thomas and Dick Leonard who faced almost certain election defeats as the Reuther faction took full control of the union at its convention here.

Thomas was opposed by Dick Gosser of Toledo. Leonard's opponent later in the day would be John Livingston of St. Louis.

After Reuther's re-election as president yesterday, Mazey beat George Addes out of his secretary-treasurer job by a vote of 4,820 to 2,572 in a thunderously noisy election last night. This was an eye-opener to the whole labor movement, for Addes had been the "strong man" of the huge Auto Union through most of its 11-year existence.

New Militancy

The team of Reuther and Mazey brings new militancy into the U.A.W. leadership.

It's true that their triumph is a crushing defeat for the union's small Communist minority, because that group hates Reuther and supports the Addes-Thomas-Leonard faction.

But it is a mistake to think of the U.A.W. political turnover as merely a "swing to the right" or to assume that the union necessarily will be more conservative in its economic and social policies.

Reuther and Mazey are former party members, and their intellectual background is socialist. Furthermore they are a couple of the most militant leaders the U.A.W. ever had.

Canadians Split

Before the long roll-call vote began, the supporters of Addes, and then those of Mazey, paraded around the convention hall shouting, singing, banging wash tubs, brandishing placards, beating on tables with sticks. Each side kept up the bedlam for about 18 minutes.

The Canadian delegation split right down the middle. A tally of votes cast by about 60 Canadian delegates showed 133.8 for Addes and 133.2 for Mazey.

Canadian director George Burt of Windsor, Ont., an Addes supporter, will seek re-election in the regional elections starting tomorrow. His backers are confident that number of Canadian delegates who voted for Mazey will swing to the Burt camp and return him to office.

Burt's opponent on the Reuther ticket probably will be picked at a caucus tonight.

Among the possibilities are Tom Brannigan of Windsor, who recently ousted Burt as a member of the Canadian Congress of Labor Executive Committee; Earl Watson of Amalgamated Local 195 at Windsor; Jack Taylor, vice-president of Local 200; William McDonald, vice-president of Local 195; A.G. Schultz, financial secretary of Oshawa General Motors Local 222, and Richard Courtney, president of Local 222.

WARTS COME AND GO MYSTERIOUSLY

The very fact that warts come and go without evident cause accounts for the profusion of magic cures in folk medicine.

Warts (medical term is verrucae) are caused by an infective agent the exact nature of which is unknown. It is probably a filtrable virus — that is, a specific living morbid principle of the disease, possibly a germ too small to be visible under the microscope, which passes through an unglazed porcelain filter. Anyway the virus will produce new warts four to six weeks after inoculation.

So warts are not only infectious or communicable by contact but an individual with one wart may get another or several others by autoinoculation — say by scratching the skin with finger nails or clothing or objects that have been contaminated by contact with the first wart. The incubation period after such autoinoculation is four to six weeks.

Toads have nothing to do with warts and a piece of pork stolen from your grandmother and burried in a graveyard at midnight in the right phase of the moon (take your choice) will not dispel warts.

I spoke indulgently here some time ago about a simple and, according to many readers, a remarkable cure for warts and corns — gently rubbing wart or corn once a day with — guess what. A cat's whisker? A wishbone? No, nothing so romantic. Just rubbing it with castor oil. Now I warn you this is purely hearsay. I have had no experience with it. But I report it here because so many correspondents have assured me it works like—like grandma, pork and the graveyard.

With that and the cat's whisker and the wishbone duly mentioned though not approved by me, I venture to hope that my mail, heavy enough as it is, heaven knows, will not be cluttered up with other and surer wart and corn cures these next few weeks.

There's just one little thing we should always remember when considering any remedy which purports to dispel, remove or cure warts or corns: Warts come and go without rhyme or reason.

Of course warts and corns are not so nearly identical as these casual remarks may imply. A wart is an epithelial tumor, a benign new growth. A corn is just a localized callus produced by prolonged friction and pressure, and it disappears invariably within a reasonable time after the friction and pressure ceases — for example, corns or calluses on the feet of a person who is disabled for a few weeks by illness or injury or one who goes barefoot or wears only socks or moccasins for a few weeks.

For a single wart or a number of warts on the hands the first remedy I'd try is painting the wart or warts and skin around it or them with a coat of iodine—just one coat—and repeating this at intervals of four or five days till three coats have been applied. If the warts have not disappeared by that time, other treatment is necessary.

There is only one safe thing to do about a wart or warts on face, neck or head — consult a physician. Most effective and least likely to leave a scar is radium or X-ray applied to the wart only, by a physician skilled in this field.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Don't Consult a Specialist

A reader prefaced a question with an implied warning that I (Brady) should not advise him or her to consult a specialist, for he or she had already seen several specialists.

Answer — I think it is foolish for any one to consult a specialist. My advice in any case is, consult a physician. If your physician asks for the counsel of a specialist, let the physician select the specialist.

Under the Cabbage Leaves

There is evidence that The Brady Baby Book should be required reading in our public schools. It has proved of wonderful value in the raising of four fine grandchildren.

(B. C. A.)

Answer—Shocking! Too many public school and high school pupils still believe babies are found in cabbage patches. For a copy of The Brady Baby Book send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope.

Plants Give Off Oxygen

Do plants give off oxygen at night, as in a hospital room? Editor disapprove of a short story plot involving this question, saying plants give off carbon dioxide at night.

(L. N. H.)

Answer — Growing plants take carbon dioxide from the air, give off oxygen. Cut flowers have no respiration. In any case it makes no difference in the purity of the air for animals or people. In general, growing plants, especially in earthen (porous) pots, are healthful in any room because the water evaporating from them improves the condition of the air.

Scientists Skeptical Of Russian A-Bomb

Chicago, Nov. 12 —(AP)— Several leading United States atomic scientists expressed "very marked skepticism" yesterday of reports that Russian scientists exploded a small sample atom bomb last June in Siberia.

"All this does not make much sense," said Dr. Edward Teller, professor of physics at the University of Chicago's Institute of Nuclear Studies. He did not elaborate.

Several other members of the institute were in Dr. Teller's office when he was advised of details of the reported explosion. Dr. Teller said their reaction was one of "very marked skepticism."

'Winnie' Scotches Plan for Gigantic Statue of Self

London, Nov. 12 — (AP) — Winston Churchill himself has scotched a United States-sponsored plan for a 200-foot Churchillian statue— complete with glowing cigar — on the cliffs of Dover.

Mayor J. A. Wiles of the Dover coast town of New Romney, speaking at a mayoral banquet, said Churchill wrote him that he would "prefer to have the matter discussed after he left active politics or after he died."

The scheme, backed by Charles Davies, Boston engineer, was for a giant Churchillian figure surmounted by four huge bulldogs. Its electrically - lighted cigar end would have been visible from France.

PRIZE DOGS ATTACK OWNER

Quebec, Nov. 12 —(CP)— Neighbors, police and firemen went to the assistance of 73-year-old Steve Nestor yesterday when his three prize Newfoundland dogs attacked and seriously wounded him.

Nestor's neighbors and two sisters were unable to drive the 160-pound animals away after they leaped on him but police using clubs and a shovel were successful. Nestor was taken to hospital.

Hog Producers Ask Coarse Grains Be Under Board

Toronto, Nov. 12 (CP) — The Dominion government was urged yesterday by the presidents of Ontario Hog Producers Associations to "place grains under the Wheat Board or a similar board" because "it is essential for the security of the hog industry that speculation in coarse grains be eliminated."

In another resolution the meeting urged the government to consider making it possible "by loans and otherwise, for the people of Britain to secure increased rather than decreased quantities of food from Canada." The resolution said it was essential that Canada not lose the British market for bacon and other farm products.

Speaking of the removal of ceiling prices on feed grain, C.W. McInnis of Iroquois, president of the Ontario Hog Producers Association, charged: "Evidently someone knew what was going to happen and made a few millions by holding back coarse grains for the price increase."

"W have got to the point where we have lost all faith in government bargaining," said McInnis. "We have been told that the cabinet representatives of more powerful forces have over-ruled the Department of Agriculture."

Charles Newton, Barrie, and William Newman, Lorenville, said that a price agreement between the Hog Producers Marketing Board and the processors has kept the price of grade "A" hogs at Toronto at $23 a hundredweight during the present unprecedented run of hogs at the packing plants, following the packinghouse strike and the feed price increase and thus saved the producers from a hog price catastrophe.

"The agricultural prices support board has got to be a support board," declared secretary W.E. Tummon. "If it has not the power it needs, it should be given that power. If the government is going to insist that people be fed at a certain price, then the board should make up the difference between that price and our cost of production."

16 Men, Woman Become Stranded During Snowstorm

Sudbury, Nov. 12. (CP)—Sixteen men slept on the bunkhouse floor and a woman cook atop the kitchen table when a party of Toronto and Buffalo, N.Y., mining men became stranded in a snowstorm during the weekend near Gogama, 73 miles northwest of here.

The group, headed by Red Manning, of Toronto, flew to the site Saturday with Pilot Rusty Blake. After he returned to Sudbury to refuel, a violent snowstorm came up and the men, inspecting mining property at Beaver Lake, were marooned..

That night the men slept in a bunkhouse on the property after ripping down the partitions. As there were only six beds, each had his choice of a blanket, a mattress or one of the partitions to keep him off the floor.

At midnight David Foley of Buffalo and Fred Westbeare walked through drifts to an Ontario hydro electric system patrol telephone line more than a mile away. They telephoned Mayor D. Dowde of Buffalo, told him they were stranded and requested immediate aid. About 3 a.m., Sunday Buffalo authorities got in touch with Bill Taylor, chief forest ranger at Gogama.

Meanwhile Pilot Happy Hoare arrived with a light ariplane and began flying the men out two at a time. However, a low cealing halted operations with only half the party moved. A heavier plane brought the balance of the party out later in the day.

244,000,000 LOAVES OF BREAD FOR EUROPE

Officials watch in Philadelphia as the Julien Poydras is loaded with 349,000 bushels of wheat, the first shipment of grain for Europe under President Truman's emergency food program. The grain is enough for about 24,000,000 one-pound loaves of bread. Most Canadian wheat is shipped to Britain, but millions of bushels of rye and other foodstuffs have already been shipped to hungry Europe.

Capital Officials See European A-Bomb Stories Part of Red Strategy Seeking Military Data

By ELTON C. FAY

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP) — Many of the strange dispatches and thunderous speeches about atom bombs coming out of Europe strike official Washington as primarily Russian-inspired fishing expeditions for military information.

Also involved, well-informed authorities said privately today, is propaganda, intended for local Russian consumption as well as for the "cold war" of nerves.

Terming the fishing technique an old stand-by in military intelligence, these authorities said it works like this:

A rumor is planted at a point where it will be picked up by some newspaper, magazine or radio station. The idea is to get the rumor into circulation and then see whether it is denied or confirmed.

In the published denial or confirmation by any official or another power, the rumor-planter hopes to glean some information.

1. How much the United States knows about Russian progress or lack of progress toward producing an atom bomb. (In the spy trade, this is "counter-intelligence.")

2. Any hint of United States progress in improving its own bombs.

3. Whether the United States or any other power has a workable method of detecting an atomic bomb test explosion that might be made in some hidden corner of the world.

In a military intelligence fishing expedition, the idea is to plant the rumor where it will be stumbled on by publications not necessarily friendly to the source.

The instance of the dispatch printed yesterday by the Paris newspaper L'Intransigeant was cited as an example. The dispatch, telling of a purported test explosion of a 12 1-2-pound atomic bomb near the Russian city of Irkutsk, came to L'Intransigeant from Prague where it was reported to have arrived through "confidential sources" from Moscow.)

The same paper last July quoted unidentified sources as saying the United States had tested a new and powerful bomb which blew a crater 1,700 feet deep in New Mexico.

Because of the difference in the two situations, the atomic energy commission denied the July story but coldly ignored yesterday's report.

Holloway St. W.M.S. Presents Program at Tabernacle Church

The ladies' parlor of Tabernacle United Church was filled to capacity yesterday afternoon, when members of Holloway St. W.M.S. were guests of the Tabernacle auxiliary.

Mrs. A. D. Archibald, president of the hostess society, presided for the opening exercises and for the short business period, when Mrs. F. B. Jarrell, Mrs. W. B. May and Mrs. Chas. Hogle were appointed a nominating committee to prepare a slate of officers for 1948.

"The Bible for My Life" was the theme of a devotional period led by Mrs. C. A. Perkins of Holloway auxiliary, assisted by Mrs. Johns and Mrs. Wagar. Mrs. Johns led in the responsive reading of a portion of Psalm 119 and Mrs. Perkins in the meditation following, asking,—"What is in the Bible?" It is an age long diary recording a search by man for an immortal God. It is a book whose pages speak of God, pointing generations to Jesus Christ. If we fail to search through it, we forfeit our birthright."

Mrs. Wagar offered prayer.

The offering was received by Mrs. Baird of Tabernacle and dedicated by Mrs. Perkins.

Mrs. W. B. Weese called attention to the worship centre,—"an open Bible for the World." She said,—"Great is the company which labored to give the Bible to the world," and mentioned that in this post-war era more people everywhere are studying the Bible, and more Bibles are being sold than ever before. People are feeling a great need and are turning to God's word for a fulfilling of that need.

Mrs. Wagar, representing a wealthy Roman matron of the 4th century, told of the influx to Rome of men who came for the purpose of learning more of the Christian religion. Among them walked a modestly dressed monk, whose name was "Jerome." He attracted the attention of Pope Damascus, who made him Secretary of the Council of Churches, and later secretary to the Papacy, appointing him to translate the Psalms and the New Testament. A new pope persecuted St. Jerome, so he fled to Jerusalem for his life, and set himself the task of translating the Old Testament.

Two wealthy Roman women who had become interested in his teachings went with him, lived in Bethlehem, and assisted in the writing of his translation.

St. Jerome had become an old man, and his sight failed him so that at last he was entirely blind. Marcella, who had given all her wealth to the support of St. Jerome and his work, and the other Roman matron with her, continued to write and re-write for him, until after thirty years the translation was completed to his satisfaction.

Mrs. Campbell told the story of Dr. John Wycliffe, a teacher of theology at Oxford, who, in the face of violent opposition translated the Roman Vulgate into English during 1379, and managed to scatter many copies among common people and peasants. Poor priests travelled over all of England and read this translation to the illiterate people. They were harassed, hunted, persecuted and some even died at the stake because the nobles and barons did not want their "serfs" to understand God's democratic principles.

Mrs. Kilbank told of Wm. Tyndale, chaplain in the castle of Sir John Walsh, and tutor to his children. He moved to London on account of enmity and persecution among the gentry of other estates, and later left England, arriving in Hamburg 1524 and after three years had completed an English translation of the Bible. In 1526 he sent 6,000 copies from France to England in bales of grain and flax, and altho' many copies were seized and burned more copies followed. When Tyndale died, his last prayer was,—"O, Lord open the eyes of the King of England."

A "Do You Know" completed this very interesting presentation, and Mrs. Perkins concluded the program with prayer.

Mrs. A. H. Fisher expressed the gratitude of the Tabernacle ladies, to which Mrs. Kilbank, of Holloway St., responded.

Mrs. Hogle, social convener, and her committee served refreshments during the social hour which followed.

Stirling

F. Wilson, M.P.P., Addresses Aux.

Stirling—The regular monthly meeting of St. Paul's Women's Association was held at the home of Mrs. R. B. Duffin on Tuesday evening, November 4, with a splendid attendance.

The opening exercises and business portion of the meeting was conducted by the President Mrs. Walter Elliott. Following the reading of the minutes and correspondence the secretary reported eleven cards and three letters sent during the past month. The October visiting committee, Mrs. P. Utman and Mrs. R. Christie, reported sixteen calls made during the month. Mrs. C. I. Hatton and Mrs. H. L. Fair will act as the visiting committee for the current month.

Mrs. W. Preston, convener of the Friendly Workers' Group, gave a very interesting and complete report of their work during the past month and this very energetic group gave another donation of $20 to the W.A. A complete financial report of the W.A. was given by the Treasurer, Mrs. J. B. Thompson.

During the business portion of the meeting definite plans were made for the bazaar sale of fancy aprons, knitted goods, home cooking and afternoon tea to be held in the church parlors. The W.A. decided to cater for the two meals in connection with the Junior Farmers' Convention to be held in Stirling, on Saturday, November 29th.

The complete slate of officers were re-elected for the year 1948, and will be presented at the December meeting.

The program was capably directed by Mrs. R. Finkle. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Ted Reynolds, followed with prayer by Mrs. A. Armstrong. Mrs. C. Macklin and Mrs. Ivah Thain delighted the W.A. with a pleasing duet "There's Sunlight all along the Way of Life".

The guest speaker was Mr. Fred Wilson, M.P.P., who spoke on the assigned topic "Our Parliament". Mr. Wilson traced the history of the Legislature and gave a vivid description of the opening ceremonies and parliamentary procedure at a session.

The president very graciously thanked the speaker for coming to the W.A. meeting and giving his interesting talk.

During the social period refreshments were served by the committee in charge. Mrs. Gordon Bailey voiced the appreciation of all the ladies present to the hostess, Mrs. R. B. Duffin, Mr. Fred Wilson and all who took part on the program and the entire committee in charge.

ST. PETER'S W.M.S.

Madoc — On Thursday afternoon twenty-one members of St. Peter's Woman's Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. Ben Miller for their November meeting. Opening with the singing of a hymn and a short prayer, the president, Miss Van-Kleek, conducted the business period. Twenty-three calls were reported made during the month and a number of cards sent to the sick. A nominating committee was appointed to present a slate of officers at the December meeting. The monthly offering was dedicated by Mrs. Caverly. Mrs. Allan Johnson took charge of the devotional. The Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison and the phrase "For Thine is the Kingdom" was explained by Mrs. Johnson. Mrs. Dave Blakely read the Bible Story and prayer was offered by the president. The topic, "What of the Future?" was given in part by Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. McCaffrey and Miss Van-Kleek. The hostess, Mrs. Miller, was assisted by Mrs. John Hailstone in serving a cup of tea and light refreshments.

Book plate which was designed especially by a Canadian Nurse and which will be placed in every book being sent by the nurses of Canada to their colleagues in war-devastated countries to help replenish training school text-books destroyed. The book plate shows the map of Canada superimposed on a combination of the crests of the three branches in which nurses served — Army, Navy and Air Force. In the righthand corner is the Florence Nightingale lamp with the letters "C.N.A." beneath. At the bottom is the dedication.

During the war the lamp burned low as oppression fell on the nurses of war-devastated countries. Books were destroyed which cannot be replaced readily. From Canadian nurses goes this gift of books to help nurses overseas; some are already on the way.

The Canadian Nurses' Association has established a Memorial Fund through which $30,000 worth of text books will be sent to those countries whose need is most urgent. Actually Canada is in the fortunate position of being one of a few member countries in the International Council of Nurses which is in a position to help nurses in other countries. Nurses in Ontario have been asked to contribute $10,000. Donations are being solicited from every nurse. Will you please help?

The fund will remain open until December 31st. Donations can be deducted from your income tax. Send them to:

21 Microphones to Carry Abbey Event to World

By LESLIE HAYNES

London (Reuters) —Elaborate plans now being completed by news, radio and photographic organizations for covering the wedding of Princess Elizabeth and Lieut. Philip Mountbatten Nov. 20, will provide the world with one of the most complete records of any single event in British history.

News agencies and special correspondents of overseas newspapers will file several million words describing the wedding from the moment the Princess leaves Buckingham Palace with the King, from vantage points on the processional route, from inside Westminster Abbey itself and then as the Princess and her husband return to the Palace in their glass coach.

The British Broadcasting Corporation will broadcast continuous commentaries for two hours at home and throughout the world in eight languages.

For the benefit of listeners to the BBC's overseas services, there will be representatives of the major United States networks and French, Dutch, Norwegian, Danish, Italian, Greek, Latin American and Dominion commentators.

In the windows of one building alone, opposite to the entrance to the Abbey, there will be 12 commentators and 22 observers whose reports will be used in recorded broadcasts throughout the world later in the day.

In the Abbey itself, Wynford Vaughan Thomas of the BBC and a representative of the American networks will describe the scene from the organ loft overlooking the bridal group. Twenty-one microphones installed throughout the Abbey will record the whole of the marriage service—including the princess' promise to obey her husband.

Pictorial Record

Television viewers within 40 miles of London will be able to see the scenes outside the Abbey, but at the wish of the King that the ceremony shall retain the traditional dignity of a Royal marriage there will be no television inside the building itself.

Newsreel companies will provide a permanent pictorial record of the day's events, filmed by practically every newsreel camera available in the country. From street level, windows, rooftops and possibly from helicopters hovering near the route they will "shoot" the whole of the outdoor sections of the celebration but, like television, will not operate inside the Abbey.

One of the biggest problems facing the organizers of the ceremony has been to provide sufficient accommodation to satisfy newspaper correspondents' requests. About 500 applications for seats in the Abbey were made by British, Empire and foreign newspapers and news agencies. As the Abbey will seat only 2,000 people for the ceremony it was found impossible to issue anything like this number of press tickets and when the princess walks to the altar, she will be watched from a special stand by only 103 newspaper men and women. Half of them will represent the British Press, a quarter the Empire press and the remainder the United States and foreign press.

60 Food Parcels Sent to Britain By St. Julien Chap.

Mrs. Edgar Rutherford acted as hostess for the November meeting of the St. Julien Chapter of the I.O.D.E. at which the Regent, Mrs. E. J. Neate, announced that the donations from members of the Chapter for the Princess Elizabeth Fund had been forwarded to headquarters. The I.O.D.E. will send an ermine cape to the Princess as a wedding gift.

Surplus money collected individually from the Chapter members will be used to send food parcels to Britain.

Mrs. Neate, accompanied by Mrs. Ed. Thomas and Mrs. Edgar Rutherford, attended the provincial convention in Ottawa recently and presented their report of the convention.

Mrs. H. A. Brown, convener of the "Food to Britain" project, reported that 60 parcels with a total weight of 815 pounds, has been sent to England since the recent tag day. The St. Julien Chapter quota of $1,000 to the Second War Educational Memorial Fund has been forwarded to headquarters.

Each Chapter across Canada was given a quota to meet for this fund, the money to be used to provide education for those children of veterans killed overseas who would not otherwise be able to continue studies.

Girl Instructs Northern Fliers

Toronto, (CP) —Violet Milstead of Sudbury, has shattered the tradition of the traditionally male north country by becoming the world's first woman bush pilot. Arriving at this distinction wasn't easy, but Miss Milstead always found the easy way rather dull.

Not long ago on the short of a Northern Ontario lake a hunting party was packed and ready for the return trip by air. A northeaster scudded low clouds over the surrounding hills occasionally hurling wet snow or cold rain and the hunters were dubious that a plane would attempt a landing in the face of the coming storm.

Their gloom was short-lived however. A Fairchild Husky bush plane swung around into the wind and swooshed down onto the white water. Its pilot manoeuvred the big ship to the dock.

The door of the pilot's compartment swung open and a brown-eyed girl with wind-blown hair and a quick smile leaned out. Unbelievingly the party loaded up and embarked.

By the time they reached Sudbury they were sold on Miss Milstead, and she had won them by sheer ability and superb calm in the toughest going.

Miss Milstead is far from being a novice. During the war she put in some 2,000 hours overseas ferrying military aircraft for the Royal Air Force and is licensed to fly 50 types of aircraft. She holds an instructor's ticket and has the distinction of being the first girl instructor in a school for bush pilots.

Royal Wedding Notes

London, Nov. 12. (CP)—The question of whether the Royal wedding procession one week from tomorrow will be brightened by the issuance of colorful, full-dress uniforms to escorts of the household cavalry, still is undecided.

War Secretary Shinwell told the Commons today that the government "is considering" whether the horsemen will be able to accede to popular demand and shed their drab battledress.

Queen Mary's Gown

London,. Nov. 12. (AP)—Queen Mother Mary, 80, will wear a gown and hip-length cape of aquamarine chenille velvet and gold tissue for the wedding of her granddaughter, Princess Elizabeth, Buckingham Palace disclosed today.

The gown is floor-length in front, slightly trailing at the back, with a high neck line and long sleeves. Across the bodice, the mother of the King will wear the blue ribbon of the Garter with the Star of the Order.

She will wear a toque—the hat style she has preferred for years—of material similar to the dress, trimmed with an ostrich feathe. Her jewels will be a collar of pearls and a diamond necklace.

ONCE PICKETED WHITE HOUSE

San Francisco, Nov. 12 (AP)—Mrs. Beatrice Reynolds Kinkaid, who once was arrested for picketing the White House as a suffragette leader, died yesterday at her home. She was 73.

Regal and Humble to Rub Shoulders at Royal Wedding

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, (CP)—Besides members of the Royal Family, foreign royalty, official guests and friends of the Princess and her fiance, about 100 men and women in humble walks of life will occupy seats in Westminster Abbey at the Royal Wedding Nov. 20.

They will include men from the Princess's three regiments—Grenadier Guards, Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders and the 16th/5th Lancers—girls from the Auxiliary Territorial Service in which the Princess served during the war, and old servants and keepers from the Royal estates at Balmoral, Sandringham and Windsor.

Two special seats with a full view of the ceremony have been set aside by the Princess for her former governess, Miss Marion Crawford, and Anthony Buthlay, her husband.

Some of the Princess's fellow members of her old Sea Rangers troop at Windsor have been invited to see the procession from the courtyard of Buckingham Palace because there is not room for them at the Abbey.

As the bridal route is slightly shorter, crowds will not have as much chance of seeing the bridal pair as they did at the weddings of the King and Queen and the Duke and Duchess of Kent who travelled back to the Palace by a detour.

But they will have a second chance of seeing the couple when they set off from Buckingham Palace for the first part of their honeymoon at Broadlands in the New Forest of Hampshire. They will drive from the Palace in the carriage procession to the station and from there go to Hampshire by special train.

His, Her Gift Secret

Mountbatten's gift to his bride, and her gift to him, are being kept secret until the day of the wedding. The day after the public will be permitted to see all the wedding presents—expected to exceed 1,000—in the state rooms at St. James's Palace. An admission charge of 2s 6d (60 cents) will be made in aid of the Princess's favorite charities.

About 2,000 troops will line the route on Nov. 20. There will be four bands—at Buckingham Palace, Westminister Abbey and two along the royal route.

As the wedding date comes closer, there are signs that the authorities are thinking along with Winston Churchill that "millions will welcome this joyous event as a flash of color on the hard road we have to travel."

The ministry of food quietly informed food officers recently that should schools hold parties they may be granted limited extra rations. And caterers now have been told they may apply for supplementary food should they run short during the rush on London.

Buckingham Palace is to be floodlit on the night of the wedding. By permission of the ministry of fuel, batteries of floodlights used in the victory celebrations will light its facade, and large colored banners near the Palace will be illuminated by fluorescent lighting.

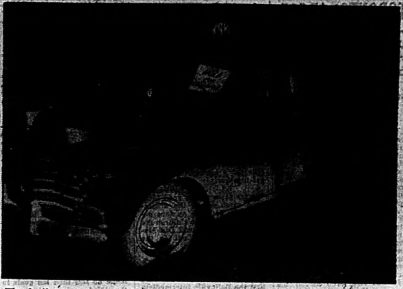
Second Toronto taxi-driver murdered within a year, the body of Ralph Margeson of Mount Dennis was found in a rain-soaked ditch along the Dixie Road, at spot indicated by arrow, half a mile north of the Queen Elizabeth Way, yesterday. No motive has yet been advanced for the brutal killing. Margeson carried only $15 at the time. He was shot through the head. Toronto, Provincial and Toronto Township police are seen as they gathered at the scene before the body was removed.



The death car was found abandoned in a laneway on Weston Rd. near St. Clair Ave. Blood and congealed matter covered the back seat floor mat. Margeson had telephoned his office that he was taking a fare to Port Credit at 12.30 a.m. Tuesday.

Where Are His Millions?

British Tax Collectors Seek Vast Fortune of the Late Lord Bute, Who Lived in Feudal Style in Many Castles and Who Was Richest Man in Britain When He Died

(By Harold A. Albert, writing from London, Eng., in the Kansas City Star.)

Britain is waiting with keen interest the result of an income tax investigation into the affairs of one of the richest peers of the realm, John Crichton-Stuart, the fourth marquess of Brute. When he died in April he left everything in apple-pie order, but with his vast wealth so carefully salted away that the authorities believe they can collect only a few million dollars in death duties in Britain.

The late Lord Bute was the richest man in all Britain. On his father's death he inherited a fortune of some 300 million dollars when he was a boy of 19.

As a young blood at Oxford the late Lord Bute's sole expression of joie de vivre was to go around smashing windows with his friends. The university was more riotious then than it is now, and the young aritsocrat smashed precisely 87 panes before he tired of the sport. The bill for damages was a mere $80, dollars which made window smashing seem cheaper than wine, women and song. After that, the marquess smashed ancestral conventions by selling some Bute property, but he always reinvested the proceeds in safer, surer and generally less taxable securities.

* * *

The Butes have made their way in the world. Descended from Scottish kings, a Bute married the daughter of a Welsh nobleman two centuries ago and gained as her dowry a foothold in the Welsh coal fields. The trade of the south Wales reached its prime when the present peer's great grand-father constructed the Bute docks at Cardiff and converted a small fishing village into a world famous port.

When the Nazis invaded Austria the late marquess saw the red light and hurriedly collected $25,000,000 in cash by selling more than 100,000 acres to a syndicate of three insurance companies. The transaction covered the ground rents of the huge Baldwin steel works, a string of drydocks, 500 factories, some 20,000 houses, 1,000 shops, 250 inns and hotels, and several theatres.

Long before the British government banned the export of currency, the marquess had left the country, and his money served to develop vast new estates in the international zone of Tangier, where the Butes have long been leading land owners.

Today his 39-year-old son, now the fifth marquess of Bute, owns the princely El Minzah hotel in Tangier, with its own in the Atlas mountains, as well as vast interests in Spain, Gibraltar and elsewhere in North Africa. In Guadalcorte castle, his regal home on the Spanish side of the Strait of Gibraltar, his guests admire one of the finest private collections of Spanish art, ranging from El Grecos to Goyas.

Another costly art collection is cached at Mount Stuart, the ancestral seat on the northerly island of Bute, where the new marquess was once taught his prayers at a $250,000 private Roman Catholic gold and silver altar. On British territory, however, he prefers to make his home on St. Kilda.

Over 50 miles from its nearest neighbor, St. Kilda is the most remote inhabited island of the British Isles. With 1,300 ft. cliffs landing is possible at only one point, and no tax inspector has ever penetrated its inaccessible secrets. Possessing a solitary temperament by heredity, the new marquess spends much time bird watching on St. Kilda.

On the mainland, however he still owns seven great castles and country houses. His father made one of his few splashes by arriving at Buckingham palace 25 years ago in a gilded state coach more magnificent than that of the king. Today, tourists visiting Cardiff usually blink with astonishment when they find a fanastic moated castle—older and larger than Windsor itself—another Bute home, in the main street though barely half a mile from some of the worst slums in Wales, peacocks strut on the smooth lawn and aproned gardeners tend the flower beds.

Most men of wealth dislike publicity, but the fourth of Bute, the present marquess' father, shunned the limelight with an adept proficiency born of years of experience. While he was alive he never gave interviews, was rarely photographed, held no public office and lived obscurely, almost furtively, in one or another of his great castles and country houses.

But where is the hard core of Bute wealth? Some years ago when the family sold a $25,000,000 string of docks to the Great Western railway it was asserted that the cash was invested in North America. But it is just as vehemently claimed that the money from this deal was salted away in South Africa. However, not long after this the Butes became proprietors of the famous rock hotel, Gibraltar. Until the war Gibraltar was one of those happy places where income tax was unknown.

Millions have certainly been invested in the antique furniture and works of art at the other Bute homes. There is the priceless store of antique furniture at Kames castle, the fine armor at Dumfries house Ayrshire; the paneling and rich comforts of Mochrum castle and the historic tapestries at Falkland palace.

When his wife, Augusta, expressed a desire to ride to hounds, the late marquess promptly gave her Cottesmore hall, centre of the famous Cottesmore hunt in the finest hunting country in Britain. When the bulk of his seven children grew old enough to appreciate playing with castles, he took over the ruins of Caerphilly, the largest castle in Wales, and spent over $750,000 in restoring it.

* * *

Until recently the Butes drew $550,000 anually from coal mining royalties alone. When the Labor government nationalized coal and brought out the royality owner, $8,250,000 was paid to Lord Bute as 15 years' purchase. It was a stiff price, but the colliery output in south Wales and the Scottish coal fields has soared since the resentful miners were freed of the Bute "iron grip."

Yet even in modern Britain toll fees still have to be paid over Bute owned roads. The Cardiff corporation has to pay $10,000 a year in toll fees for running a public bus service over a road owned by the Penarth Toll Co., which operates for Lord Bute and Lord Plymouth estates.

With their liveried servants, gold plated staircases and feudal splendor, their shooting estates and private isles, their lead mines in Wales and pyrite mines in Spain, the Bute have been called an anachronism in a modern world. Currently they are credited with plans to employ native labor in turning York castle, on the hills dominating the international zone of Tangier, into a family fortress greater and grander than Cardiff castle.

Today not a few experts see in the Bute transfer from Cardiff to Tangier a flight from the Welsh eldorado to one in north Africa. But the British government hopes to exact a major portion of their wealth in death duties before the next stone is laid.

Many Magdalen Is. Residents Never Leave Home During Life

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

House Harbor, Magdalen Islands, Que., Nov. 12 —(CP)— This is the land where people boast they can live without a lawyer and die without a doctor. Many do just that.

And many of the 10,000 people who dwell in the Magdalen group in the St. Lawrence Gulf between Gaspe and Cape Breton never know any other land than that which makes up the tiny island chain, some linked by a road, others reachable only by boat.

"I would say that 70 per cent of our people are born here and die here without ever going off the islands, without ever seeing a train or a street car," said Jean Gauthier, a road engineer who directed construction of the main road of the Magdalens.

"We are hardy here and we live long," he said.

The islanders' hardihood is in the tradition of Auguste le Bourdais, dead some 20-odd years or more but who was so badly frozen that islanders who found him chopped off his legs with an axe. Yet he lived to operate the government wireless station for years after that.

Le Bourdais' story is one of the island's legends and School Inspector Ovid Hubert told how Le Bourdais was the sole survivor of a ship wrecked on Coffin Island in a winter storm. Friends found him on the beach, swollen out of shape and crusted with ice.

"They amputated his legs and the story is that it took eight men to hold him on a table while another man chopped off the legs with an axe," said Hubert as he pointed out places of interest in his native islands.

In many respects the islands are a land where time has gone forward slowly. The walruses have disappeared and houses dot the islands but otherwise they would be recognizable to Jacques Cartier who in 1534 made landfall here.

On Grindstone Island, one of the largest, there are a few patches of evergreen trees which islanders say mischievously lend themselves to the making of spruce beer. Otherwise the island is bare of tree growth, except for shrubby pine that never gets out of the shrub stage.

Mostly the islands are rolling country but the sandy soil doesn't produce enough to feed the people. Cattle are few and the pasturage thin. The main crop is potatoes.

SENDS PRINCESS BLUE GARTER

Somerville, Mass., Nov. 11 — (AP)—So Princess Elizabeth could have "something old, something new, something borrowed and something blue," at her coming marriage Nov. 20 to Lieut. Philip Mountbatten, she was sent a blue garter by Mrs. Ella Wehage.

In return, Mrs. Wehage yesterday received a note of thanks and an invitation from the Princess, through a lady in waiting, for a tea to be given at St. James's Palace Nov. 17.

Mrs. Wehage said she would have to turn down the invitation.

Dog Saves Lives Of 20 Persons

East Angus, Que., Nov. 12— (CP)—A dog was credited yesterday with saving the lives of 20 persons, asleep in a wooden house which was destroyed by fire of unknown origin. The building, housing three apartments, is on a road linking this eastern townships town with Bishopton.

The flames were discovered by Harry Gorham, a tenant, who wakened in the middle of the night when the dog, locked in an adjoining shed by owner Angelo Frezidon, barked continuously.

The walls and roof of the building caved in shortly after the occupants escaped in night clothes.

CHARGED WITH SHOP-BREAKING

Toronto, Nov. 12 (CP) —Jack Moroz, 41, was arrested yesterday and charged with shopbreaking and having burglar's tools and police said he had been found seeking to batter a way into a vault in a downtown building. Police said that when they arrived a hole about two feet square had been made in the vault wall. They said Moroz had spent three hours on the job, left for a cup of coffee in a restaurant and then returned to work.

Five U.S. Imports Named To All-Star O.R.F.U. Team By Coaches, Football Writers

Bob Cunningham, Canadian Product, Halfback of Toronto Balmy Beach, Heads Voting

By WILF GRUSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 12 — (CP) — The playing worth of this season's crop of American imports was recognition today in the Ontario Rugby Football Union's all-star team. Football writers and coaches in the six union cities, who selected the team for The Canadian Press, named five of the Union's 18 American players to the 13-man squad.

Actually United States men took four of the 12 positions on the team, announced last night. Two of them ranked even for the snapback position — Baz Petry of Toronto Balmy Beach and Fred Gabriel of Hamilton Wildcats. Petry once played with the Great Lakes Naval Station team from Chicago and Gabriel comes from Niagara Falls, N.Y.

The backfield contains two Americans. Bill Petrilas of Ottawa Trojans, a former player with the professional New York Giants, took a running half position. Bob Paffrath, former University of Minnesota player who won the Union's most valuable player award, was named to the secondary defence half spot. He played with Toronto Indians. Joe Farley, the Lake Placid, N. Y., boy who topped the Union scorers with 38 points, is at outside wing, the position he filled with Ottawa Trojans.

Canadian Tops Voting

Bob Cunningham, a Canadian product, topped the voting. The young halfback of Toronto Balmy Beach in his second season in senior football had 18 of a possible 24 points in the balloting, weighted to give equal voting strength to each union city.

The Wildcats placed five players on the mythical squad — Bill Murmylyk at flying wing, Mel Lawson at quarterback, Fred Gabriel at snap, Bud Donald at inside wing and Gord Lawson at outside.

The Beaches had three players — Don McKenzie at inside wing in addition to Cunningham and Petry. The charging line play of Windsor Rockets brought all-star recognition to two of the players on the team which failed to make the union playoffs — Vic Ghetti and Steve Chamko at middle wing spots. The Trojans have two men on the team — Petrillas and Farley— and Toronto Indians one — Paffrath. Sarnia Imperials who failed to win a game in their 10 starts, failed to gain a place.

Only two players from the 1946 all-stars were named to the 1947 team — McKenzie and Ghetti.

The dream team packs solid strength — although some of the union's highest scoring players like Gordon Miller, Tony Labarbera and Benny Dyack of the Wildcats, Doug Smylie of the Trojans and Don Crowe of the Indians failed to gain a place.

Top Place Kicker

Murmylyk, a 30-year-old Hamilton product, ranks as the union's top place-kicking artist. He kicked three field goals and 15 converts during the season and had a touchdown as well for 29 points. Farley, with 38, and Gordon Lawson with 30 ranked first and third, respectively, in union scoring.

Gordon Lawson and his brother Mel, slick-looking quarterback who played last season with University of Toronto, form the union's most potent forward passing combination. Nearly all of Gordon's six touchdowns came on passes from brother Mel whose long, sure shots were a major factor in the successful campaign of the Wildcats, who lost only one of their 10 scheduled starts.

The team:

Flying wing — Bill Murmylyk, Wildcats;
Half — Bob Cunningham, Balmy Beach;
Half — Bill Petrilas, Trojans;
Half (secondary defence — Bob Paffrath, Indians;
Quarter — Mel Lawson, Wildcats;
Snap — Baz Petry, Balmy Beach, and Fred Gabrial, Wildcats (tied);
Inside — Don McKenzie, Balmy Beach;
Inside — Bud Donald, Wildcats;
Middle — Vic Ghetti, Rockets;
Middle — Steve Chamko, Rockets;
Outside — Joe Farley, Trojans;
Outside — Gord Lawson, Wildcats.

HERSHEY BEARS ON TOP OF LOOP

(By The Canadian Press)

On Nov. 3 Hershey Bears were embeded in the cellar of the American Hockey League's eastern section, today the same team find themselves perched on top of the loop, one point in front of Providence Reds and New Haven Ramblers.

Bears have a 19-year-old centre-star from Toronto to thank for their 3-2 victory over Philadelphia Rockets last night. Paul Ronty turned in a sensational performance, ramming home all three Hershey goals. Philadelphia scorers were Steve Wochy and Al Shewchuk.

Indianapolis slipped two pucks into the Washington net in the first period to take a 2-0 lead which they never lost. Fernand Gauthier, Lloyd Doran and Cliff Simpson bulged the twine for the Capitals while Win Mousseau and Red Raney tallied for Lions.

TORONTO ARGOS GAIN THREE-POINT LEAD IN SERIES

Strategy and Performance of Joe Krol Ace Backfielder of Winners Helps

Ottawa, Nov. 12, (CP) —Defensively and offensively powerful, the Dominion Champion Toronto Argonauts held a three-point edge today as they prepared for the final game of their two-game, total-point series in Toronto Saturday against their traditional gridiron foe, Ottawa Rough Riders.

Argos splashed and slid to a 30 victory over the Riders in the first series game here yesterday. And they won it entirely on the strategy and performance of their ace backfielder, Joe Krol, in a contest which slithesed through two hours of miserable, unspectacular play.

It was Krol who moved the game into the Ottawa camp in the first half with a quick return of the rider kick-off, and it was the same Joe who ran a short Ottawa kick-off back 30 yards after the teams came back on the field for the third quarter. The weather did the rest.

Argos settled for a single after a first drive quarter to the 10-yard line ended with Krol's placement attempt bouncing off the posts and rouging Ken Charlton. They got another a few minutes later when Tremblay failed to get Krol's kick out and was rouged.

There was no further scoring until the final period, when another Krol kick rouged Howie Turner. And most of the game was a punting bout which failed to have any edge as the wet ball went for only short distances.

Passes were almost abandoned. Argos tried only one, completing it for yards when officials ruled interference and a completed pass on the play. Riders tried three, and made yards on one, but another dived into a puddle and the third was intercepted for a dead loss.

After that, both teams kicked on first and second downs in attempts to force an opposition miscue.

Fumbles, however, were few, considering the terrain.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

There's plenty of wishful thinking going on up around Peterborough way and in the heart of the Limestone City east o' here insofar as hockey groupings under the aegis of the OHA is concerned. Nearly every dawning you pick up one of the sheets from the Davis chain and peruse what has transpired at some kind or other of a hockey association get-together.

• • •

So far some rather good ideas have come out of the dream-conclaves of these various organizations but the children are allowed to play until Old Mother OHA comes out in the open and tells them what to do.

• • •

Some time ago certain Petes hockey mentors got the idea that the Belleville intermediate squad would do well by entering a three-team Senior "B" loop with two Peterborough squads. That looked fine coming from a village that has to jaunt several miles to play the game, and which put the onus of travel on the Belleville crew. That idea must have dropped for nothing further has been heard of it.

• • •

Then up pops the Kingston round - table gang with the suggestion that a grouping might be formed of two teams, Queen's and Saints from that hamlet, the ANAFS from this village, Peterborough and Oshawa. The grapevine has it that the two Peterborough teams have patched up some sort of a difference, if any, between them and will operate dually again this year. That would make, reports state, a seven-team grouping, with again plenty of travel for Belleville and Oshawa.

• • •

And now another grouping burp exudes from Perdue's bailiwick up around the Kawartha Lakes way which affects the junior squads. According to the diminutive ex-RSM. who scrivens for the Peterborough sheet some of the boys were whooping it up in the local Oddfellows' Hall and decided to exercise their junior "B" franchise again this season.

• • •

They magnanimously agreed to take a bye in O.H.A. playdowns "if they could" and play in a proposed junior city loop. But the lads don't feel htat the O.H.A. magnates will permit this so—and listen to this—"will go into an O.H.A. junior grouping with perhaps Belleville, Lindsay and either Port Hope or Oshawa. Kingston was not mentioned because perhaps of that extra 50 miles.

• • •

Which may be wistful thinking, but it sounds reasonable to this corner—and quite likely a grouping of this nature would be welcomed by the Junior "B" Management here. As matters stand, it looks as though our junior "B" hopefuls may be left on the "bye" doorstep and play exhibition games until the playdowns start. However they would much prefer a four or five team grouping to get the kinks out of their legs before the payoffs begin.

• • •

And according to talk that drifted around the meeting of the District Hockey Association meeting last Sunday, there may be quite a strong Intermediate "B" group operate here right under the noses of the faithful. The management of the Belleville Hornets came out flat-footed with the statement that they intended, if possible, to join the ranks of the "B's". Bloomfield Sky Chiefs have intimated similar ideas, as have the Trenton Flyers. Trenton Town is on the brink of a like decision—so after all the "B's" may yet have their day hereabouts.

• • •

There were plenty of surprises at Memorial Arena last night when the Belleville Juniors outlucked the Point Anne squad 8-6 and a flying Campbellford squad scored six goals against the hitherto powerful Madoc team before the villagers found hockey pay dirt.

• • •

The Juniors turned in a disappointing display. They lacked organized fire and only some brilliant individual efforts and the occasional passing plays that clicked got them the nod over the plucky Ox Pointers. The teams rammed home no less than ten goals in the third period, with both squads getting five, and only the final splurge of the city squad in the last few minutes gained them the victory. Schreider, Johnny Green and Don Semark carried the mail for the local kids, while Hurst didn't help his cause any with two minors and a misconduct penalty.

Point Anne produced a star

in Lorne Maracle who scored three of his teams goals and assisted in another. Murney Green, Jr., who had poppa at the helm also turned in a good job as did Smith in the Point Anne nets. Clare Williamson and Holland turned in stellar efforts on the defence and with this pair behind the blueline plus the power up front, don't sell these Ox Pointers short.

• • •

Madoc, short three men, failed to get organized in the first period even with the redoubtable Leo Goyer, Timmy Williams and Bill Holway in harness. The Campbellford crew swept in, around and about them for twenty-three minutes and Hearn in the Madoc rigging saw more rubber than a Malayan planter at the peak of the season. They rammed home six goals with nary a return and it looked like a basketball score. But Madoc rallied, and even threw John Baker into the breach. They came back to score four goals to Campbellfords one in the last two sessions, and were going all out at the final bell.

• • •

That rumbling, you might have heard about 10.30 last night was not an earthquake. It was probably Diogenes turning over in his hallowed grave. Because we discovered the guy ancient Dioge, looked for, plus lantern for several years. Believe it or not, after many years dabbling in the realm of sport we've found that rarity, an honest referee. We've seen umpires, referees and other officials who gave decisions, with tongue in cheek, knowing they had to do something of that sort, right or wrong. And they have been both. But last night's discovery was a gasper. His Nibs, the near venerable 'Toots' Holway hobbled over into the press box after the red light flashed, straightened out an arthritic limb and grunted, "Boys you'll have to ask someone else who scored that one. I didn't see it." S'help me, tis true.

• • •

Several minutes later when the press, radio, timekeepers, match-holders, etc., had been revived, a kindly customer ventured the correct information.

Brown's Purse Held Up Pending Report of Judges

(By The Canadian Press)

In the estimation of Ontario Athletic Commissioner Syl Apps Boxer Joe Brown of New Orleans didn't try "as hard as he could" in a fight with Li'l Arthur of Toronto in Toronto Monday night.

Apps declared in Toronto yesterday that Brown's purse, a percentage of the gate at Maple Leaf Gardens, would be held up pending a report from the referee and judges. King won a split decision in the eight-found match. In their first meeting several weeks ago, Brown handily outpointed the Toronto boy.

A double player swap between Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League and Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League was announced yesterday by Bisons general manager Art Chapman. He said that centre Murdo McKay and right wingman Leo Gravelle would go to Montreal and that centre Tod Campeau and right winger Floyd Curry would join the Buffalo team.

Tomorrow night sees another exciting double bill scheduled for the Memorial palace when Bloomfield Sky Chiefs meet the Belleville Hornets and those ancient rivals in many a hockey battle. Stirling and Tweed meet in arena combat. Hornets have strengthened with Art Plumley in the nets, while Bloomfield smarting under that defeat handed them by the Juniors a while back, will not be any pushovers. The second game should see some nifty action, as these teams hold no love for each other on the ice. There should be plenty to see and enthuse over.

It's considered likely that two players recalled by New York Rangers yesterday from New Haven Ramblers of the American Hockey League will see action in tonight's game in New York against Boston Bruins. The players are right wing Eddie Kullman and defence man Jack Lancien.

E. J. (Dutch) Harrison of Little Rock, Ark., stayed in front all the way yesterday to win the $10,000 Hawaiian Open golf tournament at Honolulu with a blistering 13-under-par 275. Four strokes in back was Johnny Bulla of Phoenix, Ariz., Dai Rees, star of the British Ryder Cup team, came up fast to finish third with 281.

Fifty-six outside and eight Kitchener-Waterloo rinks are scheduled to compete in Kitchener next week in the annual Granite Club bonspiel. The curlers will battle for the Goodrich trophy, defenced by T. F. Beatty, Toronto Victorias, and the Mutual Life Trophy, defended by Carl Asmussen's Kitchener rink.

In recognition of his outstanding contribution to curling in Canada, D. E. Kennedy, recently elected president of the Ontario Curling Association, was honored yesterday with a life membership in the Guelph Curling Club.

The organizing committee for the 1948 Olympic games in London has not yet reached agreement with Britain's food chiefs on the problem of feeding the 6,000 foreign athletes expected to compete.

Discussions over rations are proceeding almost daily, but nutrition experts say no hard-and-fast decision can be made until it is known just how much food will be brought along by the visiting teams.

Campbellford, Belleville Jrs. Victors Over Madoc, Pt. Anne In District Loop Twin Bill

Ox Pointers Throw Scare Into Juniors Who Give Disappointing Display; Madoc Rallies to Reduce Campbellford's Early 6-Goal Lead; Scores Were 8-6 and 7-4

The Point Anne entry in the Belleville District Hockey Association threw a scare into the Belleville Juniors in the opening game of a twin bill in Memorial Arena last night and extended them to their lackadaisical limit before bowing to the Harris Kids by an 8-6 score. In the nightcap, a shorthanded Madoc squad spotted the strong Campbellford aggregation, five goals in the first period and one more in the second before they dented the twine. Madoc rallied in the second and third chukkers outscoring the opposition four to two before going down under a 7-4 count.

Belleville Juniors 8 Point Anne 6

Scoring no less than ten goals in the third period with honors being evenly divided, the Point Anne-Belleville Juniors battled to an 8-6 Junior victory with the score being tied no less than three times in the final heat, after the Ox Pointers were trailing 3-1 at the end of the second period.

The city team turned in a mediocre exhibition during the greater part of the game and it was not until the visitors threatened to turn what looked like certain defeat into victory did they rally sufficiently to ward off the danger.

The game was a wide open affair with plenty of bumps, speed and goals. The Juniors passing plays failed to click and the greater number of their goals came through individual efforts, or with two-men drives. Point Anne showed plenty of power and will improve as the season goes along. At that they threw a bad scare into their city foemen, and nearly pulled the game out of the fire.

10 Goals Scored

With the score 3-1 going into the final period the game developed into a wide-open scoring splurge with both squads hitting the rigging for five goals each. Maracle popped in two quick goals to tie the count in the first 90 seconds but Juniors got those back from the sticks of J. Green and Defelice. The Point evened the count on markers from Pat Maracle and Clare Williamson but Johnny Green put the city team ahead on a pass from Milligan a minute later. Gilmour again evened the count and the teams went at it hammer and tongs for the break.

Green gave the Juniors a one-goal lead with five minutes to go and Don Semark on one of the prettiest goals of the night put them two up and that's how it ended.

Schrieder, Defelice, Green, Milligan and Semark were the best for Juniors with Lorne Maracle, Williamson, Murney Green Jr., Everett and Holland carrying the mail for the Pointers.

Campbellford 7, Madoc 4.

Opening with a surprising display of offensive power, the Campbellford squad showing plenty of punch going both ways, had the faithful on their feet when they rammed home five goals in the first period to take a lead that was never headed. They showed plenty of ability in their forward lines and a heavy hard checking defence that had the fancied Madoc team practically helpless during the initial.

Madoc was short three of their players, and John Baker was forced into action with Leo Goyer and Timmy Williams doing a sixty-minute stunt. But the Campbellford squad tasted blood in that first semester, and even had the opposition down six goals shortly after the second heat got under way. Pelanquin, Blake, R. Robinson, West and Hendy dented the twine in that first hectic period with Blake scoring his second goal of the game a minute after the second heat had got under way.

Reduced Margin

Madoc rallied at this point and reduced the margin by two when Leo Goyer and Bill Holway sank the rubber midway through the period to make the count 6-2. Lovelace made it 6-3 going into the final session but West came back to add another for Campbellford. Goyer, Williams and Holway teamed up for Madoc's fourth and last goal midway through the session. The villagers drove hard to reduce the count but the sturdy Campbellford defence and their backchecking forwards staved off the threat.

Goyer, Williams, Holway and Lovelace looked the best of the Madoc team with Pelanquin, Blake, Pettersen, West and Hendy being the pick of the winners.

The teams:

Point Anne: Goal, Smith; defence, Williamson, Everett; centre, L. Maracle; wings, Genereaux, P. Maracle; subs, Green, Horwood, Gilmour, Whalen, Loft, Holland, Goyer, Vollick.

CANADIAN HORSES TOPPED TWO MAIN EVENTS AT SHOW

Dominion Four-Horse Military Team Placed Third in International Contests

New York, Nov. 12 — (CP) — Canadian horses topped two main events in the 64th National Horse show which closed last night, while a Dominion four-man military team placed third in international jumping contests.

Poppy, 22-year-old chestnut mare owned by Lieut. W. R. Ballard of Weston, Ont., and Flying Colors, a piebald gelding owned by Vernon G. Cardy of Montreal who had four other horses place, were the non-military jumping stars in equine classic which had only 15 Canadian entries of the more than 400 horses competing in Madison Square Garden for eight days.

The Mexico Army team jumpers who made a brilliant display throughout the competitions, last night, won the International Perpetual trophy for the second straight year.

The Canadian team was eliminated in the first round of the competition in which four horses from each of the four countries participating jumped. The Eire and United States teams tied for second place.

A crowd of some 12,000 watched Poppy come off second best in the $2,000 open jumping stake but win the open jumping championship by a single point by virtue of triumphs in earlier contests.

Flying Colors was the most sensational of the 10 Cardy entries. The piebald won the working Hunter Championship, drawing cheers from the spectators every time he entered the ring ridden by Helen Ferguson, 23-year-old blonde from Montreal. Helen's twin sister, Edith, was fourth, riding Fort Riley.

Helen's average for performances through the week carried her to the 1 1-2 point victory over more than 40 rivals for the championship.

The military teams will carry their feud to the Royal Winter Fair opening for an eight-day stay at Toronto Nov. 18. The Canadian team comprises Sqdn. Ldr. Douglas Cleland, Toronto; Lieut. Ballard; and Lt.-Col. H.A. Phillips and Maj. J.A. Laroque both of the Camp Borden, Ont.

SPITFIRES WIN SIXTH IN ROW, TRIM MARLIES 4-1

St. Michael's Majors Trounce Guelph Biltmores in Scrappy Contest

(By The Canadian Press)

Windsor Spitfires seem unperturbed by the loss of Terry Sawchuk to professional ranks as they cruise undefeated through the Ontario Hockey Association's junior "A" schedule.

Last night they ran their winning streak to six straight games by defeating Toronto Marlboros 4-1 in the first match of an O.H.A. junior A twin-bill at Maple Leaf Gardens.

In the Gardens' night-cap Toronto St. Michael's Majors squeezed out a 2-1 victory over Guelph Biltmores. Galt Rockets swamped Toronto Young Rangers 10-2 in a junior "A" fixture at Galt and the Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen climbed into sole possession of second place in the O.H.A. senior A loop when they trimmed Owen Sound Mercurys 7-3 at the Georgian Bay arena.

Windsor sub-goalie Gord Buckley didn't get much of a workout at the Gardens. Only Marlboros' Bobby Hassard beat him, assisted by Ray Timgren and George McLagan. Gord Raidy led Spitfires with two goals. Jim Hay with one counter and Jim Uniac with a goal and an assist, added other Windsor tallies.

The Gardens' second tilt was hard-played throughout. The third period developed into a slugfest with nine penalties, two of them majors. Twice in the last frame both St. Mike's and Guelph played with two men short at the same time.

The Collegians were sparked by Joe DeCourcey and Pete Whelan with one goal each, while Yacker Flynn tallied the Guelph counter, Tatter McClellan assisting.

Goalie a Standout

It was sub-standard junior hockey at Galt arena with erratic passing and weak rearguards despite the lop-sided score. However, in defeat, Ranger goalie Ralph McLellan was a standout. He batted, kicked, caught and smothered the rubber in rather unorthodox style but saved Toronto Young Rangers from a much more embarrassing defeat.

Wiggy Wylie led Galt scorers with three goals. Harry Marchand and Harry Pidherny each tallied twice for Rockets with other Galt counters coming from Steve Brklachich, Harry Hopper and Ken McNally. Ranger scorers were Doug Chapman and Doug Ashbee.

The Flying Dutchmen's win at Owen Sound snapped a second place tie with Hamilton Tigers and put them just two points behind Toronto Marlboros in the senior A race.

Only in the scoreless first period did the Mercurys have the edge in play. The Dutchmen fired in four counters in the second frame, yielded an early Owen Sound tally in the last stanza and ran the margin to 7-1 before Mercurys broke through again. Dutchmen goalie Keith Woodall handled 21 shots on goal and Bobby Gilson kicked out 25.

Johnny Blute led K-W scorers with three counters. Jerry Olinski, Bobby Dixon, Dutch Hiller and Ted Grasser tallied other goals. Owen Sound tallies came from Jim Boddy, Doug Gillespie and Bun White.

In tonight's lone senior game the cellor-dwellers, Brantford Redmen meet third place Hamilton Tigers in the mountain city. Slated in the junior loop are Barrie at Stratford, Oshawa at St. Catharines and Toronto Young Rangers at Windsor.

SMYTHE DEFENDS BILL EZINICKI FROM ATTACKS

Leafs' Manager Demands Boucher be Fined According to League Rules

By ROBERT CLARKE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

No three-ring circus ever provided a livelier brand of entertainment than National Hockey League fans found served up today over the cavortings of Wild Bill Ezinicki of Toronto Maple Leafs.

Ezinicki set the frantic frolics in motion last Saturday when New York Rangers played Leafs in Toronto. Since then, coach Frank Boucher of Rangers, N.H.L. President Clarence Campbell, and managing director Conny Smythe of Leafs have juggled their way into the situation.

Smythe disclosed yesterday he had written Campbell asking that action be taken against Boucher on grounds the New York coach had acted in a manner prejudicial to the welfare of the league in protesting over Ezinicki's play in last Saturday's game. Smythe charged that Boucher was liable to a $1,000 fine under the league's by-laws.

Boucher revealed earlier in the week he had sent a wire to Campbell suggesting that steps be taken to curb "unnecessary roughness" by Ezinicki. Boucher took this step after Edgar Laprade, Rangers' centre suffered a mild concussion in the game Saturday night in a collision with Ezinicki.

Said Smythe:

"I am not going to have my players pilloried by one or two coaches. Ezinicki has played now in every city in the league this season except Boston and in 10 games has averaged less than two minutes in penalties."

The Leafs due to take on Chicago Black Hawks in Toronto tonight and Rangers scheduled to play host to Boston Bruins, the furore stirred up over Ezinicki's play vied along the N.H.L. news front with the disclosure that Hawks had signed Roy Conacher.

Chicago president Bill Tobin slipped quietly into Toronto yesterday and with Detroit's permission talked Conacher out of his decision to quit hockey. The big winger, who scored 30 goals last season, had been a holdout with Detroit Red Wings and then refused to sign when traded to Rangers.

Meanwhile, Detroit received good news when it was revealed that goalie Harry Lumley, injured in last Sunday night's game against Leafs, would be able to return to action immediately.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

They can say what they please about bridge signals being too bookish. The fact remains that such signals help to decide contracts with greater precision and a higher degree of confidence.

We sat north in this pair:

SOUTH
♠ A Q
♥ A K Q
♦ A Q J 9 8 7 6

♠ 8 7 5 4 2
♥ 7 6 4
♦ 5 4 3 2
♣ 10

The bidding went like this:

South	North
2 D	2 NT
3 D	4 D
5 NT	6 C
6 D	Pass

In answer to an opening of two in a suit, two no-trump is simply a signal for denying the possession of a sure trick (ace or K Q). Whatever such a hand does have is shown on later rounds.

South thus knows that my north hand has no K Q combination. But I could still have kings that my first two bids could not reveal.

My second bid merely admitted support for rebiddable diamonds.

Five no-trump is the signal for asking partner how many kings he holds. If I could show two kings, my partner in south was inclined to go to a grand slam bid of seven, hoping one king was in diamonds.

In answer to five no-trump, six clubs shows no kings. With this disappointing information, south knows that a grand slam is much too dangerous. Also that a small slam may depend on two finesses.

In the Kibitzer convention, four no-trump asks partner how many aces and kings he has. Any response at the level of five shows only one ace and the exact number of kings as well.

But when a player bids five no-trump to ask for information, he inquires only as to the number of kings held by partner. Know your limitations or flirt with deprivations.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 12 —(AP)— Six to go. That's the attitude of Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., to his picture career. After six more films he plans to give up swords and swashbuckling and return to his favorite field, diplomacy.

Of the six, at least three will be for the Fairbanks Company with which Doug is carrying on the family tradition. The others will be for other studios.

"I hope," he added cautiously, "that these films will make enough money to enable me to enter the diplomatic field."

Doug is making good progress toward that goal. His first production, "The Exile," appears to be a moneymaker and by owning his pictures, he can expect an income from them over a period of years.

Another factor involving his future retirement from the screen is his hearing. During his navy service he suffered an ear injury. The hearing in his right ear is failing and Doug expects total deafness on that side in time. Hearing is important to an actor.

But his main reason is his love of diplomacy. He got his first taste of it in 1937 when he performed special missions for the United States in 1941, he was a presidential envoy to Brazil, Argentina, Chile, Uruguay and Peru. He served five years in the navy, emerging as a commander. He is believed to be the most decorated of theatrical persons of the war. His medals include the Legion of Merit, Silver Star, French Legion of Merit and Croix de Guerre with Palm.

Back to Normal

There are a few encouraging indications that Hollywood, which has been deadly serious lately, is resuming some of its zany aspects . . . In the mail comes an invitation to sweat out a press conference with Henry Morgan at 3 p.m. this Friday. The place? The steam room at Terry Hunt's Health Eporium . . . .

Brief Review

"Cas Timberlane" (MGM), like most picturized novels, tries to cover too much ground. It would have been better at less length and with more development of character. Still, there is plenty of interest in the story of a small-town judge who seeks honesty and love. And Spencer Tracy and Lana Turner are excellent in their best roles in years.

ROY CONACHER SIGNS CONTRACT WITH THE HAWKS

Tobin Gives Detroit Sum of Money and Player at End of Season

Toronto, Nov. 12 — (CP) —Roy Conacher, hockey's most notable holdout this season, signed a contract Tuesday to play with Chicago Black Hawks and will appear in a National Hockey League game here tonight against Toronto Maple Leafs.

President William Tobin of the Chicago club announced that the Toronto boy who played left wing last season with Detroit Red Wings signed a contract this morning. Earlier he had been in touch with the Detroit club and agreed to pay them a sum of money for Conacher and to deliver a player to the Red Wings at the end of this season.

Conacher first refused to sign with the Red Wings for this season's campaign. The Wings traded him to New York Rangers but that deal fell through when he turned a deaf ear to overtures from coach Frank Boucher of the Rangers.

Tobin, who admitted that it cost the Black Hawks $25,000 in cash to get the player who scored 30 goals last season for the Wings, commented: "It wasn't hard to sign Roy. I offered him so much money he couldn't refuse."

Neither Tobin nor Conacher reveiled the amount of his contract. He had held out for $8,500 from Detroit which offerpd him $7,600.

PHIL MARCHILDON WILL BE GUEST OF HOME TOWN

Sees a Good Season Ahead for Athletics in American League Race

Penetanguishene, Ont., Nov. 12 — (CP) — Phil Marchildon, who tomorrow will be the guest of the largest party ever staged in this Simcoe country town, sees a good season ahead for Philadelphia Athletics in the American League baseball race next year, and thinks that 'regardless of climate' it would pay pro teams to scout Canadian sandlots more thoroughly. At his home here for the hunting season after touring with Bob Feller's All-stars, the former RCAF tail-gunner thinks that if Connie Mack obtains the replacements he's after the A's will present even a better showing than last year when they finished 5th, after holding on in the first division most of the season.

Canada's outstanding contribution to baseball, Phil thinks the short season in Canada is the major drawback for ambitious youngsters. But if pro clubs would send competent coaches into the baseball centres each year, a number of "good players could be unearthed." When Phil turned professional he found the lack of grounding in baseball fundamentals his major handicap.

Marchildon, who pitched the Athletics to 19 wins last summer, thinks that the cause of the team's late - season slump was lack of capable reserves — "the fellows were too tired to give their best." He gave most of the credit for the Mackmen's rise from eighth to fifth place to rookie first baseman Ferris Fain and Eddie Joost, rejuvenated shortstop.

CHAPTER 2.

They had come to her car now. She jumped in, totally ignoring him. It was second nature for her to snub Henn. He took it all in his stride, resolving to be firmer with her at their next meeting.

"See you later, Henn," she said, waving a black-gloved hand. She turned the wheel, adding apologetically, "I've a heavy date."

After all, she mused reluctantly, Henn endured a great deal from her. He had been sweet about it, too. That is, he had been up to a certain point. When he was tired, he could be fussy and short-tempered. He had even tried it on her one morning after a dance. She suspected that dancing wasn't exactly in his line, that a man his age was beginning to prefer his beauty sleep before dawn.

Once out of the congested district, Kay's long low roadster picked up speed. Twice this month she'd drawn tickets from beauty-blind motor-cops. Today, she didn't care what happened. Never before in her life had it been intimated that the Millstrom credit was in danger. She had charge accounts in all the best shops. Why, tradespeople had been elated to put the name of Kay Millstrom in their ledgers! Five years ago when her father, Frank Millstrom, had died, his widow had come into more than a million dollars in cash, an imposing Italian villa on the smartest residential street in Deweyton, a pretentious winter home in Miami, a thousand-acre camp in Maine, and other valuable real estate in various parts of the country. Mrs. Frank Millstrom was a rich woman and should have the same financial rating as her husband enjoyed. No one bothered to look this up. That is, they hadnt bothered until recently.

Kay drove recklessly around the winding drive before the white marble villa, set in the centre of three acres of highly taxed city property. She left the car before the door for Higgins, the family chauffeur, to put away, and bounced into the house.

In her upstairs sitting-room, she flung her hat and jacket on a chair for Aimee, the maid, to put away, and asked her to call Adele Sanders, explain she was too ill for bridge. It was actually no prevarication. Her mind was ill—ill with chagrin.

She went hurriedly to her mother's suite.

Cora Millstrom, at forty-five, was still a peach-complexioned, slim-figured woman, lovely to look at. Just now, she seemed like the shell of herself, lying on her chaise-longue, her face covered with mash cream, her eyes swathed with astringent-soaked cotton. She was trying to relax, to eradicate the few lines of worry about her drooping mouth, about her expressive brown eyes. There was nothing worse, she felt, than to watch the gradual fading of her once thrilling beautiful face. It gave her a haunted feeling, a feeling of guilt. Old age, poverty, hopelessness. No—she mustn't.

She could of course marry again. There were —at least two eligible men anxious to marry her. Either of them could give her perhaps half as much as Frank Millstrom had given her. The South American had the most, but she wouldn't care to live 'way down there—not permanently. Anyway, marrying again didn't appeal to her. Kay was the one who should do the marrying. Youth enjoyed marriage. Kay was young, keen, full of life. Marriage would interest her. Yes, Kay must marry—but she must make a brilliant marriage. Hennington Blare could give her everything. Besides, Blare would be generous with the woman who had brought up her lovely daughter, his wife. As his mother-in-law, she never would feel the embarrassment of too strict economy. She sighed, attempted to release the taut muscles of her face.

Kay pushed open the door, saying, "Cora, dear—are you alone?"

"Yes," mumbled her mother, hoping she hadn't cracked the mask around her mouth.

Kay stood looking down at her now shuddering at the deadly whitness of the drying cream. The sight made her impatience turn to pity. The tirade that had been straining to break forth drifted into meek protest.

She said gently, "Mother—you forgot to send a check to the Swandown. You've owed them for nearly—"

"Mercy, Kay! Don't make an issue of it! Can't you see, darling,—I'm relaxing?"

"Oh, Cora, how can you? I've—why I've been insulted by that detestable little Parker!"

"What?" Cora Millstrom bounced up right, the cotton dropping unheeded from her staring eyes. "The — the man—"

"Don't get excited. He simply but firmly refused me credit—really refused you credit—through Miss Carr."

"Oh—that."

Cora Millstrom sank back to her pillow, her eyes ceilingward. "I've been expecting it," she acklowledged, slowly.

"But—I don't understand. Why should we be treated so—so shabbily? Haven't we plenty of money?"

Her mother sat up again, courageously facing this too inquisitive daughter.

"It seems not. Gordon Wayland says our income will last about six months, at the rate we're going—and as our attorney he should know." Cora Millstrom sighed again, fingered the cream lace rippling down the front of her peach satin negligee. "I hated to tell you, darling—but Gordon sold the Miami place last week and the Maine camp—and a few other pieces of property. Certain creditors had to be appeased."

The wide-eyed Kay faltered. "Then—then Cora—we're—why, we're stone broke. We must let the servants go, get into small quarters—economize."

Her mother's laugh was brittle. "Not yet, my dear. There's always Blare, you know. That's why I've been urging you to marry him."

Kay's face drained white. She stared at her mother in astonishment, tinged with desperation. All she could say was, "I—I see."

"There will be enough to manage the proper trousseau for you, child. You'll be married here in the home you've loved for so long. After that, if we let it go, it won't matter to you. You will have your own smart establishments—while I—oh, I'll camp somewhere along the line."

It crossed Kay's mind then that undoubtedly her mother could marry again, not insist upon her only child being sold to the highest bidder. Kay sensed that her mother did not intend to marry. A great load suddenly settled firmly on her frail young shoulders. It was she who was to recreate the family fortune.

She left her mother sitting there and walked slowly across the room to an open dormer window. She looked out on the new green of the long wide lawn rolling down to the road. Brown squirrels and robins and blue jays bobbed before her troubled gaze, building for new families in the gentle spring sunshine. The lilac hedge on the east was gay with lavender and white blooms, the century-old maples and elms scattered about the yard were sprouting fresh green raiment. Stately tulips, outlining the front terrace, exactly match the villa's red-tiled roof. All nature was building—building for happiness in a new sunshine.

Kay grit her teeth, turned to her mother. "Very well, dear. Now that I understand, I'll be reasonable about the Blare fortune—and Hennington, who goes with it. But—I really couldn't —love him."

"Love?" her mother shrugged nonchalantly. "That will come later. Hennington is such a dear man. Let me get this stuff off my face, darling—then we'll make plans. Ring for Drew, will you, dear?"

The sober-faced Kay pushed a button for her mother's maid, then turned to leave the room. An unusual noise suddenly halted her. It was the peculiar sputtering that only a motor could make.

She wheeled swiftly and ran back to the window. An airplane was bolting down to earth like a huge dead bird. It was headed for the middle of the Millstrom's rolling front lawn!

"Quick, mother! Send Higgins, Sartin for help! That plane's in trouble!" cried Kay, dashing from the room.

Heedless of danger, she ran close to the flames, now threatening the plane's cabin, which lay splintered on the lawn.

She grabbed the arm of the plane's lone occupant, and tried to pull him out to safety. Sartin, the butler, reached her then, and together they got the unconscious man clear, barely an instant before the flames licked at the seat where he had been lying.

There was a thunderous explosion behind them as they carried the blond, viking type of man into the house. Kay shivered. A peculiar wave of thankfulness shot through her. There was something about this man, whose head rested on her shoulder, that was somehow significant. It was as if he had been sent for her safekeeping—sent to her like a strangely precious sign out of the clear blue sky.

With clanging bells, shrieking sirens and roaring motors, fire companies arrived and quickly extinguished the dangerous blaze on the Millstrom's front lawn, leaving a tangled mass of smoldering framework behind them.

Surgeons, coming and going, white-uniformed nurses and hushed activities followed in that order at the luxurious, twenty-room house. Kay personally superintended the nursing of the injured man, refusing to allow him to be sent to a hospital.

Cora Millstrom was more than apprehensive. She was about distracted. This thin-faced, long, lean young man, who had suffered a slight brain concussion and a broken leg, was developing into a menace. He was altogether too easy to look at and furthermore Kay was finding him vastly entertaining. All this had to happen just when Cora had at last persuaded Kay to marry Hennington Blare! Oh well, she would invite Hennington to dine with them on Sunday, give him a hint of his good fortune. He could arrange the rest.

The lilt in Kays heart was suffocating. She had been so busy, so concerned with Charles Nourse, the viking god who had literally dropped at her feet, that nothing else mattered. She was with him one day in the sitting-room of the blue guest suite, when she was brought back to realities. She had just pushed aside the heavy mauve window draperies so that he could see the long row of white hawthorn trees bordering one side of the lawn. She dropped on the stool beside his invalid-chair.

With his large expressive gray eyes full upon her, he said, "Wonderful girl! This matter of your having saved my life—then merely to thank you — doesn't make it come out—right."

She tried a light laugh but it stuck in her throat.

"Why should I be thanked? I did it on impulse—it was a duty. And saving lives is rather good sport. It's thrilling—romantic." Her cheeks had taken on a crimson glow. "But do look at those hawthorn blooms. They've never been so gorgeous,"

Dr. Stefan Tiso Given 30 Years

Prágue, Nov. 12 —(Reuters)— Dr. Stefan Tiso, former Slovak premier, was sentenced to 30 years' imprisonment by the Bratislava National Court yesterday when it announced the verdicts in the trial of the former premier and the seven members of his cabinet on collaborationist charges.

Tiso is the nephew of Josef Tiso Slovakia's puppet president, who was evacuated for treason in April this year.

In the closing stages of the three-week trial, the prosecution had demanded a life sentence for Stefan Tiso, charged with collaboration in the enactment of oppressive anti-Jewish laws. He was turned over to the Czech authorities in 1945 after his capture by United States troops.

Speaker Outlines Youth Conference At Oslo, Norway

The world youth conference was held in Oslo, Norway, this Summer to promote good understanding among christendom and world attitude toward union declared Rev. W. J. Robinson, rector of Tweed Anglican church in speaking to the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon at Kiwanis Centre on Tuesday. Two minutes of silence was observed before the opening of the luncheon in memory of those who served and gave their lives in two great conflicts.

It was also announced that due to the non-arrival of the wreath that was to be laid on the Cenotaph by the Kiwanis Club, the members voted that the money should be given to the Poppy Fund. An international inter-club meeting will be held in Kingston on November 24th and the Belleville Club will send a large delegation. The president thanked the committee in charge of arrangements for the Key Club charter night. Mr. White explained there were only three such clubs in Canada and he hoped some of the members would donate accoutrements needed for the activities of the club. The women's auxiliary will supply the banner for the Key Club. The club members bid goodbye to Earl Dow, who is moving to Ottawa and Mr. Dow expressed his thanks for the hours of goodfellowship that he enjoyed and wished for the club every success.

Started By Y.M.C.A.

Mr. Robinson, who was introduced by Taylor Franklin, stated that the River of Youth was started by the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. in the early years of the century, continued by the formation of the Sunday School and completed by the Missionary movements and will be joined by the World Council of Churches, that is to be held in Amsterdam next Summer. The speaker described his trip to and from Oslo and the theme of the conference which was "Jesus Christ is Lord". "It encouraged all churches to go into the movement of youth realizing by co-operation what God's blueprints are and this movement can be brought down to the individual churches of all lands," said the speaker. He told of the many distinguished men who addressed the conference which included delegates from 71 countries with 1,200 delegates, Russia, Japan and Spain not being represented. His observations were that the universal church could be seen, that all have a responsibility and what it meant to be a Christian. He cited examples to show that "you have to give Christianity away to have it". He claimed that under the banner unity is possible and that he came away from the conference glad in the knowledge he was a Christian and that youth must be in the forefront of any movement toward the universal church. Maurice Button expressed the appreciation of the club. The sing-song was conducted by Vic White with Phil Huddleston at the piano. I. L. Moore collected the fines.

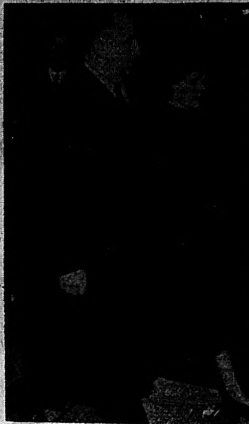
PARENTS AT FUNERAL OF SLAIN DAUGHTER



Grieving parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Anderson of Toronto, are shown arriving for the funeral service held for their 13-year-old daughter, Arlene, whose murderer police still seek. Plainclothes detectives mingled with crowd, believing that the slayer might turn up at the graveside of his victim. The child's body was found several days ago, strangled and criminally attacked.

Calgary Stampeders Earn Tie With Bombers

Calgary, Nov 12 (CP) — A home-and-home series between Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Calgary Stampeders for the western Canada rugby football crown and a berth in the Canadian final was history today—but the victor still is to be decided.

Roaring back from the brink of elimination, the Stampeders overcame a first-game 12-point deficit in the second game at Calgary yesterday as they routed the Bombers 15-3 to tie the series score at 19-19.

The final will be played Saturday in Winnipeg where Bombers made a 16-4 conquest in the opener.

In snatching another chance at their first senior rugby title since 1911, Stampeders uncorked an amazing display of aerial power on a slippery, snow-covered field and after a scoreless first half outplayed the Bombers by a wide margin.

Bombers might have won on the last play of the game. Don Hiney's kick landed well behind the Stampeder goal line and before Frits Hanson could run it out he was surrounded by a swarm of Winnipeg tacklers eager for the rouge which would have given Bombers a point, the game and the title.

But Hanson, never short of brains, kicked the ball out instead of trying to run with it.

CANADIAN SPORT SNAPSHOTS

By ARCH MACKENZIE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, Nov. 12 — (CP) — Although no actual figures are at hand, it still seems a safe bet to assume 90 per cent of persons purchasing newspapers indicate interest in sports by turning to the sports page at some time during their perusal.

On the other hand, a minority of readers avoid sports as they would a ring-side seat at a cannibal carnival.

Regardless of the remarks cast at the sports world by some, appearances indicate interest is as high as every in athletics.

Tony (Winnipeg Tribune) Allan has revealed his feelings on the question.

He wrote: "We realize the world wouldn't necessarily come to an end if there were no more sports tomorrow and that you could always turn to the comics for light reading, but who is going to beat the drums for sports if sports writers don't?"

Allan laid down his dictum.

"When you come right down to it, there are only two features by which a city is judged in the eyes of the world, and they are: (1) the pulchritude of its females, and (2) its record in sports."

Allan felt such an arbitrary statement might require substantiation and he added:

"You don't need to take my word for it. Just ask any soldier or sailor or airmen who served abroad during the war. They were proud to be Winnipeggers because, in any company, they could prove that they came from no mean city.

"When skeptical buddies from other parts of Canada demanded proof, did our Winnipeg soldier reach into his pocket for a picture of the city hall or the sewage disposal plant?" demanded Allan.

The hell he did.

"He produced a photo and said 'That's my girl.'"

What arguments did he use to clinch the verdict for Winnipeg? Did he cite statistics from the city manual showing how many carloads of grain pass through Winnipeg annually or how many potholes there are per square yard in the city's pavements?

"No," replied the scribe, "all he had to do was remind them who won the Grey Cup in 1939 or 1941. Or if the Blue Bombers failed to impress a hockey-minded opponent, he held three more trump cards in the Winnipeg Monarchs, St. Boniface Seals and Winnipeg Rangers, Memorial Cup winners in 1937, 1938 and 1941-43.

TULSA WINS TWO IN ROW

(By The Associated Press)

Tulsa Oilers, with two straight victories, were freed last night from the losing jinx that plagued them for their first seven games of the United States Hockey League season.

Andy Chakowski, who scored Tulsa's winning goal Sunday night as the Oilers downed Kansis City, fired in two goals last night as the Oilers won at Omaha 4-3.

The game was the only contest scheduled last night, and did not alter the league standings.

HELD IN STRANGULATION DEATH

Springfield, Mo., Nov. 11 — (AP) — Mrs. Letha Lake, 26, was held without charge today in the strangulation death of her three-year-old son. Police quoted Mrs. Lake as saying she felt "an urge to kill someone" as she at listening to the radio and, after swallowing a liniment in an unsuccessful attempt to end her own life, strangled her son.

- 3 teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¾ cup sugar
- 1 cup chopped nutmeats
- 2 eggs, well beaten
- 1¼ cups milk
- 4 tablespoons melted butter or shortening

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt, sugar; sift again. Add nuts and mix well. Combine eggs and milk; add to dry ingredients and blend. Add shortening. Bake in greased loaf pan, 8 x 4 x 3 inches, in moderate oven (350°F.) 1¼ hours.

TWICE YOUR MONEY BACK
If you are not satisfied that Calumet is the finest baking powder you ever used, send tin containing unused portion, along with your name and address and a note of the price you paid — to General Foods, Limited, Cobourg, Ontario. You will receive back twice what you paid for Calumet.

FOR EVEN, fine-textured baking, without holes and without tunnels, depend on Calumet Baking Powder. Quick loaves, cakes, biscuits—all baking—is feather-light, moist and even-crumbed when you use Calumet. For Calumet's double action protects baking from start to finish.

Myriads of tiny, even-sized bubbles are formed in the mixing bowl when liquid is added. The second action takes place in the oven, where thousands of new little bubbles continue raising the mixture to feathery, tender perfection. Follow directions on the tin for any recipe.

Crown Charges Sex Motive in Girl's Murder

Owen Sound, Nov. 12 — (CP)— Trial of Frederick Bussey, 23-year-old one-time circus barker accused of the sex slaying of 11-year-old Betty Playford went into its second day today before a jury of district farmers.

Bussey, who surrendered voluntarily in Montreal four days after the girl was killed last Sept. 21, listened impassively while special Crown prosecutor C. P. Hope told the jury that the girl had been attacked sexually before being beaten to death.

"The motive was sex," said Mr. Hope. "The Crown does not have to prove motive but that is what it was in this case."

Mr. Hope said the slaying occurred shortly after the girl left the home of a friend, Joyce McLay. He charged that Bussey had come along in a car, picked up the girl and asked her directions since he had made a wrong turn while en route to a nearby town.

The Crown prosecutor charged further that the child had resisted when Bussey attacked her. "He picked up a hammer in the car and smashed the back of her head into a pulp and dumped her into a ditch."

The prosecutor said a girl's tam had been found in a car abandoned with its gas tank empty on the outskirts of Thornbury. The father, James Alexander Playford, identified a tam shown him as one that his daughter had been accustomed to wearing.

Finding of Betty's body was related by Gordon McLay, father of Joyce. He and others formed a search party the day following the disappearance of Betty. He had found the body in a ditch.

Final piece of evidence in the Crown's case will be the statement made in Montreal by Bussey in which he is alleged to have confessed killing the girl. It is not expected the case will go to the jury before Friday.

Thurlow

Thurlow Veterans Pay Tribute To Wars' Dead

A large congregation of Thurlow war veterans, friends and relatives paid tribute to the fallen of two World Wars on Tuesday morning at a special memorial service held in Canniffton United Church.

Following the service, the veterans and others marched from the church to the Cenotaph near the township hall where Mrs. Sharpe, a Silver Cross war mother, deposited a wreath to the memory of the fallen of the township.

Present at the service were Reeve Harry Harrison and members of the Thurlow township council. School children under the direction of Mr. Laughlin, marched in a body to the church, and provided the choral music for the service. A feature was their rendition of "Lord of the Lands". Mrs. Farnham presided at the organ.

The service was in charge of the Rev. J. R. Trumpour, minister of the church with the special guest speaker being the Rev. Don C. Amos, minister of Bridge Street United Church here.

Taking as his theme, "They without us, shall not be made perfect," Mr. Amos pointed out that Remembrance Day had a two-fold call to all as citizens. The first call was to pause and remember the sacrifice made by men in two wars and the second is to stop and rethink the relationship of the living to those who paid the supreme sacrifice.

"Their sacrifice,'" he said, "would not be complete without our sacrifice in civilian life for the democratic principles and for the ideals of a warless world in which all nations will bring themselves under the discipline of true freedom, and take their responsible places."

The "Last Post" and "Reveille" added a true Remembrance Day touch to the service.

Britain Opposes Soviet-American Plan on Palestine

Does Not Wish to Continue Further Responsibilities

London, Nov. 13 (AP)—Britain has decided against accepting, or substantially sharing in, the Soviet-American plan for partitioning Palestine, high Whitehall sources said today.

Under the Soviet-American plan Britain would be asked by the United Nations Assembly to continue to be responsible for law and order in Palestine until May 1, 1948.

(A British U.N. delegation spokesman at Lake Success, N.Y., said Britain would make an official declaration on the plan to a sub-committee on Palestine meeting later today.)

Disclosure of the decision came a few hours after the cabinet's regular weekly meeting.

The informants said Britain's delegation at Lake Success has been instructed to inform the United States:

1. Britain will not be a party to the use of force in the implementation of any solution in the Holy Land.

2. Britain will not be prepared to make any substantial contribution towards implementation of a settlement not acceptable to both Arabs and Jews.

3. Britain will not by herself carry out the Soviet-American partition plan which would require this country to remain as mandatory until next May, when the process of transferring power to the Arab and Jewish states should begin.

The Soviet-American plan was adopted after a series of compromise efforts in which Canada's delegation at Lake Success played a prominent part.

Wounded Hunter Tells of Painful Bush Experience

Parry Sound, Ont. Nov. 13 — (CP) — From his hospital bed, Brian Bell today told of a torturous crawl through bushland in search of help after a hunter's stray bullet punctured his thigh as he sat alone beside a deer trail in this Georgian Bay district.

Frantic with pain and the realization what sometimes happens to hunters alone and wounded in the bush, Bell shouted, hoping to attract the attention of the hunter who fired the shot. Then at intervals, he fired 13 shots in the air.

That failing he wrapped a piece of trouser around his leg as a tourniquet and crawled, dragging his injured leg, through the woods to his boat a mile away. However, the 35-year-old Simcoe man was so weakened that he couldn't start the outboard motor. He was painfully paddling to his camp when a passing launch picked him up.

He now is recovering in hospital here and is expected to be released in a few days.

Police Seeking Clues on Identity Margeson's Slayer

Toronto, Nov. 13 (CP)—Still seeking clues on the identity of Ralph Margeson's slayer, police feared for four hours early today they had another taxi-driver killing to cope with when Earl Russell, 35, was overdue in reporting back on an out-of-town trip.

The pattern appeared so similar to that in the Margeson case that police flashed out descriptions after Russell's office reported him missing. He had been hired at 5 p.m. to drive three men to Niagara Falls, Ont., his office said, and still hadn't returned at midnight.

The wide-spread search, during which police squads combed the Queen Elizabeth Highway between Toronto and Hamilton, was called off when Russell returned at 5 a.m. and disclosed the delay was caused in waiting for his fares.

Meanwhile police still were without tangible clues to the identity of two suspects, believed to have shot and robbed Margeson after hiring him after midnight Tuesday. A $1,000 reward has been offered for information leading to the conviction of the slayer, who dumped the 32-year-old taxi-driver's body in a ditch off the Queen Elizabeth Highway west of Toronto.

Police said they believed Margeson, father of five, picked up the two killers near a Dundas Street west hotel. They said they are questioning "certain suspects" in West Toronto.

PLEAD FOR PET SQUIRRELS

Brantford, Nov. 13 (CP)—A plea to hunters to spare the lives of "Frisky" and "Misty"—two pet grey squirrel — during the squirrel hunting season, Nov. 14-15 has been made by residents of the Terrace Hill district here.

The pets which make a daily house-to-house canvass for food, are not destructive, one resident said. Children especially delight in feeding them.

DEPART FOR JUNGLE ISLAND

Los Angeles, Nov. 13 (AP) — A dozen farmers, and the wives of five of them, departed yesterday for a Pacific jungle island intent on starting lives anew. Described by their leader as "thoroughly discouraged trying to live here in the face of high prices and the housing shortage," they embarked aboard the 74-foot tug Aster for Chirote, off the province of Chiriqui, Panama.

Cardinal Joins Anglican Archbishops to Present Congratulations

London, Nov. 13. (Reuters)—Bernard Cardinal Griffin, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Westminster, today joined the Anglican Archbishops of Canterbury and York at Buckingham Palace to present addresses of congratulations on the coming wedding of Princess Elizabeth.

It was the first time since 1688 that a Roman Catholic had joined with "priviliged bodies" in a direct approach to the King, and followed recent moves for amendment of the Ecclesiastical Titles Act of 1871 which rules that Cardinal Griffin's territorial title of "Archbishop of Westminster" is illegal. Cardinal Griffin was accompanied by representatives of the Roman Catholic Church of England and Wales.

The Roman Catholic address was signed "Cardinal Bernard Griffin" and the title "Archbishop of Westminster" was omitted.

Millions Suffer 'Hell on Earth' Of Emotional Troubles Says M.D.

by ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

New York, Nov. 13 (AP)—Millions of Americans live in "a hell on earth" of emotional troubles, but facilities for treating them are woefully lacking, a New York psychiatrist declared today.

In an address prepared for the annual meeting of the National Committee for Mental Hygiene, Dr. Sol. Wiener Ginsburg said authorities had estimated that a minimum of 21,000 psychiatrists is needed in the United States with 4,000 now available—and that in New York City alone 75 per cent of persons needing and wanting psychiatric help cannot receive it for lack of facilities.

These cold figures were dramatized by the "fragments of tortured lives" depicted in letters received by the committee.

Dr. Ginsburg, Chairman of the Committee on Social Issues of the group for advancement of phychiatry, said problems outlined in the letters included neuroses, martial problems, homosexuality, alcoholism, psychoses, and depressions. Some asked for marriage counselling and educational or vocational guidance.

"It is clear that the great mass of the population is in no position to finance for itself even a minimum amount of psychiatric care," he said.

The letters showed this pattern of what happens to a person seeking help:

"Symptoms: Neighborly and family advice; pastors, except where dread of gossip is too strong; family doctor, injections and tonics and vitamins; another doctor; a 'big' doctor in the neighboring city; more injections, and occasionally gratuitous advice to have a baby, break up a marriage, give up a job, or whatever, and all the time a deepening of the symptoms and the growth of helplessness and despair."

One woman, writing that she was fearful of losing her mind and couldn't afford a psychiatrist because of a sick child, had declared that "this is a hell on earth and I'm in it."

"These are words spoken for millions," Dr. Ginsburg said. "The task is for all of us and we must not fail those who are in 'hell on earth'."

WORKERS RESPOND TO STRIKE CALL AFTER RIOTING

Troops, Mobile Guards Called to Patrol Streets

Marseille, Nov. 13 — (AP) — Troops and mobile guards were called out to patrol the streets of Marseille today as Communist Labor leaders issued a general strike call following a day of rioting in which one person was fatally wounded and six others hurt.

While the Communists claimed their strike call had met a wide response among factory hands, indications as the day advanced were that workers were sticking to their jobs except in trades in which their unions previously had ordered strikes.

Affected were all seamen, longshoremen and members of the metal, building and chemical workers unions. Some food packers also were reported out.

All shipping in the port was tied up by the strike, which began as a protest against an increase in street car fares and assumed broader proportions following the arrest of four union demonstrators Monday.

At least a score of persons, including Mayor Carlini and assistant Mayor Pierre Milani, were injured during yesterday's rioting. Both officials, members of Gen. Charles De Gaulle's Rassemblement Du Peuple Francais which ousted the Communists in recent municipal elections, were beaten by Communist demonstrators and spent the night in hospital.

The most serious casualties occurred last night when, according to accounts in the Moderate press, gangster elements operating some bars turned machine-guns on demonstrators who were said to be looting their establishments.

The Communist organ L'Humanite ran a screaming headline saying: "De Gaullist murder Vincent Voulant — 20 other patriots wounded by gangster bullets." The paper said the shootings took place "under the protection of (Socialist) Premier Ramadier's prefect."

Voulant, 20, a member of the left-wing union of young French Republicans, was wounded during one of the cafe shootings last night and died several hours later in hospital.

OFFENSIVE IN MACEDONIA BEGINS

50TH K. OF C. ANNIVERSARY

Montreal, Nov. 13 — (CP) — The 50th anniversary of the Knights of Columbus will be celebrated here Nov. 23 when the guests of honor will include James Cardinal McGuigan, Archbishop of Toronto, and Judge John E. Swift, Supreme Knight.

Bracken Says Government Enabling Greater Production Can Provide Better Standard

Saskatoon, Nov. 13 (CP)—No government could give the people more than the people produce, National leader John Bracken of the Progressive Conservative party told a Provincial party convention here last night.

"That type of government which can bring about more production can give to its people more social security and a better standard of living," he said.

The policies of the party were founded on the encouragement of private enterprise and its philosophies were the basic issue between Communism and the "half-way station to Communism—Socialism"—and the political parties of Christian democracies.

"We don't promise as much as some of the Socialists but we can deliver more."

He divided society into four groups—wage earnings, workers for prices such as farmers and primary producers, workers for profit, and the ill, crippled and aged.

"What is to be the relationship between these groups? Is it to be a partnership in which each group has its rights and responsibilities and in which all share in the benefits of production?"

Labor should be taken into partnership in the national economy and farmers and wage earners should receive a fair share of profits made by businessmen. Dependents should be treated as generously as the people as a whole could afford.

Newark "Navy" Standing By To Repel Old Battleship

Newark, N. J., Nov. 13—(CP)—Sir Richard Grenfell may be nodding approvingly today from some sailors' heaven at Newark's sturdy mariners.

You'll remember that Sir Richard's little Revenge took on 53 Spanish galleons back in Elizabethan times.

Today the Newark "navy" — two 30-foot fireboats — is standing firm to repel the 30,000-ton battleship New Mexico.

The decommissioned super dreadnought at the moment is drifting helplessly somewhere off the coast of Long Island. But Newark is ready, just in case. Last night the battlewagon was cut loose from the tugs which were towing it from Boston to Newark for breaking-up. A Coast Guard plane located the "lost" warship this morning and dispatched rescue tugs to its aid.

When they start hauling along the New Mexico again, the defensive "navy" will go on the alert once more. Newark just does not want the New Mexico in Newark harbor and the fireboats are ready to resist its entry with every gun (water gun, that is) at their disposal.

The New Mexico is owned by Lipsett, Inc., a New York salvage firm which purchased it for scrapping purposes and also leased part of the Newark navy base for the dismantling job.

The municipal fireboats took up positions at the mouth of Port Newark channel leading to the salvage dock where the 30,000-ton dreadnaught is scheduled to be scrapped.

City officials, who say they want no more ships junked on the Newark waterfront, ordered the fireboat fleet to block the bay and called for reinforcements from neighboring New York City as the big battleship approached the harbor.

"H" hour was set for some time today but Mayor Vincent J. Murphy said that some agreement to stave off the pending "battle" was in sight as the result of his two-hour conference yesterday with Navy Under-secretary Kenney.

"But," the mayor said sternly, "the entrance to the port of Newark will continue to be blockaded by our fireboat navy until the agreement is signed, sealed and delivered."

City officials, who previously had requested the navy to give up its wartime base at Port Newark in order to permit a $70,000,000 expansion program to get under way, called out their fireboat fleet on Tuesday.

Strike Threatens To Spread to Gasoline Workers

London, Nov. 13 — (Reuters)—The week-old walkout of waiters at London's luxury hotels — the Savoy, the Berkeley, Claridge's and Simpson's restaurant—threatened today to spread to gasoline workers following union instructions to a gasoline depot to discontinue oil supplies to the Savoy.

Arthur Lewis, Member of Parliament and organizing secretary of the Municipal and General Workers' Union which sanctions the strike, warned that if any oil was delivered to the Savoy the gasoline workers would strike.

London bus services were back to normal early today with the return to work of 3,500 drivers and conductors who called an unofficial strike yesterday in protest against new work schedules.

POLIO EPIDEMIC ENDS

Berlin, Nov. 12 — (AP)—The city health ministry announced today that Berlin's infantile paralysis epidemic, which began during the summer, apparently had ended and that emergency restrictions would be lifted. A total of 2,298 persons became ill, and 213 died.

MYRTLE FOR DECORATION

London, Nov. 12 (Reuters) — Myrtle from a tree grown from a sprig of Queen Victoria's wedding bouquet will decorate the main table at the wedding breakfast at Buckingham Palace No. 20 after the marriage of Princess Elizabeth and Lieut. Philip Mountbatten. The main table, at which the bride and bridegroom will sit with the King and Queen, will be decorated with pink carnations and white heather, mingled with the sprays of myrtle.

Prime Minister King Called "Grand Old Man"

The Hague, Nov. 13 (Reuters)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King, who is 73 in December, today heard himself called the "grand old man" of Canadian politics as Professor Roelof Kranenburg, Chairman of the Joint Assembly of the Dutch parliament, expressed The Netherlands' gratitude for the warm hospitality extended to Princess-Regent Juliana and her family during years of exile.

Welcoming Mackenzie King, who was to address the parliament in the 700-year-old hall of Knights, Kranenburg referred to Canadian soldiers who entered Dutch towns and villages in their jeeps as "a living testimony" of the liberation.

Paying tribute to the Canadian Premier, he said Mackenzie King's record premiership of 20 years "sounds almost like a fairy tale" to Netherlanders, for "no Dutch statesman has ever presided over the cabinet council for so long."

Kranenburg spoke to a gathering which included the Dutch cabinet, Pierre Dupuy, Canadian Ambassador to The Netherlands, British Ambassador Sir Nevile Bland and diplomatic representatives of the British Dominions.

Sweden Produces First Uranium

Stockholm, Nov. 12. (AP)—Malte Jacobsson, chairman of the Swedish Atomic Committee, said today Sweden had produced her first piece of uranium, from schist. He said research is continuing in an effort to establish industrial production of uranium from schist and slate deposits. Uranium is an element used in the manufacture of atomic bombs.

TYPE OF BLOOD ON COVERS SAID SAME AS GIRL'S

Seat Covers Exhibits At Fred Bussey Trial

Owen Sound, Nov. 13. (CP)—Blood on slipcovers in an automobile allegedly abandoned by Fred Bussey, accused murderer, was of the same type as that of Betty Playford, the 11-year-old Owen Sound girl he is accused of slaying, Crown Prosecutor C. P. Hope contended today.

The slipcovers were introduced as evidence on the second day of the 23-year-old youth's murder trial yesterday, when Police Inspector Alex McLeod testified he took them from the car in which the Crown claims Bussey attacked the girl and smashed her head with a hammer. And today defence counsel Louis Isaacs asked why they were introduced.

"There is human blood on them, of the type that came from this little girl, that's why the slipcovers were brought in," replied the prosecutor.

Despite defence objections, Mr. Justice D. J. P. Kelly ruled as admissible evidence concerning samples of hair taken from Bussey, former circus barker who surrendered in Montreal four days after the girl's body was found in a ditch near her home, September 22.

Mr. Justice Kelly said he did not agree with the defence argument that the same precaution must be used in taking such samples as in taking a voluntary statement. The Crown had introduced a consent form signed by Bussey concerning the samples, which "definitely" showed police were "very anxious to observe every precaution in his favor."

It was indicated during yesterday's sessions that the matter of whether Bussey is mentally sound may play a further part in the hearing.

Question of Sanity Raised

The question of the itinerant carnival worker's sanity was raised yesterday during the trial's second day. Mrs. Doris Demitro, Toronto gypsy fortune-teller, said the former Regina navy man whom she befriended "used to sit down in the yard and eat in the dirt."

"I was good to him," she said. "I bought him new clothes and underwear and he rolled them up and put them away by the old stove. I told him, 'Freddie, you must change your clothes. You are dirty and I don't like you around the house.' But he did not wear them."

Mrs. Demitro said Bussey took her car and disappeared with it. The car was the one the Crown alleges Bussey was driving on the outskirts of Owen Sound the night the Playford girl was bludgeoned to death and left in a ditch.

Defence Counsel Lou Isaacs protested that Mrs. Demitro, a Crown witness, had prejudiced his client by saying he had run away with the car. He argued that it was the basis for a new trial and the jury should be dismissed. Mr. Justice Kelly said he would not dismiss the jury.

His Lordship also said he declined to direct a "trial within a trial" on the sanity question on the basis of the evidence of one witness. He would keep the matter in mind as the case developed.

Even Smaller Hotels in London Now Booked for Wedding Date

London, Nov. 13 — (AP) — Thanks to the impending wedding of Princess Elizabeth, London's hotel and restaurant business expects to enjoy its biggest boom since the coronation of King George VI in 1937.

West End hotels have long been booked up for the wedding week and now even the smaller, less pretentious, semi-residential spots in outlying areas are obliged to refuse applicants, their managers said today.

A member of the Savoy staff asserted that "we could let all our available space many times over". At the Mayfair a spokesman said: "We couldn't squeeze another guest for love or money."

In many centrally-located hotels beds and divans had been set up in living rooms and storage chambers.

Distant suburban hotels are getting part of the overflow, and so far the coastal resort towns within reasonable distance of London.

"The pity of it is," one hotel man asserted, "that we'll have to be limited by that miserable word 'austerity.' What a show we could put on, if these were the good old days. Wonderful floor shows, honeymoon bowers, real wedding bells, really handsome souvenirs and all the rest. As it is, we'll be lucky to find enough odd trinkets to go around."

Nevertheless there will be plenty of gala dinners and dances and catering bosses have told their chefs and bartenders to use their ingenuity in preparing Royal wedding-day specialties.

Wave of Political Turmoil Spreads To Southern Italy

Rioters Protest Against Neo-Fascist Provocations

Naples, Nov. 13 (AP) — Police fired on Communist demonstrators here today as Italy's wave of political turmoil spread southward. Several wounded were in hospital.

Industrial northern Italy, prominently Leftist, was quiet but tense after a week of violence and bloodshed in the burgeoning assault from the Left against Premier de Gasperi's Christian Democratic government.

Naples police, in light armored cars, moved in on the heart of the city where a demonstration was held to protest against what Socialists and Communists called "neo-Fascist" provocations in Milan and elsewhere in the north.

Use Tear Gas Bombs

Some demonstrators used tear gas bombs against the police and were reported to have fired shots in the air.

The Italian constituent assembly convened this afternoon in Rome in an atmosphere of tension, with de Gasperi's Interior Minister Mario Scelba, scheduled to answer Communist charges that the government was responsible for the recent disorders.

The Rome newspaper Il Popolo organ of the Christian Democrats charged that the Communists, "having failed in Democratic methods, now have turned to direct action."

Naples authorities threw a cordon of troops around the police prefacture after the armored cars scattered the angry demonstrators and prevented them from making their way back to the centre of the city. The demonstrators had succeeded, however, in invading headquarters of the National Monarchist Party and attacking several newspaper offices.

Two Persons Die

At least two persons died in the north's week of violence. Disorders erupted yesterday in Milan, Bologna and Venice, as Leftists massed in protest against incidents in the village of Medigalia, near Milan, the previous night, Rightist party offices in Milan were wrecked.

In Medigalia a man described as a member of the Rightist Uomo Qualunque (Common Man) Party had fired into a Leftist parade, killing one man and wounding two others. The enraged marchers beat him to death.

CENTURY OLD TODAY; HAS NO ACHES, PAINS

Toronto, Nov. 13 — (CP) — James Skelton, who celebrates his 100th birthday today, says time has been good to him. He never suffers an ache or pain, his hearing is good, he reads easily with glasses and his appetite is as good as any in his household. Born in Ireland, he came to Canada in 1868 and worked for a time in Kingston.

TWEED VOTERS ENDORSE LIQUOR AND BEER STORES

Recount Will be Held on Beverage Room Vote as "Drys" Win

After 33 years of local option the village of Tweed, 25 miles north of Belleville on Wednesday moved out of the "dry" column when as result of a special vote it seemed that townspeople were in favor of establishment of a brewer's warehouse and a liquor store. Voting in favor of a beverage room lacked by less than one per cent of being successful for the "wets."

It is reported that a recount on the question of establishment of a beverage room will be made today.

The unofficial figures for the vote on the establishment of a beverage room were: Yes 475, or 59.2 per cent in favor, and 327 against. To be successful the "wets" had to get 60 per cent of the vote.

Voting for the beer warehouse was: Yes, 506; no, 290, or 63.6 in favor with 36.4 against.

On the liquor store issue: yes, 512; no 289, or 63.9 for and 36.1 against.

The "drys", led by campaign manager C. Ed. Way had made a particularly strong fight against the establishment of beverage rooms who last night declared their drive had been particularly against beer parlors.

With approximately 1,000 persons on the voters' list there was an exceptionally good turnout at the polls as over 800 cast their vote on the three questions to be decided.

Voting at the different polls was as follows:

Poll No. 1	yes	no
Beverage room	104	141
Beer warehouse	118	124
Liquor store	120	123
Poll No. 2	yes	no
Beverage room	187	131
Beer warehouse	191	112
Liquor store	196	108
Poll No. 3	yes	no
Beverage room	204	55
Beer warehouse	197	54
Liquor store	196	58

City and District News

PLOWING CONDITIONS GREATLY IMPROVED

Tuesday's heavy rain was a "godsend" according to farmers of the district.

Plowing conditions have been greatly improved by the welcome moisture and most farmers are now devoting their attention to this important phase of autumn work.

In addition, wells and creeks which were nearly dry were given new life, and some farmers who anticipated drawing of water during the winter now have ceased to worry.

THREE DEER SHOT BY ONE HUNTER WITHIN ONE HOUR

That deer are plentiful in some sections of the northern woods is indicated by the report of one huntsman from a Madoc party who yesterday reported that one member of the gang had shot three deer on the first morning of the hunting season. Two members of the successful party are Jim Watson, publisher of the Madoc Review, and Provincial Constable Jack Hatch.

All three of the deer shot on the first day of the season were killed by one man, the kills all being made within one hour.

Reports are that the northern part of the country is covered with a light blanket of wet snow with more than one party reporting difficulty in getting provisions into camps by motor transport.

AT LEAST THIS THIEF WAS NOT GREEDY

About the least which could be said about a smash-and-grab thief who Wednesday night broke a window in a jewellery store at Madoc is that he used discretion.

Today Chief of Police Wilbur Johnston of Madoc reported that during the night some party had broken a show window at the Samson Jewellery Store and had stolen a man's wrist watch from a tray which was in the window. There were seven or eight other watches in the tray, it was stated.

TEN U. S. HUNTERS GET LICENCES HERE

Ten Americans, armed "to the teeth" strode in to Eddie Thomas' Tobbaco shop yesterday, and demanded "with a twinkle in the eyes", something that would give them the privilege of shooting deer.

The visitors from south of the border hail from a small town in New York State, and the most of them had never been in Canada before.

They parted with $24.75 each for the regulation hunting licence and peeled off the bills from a roll that would "choke a horse".

Mr. Thomas stated this morning that practically all licence-selling records had been broken this year. During the past few days a considerable influx of American hunters has been apparent, one coming from the Sunny South.

SUCCESSFUL HUNTERS RETURN WITH BEAR

Bancroft,—Father Rowell of Kingston in company with another hunter, Mr. Waters, who is hunting this year near Murphy's Corners, some twenty miles south of Bancroft, bagged a bear on Tuesday. Father Rowell while out in pursuit of deer spied bruin moping along in the woods and felled the animal with one shot but eather than take any chances on going up to him immediately pumped two more shells into the bear—just to make certain. It took four men to lift bruin and they judged it would weigh in the neighborhood of four to five hundred pounds. Father Rowell won't have to worry about the cold weather this winter when he slides out of bed on a cold morning as the bear rug will not only be a comfort in this way but will also remind him of his successful hunt back in Hastings County.

Crawford Given Suspended Sentence

Pleading guilty to a charge of creating a public mischief, Harold Crawford, 21, of Plainfield was given a year's suspended sentence when he appeared in Magistrate's Court today before Magistrate T. Y. Wills. Crawford was formally arrested on the charge two weeks ago and has since been in custody.

The charge against Crawford arose as result of an alleged shooting incident in which Crawford had claimed he was shot in the arm as he attempted to enter his home at Plainfield about three weeks ago. He staggered into a neighbor's house and stated he had been shot by some unknown party as he entered the kitchen door.

Later at Belleville hospital Crawford admitted to police that the shot in his army had been self-inflicted, the act having been done by Crawford to get his brother-in-law in trouble. Earlier he had told police that he suspected his brother-in-law of being responsible for the shot.

Crawford was represented in court by Alan Sprague, local barrister.

Wm. J. Binkley Given Two Years On Theft Charges

London, Ont., Nov. 13—(CP)—William James Binkley, 41, formerly of Cornwall, today pleaded guilty to four charges of theft and was given concurrent penitentiary sentences of two years on each.

Binkley pleaded guilty to theft of an auto from the London Free Press garage, an engraving lens valued at $150 from the Cornwall Standard-Freeholder, a typewriter and several cheques from the sanitarium at Gravenhurst, Ont., and a radio and $35 in cash from a hotel at Grimsby, Ont.

Police said the typewriter had been recovered, but that Binkley sold the engraving lens in Montreal for $20 and it still is missing.

Binkley was arrested at Niagara Falls, Ont., last week following an accident with the stolen auto which was taken here Oct. 9.

Defence counsel Donald Murison admitted Binkley had a lengthy police record, but said he had not been in trouble since 1939 and pointed out also that he had served overseas with the R. C. A. F.

BRITONS GRUMBLE OVER TERMS OF INTERIM BUDGET

Most Papers Protest That Measures Are Not Sufficiently Severe

London, Nov. 13 (AP) — Britons of all classes grumbled today over terms of the Labor government's interim autumn budget calling for new curbs on spending power to reduce inflationary buying, but newspapers generally protested that the measures were not sufficiently severe.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Dalton's budget proposals submitted in the Commons yesterday would affect rich and poor alike. The budget demanded twice as big a slice of company earnings, higher purchase taxes and other revenues.

It also slapped taxes on dog racing and football pool betting and raised the cost of a pint of beer one penny (two cents).

"I don't expect this to be a popular budget," Dalton said last night in a radio address explaining the fiscal proposals. The proposed revenues would mop up an additional $832,000,000 in annual surplus spending power, estimated at around $3,200,000,000.

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express greeted the proposals with headline "everything up (except smoke)" but many leading editorial writers assailed them as half measures.

Only the Daily Herald, Labor, expressed outright approval, commenting that the "measures which the government has taken so far have prevented "that breakaway inflation" which afflicts many other countries."

The Independent Times criticized Dalton's "half measures" for failure to strike a note of urgency.

"The country had nerved itself to face the worst and to accept without rancor whatever might be demanded of it in a critical hour," the Times said.

The Conservative Daily Telegraph said the measure was "wholly inadequate to the situation with which it was called upon to deal."

The Financial Times said the budget's "most disapopinting feature was complete absence from its provisions of any attempt whatever to reduce the level of government expenditure."

No Provincial Liquor Laws In Three Counties

Toronto, Nov. 13 (CP) — There are no provincial liquor laws now in force in Peel, Perth and Huron counties or Manitoulin Island, which are under the Canada Temperance Act, W. B. Common of the Ontario Attorney-General's department, said in an interview today.

Mr. Common's statement was made in clarification of an amendment to the liquor license laws passed at the recent legislature session by which C.T.A. territories were excluded from the operation of provincial laws.

The Ontario government lost its case before the privy council to have provincial liquor laws supersede the C.T.A. and subsequently Peel County voted to retain the Federal dry law.

"The main offences under the C.T.A. are selling or keeping liquor for sale," said Mr. Common. "So as it stands now, there is no restriction on where people may drink."

Mr. Common said it was part of the duties of provincial police officers to enforce the C.T.A. and in the past charges have been laid under the C.T.A. by provincial officers.

Bumper Wheat Crop Despite Seeding Delay

Washington, Nov. 13 (AP) — A bumper wheat crop in the United States is still possible next year despite a serious seeding delay in the great plains Agriculture department officials said today.

A department crop report yesterday said about 25 per cent of the intended wheat acreage in Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Colorado and New Mexico remained unseeded Nov. 1 because of critically dry weather.

These six states produced about 49 per cent of this year's record crop of 1,406,000,000 bushels.

The report said seeding has progressed well, however, on what now appears to be an increased acreage in all other important producing areas.

Officials said that assuming next year's production in the six drought-affected states is only half of this years, it still would be possible, on the basis of present prospects, to harvest a total crop of at least 1,000,000,000 bushels.

The United States has produced only four crops of that figure or more, and they were grown during the last four years. Wheat output averaged 890,00,000 bushels for the 1936-45 period.

While officials would like to see another record crop because of the world grain shortage, they point out that a billion-bushel yield still would permit the United States to export a much larger quantity of wheat in the 1948 crop year than it normally shipped before the war.

Young Doctors Hold Convention

Kingston, Nov. 13 (CP) — Stimulation of interest among young doctors in careers as general practitioners will be one of the objectives of the current Canadian Association of Medical Students and Internes 11th annual convention here, association officials said today.

Fostering of national exhibition of paintings by medical students, matters dealing with interne economics and furtherance of co-operation between the C.A.M.S.I. and the Canadian Medical Association are other items on the agenda of the convention which opened today and continues through Nov. 16.

Discussions on improved cooperation between the student organization and the C.M.A. will be led by Dr. J. S. Delahaye of Kingston, representing the C.M.A. Dr. L.C. Bingham of Queen's University, Kingston, honorary president of the C.A.M.S.I., will conduct a clinic in surgery tomorrow and Dr. John Hamilton, also of Queen's, will conduct a clinical pathological discussion Saturday.

SAUERKRAUT PROBABLY WILL BE SCARCE

Waterloo, Nov. 13 — (CP) — Sauerkraut will probably be scarce in Ontario this winter and the blame can be laid on a scarcity of cabbage. A Waterloo sauerkraut manufacturer says the cabbage crop this year was only one-fifth of the normal yield and raw cabbage brought higher returns than the processed sauerkraut.

Scott, a former forest ranger, failed to return when darkness came and his friends became uneasy. They started a search, but were hampered by darkness.

On Wednesday at noon word got through to Scott's son, Jim, 18, here and with two relatives set out by car for the camp. Today Provincial Constable Bert Howden with Game Warden Vern Windsor and 10 other residents of Apsley left for the Serpentine Lake to aid the searchers.

It is likely a general appeal for aid will be made unless Scott is found today. Constable Howden learned Scott had a heart condition and it is feared he may have collapsed in the bush.

H. & S. ASSOCIATION

Marmora.—The Marmora Home and School Association held its monthly meeting in the Public School on Monday evening, November 10th. The meeting opened with the School Song and Kipling's Recessional. Mrs. W. Hamilton accompanied by Mrs. A. Fraser, sang two solos.

After a short business session Mr. E. C. Prentice introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Moebus, B.C., and director of vocational guidance and career training in the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School. Mr. Moebus said "Vocational training is not a new idea—it is now three years old in this country, and has proved successful in the United States for some years. The councillors in the school have a personal work to do namely, trying to place the child where best fitted, or not allowing the child to disappear from school a failure, because he or she could not do one or more subjects. Therefore it is the job of the councillor to find his or her aptitude and ability and direct him or her along the right path. Some people misunderstand this new method. Vocational guidance does not blueprint a line of action for the child nor is it a competitor of fortune tellers nor does it find jobs for all high school pupils. It is not new, it is only a methodical line of action, the judgment of the teachers, which is then presented to the child by the school councillor, instead of the old disorganized way."

Mr. Moebus gave a very clear and thorough resume of the newer methods and their advantages.

Mr. D. Marett moved a vote of thanks for the very beneficial talk, and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Heavier Duties in U. K.

Britons face higher taxes and duties designed to prevent inflation as explained by Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Dalton.

He said, "too much money running after too few goods is the unavoidable sequel in every country affected by a major war."

Tax on profits will be doubled, ten per cent levy will be raised on money wagered in soccer football pools and on tracks devoted to dog-racing. The profits tax will be doubled and this will be made retroactive to last January 1. Duties on spirits, wines and beer will be heavier. Luxury articles are to bear still higher taxes.

Consumer purchasing power of the people of Britain will be surely drained off to a degree by this latest economic step.

Britons bore the brunt in the war years and the direct consequences of war laid a heavy burden on the people of the British Isles in the days succeeding the struggle.

On every hand there is evidence of the gratitude of the men and women of the British Isles for the parcels of food which are going "over there" to help in the time of food shortage. At the present time of the year many permons are planning to add something to the joyousness of the Yuletide festivities overseas by sending parcels from Canada.

In the time of trial such as in the days of 1940 the people of Britain blocked the path of the aggressors and by the almost superhuman effort of their not large forces turned back the Huns' planes and gave the world time to arm and assured it of ultimate victory.

Not less in peace than in war are the people of the stout isle of Britain serving the world of democracy with the heroism characteristic of the race that has given the world its finest form of democracy and freedom and has borne the burden of the world whenever the call came.

Royal Wedding

The world is looking forward to the royal wedding at Westminster Abbey on November 20th now less than a week away when Her Royal Highness Princess Elizabeth and Lieut. Philip Mountbatten will be united in marriage. Everyone, it is said, is interested in a wedding and of this royal wedding that is especially true for the Princess is dear to the hearts of the people of the Commonwealth of Nations and other nations and the Royal Family ever occupies a place in the thoughts and prayers of the people.

For weeks news of the preparations for the ceremony has been on the minds and lips of the people everywhere. All parts of the Commonwealth and representatives of other nations have contributed in their gifts to the spirit of happiness which the coming wedding has added to the news of these days.

On Thursday next in the age-old Abbey, the shrine of Britain's faith, the young couple will plight their troth and in this they will be joined by the prayers and best wishes of millions of people So in spirit people everywhere will participate in the sacred and moving ceremony as it is celebrated within the crowded Abbey which has been the scene of many events.

In a time in which there is apparent a lack of cohesion among nations, which is one of the results following the Second World War the world may have a mental picture of the ancient ritual and faith in which the daughter of His Majesty the King will be married. This happy event will have a benign influence upon the world as it draws all thoughts to the foundations of faith, to the true principles of life, to the sense of security on which these Throne and the State rest, and to the young Princess and her Consort in whose future happiness men, and women and young people everywhere take a true and abiding interest.

Canada Held in Honor

Canada's Prime Minister has been visiting on the Continent of Europe and seen in what high regard the people of France, Belgium and Holland hold Canada and her people. His presence on the Continent at the time of the anniversary of Remembrance Day provided the opportunity for these countries to reveal how deep a sense of indebtedness they feel for the Dominion of Canada.

Canada holds these lands of Western Europe in high respect. In two Great Wars France and Belgium were alongside Canada and the other nations of the British Commonwealth. They with Holland in World War II gave a demonstration of fortitude and support of the Western European democracy which cannot be forgotten.

Meaning of "Ontario"

What does the word "Ontario" mean? A reader of Ontario Government Services submitted this question last week, and after digging around a bit, the derivation was found, says Ontario Government Bulletin.

"Ontario" originally was the Iroquois word "kanadarie," which means "sparkling or blue water." It was used to describe the waters of the lake that is now known as Ontario.

Later, "kanadarie" was corrupted to "Ontario," and the white settlers gave the name to the land along the lake's shores for an ever-extending area.

Wise Rearing of Family

A nice problem in balance of family obligations to upkeep of the home, guarding of the family purse, and wise rearing of the young arises when the boy and girl attain an age when they can begin to earn some money away from home. As soon as the suburban boy is old enough to take pride in his own strength, he begs to try the lawn mower. A conscientious parent will anxiously caution this boy against overdoing. The lad had hardly mastered the infernal machine, however, when he immediately conceived an immense and overwhelming distaste for it. This leads to the inevitable lecture on the responsibility of every member of the family to do his share.

The practical solution, however, is to pay the going rate for lawn mowing, painful as it may be and no matter how far removed from the dictates of sound pedagogy.

The exasperating corollary is the ease with which neighbors can get enthusiastic help out of the same boy. With all kinds of light yard work, car washing, dish drying, cherry picking, and other chores crying out for attention at home, he will be seen making merry with a neighbor on tasks far more laborious. We shall not attempt to explain this perversity, or hope to alter it.

Meanwhile, parents vexed with these problems can continue to battle on good-naturedly in the restricted area where they may hope for some measure of final victory, such as getting their children to put unused shoes away in the closet, hang up their pajamas after a nights' sleep, and to quit rolling each fresh napkin into a tight little ball before they are past the soup course. The way to keep sane while rearing children is to set limited goals.—New York Times.

Left Behind

The astonishing variety of articles left behind by air travellers would indicate that they are "in the clouds" in more senses than one! Hats, a folding perambulator, children's toys, coats, a portable typewriter, books, spectacles and pipes are lying unclaimed in the British Overseas Airways Corporation's Lost Property Office at Airways Terminal London. But the most, shall we say, unusual item is a yard of macaroni!

Another Germ Fighter

A new germ-fighting chemical has saved 62 out of 100 patients from the surgeon's knife — so its discoverers claim. Abscesses, infections, boils, carbuncles, sties, and ulcers are just a few of the many conditions in which this chemical made it unnecessary for the surgeon to cut or lance. Even if surgery was needed, the rate of healing was greatly speeded up. — Rotarian Magazine.

In wonder all philosophy began; in wonder it ends; and admiration fills up the interspace.—But the first is the wonder of ignorance; the last is the parent of adoration.—Coleridge.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST
(Copyright, 1947, Edgar A. Guest)

NATIONS AND MEN

This is the dismal truth I pen:
It is with nations as with men,
Nobody loves a liberal spender.
The borrower always hates the lender.

A gentle, wise man said to me
Of one who was his enemy:
"I cannot solve that man's behavior.
I've never once done him a favor."

For debts the wealthy uncle pays,
He often gets more scorn than praise.
And though the thought may cause a shiver,
Few really love the cheerful giver.

Even the Master told us this:
The rich man Heaven at last may miss.
The wealthy uncle seems our status.
Perhaps that's why the Russians hate us.

About seventy veterans were present at the Armistice Day celebration held in the Armouries under the suspices of the Sergeants of the Argyll Light Infantry with the members of the Canadian Legion as their guests. Sergt.-Maj. Jack welcomed the guests. Songs were rendered by E. Hyslop, C. Jeffs, W. Knight, W. Edwards, G. Lancaster, D. Batchelor, D. Bradford, W. Aires, George Sacker, W. Jack, Richens, A. Angell and Howes; also a vocal quartette composed of H. Alford, B. Gribble, E. McQueen and A. S. Quick. W. Hammer gave a mouth organ solo; D. Brown a flute solo and A. Angell a bugle solo. Arthur Johnson gave a reading and Lt.-Col. Roscoe Vanderwater gave an interesting address.

40 YEARS AGO

Nov. 13th., 1907.

Many persons in this city will learn with regret of the death of the Rev. M. W. Maclean, who was for thirty years the minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in this city. For a generation almost he was prominent in the religious and social life of the city and he was esteemed as a worthy Canadian gentleman. May he rest in peace. Mr. Maclean died yesterday at Arlington Beach, Sask. In the year 1873 he came to Belleville as minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and he resigned from active service in the ministry in 1903 and shortly afterwards he left here to reside in Western Canada. For many years he was the popular chaplain of the 15th. Regiment and for a considerable time he served as a member of the Board of Education.

The Y.M.C.A. campaign for new members commenced with a rush this morning.

Who will be Mayor of this fair city for the year 1898? That is the question.

The Oddfellows Band will have a skating rink on the Hospital Lot this winter. Work was commenced this morning putting up the fence enclosure and building the dressing rooms.

Mr. Fred Burrows was home from Toronto to spend yesterday.

Mr. Herbert Greaves went to Madoc today.

Mr. H. C. Hunt is again in his accustomed place at the office of Mr. S. Burrows after several months' absence on vacation.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How far can a kangaroo leap?

Travellers in Australia often comment on the picturesque sight presented by large male kangaroos bounding at full speed over a plain.

The adult gray kangaroo, also called "boomer" and "old man," can cover from ten to 20 feet in a single leap, although it seldom leaps as much as 20 feet except when frightened.

In adult kangaroos the forelegs are small and poorly developed while the hind legs are large and powerful. The opposite is true in new-born kangaroos, which, though tiny in size, have comparatively strong, well developed forelegs but hind legs that are scarcely more than embryonic buds.

When moving slowly on all fours the boomer uses it tail as a prop while the hind legs are moved forward; when the animal attains full speed its forelegs are farther back than its hind legs part of the time.

The tail aids the animal in leaping and acts as a "fifth leg" or balancing pole. A kangaroo without a tail easily overbalances and turns somersaults. It cannot be led, but can be steered by its tail.

The leaps of a kangaroo are not high from the ground and the animals can be confined by a comparatively low fence.

Gray kangaroos seem to grow in size as long as they live.

They have the habit of boxing with one another. Easily tamed, they are often trained to box on the stage. The "boxing kangaroo," however, is dangerous because it can kill a man or dog with one blow.

Australian natives consider kangaroo meat a delicacy and kangaroo tail soup has been praised by gourmets.

In Australia kangaroos are sometimes shot because their hides make desirable leather and because the animals, which are vegetarians, damage crops.

Rossland, B.C. —(CP)— King Comesotti, store owner, has decided he will not advertise his absence in future. He placed a card in the window saying the store would reopen a few days hence when he returned from a trip. On return he found thieves had taken $400 worth of stock.

Big Game Trophies Go to Copenhagen

Rocky Mountain House, Alta., Nov. 13 —(CP)— Big game trophies from Canada will be added to the collection of the Copenhagen Museum as the result of a hunting trip by Ivar Sporon-Fiedler, commissioned by the Danish government to obtain specimens for the museum.

Sporon-Fiedler has completed his first hunting expedition in Canada. Guided by Jack Browning, he was accompanied by Tom Knudsen of Los Angeles, a native of Denmark who has spent most of his life in the United States.

The party, with a 22-horse pack train, worked out of Rocky Mountain House, 128 miles southwest of Edmonton.

For the last 20 years Sporon-Fiedler has stalked big game in Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Palestine, East Africa, Kenya Colony and Tanganyika.

In his African expeditions he has bagged several species of lion, rhino, black buffalo, hunting leopard and zebra. On the back of his fedora, which has been on the hunt with him for 18 years now, he has sewn two small bones about three inches long, to which is attached an African "skinner's" legend in recognition of shooting a lion.

Given Special Licence

During his trip into this province the Alberta government granted him a special collector's licence which, among other privileges, allowed him to shoot one antelope, although the season for that species is closed this year.

He and Mr. Knudsen both felt their trip had been "most rewarding." Sporon-Fiedler bagged two moose, two buck deer and, in his own words, "a very beautifut old goat." With justifiable pride he said he had accounted for a slinking, elusive coyote at a range of 450 yards.

He probably will write an account of his trip in the Canadian Rockies later — and in English, since he speaks the language fluently.

He said the rugged grandeur of Alberta's scenery was as impressive as any he had seen anywhere.

From Rocky Mountain House the two Danish hunters went to Brooks, Alta., on an antelope hunt and if their present plans materialize they expect to hunt grizzly in British Columbia before leaving for California.

SOFT WATER SERVICE

A. W. Ellson Fawkes, Moose Jaw, Sask., city engineer for the past ten years, will retire at the end of this year but plans to remain in Moose Jaw and is now setting up a business to provide Moose Jaw home-owners with a soft water service. Mr. Fawkes has been associated with waterworks and general municipal engineering for the past 40 years. He was formerly city manager of Brandon, Man. His company will be known as "Servisoft," and will provide soft water on a plan similar to electricity and city water service.

ARTHRITIC PUTS DOCTOR ON THE SPOT

Perhaps you will advise me to see a specialist, writes a reader (T.E.E.) Please don't, Doctor. I've seen quite a few, believe me, and still haven't the answer to my question: What is rheumatoid arthritis? What causes it when no focus or source of infection can be found. What remedies or diet or treatment do you recommend for rheumatoid arthritis? Can it be cured? If you cannot answer my questions because of some secret code of ethics I won't feel hurt. Who can hurt an arthritic more than he or she is being hurt every day? (T.E.E.)

In the first place, you ought to know, sir or madam, if you have been reading my column and enjoying it as long as you say you have, that I do not advise any one to see a specialist. My advice is to leave the matter of a specialist to your physician.

Rheumatoid arthritis is joint inflammation (arthritis) that resembles rheumatiz. It is elementary when you get right down to defining it. If you don't believe it, consult Webster. Joint trouble like rheumatism. Pretty simple, isn't it? Or it would be if you knew what rheumatism is. There again you'll learn as much about it from Webster as any physician can tell you.

Can't find a focus or source of infection? After all, my dear friend, it is hardly even a fifty-fifty bet that the patient will experience any particular relief of his or her joint disability if or when we do find and remove, eradicate, drain, disinfect, sterilize or pasteurize such possible focus or source of infection. This is so, whatever type of rheumatiz or rheumatoid or rheumatic trouble the patient has. Mind, I do not advise that the search for and, if found, the proper treatment of a focus or source of infection be neglected or slighted in any case of chronic or obstinate or long continued joint disability; on the other hand I do advise that the patient give all "specialists," X-ray technicians, diet or food experts, gadgeteers, magic mud or water baths, and especially fast-working tooth and tonsil snatchers a wide berth and leave consideration of any such methods or measures to the judgment of one's physician.

Lest the casual reader interrupt here to ask what if one has no particular physician, I may say that is one's fundamental mistake. There is no alternative way of dealing with chronic joint disability, so far as my limited knowledge or understanding goes — either you must place yourself under the advice and care of a physician or else. Which physician? Search me. If you are a newcomer you might do worse than inquire at the headquarters of the County Medical Society or Association whether the physician or physicians you name are of good professional standing or whether the society will kindly name one or two local physicians of good professional standing.

Whatever remedies, diet or treatment I believe may be beneficial in any form of chronic joint disability I have recommended or suggested here repeatedly and shall tell about them in talks to follow. But I hope every one will understand clearly that the code of ethics I follow conscientiously in every such instance was written by Hippocrates himself, in Greek, to this effect: Do Good If You Can But Do No Harm.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Prospective Mother

I am two months along and would like to know what exercises I can take without risk. Is bowling too strenuous in the first four months? Does stretching tend to tighten the naval cord or get it around the baby's neck? (Mrs. C.V.W.)

Answer — Bowling is all right at any time. The fishwife yarns about stretching or reaching up are just fishwife yarns. Send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing (no clipping, please) for booklet Preparing for Maternity.

Canker Sores

At one time you recommended a remedy for canker sores. (A.M.J.)

Answer — Rinse mouth frequently but gently with SSBA—saturated solution of boric acid in water, as much as the water will dissolve when warm — particularly after food. Touch each sore once daily with mixture of equal parts of tincture of iodine and glycerin. This stings like blazes for a moment, but seems to bring about early healing.

Motion Sickness

I saw an article in your column about motion sickness some time ago. I'm not sure whether that would be the same as sea sickness. (M.C.)

Answer — It is the same as sea sickness, air sickness, car sickness, train sickness. Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing for pamphlet on motion sickness.

WEDDINGS

ZOSCHKE—GANNON

Emmanuel church, Belleville, was the scene of a pretty Autumn wedding, on Monday, November 3rd, when Berteel Lois, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gannon, Belleville, became the bride of Arthur Edward, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Zoschke, of Pembroke.

Bishop Veck, of Ottawa, performed the ceremony, assisted by Rev. John Thompson. Wedding music was played by the church organist, and Mrs. Stanley Pomeroy was the soloist, singing "The Lord's Prayer", and "O Perfect Love".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of brocaded satin, featuring a sweetheart neckline and with fitted sleeves coming to points over the wrists. Her full length veil was caught with a headdress of orange blossoms. She carried a white prayer book, a gift of the groom, with streamers of blue satin trimmed with myrtle, and her corsage was of red roses.

Mrs. Floyd Molson, was her sister's matron-of-honor, wearing a floor-length gown of blue velvet, with matching shoulder-length veil and elbow gloves. She wore a corsage of fuchsia roses and carried a nosegay of 'mums.

Miss Myrtle Zoschke, sister of the groom, and Miss Dolores Bradford, of Belleville, attended as bridesmaids, the former wearing pink lace and net over angel skin taffeta, and the latter wearing a gown of pink sheer. Both wore corsages of roses and carried nosegays of 'mums.

Mr. Gordon Zoschke was his brother's groomsman, and the ushers were Messrs. Elmer Gust, of Pembroke, and Reuben Gannon, brother of the bride.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served to approximately sixty guests, at the home of the bride's parents, where her mother received in a dress of grey wool with a corsage of pink baby 'mums and the mother of the groom, wearing a dress of green crepe, with matching accessories and a corsage of pink baby 'mums.

Later the wedding party motored to Pembroke, where a wedding supper and reception was held at the home of the groom's parents, for about 150 guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Zoschke will reside in Pembroke.

Nursing Registry Refresher Course Is Successful

Lectures with a high educational standard, are anticipated by graduate nurses attending the refresher course series during November at the Ritchie Memorial Residence of the Belleville General Hospital.

On Friday, Nov. 7, the first of the series was held Mrs. Lorne Donaldson, president of Belleville Community Nursing Registry, introduced the speakers, Miss Riches, director of Nursing, Queen's University Kingston, and Miss McGeary, supervisor, Belleville Branch of the V.O.N.

Miss Riches in a delightful manner spoke on parliamentary procedures, her reference being from the Common Laws of Canada. She told the duties of each member of an executive and their relationships during the process of a public meeting. Miss Joyce Stanton, Reg.N., expressed the thanks of the meeting to Miss Riches.

Miss McGeary in a very capable way, spoke on Home Nursing with demonstrations. She told of the equipment necessary for bedside care, and demonstrated various procedures, making-up, and method of sterilizing supplies.

As private duty nursing in the home is practised very little now, Miss McGeary proved a real source of information to the nurses present. Mrs. Jay Campbell, moved a vote of thanks to Miss McGeary.

The refresher course sponsored by the Community Nursing Registry is continuing weekly for November and is open to all graduate nurses, residing in Belleville and district.

New advances in Medicine by Dr. G. V. Faukner will be the lecture this week, and an interesting address is expected.

A.Y.P.A. Holds Second Annual Leadership Course

The Hastings and Prince Edward Deaneries Local Council of the Anglican Young People's Association held its second annual Leadership Training Course at Christ Church over this past weekend. Young people from the city, Bancroft, Tweed, Frankford and Marmora attended lectures given by Nellie M. Lewis, well-known author from Toronto, Gordon Elliott, immediate past-president of the Dominion Council of the A.Y.P.A., and Rev. J. M. Brownlie, rector of St. John's Anglican Church, Marmora.

Mr. Brownlie spoke on the topic "The Ministry of the Laity". He pointed out that the early apostles were not pictured as ordained men. Confirmation is, in the eyes of the speaker, Ordination of the Laity; the Baptismal vow, one of obligation. "We should spread the word of God because we are His hands, His feet, and His lips," he stated.

The Ministry of the Laity should begin in parishes, in homes, and in one's personal life. Every Christian should be a "fisher of men"; and he should be a fisherman seven days a week, not just one. Now is the time for the Laity to give themselves wholeheartedly to the service of God. "Here am I; send me."

Leadership in Recreation

Miss Lewis believes that carefully planned recreation tends to socialize the group, there is no quicker way to get to know a person than in recreation. If more people played together fewer people would be found in institutions. It is the desire of everyman to mingle with the rest of the human race. And because of this program should be planned so as to include everyone present. Even those physically or mentally handicapped should be given something to do.

"Above everything else," the speaker warned, "know what you are doing". In giving directions be brief, terse, and to the point. Shift from one game to another immediately there is a lowering of interest. "It is well for all to remember," said Miss Lewis, "that for each hour of actual program those in charge of planning may have to work as long as ten hours."

Practical A.Y.P.A. Knowledge

Mr. Elliott began his series of talks with a short history of the Provincial, Dominion, Diocesan, and local councils; explaining the use of each council with regard to the other councils as well as with regard to the individual branch. He spoke of the tools—the Manual, the A.Y.P.A. Monthly, and literature supplies, and he stressed the matter of conducting meetings properly. Poorly conducted meetings and long-drawn-out business sessions were, the past-president said, responsible for the death of a large number of branches. Speaking of the four-fold plan of the organization—Worship, Work, Fellowship and Edification—he stressed the need of a balanced program. In his closing address he repeated in effect what had been said earlier by Miss Lewis, "a good program is a planned program."

Mr. Elliott spoke also at the Corporate Communion breakfast held Sunday morning. At the Fireside Sunday evening, the rector of Christ Church, Rev. J. Grant Sparling, gave a short talk on public speaking as it applied to leaders.

This Leadership Training Course, the first to be held in the Dominion this year, used for the first time the Leadership Training Course proposed at the Dominion Conference held in Rothesay, N.B., last June.

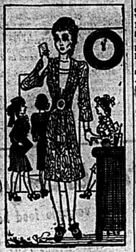
BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Cosmetics Can't Do Everything



The finicky eater gives herself a mean deal.

No shopping pilgrimage is more delightful than the one that takes a woman to the cosmetic counter Spread before her eyes are intriguing toiletries — eye shadows to impart seductive, mysterious charm; lipsticks to make the feminine portrait more vivid; powder to put on the dull finish. She pins her hopes to beauty props. They serve. They are her good friends. She is grateful that she did not live in that period of the past when it was believed that "face paint" made a woman look like sin.

But cosmetics can't do much for our wanderer in the buy-ways if she disregards the laws of health, chases around like mad, doesn't get enough sleep. Movie stars realize that fact well enough. It is only by keeping in splendid form that they can work as hard as they do, retain youthful figures, and hang onto their good looks.

How one lives and thinks are factors that have much to do with appearance. Of first importance is nutrition. The human engine won't go chugging along unless it has proper fuel, which means that a variety of foods must be consumed each day so that one acquires the necessary elements especially mineral salts and vitamins.

For protein one must have eggs or cheese. Carbohydrates—found in that type of food that comprises starch and sugar —are necessary, though the amount of sugar should be small. Sugar is a grand little energy builder but, as it is conveTAOI..NHRDLU as it is concentrated food, it is also a manufacturer of adipose tissues — must be included in the diet.

Fruits have a favorable effect upon the digestive motors and the complexion. Start the day with orange juice, grapefruit, or any fruits that happen to be in season. The heavyweight should substitute fruit, raw or canned, for pastries.

The finicky eater is giving her face and her figure a mean deal If she will get plenty of outdoor exercise every day, so as to create appetite, a more varied diet may appeal to her; she'll be able to sit down to a man-sized dinner and like it.

The woman who stays up until all hours of night, who never gets enough sleep, is courting premature wrinkles. She is also likely to be afflicted with grouches, and they never helped any woman to look priety. Make - up does nothing for one who is tired. No rouge will efface the shadows of fatigue.

Organize your life, if you give old Pop Time the laugh. Eat wisely and well. Get plenty of rest. Scat away the worry bugs. Exercise and keep your blood stream travelling. That's the way to feel well and look well.

Chicago Black Hawks Hunt Another Scalp in Montreal After Beating Toronto Leafs

Five Players Obtained From Toronto and Roy Conacher Add Life to the Squad

By ROBERT CLARKE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Chicago Black Hawks let out a tribal war whoop today and sharpened up their tomahawks for the next phase of their toupee quest.

Hawks clipped off their second scalp of the National Hockey League season last night, beating Toronto Maple Leafs 5-4 while Boston Bruins romped to an 8-2 triumph over New York Rangers. Tonight, Hawks get the chance to make it three victories in a row when they take on Canadiens in Montreal.

Bruins used their victory to climb into a first place tie with the idle Detroit Red Wings at 13 points. Leafs dropped a notch to third place, a point behind the pace setters, while Hawks moved up within two points of Rangers. Canadiens could force their way into a tie with Leafs by beating Hawks tonight.

At least one thing seems clear — Hawks appear to have benefitted by the "five-for-two" trade in which they gave up Max Bentley and rookie Cy Thomas for five players from Leafs. Addition of Roy Conacher to their lineup also appears destined to bolster their chances of getting into the play-off fight after a dismal start in which they dropped seven straight games.

Performed Ably

All five players obtained by Hawks last week from Leafs performed ably last night against their former club, although only defenceman Ernie Dickens broke into the scoring column. Dickens picked up Chicago's third goal in the second period and also had an assist on another score.

Conacher also lost no time in making good for his new club. The former Detroit ace who refused to come to terms with Red Wings and then with Rangers when Detroit sought to trade him, whipped home a goal in the second period.

Johnny Gee was a baight star in the Hawk victory with two goals, one while Bill Ezinicki was in the penalty box. One other Chicago goal, that by Dickens, came while Leafs were shorthanded. Chicago's fifth and game-winning goal went to Alex Kaleta.

Game Not Close

Leafs actually didn't make the game as close as indicated by the score, since their fourth goal came only a few second from the end of the contest. Howie Meeker, Syl Apps, Harry Watson and Joe Klukay were Leaf scorers.

Bruins and Rangers battled on fairly even terms until an injury forced goalie Charlie Rayner out of the game and a youthful substitute gave way to jitters that allowed Bruins to salt away the contest.

Bruins rattled home six goals in the third period on 18-year-old Bob DeCourcy, who played with New York Rovers in the Eastern United States Amateur League. DeCourcy took over after Rayner was struck under the right eye by the puck fired by defenceman Jack Crawford of Bruins in the second period.

Bruins established what is felt to be some sort of scoring record when they rammed in three goals on DeCourcy in 57 seconds. Murray Henderson, Woody Dumart, Milt Schmidt, Joe Carveth, Billy Taylor, Pete Babando, Wally Wilson and Fernie Flamon connected for Bruins while Bryan Textall and Buddy O'Connor got the Ranger tallies.

ROUGH RIDERS WHO WEREN'T MUDDERS

Wilf Tremblay

Doug Turner

When not slowed down by a hundredweight or so of Ottawa mud which caused them to lose the first game of the Big Four play-offs on Tuesday to Argos, Doug Turner and Wilf Tremblay may make the 3-0 adverse trade balance look like peanuts. These two Ottawa players looked good enough to go places on a clean field against the Argos line and they'll have their opportunity to do so in Toronto on Saturday.

Spitfires Tack On Another Win Over Rangers

Oshawa Generals Win Close One From St. Catharines' Teepees 6-5

(By The Canadian Press)

Windsor Spitfires and Toronto Young Rangers, respectively representing the top and bottom of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League, clung tenaciously to their roles last night as Windsor rang the bell 19-1 against Rangers in a home game.

In other O.H.A. Junior A contests, St. Catharines Teepees dropped a heartbreaker to Oshawa Generals 6-5 at St. Catharines and Stratford Kroehlers just managed to scrape a 3-2 victory in their home town game with Barrie Flyers. In the single Senior A meet, Branford struggled to escape from the cellar position, but bowed to Hamilton Tigers 7-1 in Tiger territory.

Tigers' victory brought them a second place tie with Kitchener-Waterloo, while Stratford's triumph put the Kroehlers in the Junior A number three spot.

Both Spitfires and Young Rangers displayed their consistency in their one-sided tilt — it was Windsor's seventh straight win without a defeat and Toronto's seventh straight defeat without a win or tie.

Spitfires scored three times in the first period, rammed in nine goals in the second and wound things up with seven in the third. Toronto's single score was fired by Mel Hawkrigg halfway through the final period.

Generals won their game with Teepees on the strength of a fluke shot by Dusty Blair that broke a 5-5 tie in the third period. St. Kitts came out of a 2-2 opener to push the score to 5-4 at the end of the second and George Scholes stalemated it at 5-5 in the third. Blair clinched the game when his lift-shot rebounded into the net from the glove of goalie Cec Gruhl.

Lowe Leads Generals

Ross Lowe led Generals' scoring with two goals and Billy Buschlen did likewise for Teepees.

The Stratford-Barrie encounter was a hard-fought tussle from Kroehlers' opening score a few minutes after the first period started to Flyers' tie-breaking play toward the end of the third. A 1-1 stalemate at the end of the first remained unchanged until Pierre Cadieux scored for Stratford in the final frame.

Next Elwood Small put Kroehlers two to the good and Barrie got back in the game just long enough to add Jerry Reid's tally to the count.

Brantford Redmen, slowed down by the first-time presence of three players, suffered defeat at the hands of the Tigers after holding themselves within challenging distance for two periods.

Hamilton scored twice in the first frame and once again in the second with Brantford remaining scoreless until the final period which saw the Tigers turn on the juice. Shillington backed-up the winners' offensive with five scoring points and Cockburn was tops for Redmen.

Tonight's schedule shows only one Junior A game on tap, St. Michael's Majors at Guelph Biltmores in Guelph. No Senior A tilts are listed.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

George Gee of Chicago, who scored two goals to spark the Black Hawks to a 5-4 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs.

Joe Carveth, Boston, who collected a goal and two assists as Bruins downed New York Rangers 8-2.

VIRGIL WAGNER OF ALOUETTES TROPHY WINNER

Nelson Greene of Ottawa Wins Rookie Award by Big Margin

Ottawa, Nov. 13. (CP)—Virgil Wagner, fleet Montreal Alouettes halfback and scoring leader of the Big Four, is the 1947 winner of the Jeff Russel Memorial trophy, the most coveted award in Eastern Canadian football given annually to the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union player deemed most valuable for ability and sportsmanship.

In making the announcement last night, D. (Wes) Brown, Secretary of the Big Four, also disclosed that Nelson Greene, 19-year-old 190 pound former Montreal High School backfielder, who came to Ottawa Rough Riders this year, was the 1947 winner of the Rookie award. This award is made for merits similar to those governing the Russel trophy.

Wagner, 25 and weighing 180 pounds, piled up 14 touchdowns and a convert for 71 points—30 more than Joe Krol of Toronto Argonauts whom he succeeds to the trophy—to capture the individual scoring championship of the Big Four this season, his second year in Canadian football.

He was the second American import to take the award, instituted in 1928 in memory of the late Jeff Russel running half who played for Montreal Winged Wheelers.

Despite Rising Costs Canada's Banks Still Giving Service at Prewar Rates

Montreal, Nov. 13 — Despite mounting costs of doing business the rates and charges of Canada's chartered banks are the same as prewar, or actually lower, it was stated here today by B.C. Gardner, president of The Canadian Bankers' Association.

"I know of very few businesses," he said, "that can make the same assertion that in the face of steeply increased costs, charges for the final product or service have not been raised."

Addressing the Association's annual meeting, Mr. Gardner noted that the payrolls of the Canadian banks had increased 90 per cent since 1939; taxes increased 104 per cent between 1939 and 1946 and contributions to staff pensions funds now are equivalent to 12 cents for every dollar paid in wages. At the same time that these business expenses were mounting, the maximum interest rate on loan s was reduced, the yield on investments fell below the pre war level and the banks voluntarily agreed to limit holdings and earnings on higher coupon government securities.

May Have to Revise Charges

"In short, our expenses are naturally higher; our charges are not," Mr. Gardner stated, adding "it goes without saying, however, that if the upward trend of costs continues, at least some of the charges we make for our services will inevitably have to come under review."

After referring to the exchange problem created by shipments to Europe under credit and the mounting deficit in our transactions with the United States, Mr. Gardner continued, that Canada's dollar problem, as it relates to the United States, "cannot be resolved entirely through our own efforts."

"What hope there is of a permanent solution," he declared, "depends largely on the extent to which the productive facilities of this entire continent are intelligently shared in helping war-torn areas of the world to meet their own responsibility for rehabilitation and recovery.

"If the Marshall Plan can be made effective it is reasonable to hope that the United States would be a larger buyer, either directly or indirectly, of Canadian products and that this would bring about results not dissimilar to those which followed the wartime Hyde Park Agreement, thus maintaining our ability to purchase from the United States those goods such as machinery, coal, cotton and oil which are so essential to our economy, and which are not under present circumstances readily available elsewhere."

Taken for Granted

The average Canadian, Mr. Gardner declared, is inclined to take his banking facilities for granted, "but what he may not realize is that the nature and quality of the banking services on which he depends are in their essence the product of private enterprise in the field of banking, that they are the result of a long experience of banking conducted apart from political pressures and pre-occupations, and within an atmosphere in which the competitive spur to efficiency is constantly working in the customer's behalf.

"The Canadian banks, I am fully confident, are thoroughly alive to the significance and importance of their present and future role as a vital factor in the economy. This is the solid basis of good public relations and the best assurance of continued opportunity for further development in the service of the community."

Hopes for Lower Taxes

Touching on the Canadian economy, Mr. Gardner expressed the hope that tax rates would continue downward and sounded a warning against excessive inventory accumulations.

"Loans to finance excessive or speculative accumulation of stocks of merchandise or over-expansion of business may aggravate inflation and are in the interests neither of the community nor of the borrowers concerned," he declared.

To demonstrate the adaptability of the Canadian chartered banks, Mr. Gardner showed that commercial loans had increased 45 per cent in the past year and 86 per cent since the end of the war. As a result of this upward trend in lending, there has been a marked shift in distribution of bank assets. In August, 1939, total loans of the Canadian banks were equivalent to 34 per cent of all assets. Six years later, at the end of the war, the figure was 21 per cent. At August 31, 1947, loans were equivalent to 28 per cent of total assets.

Holdings Govt. Securities Shows Small Decline

In contrast, total holdings of Dominion and provincial government securities were 34 per cent of assets in 1939. As a result of war financing, this proportion became 52 per cent in August, 1945, and had receded to 43 per cent at August 31, 1947.

"This partial re-alignment of the two major elements in the banking structure is welcome indeed," Mr. Gardner continued, "and demonstrates conclusively the resiliency of the banking system. A continuation of the trend is most desirable."

Reuther's Forces Capture Four UAW Top Offices

Atlantic City, N.J., Nov. 13 — (AP)—Walter Reuther's impressive victories in the United Automobile Workers election shot new strength today into the growing campaign on Congress of industrial organizations leadership to push down Communist influence in C.I.O. unions.

President Reuther's forces now have captured the four top offices of the 900,000-member U.A.W. Today in more elections at the U.A.W. convention, they seemed certain to get a majority of the 22-man executive board for the first time.

These facts have sharp meaning for the whole C.I.O., in the following ways:

First, by example. The U.A.W.'s waning Communist minority was on the losing side of the fight. There are Communist groups in certain other C.I.O. unions, too. Their foes have taken new encouragement.

Second, by putting Reuther in a stronger position to support Philip Murray, president of the C.I.O. who has been gradually—and more openly — applying the pressure on the C.I.O.'s left wing.

Here are the U.A.W.'s four top leaders for the next year: President, Reuther, who was re-elected without serious opposition; secretary-treasurer, Emil Mazey, who deposed George Addes; vice-president, Dick Grosser, who beat R. J. Thomas; vice-president, John Livingston, who beat Dick Leonard in the fourth election last night.

As a result of the U.A.W. elections, Reuther can speak and act with the authority of his union behind him. Up to now, the executive board, the union's governing body, has consistently opposed his plans.

It is probably an over-simplification to think of this week's events in terms of right wing and left wing.

Those expressions, as used loosely in the union, have little or no economic and social meaning. They came into use merely because the Reuther - Mazey - Gosser - Livingston faction is anti-Communist, and the small Communist group was consistently lined up on the Addes - Thomas - Leonard side along with many other elements.

Actually Mazey and others in the Reuther group are farther to the left in their thinking than most of the Addes' faction.

Preston Refused Permission to Use Street Lights

Toronto, Nov. 13 — (CP) — An official of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission said last night there had been a reduction in consumption of 50,000 kilowatts in the first 24 hours of operation under the new "dimout" regulations.

The power conservation order went into effect at 1 a. m. Nov. 10.

The official said it was felt unwise to make any exceptions to the rationing order despite protests such as that received from the Merchants' Association at Preston. The order presents the Association from carrying through a plan to provide an elaborate mile-long overhead string of lights for the holiday season.

The Association protested that it had spent some thousands of dollars erecting the lights. The Commission officials said many towns and villages put to the same expense had acquisced willingly in the regulations.

Guard Declares Prisoners Allowed To Come and Go

Toronto, Nov. 13 — (CP) — A guard dismissed from his post at Mimico Reformatory three weeks ago charged last night that prisoners were allowed to go and come as they pleased, to sell goods on the outside and to become intoxicated.

L. Jervelund, dismissed on grounds of negligence Oct. 18, claimed discipline at the reformatory had been "slipping" for the last eight or nine months. He said the best guards were quitting because they could not get any co-operation in controlling prisoners.

The New Toronto council, following a statement made to members yesterday by Jervelund, passed a resolution urging Labor Minister Daley to convene the civil servants' board of appeal to review Jervelund's case.

Jervelund denied last night he had been negligent in his duties. He said his dismissal followed two incidents, one involving prison blankets placed in a guard's car and the other a report from a guard that two inmates took a truck from the reformatory and delivered two bags of potatoes to a guard's house.

Jervelund said that in the first case he had found the blankets in the back of a guard's car after noticing a reformatory trusty near the vehicle. He said he had reported the matter to the guard who owned the car and it was discovered later that three windows of the equipment store had been opened.

"I was criticized for not reporting the matter to my senior officer immediately," he added.

Jervelund said it was "not unusual" for prisoners to leave and enter the reformatory as they pleased. "One man was placed in a cell for being drunk and another was found drunk in the dining room and told a guard to go to the devil in front of a large group of inmates," he added.

Mine is Cleared Within Minutes, Blaze Put Out

Timmins, Nov. 13 (CP) — A carefully worked out procedure to be used in case of underground fire paid off yesterday for some 500 employees of McIntyre Porcupine gold mine here. They were all brought to the surface within a matter of minutes while trained firefighting crews extinguished a small fire on the 2,785-foot level.

A report is expected to be issued today on the cause of the blaze, believed to have started in a jacket a diamond driller had cast aside. Archie Graham, boss of the Timmins mine rescue station, and Inspector E. B. Weir of the Ontario Department of Mines investigated immediately after the fire.

Underground fires which could trap workers in the labyrinths of underground tunnels and choke them with smoke and fumes are looked upon as one of the hazards of hard-rock mining and the mining companies see to it that they can clear the workings of miners quickly when fire threatens. Standard procedure was put into operation at McIntyre yesterday.

In the air compressor room, stench gas was fed into the compressed air system which operates the diamond drills and supplies oxygen to workers in remote sections of the mine.

At the first whiff of the foul-smelling gas, as it issued from diamond drills and air vents, miners headed for the hoist cages nearest to them. Immediately they were whisked to the surface.

For that shift, work was over for the day. From then until time came for the next shift to go on the job, special crews cleared the workings of the stench gas and smoke. The following shift started work on schedule.

Yesterday was the first fire alarm in a Timmins mine since Sept. 15 when a short circuit in an electrical cable caused smoke underground at the Hollinger gold mine and workers were brought to the surface.

Committee Approves New Urban Highways

Toronto, Nov. 13 —(CP)— The civic works committee gave its approval yesterday to plans for two new urban arterial highways but decided that because of the estimated $9,000,000 involved in construction the matter should be put to the voters on the Jan. 1 municipal election day.

One of the highways would run north-south and the other east-west.

The north - south highway would be known as Spadina Road and would run from Front St. to St. Clair Ave., involving improvements on the present Spadina Ave., and Spadina Rd. The other would be know as Waterfront Highway and would stretch from the Humber River to Strachan Ave.

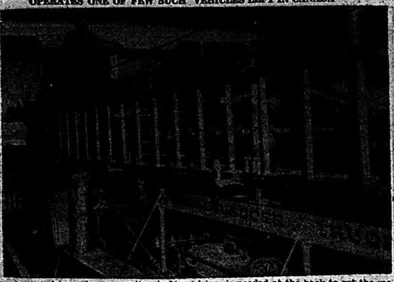
OPERATES ONE OF FEW SUCH VEHICLES LEFT IN CANADA



Back seat driver by necessity is Ken Ingram of Moose Jaw, Sask., a fireman who has been employed as tiller-man on the big 1915 American LaFrance 104-horsepower, six cylinder ladder truck since 1940. His work is to drive the rear-end of the 60-foot-long motor vehicle, one of a few such vehicles still operating in Canada. Because of the length of the vehicle, the extra driver is needed at the back to get the machine around corners. When the front driver of the truck wants to make a right turn at an intersection, Ingram turns left to get the back end to hug the intersection curb. When the front end is turned back on a straight course, Ingram has to twist the wheel back again.

Two Thugs Gag Four and Grab $600 in Cash

Toronto, Nov. 13 — (CP) — Two armed thugs Wednesday bound and gagged three girl office employees and a dentist before escaping with $600 in cash from the office of a food market in North Toronto.

The office was located above the store and the bandits told Esther Martin and Francis Winter, both 21, daughters of the joint owners of the store, and Lillian Winchell, to sit in chairs where they were bound and gagged.

On their way down stairs the men walked into the office of Dr. Kenneth Levinson, a dentist, and after advising him of the holdup, they also bound and gagged him. Police believe a third man was waiting in an automobile outside.

Miss Martin managed to move her chair to an inter-office communication telephone through which she shouted to an employee in the store below who aided and sounded the alarm.

Masked Bandit On Motorcycle Robs Shop Owner

Hamilton, Nov. 13 — (CP) — Hamilton city police today assisted provincial police from nearby Grimsby in the search for a motorcycle bandit armed with a black automatic revolver and a sawed-off rifle barrel who held up and robbed John W. Holynsky, owner of a store and gas station on No. 8 Highway three miles west of Grimsby, of between $35 and $40 just before closing time last night.

After the hold-up, the bandit had some difficulty in starting his motorcycle but finally got it going and escaped amid a hail of bullets fired by the victim.

Mr. Holynski and family, who live at the rear of the highway store, were in the living quarters when he heard the store door bell ring Tuesday night.

"I went into the store," he said, "and there was a man with a black automatic revolver in his left hand and the sawed-off barrel of a rifle in his right hand. He had the revolver pointed at me. As soon as I went in he said:—'This is a holdup, don't move, don't move.'

"He kept repeating that as he walked over to the cash register . . . After getting the money he backed up to the door with the gun still pointed at me. As he went out he yelled 'Don't do anything about it. I'm taking my own money back and a little more besides.'"

Pittsburgh Runs Undefeated String to 12 Games by Tie Last Night

(By The Canadian Press)

Hershey Bears and Pittsburg Hornets are today the toasts of the American Hockey League. Hershey is perched firmly at the top of the loop's Eastern Division, while the Hornets lead the league in the west—one point in front of Buffalo Bisons.

Champions last season, the Bears continued their onslaught last night at Philadelphia, whipping the Rockets 5-1. Meanwhile Hornets ran their undefeated string to 12 at Pittsburgh last night but were forced to be content with a 2-2 tie with Cleveland.

In the other fixture played last night, Springfield Indians climbed out of sole occupancy of the Eastern cellar, whipping the hapless St. Louis Flyers 7-2.

Johnny Pierson, fresh from the Boston Bruin camp, and Clarnce (Mark) Marquess notched two Hershey goals each. Their other goal was scored by Herbie Cain. Rockets lone tally went to Walter Hnatick.

Rockets forced Pittsburgh to come from behind to earn the stalemate. Freddie Thurier and Roger Gagne bulged the twine for Cleveland while Pete Backor and Syd Smith scored for Hornets.

In the first period at St. Louis, Flyers had all the markings of a championship team. But they slipped in the second and third period to lose 7-2. Eddy Kobussen led Springfield with two goals while other Indians marksmen were Bill Gooden, Harry Frost, Riec Unger, Alan Kuntz and Bob Thorpe. John Shewchuck and Bill McComb scored for Flyers.

Motion Pictures Of Play Shown By Conny Smythe

(By The Canadian Press)

Motion pictures of a play by Bill Ezinicki of the Toronto Maple Leafs that sent Edgar Laprade of the New York Rangers to hospital Saturday with a slight concussion were shown by Conny Smythe, Leafs managing-director, yesterday in support of his argument for a National Hockey League fine against Frank Boucher of the Rangers.

Boucher protested the play in a message to N. H. L. president Clarence Campbell. He urged that Ezinicki be curbed for alleged rough tactics in the body check.

Smythe said: "We think that under the constitution Boucher should be fined for making remarks prejudicial to our club." The movie in Toronto showed Ezinicki, carrying his stick low, hit Laprade a terrific jolt with his shoulder.

The Canadian Olympic Association will hold a conference in conjunction with the annual convention of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada opening at Lethbridge, Alta., Nov. 20. It is expected that details of plans to send Canada's athletes across the Atlantic will be dealt with.

Ottawa Senators, current leaders in the infant Quebec Senior Hockey League schedule, continue to hold the league scoring spotlight with three players topping the ladder. Leading the pack with 11 goals and nine assists is Jack Irvine.

Jack Kramer, twice United States amateur singles tennis champion, yesterday turned professional for an annual salary of $50,000, largest contract ever offered a tennis star.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

The fate of professional baseball in Belleville next year rests, it would appear in the hands of the city fathers. And indirectly, the fate likewise of Peterborough's anticipated professional ballchasing nine.

• • •

Prospects for the introduction of the pro game here this year looked exceedingly bright a few weeks ago. Interested business men got their heads and purses together, and a sum of money sufficient to finance the franchise and players was immediately forthcoming.

• • •

Then it was discovered that in order to bring the Exhibition Park diamond up to professional requirements, erection of bleachers, clubhouse and grounds improvements would necessitate the raising of an additional $15,000 to $20,000.

• • •

Those already interested in the financing of the team made strenuous efforts to raise this extra money from private sources. They were only partially successful, the amount promised being nowhere near the sum required to get the sport off on the right foot. An alarming lack of interest of men, blessed with plenty of that lettuce that does not grow in gardens was plainly evident. Sure they were sympathetic —thought the idea was a grand one, and that professional baseball would go over like an Al Jolson record at a juke-box convention. But there it ended. When it came to loosening the purse strings — that was a different matter. It was a plain case of no soap, and that was that.

• • •

Rather than let the idea die a sudden death, and to show Border League officials that they were acting in all sincerity, the men behind the project appealed to the City Parks Board, with request that that body recommend to City Council the issuing of debentures to cover the extra cost.

• • •

This was done and the city poppas in stride turned the matter over to a "committee." Which was okay insofar as parliamentary procedure is concerned. But probably sounded the death knell of pro baseball here. For the Border league master-minds are holding another meeting on Nov. 29th, and if Belleville has nothing concrete to offer —Bingo. In the meantime two teams from southern New York State are ready to go ahead with franchises if they can be obtained, and unless some quick action here is forthcoming, they will cop the nod. And if Belleville doesn't get in this year, Peterborough, too, may be on the outside looking in. And we are not kidding, Mr. Perdue.

• • •

The people behind the scheme here have offered the City Parks Board a generous rental for the Exhibition Park diamond if and when the debentures are issued. The P.B. is granted a mill on the taxes each year for parks improvement. That money could be diverted to the improvement of the grounds, diamond, etc., without any more strain on the tax payer. But, as we said before, unless some speedy action on the part of the "committee" to which the debenture matter was referred, is forthcoming, we go back into the same old rut of yesteryear.

• • •

So, let's have some action, gentlemen of the "committee." You haven't much time and you can, or should be able to make up your minds within a few minutes, or in at least sufficient time to allow the city to exercise its franchise. It's a plain case of "yes" or "no." So let's have it without the trimmings, alibis or excuses. But do it soon.

• • •

Tonight's hockey tidbit insofar as the Belleville District League is concerned sees those pesky Hornets clash with the Bloomfield Sky Chiefs, and Tweed hook up with their old enemies from Stirling. Should be a good bill. Don't miss it. First game at 7.30.

• • •

According to more or less direct reports from Peterborough, those rough toughies from Albert College who wear the livery of the senior football squad, more or less got into the "hair" of the Peterborough CI stalwarts, who went through their COSSA schedule undefeated. It seems as though the Don Huyck clan Ezenickied some of those delicate Petes, in fact on one or two occasions even spoiled their sleek hair-do's much to the chagrin and mortification of the local bobby-sox brigade. Well, what did they expect, kisses and introductions?

• • •

And this Albert College crew, at least some of them, were members of the junior squad which Peterborough classified last year as the "roughest, hairiest, biggest bunch of juniors to pump the pigskin." But here's the strange part of the business. No less than three squads which played against the Petes complained that they (The Petes) had B. O. (benefit of officials, that is). It seems that all three stated that whenever a Pete player became retaliative at having his make-up spoiled a bit, the local officials, being good-living men, turned the other cheek, with the result that their eyes were always, well nearly, headed in the opposite direction.

• • •

That was a nifty quip in a morning paper the other day. It seemed the customer was complaining about the condition of the fish he ordered, and the maitre-de-greasy spoon asked what was wrong with it.

"Long time—no see" came the terse reply.

PRO BASKETBALL LOOP DISBANDS

Chicago, Nov. 13 — (AP)—The Professional Basketball League of America will cease to function as a league and all 16 teams will cancel games as of today, James O. Brooks, counsel for commercial sports advertisers, Inc., owners of the league said today.

Brooks said the reason for abandoning the set-up is "that the league attendance has been financially unsuccessful."

Harry A. Foote, an executive director of the league, confirmed Brooks' announcement and said he couldn't add any more to the statement except that the league had "disbanded".

Teams in the league were: — Northern Division: Chicago, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Kansas City, Mo.; Louisville, Ky.; Omaha, Neb.; St. Joseph, Mo.; St. Paul, Minn., and Waterloo, Iowa.

Southern Division: Atlanta, Ga. Birmingham, Ala.; Chattanooga, Tenn.; Houston, Tex.; New Orleans, La., Oklahoma City, Okla.; Springfield, Mo., Tulsa, Okla.

TORONTO ARGOS PICKED TO WIN OVER OTTAWA

Winner of This Game Will Meet O.R.F.U. Champs on November 22nd

(By The Canadian Press)

Football's bill of fare in Eastern Canada neared the stage today where the "entrees" will be out of the way and only the "top dishes" will remain. After Saturday, barring ties, only two clubs will still be in the fight to represent the east in the Grey Cup final.

In the Big Four playoff, Toronto, Toronto Argonauts and Ottawa Rough Riders resume their rivalry in Toronto with Argos considered to hold a slight edge because of their 3-0 triumph Tuesday in the first game of the two-game, total-points series.

Over in the Ontario Rugby Football Union, Hamilton Wildcats and Ottawa Trojans square off at Hamilton, Saturday, in a sudden-death playoff for the right to represent the Union in the Eastern final. On the basis of their record—only one loss during the regular schedule—Wildcats enter the fray as favorites.

Should Wildcats win the O.R.F.U. Crown, they will play the eastern final on their own grounds since it is the O.R.F.U. year for the contest.

Western Mustangs Capture Ten of Dozen Positions on Intercollegiate All-Star Team

Entire Front Wall of "Dream Team" Coached by Metras, Chosen

By ROBERT CLARKE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 13 — (CP) — University of Western Ontario Mustangs came bucking out of their corral today to sweep all but two of the dozen positions on the Intercollegiate Rugby Football Union All-star team.

Their domination of the All-star squad, picked for The Canadian Press by football writers and coaches in the four union cities, came as no surprise. The Mustangs have roped and tied the opposition in spectacular fashion, rolling along at virtually a 40-points-per-game clip.

Possibly the greatest tribute paid by the selectors to the rampaging outfit coached by Johnny Metras was the choice of Mustangs for the entire front wall of the "dream" team. Three Western backfielders also were chosen while McGill Redmen and the Golden Gaels of Queen's each picked up a place.

The team:

Records Speak Volumes

To say that the all-star team has everything — speed, weight, scoring power, a good defence — is tantamount, of course, to saying that the Mustangs have everything. Their record speaks volumes in this respect — 193 points marked up in five games against 15 points achieved by their opposition. Western's goalline has been crossed on only two occasions.

Selection of the McFarland Brothers and Parry provides a backfield second to none in Canada when it comes to out-and-out speed. All three are regarded as cinches for the Canadian Olympic track team. The 6' 2" Bob McFarlane, a 200-pounder, is the best known in a track way. He holds the Canadian quarter-mile record in time considered good enough to make him a point-winner for Canada at the Olympics.

Parry Unanimous Choice

Nor are Hayes and Lenard lost in such classy company, even though they are not as mercury-footed as the Western aces. Hayes has been outstanding with a weak McGill team. He can pass, kick, plunge or run well and is able to back up a line with crisp tackling. Lenard, a good traffic director, filled much the same roll with the Gaels.

Parry was the only unanimous choice for the all-star team. He received the maximum 24 points in the balloting, weighted to give equal voting strength to each union city. The McFarlanes emerged with the next best point totals, Bob getting 22 marks and Don 18. Hayes and Lenard had good margins over others who received points in the balloting.

Along the line, Duck received the greatest support from the selectors with a point score of 17. He and Ford are almost carbon copies in size. Duck, who is 25, stands 5' 11" and weighs 183 lbs. Ford, three years younger than his all-star teammate, is a six-footer who tips the scale at identically Duck's weight.

Wilson is a reformed middle shifted by coach Metras to centre last season. Like the other members of the Mustangs chosen for all-star line spots he is big and fast.

Jarvie and McLean, chosen for the inside positions, each received 11 points. Curry and Turnbull, given the end posts, received their closest competition from teammate Bill Wardle who was chosen on last year's all - star team.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York, Nov. 13 (AP) — Coach Frank Boucher of New York Rangers, already embroiled in an argument with Toronto Maple Leafs over whether or not Toronto's Bill Ezinicki is a rough player, says he hopes he has heard the last of at least one worry, Roy Conacher ... the Rangers acquired Conacher from Detroit Red Wings but Roy announced his "retirement" from hockey, then signed a few days later with Chicago Black Hawks ... in passing, Boucher says that Conacher signed for less with Chicago than he would have obtained under New York's top salary offer ... the Ranger coach is still wondering why the 31-year-old wing wouldn't come to New York.

Satar Diggers

It seems appropriate these days when baseball's hot stove is warming up and football cheers still are ringing in the ears of assorted huskies who were hauled out of the mines to publish Ernie Landraff's all-miners baseball team ... Landraff, now president of the North Atlantic League and former owner and manager of assorted minor league clubs, lists a collection of former coal miners that would be very hard to beat ... here it is: Pitchers — Mordecai Brown, Harry and Stanley Coveleskie, Mike O'Neill Jack Quinn, Jack Stivetts and Ed Walsh. Catchers — Frank Crossin, Jack and Steve O'Neill. First base — Jake Daubert and Tom Jones. Second base — Bucky Harris and Mickey Hoslin. Third base — Earl Adams and Mike McNally. Shortstops — Joe Boley and Hugh Jennings. Outfielders —Buck Freeman, Chick Shorten and John Titus.

CANADIAN SPORT SNAPSHOTS

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Edmonton, Nov. 13 (CP) — There's a brisk demand for crying towels among Edmonton's hockey fans these days because of the poor showing of the Flyers, the city's entry in the Western Canada Senior Hockey League, so far this season.

For sports editors George (Edmonton Journal) MacKintosh and Hal (Edmonton Bulletin) Dean, it was just too much when the league-leading Regina Caps thumped Flyers 9-4 in a recent set-to.

Said Hal:

"Edmonton hockey fans deserve something better ... this city has consistently outdrawn all others in the circuit since the Western Canada League commenced in the fall of 1945."

Snapped George:

"A wretched performance ...to stay up with the pace in this league the Flyers need to be strengthened, but where the right kind of talent is to be had is the problem. It should have been here earlier than this, most fans think, and they're showing little restraint in saying so."

Dean conceded it was common knowledge that the exhibition association, operators of the cellar-dwelling city entry, had been disappointed in its efforts to obtain three or four players it had sought. But Calgary Stampeders had obtained replacements and additions, and "Regina's efforts certainly have borne fruit."

Both writers put the association and Flyer coach Frank Currie—formerly of Montreal Royals—on the griddle. Dean said replacements had been obtained for two illustrious Flyer alumni —Bob Solinger, now with Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League, and Bobby Carse now of Montreal Canadiens.

One indignant sports lover, writing to Dean, termed this assertion "literary pernicious anaemia." He was waiting he said, for a better deal "as a long-suffering supporter of Edmonton who has attended games for years good or bad." So, it appears, are most fans hereabouts.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 13 —(AP)— Walt Disney is going back to all-cartoon feature films.

He has been using live characters in his pictures for a few years, but now he finds not all of his subjects are suitable for such treatment. The studio has decided against a live Alice in the forthcoming "Alice in Wonderland."

Anne Carter, 11-year-old actress appears set to speak the role, but the actual character will be drawn by Disney artists.

Another Disney film, "Cinderella," will feature a cartoon heroine. It won't reach the screens until 1951, although artists are already at work on it.

Unsung Alda

Robert Alda heads east after "April Showers" to appear in a new show, "Break It Up," with Gertrude Neisen. Maybe then Hollywood will recognize his capabilities . . . Ann Sothern is reading scripts from most studios except MGM, her home lot . . .

Errol Flynn is among those hit by the economy wave. For years the prop dept, has supplied his favorite, oval-type cigarettes while he is working. But no more . . . Paramount plans to make meagre 21 films next year, compared to 36 or more in other years.

Morgan Out?

Henry Morgan, who lost his air sponsor, is reportedly choosy about his next one. He says if he can't find one to his liking, he'll go back to disk jockeying . . .

Mickey Rooney leaves today for his eight-day appearance tour in Hawaii. He'll return for "It's a Great Big World," another grown-up role for him. He'll be a lawyer . . . Margaret O'Brien got her first screen kiss in "The Big City." The donor: Butch Jenkins . . .

Fast Review

"Gentleman's Agreement" (T C F) is movie-making at its best. It is a fast-moving, tightly-knit, provocative story directed and acted with complete sincerity. Gregory Peck is flawless in the role of the magazine writer who poses as a Jew to gather material for an article on anti-Semitism.

South is the declarer at a contract of six spades. The opening lead was the club king. This is a natural lead, the top of a sequence.

A look at the dummy hand told south a sad story. There was no entry to the dummy hand in north. With two gaping holes where the kings should fit in, no entry in dummy is a serious thing.

To avoid losing a trick in each suit that lacks a king, there is the finessing principle to try. But this requires a lead from the opposite hand. No entry, no opposite hand lead.

This means there is no chance of taking a finesse in either the spades or trumps without help from opponents. Therefore, it looks as if the contract may be lost and the contract defeated thereby.

Some play must be figured out that will save one of the two seeming losers. And where a finesse may be taken, there may lurk the play known as the strip-and-endplay.

A duplication of values in clubs exists here. Ordinarily this is a handicap. But declarer can use it as an asset if opponent trumps are not split.

Taking the first trick with club ace, south lays down the ace of trump hopefully. The hope is that opponent king will drop. When it does not, only the strip and endplay will help out.

So, three tops in hearts are cashed. Even if west trumps the third heart the endplay is there. When the three hearts go through south leads a trump and forces west to win with the diamond king.

Now west can lead bacy only a heart or a black card. If it is a spade, south ace and queen take two tricks. If west returns a club or heart, dummy ruffs and south sluffs spade queen.

A good player trains to make the best gains.

CHAPTER 2.

Stubbornly he continued to gaze raptly at this bewitching girl with the friendly little nose, the eager little face uplifted to his.

"I've a rash, wicked impulse—to kiss you," de declared, grinning like an overgrown kid.

"Ingrate!" she repoved, trying to frown. "You'd take advantage of a lady who has—befriended you."

His gray eyes looked troubled. He sighed.

"That's true," he responded, on a note of discouragement. "To make it worse, you're the popular Miss Millstrom of the rotogravures. You're the dancing, flirting, beautiful, wealthy Miss Millstrom from the tabloids can't leave alone. It will be difficult—to forget you."

A sharp-edged pang of disappointment shot through Kay.

"Forgive me?" she whispered, her blue eyes widening.

"What else is there to do—gracefully?" he murmured.

His glance wandered over her head at the magnificence of this room. Until now, he had been bound to admire its crystal wall lights, its elegant green satin covered furniture, the priceless ivory Bokhara on the floor. He had been hoping his leg would soon allow him to stand in the blue and chrome shower, to shave before the scientifically lighted mirror. He couldn't give Kay anything like this. In fact, he couldn't give her anything — but love. And she would probably laugh at that.

Kay gulped, choked back a protest. Really, she mustn't throw herself at this man. If he were endeavoring to extricate himself from an awkward position without hurting her feelings, she should assist rather than hinder him. It was plainly evident that she didn't register seriously with him.

She tossed her golden curls, managed airily, "But — but I should like you to remember me. I should like to have you for a friend—always."

He bit his lower lip, thinking he understood her embarrassment.

"Friend?" he got out, at last. "There is—some one of whom you're very fond?"

"No, no," she hastened to say. "I didn't mean—" She hesitated, sobered, remembering Hennington Blare. "That is—not exactly."

"Of course, I've a job of a sort," he said, thinking aloud. "But a man who tests planes for a living is nothing to tie to—not for a girl like you."

She laid a hand over his on the arm of his chair. "But, Chuck," she began, her heart in her eyes, "I'm not—"

"Oh, darling!" interrupted a high-pitch voice. A dark-haired girl had burst into the room. She paused abruptly with, "Oh, am I intruding?"

In confusion, Kay snatched away her hand. She stood with flaming cheeks before one of her intimate friends. "Adele!" She had found her voice. "I thought you were in California."

"I was—but mother got fussy over the most interesting creature—a real count with no visible means of support. Mother called him a fortune-hunter—and back home I was sent!"

Adele's black eyes were fixed on the stranger in the invalid's chair.

"This is—Mr. Nourse, Miss Sanders. Mr. Nourse's plane dropped on our lawn and—"

Adele's musical laughter filled the room.

"I've heard about it, Mr. Neurse," she said, "Do you pick and chose your landing—or is it always a matter of chance?"

"So I've heard. Also, that Kay is adept in the art of nursing. It's such an entirely new line for Kay that I had to come over to investigate—I was curious."

"To see if Miss Millstrom were in good company? I can assure you, she's not."

Adele's thin line of eyebrow lifted in mock seriousness. "You're including me in that dubious compliment, if you but realized it," she said with a childish pout.

"I'm afraid I don't understand," he returned, wrinkling his broad forehead.

"Mother thinks you must be a Vermont Nourse. Mother's great-grandmother was a Nourse. So you see you and I must be related—your family is my family. You should hear mother on the Nourse family tree!"

His long lean face lighted. "Your mother is correct. My father and grandfather came from Vermont. Several generations of the family lived there. Certainly, we're related." He held out a hand. "Glad to meet you—cousin."

Adele dropped to the stool recently vacated by Kay, still clutching his hand. "I knew we must be related the instant I saw you," she insisted, then reluctantly relinquished his fingers. Any good-looking man always interested Adele. She had snatched new men from Kay before now by means other than fair. Up to the present, it hadn't mattered to Kay. Now, Adele's manoeuvres filled her with apprehension. This wasn't the way she had planned to go at all.

"Beg pardon, Miss Millstrom," said Sartin, in the doorway, "your mother wishes to see you in the library."

"Thank you, Sartin," Kay responded quickly.

Whether to put off her mother or leave Chuck in the hands of the astute Adele Kay could not at first decide. Probably she'd better see what was on her mother's mind. It might save trouble later on.

"Excuse me a moment." She left the room.

"It's possibly something concerning Kay's engagement party," Adele, offered, as soon as Kay was out of hearing.

"Engagement — engagement party?" reiterated Chuck, lifting himself upright by his elbows. "I didn't know—I'd no idea—"

"Hasn't Kay told you about Hennington Blare? We've all been expecting it for ever so long. Henn is an angel—charming in his way. Rather old—but his huge fortune is fascinating. Kay, though, has been trained for a brilliant marriage. Our crowd have wagered they'll be married before fall. I've a hundred on it myself—with Webb Taylor. He's really betting the wedding will never come off."

Chuck Nourse's pale face looked drawn. He gazed out over the snowy hawthorn hedge, seeing none of it. Kay—engaged! She had been trying to imply it—and he had been too dumb to get what she'd been driving at! All those evenings when she had left him to attend concerts, dinners, dances and bridge parties, this Henn had doubtless been her escort. He had never inquired about her escorts. He hadn't considered it his business. Now it was plain to him, and he would make his plans accordingly.

"Kay is a wonderful girl," Chuck Nourse said to Adele. "She deserves to marry happily."

Adele tilted her green straw hat to a saucier angle; she fastened her great black eyes on this desirable man before her. She stood up and tugged down the green packet of her cloth suit, making it cling to her dieted figure in just the right places.

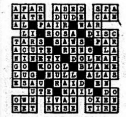
Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle



Enjoys Relief At Last From Nervous Indigestion

Suffered 3 Years Gas, Bloat and Belching; Got Bad Headaches; Nervous, Sleepless Nights; "Like Different Person Since Taking Syntona."

"For three years I had stomach disorders which brought on nervous indigestion and I suffered endless distress until I began taking Syntona," said Mrs. E. Dunn, of 373 Catherine Street, N. Hamilton, Ontario, in a recent report.

"I got such horrid feelings that I became depressed and worried. After meals I would bloat up with gas, belch hot, sour liquids and get a suffocating feeling just like there was a lump in my throat. My nerves had become so jittery I couldn't get to sleep for hours after lying down at night. Nearly every morning I awakened with a bad headaches and a lame feeling across my back.

"I tried everything I knew of, but got no relief. Then I read about Syntona helping other people and decided to get some. In a few days I began to feel some better, so I kept on taking it. Now my food digests nicely without souring or forming gas and my stomach never becomes upset. The distressed, suffocated feeling passed off and I haven't had that horrid, nervous condition since. I sleep well, don't have headaches or lame back in the mornings, my tongue is clear and generally I feel like an entirely different person.

MRS. E. DUNN

Syntona, made from 12 of Nature's Finest Herbs and Roots acts on stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels. Aids elimination of excess acids and impurities from the system and promotes better assimilation of food for increased strength and energy.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was walking to the buss with pop on my way to school, and I said, G, pop, you're lucky.

Thanks for passing on the information, but I still dont believe it, pop said, and I said, Sure you are, pop. G. roozalem, I wish I was just on my way to my office, like you, slapping my leg cheerful with my newspaper, instead of being on my way to school with all these books, I said.

Well well, now that's odd, I was just envying you, skipping blithely to school to bask in the gentle rays of a public education among your laffing frends, pop said, and I said, Laffing nothing, pop. Good night we better not laff unless we want to be kept after school or even sent down to the principal's office for a special diskraze. All we do is just sit there like frozen dummies till the bell rings. But you can get up and go out whenever you want to, and not come back till you feel like it, without asking anybody or even telling anybody unless you really want them to know. Gosh, pop, you've got a cinch, I said.

My boy, you'll never know what it means to be tied to a desk until you are chained there by the shackles of duty and necessity, pop said. I cant even stray in my thawts, because I dont dare allow my attention to wander; but you on the other hand are secretly off in the clouds half the time, dallying with your own fond fancies and totally oblivious of education's sternly beckoning finger. You are the one to be envied, dont you agree with me? he said, and I said, Well, it sounds all right, I guess, but it would sound better if it wasn't school.

I see what you mean, pop said. Well, here's my buss, so I suppose all we can do it shake hands with each other in mutual sympathy and be on our separate ways, he said.

Which we shook hands and did, both probably feeling partly better instead of werse.

Papers Express Disappointment At New Budget

London, Nov. 13 (Reuters) — Disappointment at the emergency budget introduced in the House of Commons yesterday was generally the verdict of this morning's newspapers.

The Labor party's own newspaper, the Daily Herald, was an exception.

The Liberal Manchester Guardian said the case against the budget was not any of its proposals were bad, but that all of them evaded the frontal attack on inflation and the total effect was much too small.

The Times said there was little evidence that the budget proposals could have any major influence on the national economy in the really critical months ahead.

"The budget has the unfortunate appearance of being in part a gamble on the prospect that assistance under the Marshall Plan will bolster standards of consumption otherwise untenable," said The Times. "Alternatively it expresses the hope that things are not quite so bad as they seem and gambles on the offchance that the country can scramble through without unpopular measures."

Points made by other papers in editorial comment:

The Conservative Daily Telegraph: "The budget is wholly inadequate to the situation."

The Financial Times: "The most disappointing feature of the budget as an inflation queller was the complete absence of any attempt to reduce the level of government expenditure. As an attempt to counter inflation, it must be regarded as a failure."

The Labor Daily Herald: "The measures taken so far have prevented that 'breakaway inflation' which affects many other countries. The further measures announced yesterday cannot fairly be objected to by any class."

The Daily Express: "The way of inflation, chosen by Mr. Dalton, is necessarily the way of harshness and probably of injustice."

The Daily Mail: "The budget is good for the individual and bad for the country, a success politically and a failure economically. It is a half measure."

Airliner Makes Crash Landing, No One Injured

London, Nov. 13 — (AP)—British-South American Airways announced today that its four-engined Starlight had made a crash landing in Bermuda this morning after developing engine trouble, on a flight from Santiago, Chile, to London.

Cmdr. A. C. Graham received facial injuries, but there were no other casualties, the announcement said. It did not specify how many were aboard the plane.

The Starlight is a converted Lancaster bomber. In January, 1946, the same plane made a 14,000-mile survey flight to Buenos Aires and return in preparation for inauguration of Britain's South American service.

SEVEN BELOW IN N. DAKOTA

Chicago, Nov. 13 — (AP)—The mercury plunged to seven below zero in Grand Forks, N. D., today — the lowest mark in the United States this season. Temperatures were near the zero mark in several communities in North and South Dakota and Minnesota and dipped below freezing in the eastern states.

Rawdon

School Party

Rawdon — The pupils of S. S. No. 7, fourth concession of Rawdon and their teacher, Mrs. Morris Rose, presented an interesting Hallowe'en concert with a really good program, games and contests. The mothers and small children of the section were invited. The pupils served refreshments at the close and all enjoyed a social half hour.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan and Gerrard spent Tuesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Forestell at Madoc.

Mrs. Jas. E. McMullen and Miss Marilyn Bailey are holidaying with friends in Sidney township.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mark, Ottawa, spent a few days this week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fanning and attended the funeral of her grandmother.

The flower bearers for the late Mrs. Permelia Bennett were: — Messrs. Blake Sharp, Will Preston, Edward Preston, George Watson, Edward Todd and Wilfred Sine and the pallbearers were four grandsons, Messrs. Carl Sills, Howard Moran, Ray Moran, and Harry Bennett and two great grandsons, Messrs. Claude Moran and Ray Bennett.

MASTER ON THE BRIDGE

Halifax — (CP) — Capt. Thos. M. Ormiston, 68-year-old master mariner, doesn't go to sea anymore but he directs the operations of eight harbor tugs here from a wharf-borne bridge. The veteran skipper's task is to dispatch powerful little craft in response to telephone calls from steamship agents.

Life Moves Leisurely on Magdalen Is.

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Lapeyrere, Grindstone Island, the Magdalen Islands, Que., Nov. 13 —(CP)— Here, where young Magdalen islanders come to learn farming and fishing in government-sponsored schools, they say the Magdalens are the most heavily populated section of rural land in the world with the exception of one area near Brussels in Belgium.

A look at the islands from the air bears out this claim. Houses dot them, each house with its several acres of land which is arable but none too productive. Here nearly everybody owns his own house and his land, an average of 12 acres per family. People don't cluster in communities.

Lapeyrere, with perhaps 30 houses and a store fairly close together and near the farming and fisheries school, is the Magdalens' equivalent of a city. Grindstone, where there is a wharf, and house harbor, on Alright Island where there are fish processing plants, are other "cities" of about the same size.

Carts Largely Used

The Magdalens spread some 60 miles over the sea and broad beaches join the five main islands which boast some 200 automobiles but leave most transportation to picturesque two-wheeled horse carts devoid of springs and built after the fashion of French farm carts.

"Of the 10,000 people on our islands about 1,000 speak English," said Hormidas Langlais, the Islands' representative in the Quebec legislature.

The English-speaking people live on southerly Amherst Island, named after a British admiral who was given the islands in 1798. Others live at northerly Coffin Island.

Basque fishermen are supposed to have been the first visitors to the islands, even before Jacques Cartier came in 1534. The Basques came to slaughter the walruses which then sunned themselves off the wide island beaches.

The French are descendants of colonists settled in the Magdalens under Quebec's French regime and also of fugitives from the Acadian expulsion of 1755. Here you find English names such as Dinwell and such French names as Arsenault, LeBlanc, Lapierre and Giffard.

Islanders Prosperous

The war years were kind to the Magdalens. Fish and lobsters brought a good price and today the islands are more prosperous than ever before.

"My people of course have debts but most own their own homes now — if there is a tenant it is an exception," said Mr. Langlais.

Communication in the islands is by word of mouth and the legislature member said there isn't much need for any faster system.

"I have been here only two hours but I'm sure everybody in the islands knows I am here," he said. "I would say news travels about 60 miles, from one end of the islands to the other, in about a day."

FILE SUIT TO BAR FURTHER AID

Washington, Nov. 13 — (AP)— A suit to bar President Truman and Congress from approving further aid to Europe was filed here yesterday. David A. A. Olson, 48, who identified himself as a Kentucky builder and engineer, asked the court for an injunction on the grounds that such action by the chief executive and Congress exceeds authority for use of the taxpayers' money.

Toughest Lap Still Confronts Mercy Flight

Winnipeg, Nov. 13 (CP) —The last — and possibly toughest — lap of Operation Canon, named for a seriously-wounded Church of England Missionary, today still confronted Pilot FO. Bob Race and his R.C.A.F. Dakota, the Snowbird.

FO. Race, bound for Moffet Inlet 1,700 miles north of Winnipeg and 400 miles inside the Arctic Circle, to evacuate Canon John H. Turner, Mrs. Turner, their two children and four Canadian Army paratroopers who had jumped to the missionary's aid, landed yesterday at Coral Harbor, Southampton Island.

Today he planned to make a reconnaissance flight to Moffett, inspect a lake which Capt. Guy D'Artois, commander of the paratroops, has marked as suitable for landing and then return to Coral for a final check-up. But early today meteorological officials at Winnipeg said a 40-mile wind and blowing snow at Coral had reduced visibility.

Those conditions might again delay the evacuation. In almost a week, the Snowbird has been able to proceed only from Winnipeg to Coral Harbor via Churchill. Only four days remain before the Arctic night closes in on Moffett.

There was no further word on the condition of Canon Turner, suffering from a bullet wound in the head received when his rifle discharged as he was opening the mission door. The wound caused partial paralysis from which he was reported slowly recovering.

Cripps Takes Over Chancellorship As Dalton Resigns

Leak in Budget News Leads to Cabinet Change

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 14 (CP)—Lean, hard-jawed Sir Stafford Cripps, Britain's apostle of austerity, today moved into the exchequer offices replacing bluff, towering Hugh Dalton following the explosion of the biggest bombshell to hit British government ranks since the Labor Party ousted Winston Churchill's government in 1945.

Prime Minister Attlee handed the key fiscal post to Sir Stafford immediately on accepting Dalton's resignation which the latter formally tendered after admitting a "grave indiscretion" which led to a "leak" in the contents of the supplementary budget which Dalton brought down Wednesday.

Thus the man opposition leader Churchill recently termed the "best brain" in the government—and who is associated in the minds of the voters with the grim measeurs of rationing and other hardships of the post-war years—moved up another notch in the hierarchy of the party by which he was once disowned, and took over full control of Britain's financial policies.

Just what repercussions the swift and startling cabinet break would have remained to be seen, but Conservative newspapers in the provinces unhesitatingly predicted it would be "profound effects on the waning prestige of the Socialist government."

Churchill Wants Inquiry

In the House of Commons, Churchill disclosed that he had demanded a full investigation by a select committee of the incident which led to Dalton's resignation. Some observers saw in this the possibility of a full-blown effort to oust the Attlee cabinet.

The incident in question was publication in the Liberal London Star of a forecast of Wednesday's interim budget a short time before Dalton actually began reading it in the House. Dalton said later that as he was entering the chamber to make the speech, a Star reporter asked him some questions and in reply "I indicated to him the subject matter contained in the publication in question."

After the discussion at Downing Street, the cabinct met at 10 a.m. and Dalton's resignation offer was put before the ministers. It was not known whether it was decided at that cabinet meeting to accept the proffered resignation or whether the decision was made later.

first inkling of the developing crisis at 2:30 p.m. during the Commons' question hour. In reply to a question as to how the Star was able to have details of the budget on the street before they were announced in the House, Dalton admitted his "grave indiscretion" in answering the reporter's questions. He offered his "deep apologies" to the House.

Sometime between his statement in the House and 10:30 p.m., when the resignation was announced, Dalton put his earlier offer to resign into writing and Attlee accepted the resignation.

CRIPPS MOVES IN—Page 4

Text of Attlee's Letter to Dalton After Incident

London, Nov. 14 (AP) — The text of Prime Minister Attlee's letter accepting the resignation of Hugh Dalton as Chancellor of the Exchequer follows:

My Dear Chancellor:

When you informed me of yesterday's incident you immediately offered me your resignation and you h e now written to me formally. I have given the matter earnest consideration and have come to the conclusion with great regret that it is my duty to accept it.

I realize this indiscretion in itself did not result in any action detrimental to the state but the principle of inviolability of the budget is of the highest importance, and the discretion of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, who necessarily receives many confidential communications, must be beyond question.

I need not tell you how painful it is to me to have to lose an old and valued colleague whose services to the government have been so great. I sympathize with you very deeply in this interruption to a distinguished career.

I would like to thank you most warmly for your good and loyal service. I know you will continue to work for the movement which we both love so well and that our friendship remains.

Clement Attlee

The text of Dalton's letter to Attlee:

My Dear Prime Minister:

In view of the incident which was raised in the House of Commons I think it is my duty to offer you my resignation.

If you accept it I shall continue though now outside its ranks, to do my duty to support the government in carrying through the program to which we are all pledged.

I shall continue in Parliament and outside, to give all loyal service in my power to the Labor party in which you and I have worked together as comrades for so many years. I should like to thank you personally for all the helpfulness, encouragement and kindness you have so often shown me.

Yours Sincerely,
Hugh Dalton.

Text of Winston Churchill's letter to Dalton:

My Dear Chancellor of the Exchequer:

Since question time today when I intervened on the subject of disclosure of budget secrets I have received further information.

I have now seen a very precise and comprehensive form of the announcement (which Dalton made to the House of Commons on the premature disclosure).

I am also told no obligation of secrecy was imposed upon the journalist, though that certainly seems to me to have been implicit. There could have been dealings as a result of this premature disclosure.

In the circumstances, while I acknowledge the frankness of your apology in the House, and my sympathy with you in any breach of confidence which may have been committed, I feel it necessary that the incident should be the subject of inquiry by a select committee.

Such is the view of my Conservative colleagues and, I also know, of the Liberal party. It seems to me very likely this would be your own wish too. We are therefore putting a motion on paper in this sense. I am sending a copy of this letter to the press.

Yours Sincerely
Winston Churchill

COMMUNISTS ON WARPATH, WARN OF "CIVIL WAR"

Will Keep Up Fight Against De Gasperi

Rome, Nov. 14 —(AP)— Italy's powerful left, seething with suppressed anger since Premier de Gasperi ejected it from the cabinet last May, was openly and admittedly on the warpath today, sounding warnings of "civil war."

During turbulent constituent assembly debate last night over prolonged violence sweeping the entire peninsula, Communist Giuseppe di Vittorio, leader of the big General Labor Confederation, grimly declared:

"If you want to save the country from the misfortune of civil war, it will be necessary for the government to observe the democratic legality of dissolving Fascist organizations rather than imbuing them with the hope of rising again and taking over power anew."

The Communist Party, chief Palmiro Togliatti, pointed up the warning later when he told reporters that the Communists would keep up their fight against De Gasperi on a parliamentary plane — "as long as that is possible."

Inside the assembly the debate grew so raucous at one point that Speaker Umberto Terracini, a Communist, ejected Deputy Edoardo D'Onofrio, also a Com-

Belief Expressed Britain Is Not Tending Toward Totalitarianism

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst)

It's an ill wind that doesn't blow good to somebody, and the British Cabinet scandal which has catapulted Sir Stanley Cripps into the important chancellorship of the Exchequer, in addition to his ministership of Economic Affair, should strengthen the hand of the government in meeting the fierce economic crisis which is raking the unhappy country.

This sensational upheaval resulted from the indiscretion of Hugh Dalton, chancellor of the Exchequer, in disclosing the terms of his budget earlier this week to a newspaper reporter before he delivered his budget speech in the House of Commons. He had to resign, and Prime Minister Attlee promptly gave the chancellorship to the already-powerful Sir Stafford.

This change consolidates in the hands of one of Britain's most capable men the weapons with which to batte the crisis. Observers long have regarded Sir Stafford—austere but brilliant—as the strong man of the Labor party.

Of course this concentration of power will swell the cries of "dictatorship" from opponents of the Attlee regime. His government already has resorted to extreme measures which recently have evoked cries of "slave state" and "totalitarianism" from opponents—and undoubtedly we shall hear much more before the chancellorship affair is stilled.

Up to this juncture the most violent protests have been drawn by a regulation which Labor Minister George Isaacs says will put to work all persons—male and female—including Lords, "spivs (petty crooks) and donres". Those who refuse to comply will be jailed. That's strong language to use to free men.

Then there's the government's new bill which would further hamstring the legislative prerogatives of the already largely impotent House of Lords. This brought Conservative Leader Winston Churchill bounding out of a sick bed to Commons to shout "dictatorship".

Also, the other day the government introduced a measure providing more fierce curbs on spending power to reduce inflationary buying. New taxes hit rich and poor alike. The workman even will have to pay a penny a pint more for the bitter beer which is the breath of life to him. Curiously enough, however, this economic knock thus far has been taken stoically, and the complaint of the majority of the press is that the curbs aren't drastic enough.

Analysis of these various reactions gives a fair idea of Britain's political temper. It hates regimentation of the individual, but is ready to make any economic sacrifice to meet the needs of the country.

That's the answer, I take it, to the question so frequently asked: Is Britain tending toward totalitarianism? There is not the slightest indication that it is.

Two Killed 12 Injured In Explosion

Aylesbury, Bucks, England, Nov. 14 — (CP) — Two leading experts in rocket warfare, Dr. J. P. Rowlands, a British scientist, and Dr. Johannes Schmidt, head of a team of German experts brought to Britain after the war, were killed today and 12 others injured, three severely, in an explosion at the Westcott experimental research station where "hush hush" development of rocket propulsion had been in progress.

The supply ministry, in releasing the list of casualties, said the accident occurred during tests with a rocket motor but would not disclose further details. Dr. Rowlands was an official of the station.

Dr. Schmidt, 44, was credited with creating an early rocket plane, the Messerschmitt ME-163. He and 10 German associates also had worked on the German V-1 and V-2 projects.

An eyewitness said the blast occurred after two rockets were set up for tests. When the first was fired the second exploded. Workers nearby were hit.

Now they are moving into the new Arts building.

15½ CENTS HOUR INCREASE FOR TWO U.S. RAIL UNIONS

200,000 of B. of R.T. And O.R.C. Affected

Chicago, Nov. 14 (AP)—Two United States railroad operating brotherhoods announced today a 15½-cent hourly wage increase for the 200,000 members of the two unions.

The increase, which a joint union-company statement said amounted to $100,000,000 annually was made retroactive to Nov. 1. It totals $1.24 for an eight-hour day.

The unions affected are the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Order of Railroad Conductors.

The groups also announced agreement on four working rules, and withdrawal of a large number proposed by both sides. Negotiations will continue on 11 other rule proposals, including four proposed by the unions and seven proposed by the carriers.

WRECKAGE OF SCHOONER LOST IN 1894 WASHED ASHORE

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 14 — (CP)—Wreckage thought to be that of the three-masted schooner William Shupe, which went down in a storm in 1894, has been washed up on the Lake Huron shore near here, it was reported today.

Young Couple Operating Fishing Camp Lose Lives in Northern Wilderness

Sioux Lookout, Ont., Nov. 14—(CP)— The northwestern Ontario wilderness has claimed the lives of a young couple who sought to earn their living in this lake-studded bushland by operating a fishing camp.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Norton were found frozen to death Wednesday on the snow-covered shore of Little Vermilion Lake about a mile from the spot where their flat-bottomed boat capsized on the ice-encrusted lake. Barking of their small dog led searchers to the bodies huddled in the snow.

Burial will be at Norton's parental home in Acton, Ont.

Police gave this reconstruction of events leading to their death from exposure and cold:

Norton, about 29, and his brown-haired wife, the former Peggy Jones Mansfield, England, were travelling from a small camp to their main lodge 10 miles south of here. Their boat capsized in a storm which swept the region Sunday.

The camp operator and his war-bride swam ashore through the ice-filled water and tried to walk to the camp.

They had no means of lighting a fire to dry their clothing. Already exhausted by the long swim, they lost strength rapidly under the weight of their sodden garments as they plodded through the driving snowstorm. Their little dog, drenched and shivering, trailed in their faltering footsteps.

They covered a long and weary mile when the young woman sank down in the snow and could not rise again. Norton crouched beside her, trying to shield her from the storm's fury.

The odds were all on the side of the storm and the cold. Long before friends had started to worry about their safety, Norton and his wife died in each other's arms on the darkening lake shore. Their pet dog, hungry and cold, kept faithful vigil beside their still forms.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Nov. 14—(CP)—Synopsis: Skies are generally clear over southwestern Ontario this morning. Elsewhere there is some cloudiness and scattered light snowflurries are occurring. Temperatures are below freezing in all sections. Moist tropical air flowing aloft from the southwest will cause increasing cloudiness over the Great Lakes region today. Rain in southwestern Ontario and snow in northern Ontario are expected Saturday afternoon.

Squirt-Gun Navy Mans Battle Stations As New Mexico Heads for Last Fight

— The much-heralded "engagement" between the United States battleship New Mexico and Newark's "squirt-gun navy" was postponed today after the decommissioned dreadnought arrived outside the harbor three hours behind schedule, too late for the morning tide.

The towing company whose tugs are bringing the aged vessel into port — but not if the city of Newark can help it — said the New Mexico is due to enter the harbor on tomorrow morning's tide.

The tiny "defending force," two 30-foot fire launches armed with chemical sprays and fire hoses, manned "battle stations" at dawn, determined to prevent the decommissioned dreadnought from keeping its rendezvous with a Newark scrapyard which city officials say she must not reach.

Mayor Vincent J. Murphy declared "war" on the 33,000-ton ship Armistice Day, ordering the fire boats to patrol the bay channel and block the entry of the once-gallant flagship of the Pacific Fifth Fleet. Officials have ordered that no more ships be junked within the city.

As a prelude to the engagement, Newark was under heavy bombardment from many sources yesterday.

The State of New Mexico entered the fray with an avalanche of outraged telegrams. A New Jersey naval hero, Admiral William (Bull) Halsey, a native of nearby Elizabeth, refused his services and the opposition, in a surprise move, bolstered its ranks with the addition of nine tugs to the three already escorting the New Mexico.

The blow that hurt most of all was delivered by Halsey who refused the plea of a Newark friend to give some free advice on how to block a channel.

"I can't help Newark on strategy," Halsey said from his Virginia home. "I don't know a damn thing about patrolling channels. I patrolled oceans."

The London Daily Chronicle cabled Newark to find out if a revolution was impending.

Reprisal Squads Kill Four Britons In Holy Land

New Wave of Violence Takes 11 Lives in Week

Jerusalem, Nov. 14 —(AP)— Four Britons — two police and two soldiers — were slain today in a continuing wave of Palestine underground violence which has cost a toll of 11 dead and 30 wounded in three days.

The police were killed on the Jaffa road in Jerusalem by attackers who fled on foot. The two soldiers were slain in Tel Aviv by bullets from a speeding car.

Police said the Stern Gang, a Jewish underground organization, probably was engaged in a campaign of reprisals.

Authorities said the two Jerusalem policemen, both constables, were unarmed and in civilian clothing, on their way to their assignments in the Mustapha police station, when they were shot in the back.

However, Jewish sources at the scene said one of the constables was armed, and that as he fell he turned and fired at the attackers. They said his shots injured a small Jewish girl. The wounded constable died later in hospital.

Police fatalities in the current wave of violence now total four. One was killed and three were wounded in Haifa Tuesday when a gunman, believed by police to have been a Sternist, fired into a coffee shop. Another was killed and one was wounded in Jerusalem last night when bombs were tossed into a cafe. A British soldier also was killed, and 28 persons in all were injured in that attack.

The Tel Aviv shooting this morning came during funeral services for five young Jews who were killed Wednesday when British authorities raided a house near Tel Aviv believed to have been a Terrorist training school.

Police expressed belief that the new outbreak of violence was launched in reprisal for these killings. The new outbreaks were the bloodiest since the Sept. 29 bombing of police headquarters at Haifa, when 10 died.

Warned to Close Up

Prior to the funeral, pistol-firing youths, tentatively identified as members of the Stern Gang, circulated through Tel Aviv's business area warning shopkeepers to close up during the ceremonies.

Tension created by the wave of bloodshed was heightened by reports that a small ship carrying 1,000 uncertified Jewish immigrants was expected off Haifa some time tonight.

A Jewish agency spokesman expressed "horror and disgust" at yesterday's underground attacks here and in Haifa, during which, an army communique said, four British oil men and one policeman were killed, a British soldier was fatally wounded and 27 other British soldiers and a policeman were wounded.

"This is cold-blooded murder," the spokesman said. It is gravely endangering political efforts made by the Jewish people in Lake Success."

Believed Battle Had Taken Place Before Murder

Toronto, Nov. 14 (CP)—A pool of blood and some papers found on Elmvale Farm west of the city, near where cab driver Ralph Margeson's body was found in a ditch last Tuesday, led police today to believe that a battle had taken place outside the cab before the native of Rockland, N.S., was murdered.

As the search for the murderer intensified, police said that last night they questioned a former convict in connection with the case but he was not held. The questioning followed a tip believed to have been "authentic."

Reconstruction of the crime by police indicated that Margeson was shot from behind while he clung to the steering wheel of his automobile. The murdered man was robbed of about $15.

A search of the Queen Elizabeth Way by provincial police uncovered evidence that Margeson battled his slayers and that the fight for life had been in the driveway of a farm. In the driveway the detectives found personal papers of the taxi driver and bloodstains indicating that he had been dragged from the car.

Detectives questioned a number of shopkeepers and nightwatchmen for factories in the district but declined to reveal whether they had found eyewitnesses to the killers' abandoning the death car in a vacant lot.

Meanwhile neighbors and other sympathetic citizens have swelled a fund to help Mrs. Margeson and her five children, to $3,000. Coal and food have also been donated.

F.A. Gaby Dies Former Engineer Of Ontario Hydro

Toronto, Nov. 14 —(CP)— Frederick Arthur Gaby, who served the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission for 27 years before his dismissal as chief engineer in 1934, died today of coronary thrombosis. He was 69.

One of the best-known engineers in Canada, Mr. Gaby was a frequent target for attacks by Mitchell F. Hepburn before the latter became Liberal premier of the province. Immediately after his election in 1934, Mr. Hepburn reorganized the commission and one of its first steps was to dismiss Mr. Gaby and other high-ranking officials.

Later the new commission brought an action against Mr. Gaby and three other Hydro officials for recovery of $4,533 paid to Toronto private detectives and a Chicago law firm for reports on alleged anti-Hydro attacks. The action was dismissed with costs and the judgment described the allegations against Mr. Gaby as "utterly unfounded and very cruel."

Mr. Gaby, who was born at Richmond Hill just north of Toronto, joined the Ontario commission as assistant chief engineer in 1907, three years after he was graduated from the University of Toronto. He became chief engineer of the Ontario commission in 1912.

More than 800 dancers enjoyed the dance and social evening arranged by the Canadian Legion at the Armouries on Thursday night at which George Wade and His Corn Huskers provided excellent dance music. HUNTERS RETURN WITH DOE, BEAR

While reports from the northern areas regarding deer hunting are rather scarce up to the moment, at least one party has returned home with stories of the hunt.

Arriving here today with a doe and a husky bear were Arthur Thompson, Jack Bennis and William Whalen. They got their deer near their camp a short distance from Plevna.

BROWN'S BREAD OFFICIALS, EMPLOYEES HOLD GET-TOGETHER

Belleville district officials of Brown Bread and employees of the firm held their monthly get-together at the Bar-B-Q restaurant on Wednesday evening with well over 20 persons being present at the dinner meeting. Chairman for the evening was Louis Rump, employee of the firm.

Featuring the evening's get-together was a presentation to Douglas Denyes who later this month will join the ranks of the benedicts. On behalf of the employees Mr. Rump presented a lovely set of dishes to the co-worker soon to be married. The birthday cake was presented to Gerald Desjardins.

BRUCE BISHOP SHOOTS 200-POUND BUCK IN DETLOR DISTRICT

Hunting without dogs and other elaborate camp paraphernalia can be successful—even when a comparatively inexperienced city huntsman is doing the hunting.

Just this was proved yesterday by 20-year-old Bruce Bishop, son of Charles Bishop, Catherine Street, who on Thursday was proudly displaying a nice 200-pound buck after his return from the woods in the Detlor district in Hastings county.

As a member of a two-man hunting party Bruce related that he had been still hunting in the Detlor area when rousing from what would later have developed into a light nap he was surprised to see the big buck standing quietly a few rods away. One shot from his rifle was sufficient to bring the buck down.

The other member of the two-man party, Charles Potter, also of Belleville, was not successful.

FiveNewMembers Inducted into Y's Men's Club

In a very impressive ceremony five new members were received as members of the Y's Men's Club at the regular meeting on Thursday evening. They were Les Reid, teacher; Frank Nichols, Flt. Lieut. R.C.A.F.; W. Hutchins, Accountant; Bill Gilbert, clerk; and Garth Sine, General Insurance Manager. The induction team was composed of President Don Williams, Roy Wilcox, Frank Douglas, Roy Menary, Gerry Hyde and Vic Lancaster. The initiation which followed was under the direction of Larry Buck and Ed. Shortt.

President Don Williams presided at the regular meeting which preceded the induction, when three members of the club delivered five minute talks on their occupation. Garth Sine discussed the General Insurance Business with its problems and rewards; Ralph Bailey spoke on "Foreign Passes" as issued by the railroads, and went on to describe a trip he had taken this year to the Pacific coast. Max McGuire traced the early history of electricity in Belleville from 1885 when the first pole was set up to the time when the present Utilities Commission was formed.

Bryson Leslie reported on the Christmas Tree Project. 750 trees had been arranged for and tickets would be given to all club members. Archie Boyd was song leader. Fred Barton and Bryson Leslie, Sgts. at Arms. Al Bennett, Canadian representative of the J. T. Baker Co. was a guest.

An invitation from the Peterborough Y's Men's Club to visit them next Thursday evening was accepted, and arrangements made to transport about 24 members to Peterborough.

R.C.N. Officers Inspect Members Sea Cadet Corps

Corps members of the Belleville "Quinte" Sea Cadet Corps and their officers, together with the local headquarters were informally inspected Thursday evening by two Royal Canadian Navy (Reserve) officers. Officers making the inspection were: — Lieut. Commander J. A. Crist, and Lieut. Commander D. Olive.

Following the inspection, the two officers commented very favorably on the appearance of the local corps members on parade and on the maintenance of the "ship" which with one exception was the best in the district.

For the inspection the "Quinte" corps personnel were under the command of Acting Commander Lieut. Addison Lloyd, Lieut. Jack Howe, and Midshipman Clifford Summers. Two officer prospects for the local corps were interviewed by the visiting naval officers during their brief visit to the city.

Family Makes Restitution for Cheques Issued

Pleading guilty to seven charges of false pretenses, of forgery and of uttering forged documents, Jack Adams, Cannifton, was given suspended sentence for one year when he appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills in city magistrate's court this morning.

The series of offences had all taken place during October the total amount of the several worthless cheques passed amounting to $200. Two Belleville merchants had been victimized in passing of the worthless cheques, the court was told.

Sgt. Major Angus Duffy spoke to the court on behalf of the accused, attesting to his excellent overseas record, suggesting that his confinement as a prisoner of war had possibly caused mental unbalance.

The family of the accused agreed to make full restitution in the matter and the accused was accordingly given suspended sentence on payment of court costs. Adams will submit to further treatment at an army hospital.

ALBERT SENIORS DEFEAT B.C.I. BY 13-1 COUNT

Albert came out on top of a badly injury-riddled B.C.I. team by a score of 13 to 1. The College boys got all their points in the first half, and from then on seemed content to coast. B.C.I. added a single point in the third quarter when Wiley, captain of the Albert team, was trapped behind his own line.

Ted Early of Kingston handled a rough and rugged game, and in the last few moments escorted four players off the field, two from each team, for trying to turn the game into a Donnybrook.

Jimmy Taugher was the outstanding player for Albert, time and time again he took the ball and plunged for long gains. Such drive as he exhibited has not been seen on any local gridiron in years. George Locke played a good game at quarter for the local Collegiate and was in on nearly every play.

Both teams played without their regular quarter-backs—Haggis of B.C.I. being out for the season with an injury obtained in the Oshawa - B.C.I. game and Merkley of Albert also being out for the season from a broken collar bone obtained in the last Peterborough - Albert game.

Scot called signals for Albert, and was temporarily out of the game in the second quarter with a cut lip. He was patched up and finished the game — but later had to have five stitches to close his injury. McGaughey had to be taken to hospital for concussion, but is coming along all right.

It is not likely the northern group will challenge for the Bay of Quinte championship — Stirling and Marmora play off in Stirling today. Marmora has a 16-point lead from the first game played in Marmora.

Albert will not continue in the C.O.S.S.A. play-downs, Peterborough C. I. representing the eastern schools in the final play-downs in Toronto on November 22nd. The junior team from Peterborough with a 17-point lead on Belleville C. I. will play the second game in this series on the Albert field Saturday afternoon.

Two teams from Orillia will be battling for places in the final in Toronto on Saturday. The Orillia seniors will meet the classy St. Catharines squad, while Orillia juniors meet Port Colborne.

There will be no officially recognized Ontario play-off for high school championships this year, the Ontario Athletic Division of the Canadian Secondary Schools Association turning down any section of such a series at their meeting in Toronto on November 8th.

Milk Distributors Not Favorable To Increased Prices for Producers

Belleville Milk Distributors' Association will not willingly be a party to increased milk prices for the producers, it was revealed here following a meeting of association members.

Increased prices to the producer would naturally reflect in high consumer prices which in turn would increase the already high cost of living, it was stated. Milk at present is 15 cents per quart at Belleville.

Commenting on the producers claim that it costs considerably more to produce winter milk, Mr. Leonard Reid, chairman of the local distributors' Association, declared that the problem of winter production would not be solved until there was a differential in the price paid for winter and summer milk. When a farmer receives the same price for both winter and summer milk he will not pay out the money required for feed to boost winter production.

"Money talks," said Mr. Reid. "And farmers just will not make the effort to boost winter milk production unless there is a price differential."

In any event producers in the Belleville area were better off than for instance at Toronto, according to distributors. At Toronto producers receive $3.45 per cwt and pay 40 cents per cwt. for haulage, while at Belleville producers get $3.35 per cwt. and pay 10 cents for haulage. This gives Belleville producers $3.25 per cwt. as against the $3.05 net received by producers supplying the Toronto market.

"With producers receiving a high price for their 12 month supply we feel under the circumstances they should be willing to accept the slimmer profits for their winter production," stated Mr. Reid.

The distributors admitted that winter production of milk costs the farmer more, but pointed out that their own costs were also up, including higher costs for coal, bottles and wages for workers.

"As far as we are concerned there will definitely be no increase to the producer in the price of milk unless we are forced to pay it by the Milk Control Board," stated Mr. Reid.

Assault Charge Case Laid Over

With a request from Defence Counsel Dubin of Toronto for additional time to prepare his case, the assault charge against Ross Russell, district organizer for UE-CIO, which was to have been heard in city police court this morning was laid over for one week.

The charge against Mr. Russell was laid by city police on November 5th when it is alleged the accused assaulted Police Inspector J. C. Hayes, as officers of the local police force, were policing the picket line in front of Corbin Lock. Russell later was granted bail

As a result of the same incident which led to the charge against Russell, two other UE-CIO men, N. Hamblin, and J. Hurley, were charged with obstructing police officers in the execution of their duties. Both men appeared in court today and had their case laid over to be heard the same time as the Russell charge

Although formally laid over for one week, it is understood the charges will not be heard until Monday, November 24th

High Winds

Sweeping down upon the Great Lakes, winds of gale proportions, have lashed peaceful waters into mountainous seas, retarded shipping and forced lake freighters to seek shelter from one of the worst wind storms of the year.

APPOINT NEW MINISTER

Toronto, Nov. 14 — (CP)—The Evening Telegram said yesterday in a newspage story that due to pressure of work the Ontario government is expected to appoint a new Minister of Public Works in the near future. Hon. George Doucett, Progressive conservative member for Carleton, now holds both the public works and highways portfolios which were combined after the 1943 election.

The paper said the proposal to split the cabinet positions was made some time ago but it is believed action has been delayed due to indecision on the appointment of a member qualified to assume the duties of the public works administration.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 14 — (CP) — Selected golds in the better grade class moved ahead for sizeable advances followed fairly closely by the base metals in stepped-up volume on the stock exchange today. Scattered pivotals posted minor gains for industrials and action in mines followed the pre-weekend pattern of an upward push.

Volume for the first three hours was 600,000, up about 135,000 shares from yesterday's similar period.

Senior golds moved up fractions for Dome, Hollinger, Lake Shore, 30 cents for La Luz, 15 for Lamaque and $1.50 for McIntyre. Juniors were up substantially for Central Patricia, Conwest, Chesterville, Croinor, East Malartic, Hosco, Kirkland Lake, Little Long Lac, Macassa, Macleod, Madsen, Negus, Osulake and Pamour. Smelters led base metals on a gain of 2 3-4.

HOGS

Toronto, Nov. 14 —(CP)— Hog prices were unchanged at Stratford, $22.75 delivered to farmers and $32.90 to truckers, while at Hull prices were unquoted off truck and unchanged at $22.75 delivered, in markets reporting early this morning.

Weekly Livestock Review

Toronto, Nov. 14. (CP)—Cattle prices dropped 25 to 50 cents a hundredweight on all killers with the heaviest discount on cows in the livestock market here this week. Calves, hogs, sheep and lambs remained unchanged.

A cattle run for sale of about 6,300 head was added to some 3,000 carried over from the preceding week. Included in the offering were 4,000 stockers. Slaughter cattle were mostly of medium quality.

A few loads of good weighty steers sold at $15-$15.25 cwt. Butcher steers and heifers were $10.50-$13 with tops at $13.50. Fed yearlings sold for $12.85-$16 with western calves bringing $12.50-$14 butcher cows brought $7.75- $10.25 while a large number of canners sold at $5-$6 with some as low as $2 cwt. Bulls were $7-$9 for light bolognas and up to $10.50 for good butchers.

While picked lots of stockers and feeders brought $12-$13.35, plainer stockers moved slowly at $9-$11.50 with a heavy holdover. Ordinary quality milkers and springers sold for $85-$140 each.

Calves remained firm on a small supply of 1,600 head. Choice vealers were $16-$17 with plain to medium kinds $10-$15.50. Thin grassers for slaughter brought $7-$9 50. Some heavy calves were unsold.

The heavy backlog of hogs appeared to be clearing through the plants and there was no pile-up on the yards. Only about 2,500 head were for sale. Grade A sold steady at $23 with Grade B1 at $22.60. Sows were $15 dressed.

Receipts of some 2,400 head of sheep and lambs cleared at $14.50 for good ewes and wethers, $13.50 for bucks and $9-$11 for culls. Sheep went according to quality at $3-$7 cwt.

32,028 Immigrants Come to Canada In Six Months

Ottawa, Nov. 14 — (CP) — A total of 32,028 immigrants came to Canada from various countries during the six-month period ended Sept. 30, but the figure was 14,226 below that for the corresponding period of 1946, the Resources Department reported Thursday.

The figures indicated that the decrease might be traced to the dropping off of heavy movements of dependents of servicemen from overseas.

Meanwhile, another department announcement said that with the arrival in Canada tomorrow of 863 displaced persons aboard the S. S. General Stewart, the total number of displaced persons entering the Dominion so far will be raised to 5,757.

Of the latest number, 1,385 are people brought to Canada under the provisions of the close relatives scheme, 113 are orphan children being adopted by families in all parts of the country, and 4,259 are workers admitted in groups in response to requests by Canadian industry.

Of the 4,259 workers, 3,439 have been engaged by lumber companies, 595 are domestics who have been employed in institutions and homes, 100 are textile workers, 500 railroad workers and 75 miners.

While the movement of displaced persons is increasing, the six-month figures showed a sharp drop in the number of immigrants from the United Kingdom.

For instance, from April 1, 1946 to Sept. 30, 1946, English, Irish, Scottish and Welsh immigrants totalled 34,578. The corresponding figure for the six month period this year was only 18,266.

Movements from the United States also showed a decrease at 5,375 compared with 6,667. However, more immigrants came from Northern Europe and other races during the six-month period this year than they did in 1946.

Merritt Charges C.C.F. Trying to Foist Socialism on Canada

Vancouver, Nov. 14 —(CP)— Cecil Merritt, V.C., Progressive Conservative member of the Commons for Vancouver-Burrard, charged last night that the CCF Party is "trying to take advantage of our difficulties to foist" Socialist doctrines on the Canadian people.

In a speech over the CBC national network on free time provided for political broadcasting, Mr. Merritt said M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, claims that living costs are rising because of the selfishness of business, that if profits are not made, prices would drop into line.

"That statement is a lie," said Mr. Merritt. "Mr. Coldwell is not making a contribution to the solution of our price level difficulty. He does not want our present form of society to get prices down. Mr. Coldwell is agitating for the restoration of price controls, but not simply for control of prices. He wants socialism. He knows that price controls in peacetime mean state socialism instead of individual freedom....

"He is trying to set Canadian class against Canadian class so that he can upset our present society and clamp his own form of social organization on us in its place. That's an alarming leftward drift."

Would Not Cut Demand

Mr. Merritt said that prices rise because demand exceeds supply, because wage and material costs are up, not because of profits.

"Mr. Coldwell has no magic wherewith to alter that plain economic truth. His socialism would not lessen by one penny the world demand for food and useful goods."

He said that Finance Minister Abbott had given "weak echo" to Mr. Coldwell's "large lie". In his last budget speech, Mr. Abbott had warned Canadian business not to make too much profit.

Mr. Merritt said this warning was given only for "political purposes" because if Mr. Abbott had seriously wanted to limit profits, he would not have repealed the Excess Profits Tax Act from the end of next December.

He called for support of the Progressive Conservative Party because it believes that "the great groups or classes of our society, business, labor, farmers and all of us as consumers, must work together and trust each other if we are to have maximum production and so maximum prosperity.

Officials Deny Lay-Off Rumour

Street rumor that approximately 100 employees of the American Optical Company had been temporarily laid off as result of the Pound Sterling Bloc which is affecting shipments of manufactured goods to countries dealing in that currency, were stated today by company officials to be untrue.

It was admitted by company officials, however, that they had received orders to cease shipments to Australia and that unless authority was received permitting them to resume shipments, it would be necessary in the near future to lay off approximately 50 of their employees munist, for refusing to quiet down.

Company officials pointed out that the Sterling Bloc had wide international complications and that many manufacturing firms in Canada normally shipping quantities of goods to countries dealing in Sterling would be affected.

One new death was reported today, swelling to five the known toll for 10 days of riotous disorder throughout Italy. Ferruccio Gatti, ex-general of the Fascist militia, who was shot at as he sat at lunch in Milan Nov. 4, died of his wounds.

The clubbed, the stabbed and the trampled numbered scores, however, and strikes added to the black picture.

Factory workers quit for long or short periods in Milan, Genoa, Turin and other big industrial centres. Ferrara province farmhands quit at midnight for an unstated period. Doctors in Bari struck. A declared country-wide gas strike, which thus far had affected only Rome, remained unsolved.

Interior Minister Mario Scelba, when he finally managed to make himself heard in the Assembly last night, declared that the reports of violence were "exaggerated" and said the government would use the force of the state to suppress what violence there was.

This Weather

Pictures of snow in some Ontario municipalities as for instance that from Port Francis showing a depth of fifteen inches of snow after three days of recent snow fall revive scenes in the minds of residents hereabouts who recall only too vividly the depth of snow no longer away than last winter. Photographs taken of local streets in the winter of 1946-47 will prove this statement.

Weather has been much milder than usual for the past month and causes people to wonder how much longer snowstorms may stay away. As far as lack of snow shovelling, opportunity of getting about and getting late autumn chores performed are concerned there is unity of view on the advantages of the present season.

Last winter's snow was plentiful and if there is a just balance in nature and in weather conditions, the people deserve mild weather this winter with less disturbances by snow storms and winter gales than usual.

Atomic Bomb

Some days ago Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov declared that "the secret of the atomic bomb has long ceased to exist." It has been pointed out that the secret of the atomic bomb and the knowledge of how to produce it are two different things. The Ottawa Journal said at the time that the statement was probably nothing but an attempt to fool the Russians and impress people living outside of Russia. Now it adds that "Molotov, judging by comment of Soviets, fooled the Russians" and that he did not deeply impress outsiders.

A Paris report that Russia had produced her first atomic test with a small bomb did not create the stir which many might have expected it would arouse and doubts were expressed that Russia has succeeded in the making of an A-bomb.

The Journal quotes the views exxpressed by Hanson Baldwin, a noted war expert who recently said in a New York Times article, that "the theoretical scientific knowledge of the atomic bomb is in Russia's possession, just as it is in the possession of all nations." The Times article is quoted in these words:

"Of equal or greater importance is the engineering or technical know-how — the ability to design- manufacture and assemble the thousands of new intricate devices required in the manufacture of the bomb — valves, gauges, instruments, piping electrical devices, etc. Our wartime Manhattan project drew upon many of the greatest industries of the country, and each of them in turn subcontracted many of their problems. Instruments of types never before known ,graphite of hitherto unknown purity — thousands of technical engineering and design problems of this nature had to be solved before the bomb could be produced. Its manufacture required engineers and technicians, administrative and production experts, machine tools, factories in mass and general production 'know-how' which Russia very definitely does not have in quality or quantity comparable to our own."

The Ottawa newspaper adds:

"Mr. Baldwin lists other 'limiting factors' in Russia's capacity to turn out atomic bombs, such as capital investment non-availability of necessary raw materials —uranium, thorium used with uranium, graphite, steel for machine tools, alloys, etc. — and concludes that while the Soviets may complete one bomb at any time 'from 1948 on,' it will be many years — 'perhaps 15, perhaps 20' — before they are capable of acquiring a significant stockpile, 'in other words, before she has bombs numbered in three or four figures.'

"Equally interesting, and also equally comforting, are other things which Mr. Baldwin stresses. Two years ago atomic scientists, not to mention the Sunday Supplements, were talking glibly of 10,000 atomic bombs as if they were an accomplished fact — 'we were assured repeatedly that Russia could catch up and overtake the United States in short order and the bomb was pictured as virtually an infinite weapon.'

"Today more sober judgment has intervened, there has been a reassessment of atomic possibilities, with the result that we know that the bomb, though endowed with terrible destructive powers, is a finite weapon; that the numbers available do matter; that its production is not an easy or-rapid process, and that for a very long time to come the numbers available to us will be limited, and that they will be far more limited to the Russians. Concludes Baldwin thoughtfully:

" 'All this means that some of the terrific sense of urgency that overhung all atomic bomb discussions two years ago has been removed; we still have time. Whether this is a benefit and will permit more mature, more reasoned and less passionate and hasty decisions, or whether the elimination of the tense of urgency will induce complacency, only the future can tell.' "

For Liege Museum

When the Germans left the city of Liege in Belgium on September 7th, 1944, the Mineralogical Museum of the University of Liege, housing one of the world's finest collections of minerals, was destroyed by fire. But the Liege Museum is to rise again.

Early in 1945 a group of American scientists and mineral-lovers former a committee for the restoration of the Liege mineral collections.

Dr. V. B. Meen, Associate Director of the Royal Ontario Museum of Geology and Mineralogy, was chosen as Canada's representative on the committee. Universities, museums, mining companies and individuals were asked to donate specimens for the collection. For two years mineral specimens have been arriving at the Royal Ontario Museum where Dr. Meen has been selecting the Museum's contributions. One of the specimens being sent was previously donated to the Museum by Major Bernhard Day the Belgian Consul, who has lent his whole-hearted support to the project.

In all, three hundred and three specimens are being sent from Canada and these minerals are almost entirely of Canadian origin. There are suites of minerals from Cobalt camp, International Nickel Company, Falconbridge Mines, New Calumet Mines, the lithium pegmatite deposits in Manitoba and individual specimens from many other Canadian mines. The famous mineral localities of Eastern Ontario and the Bay of Fundy are well represented in Canada's contribution.

Picture of Rations

A reader sends us an unusually pertinent yarn about rations in the Old Country —one that perhaps tells more than those loquacious dissertations on just how "hungry" Britishers are at the moment.

And all that his yarn amounts to is a photograph clipped from an English newspaper that shows a white-coated fellow at the door of a house.

Reads the caption: "A Wolverhampton butcher found it quite possible to deliver the weekly meat ration by putting it through the letter box." (A thin letter box at that!)

Jokes about bringing home the bacon by mail are not always appreciated over there, it is reported.—Hamilton Spectator.

Running Into Cars

What to do about children running into the streets and crashing into automobiles? That's one that worries every motorist and probably always will be a headache.

The boys and girls will play and in their games they will dash headlong into the streets. Maybe they are chasing a ball, perhaps they are playing tag, or they may just be running without definite objective. But, they will race into the streets and into danger.

The parents can take some of the responsibility by trying to impress on their children the dangers of playing on travelled streets. And, the motorists have to be vigilant, if there are children around. There is not much more than can be done.—W. L. Clarke in Windsor Star.

Good Immigrants

We don't want in Canada people who don't want to be here. Such people will always be a source of trouble. But people who desire to come to Canada to make their home, who desire to become citizens and to share our freedom, institutions and responsibilities, should be more than made welcome. They should be protected from the parasites who desire to destroy all for which democracy stands, says Sault Ste. Marie Star.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What are blue laws?

Any laws strictly regulating personal habits, particularly Sunday observance, are called blue laws. The term seems to have been first applied to such laws adopted by the colony of New Haven in Connecticut.

In 1838 a band of Massachusetts Puritans, under the leadership of John Davenport and Theophilus Eaton, settled at New Haven and soon after their arrival drew up a "plantation covenant" that made the Scriptures the supreme guide of the new commonwealth in civil as well as religious affairs, but no copy of this code is extant.

In 1639, however, a more definite statement of the political principles of the colonies was framed. According to this code the Bible was to be the guide in choosing magistrates, in making and repealing laws and in all matters of public import. Only church members could become burgesses or officials of the colony. In 1644 the General Court of the colony decided that the "judicial laws of God as they were declared by Moses" should constitute a rule of all courts "till they be branched out into particulars hereafter."

When the port of Boston was closed by the British in 1774 Samuel A. Peters (1735-1826) a loyalist clergyman of the established church, was roughly handled by Connecticut patriots for writing to friends in England about the activities of the radicals and for preaching a sermon in which he advised his parishioners not to contribute to the aid of Boston. Things got so hot for the clergyman that he abandoned his two children and 20 slaves in Connecticut, fled to Boston and thence went to England, where he was granted a small crown pension.

Peters became very bitter toward Connecticut and in 1871 published a "General History of Connecticut," in which he included a collection of drastic laws that he alleged had been enacted by the colony and that he called "blue laws."

It was formerly supposed that these laws were maliciously invented by Peters. On July 6, 1854 Senator Franklin Gillette of Connecticut declared in the U. S. Senate: "I know that Connecticut, in the olden time, was libeled by a Tory renegade, who absconded to England to perpetrate his vindictive falsehood, as the Blue Law State."

Later research, however, has revealed that most of the laws in the Peters collection were at one time or other on the statute books of New Haven. Although in this particular connection it would be more correct to speak of "The Blue Laws of New Haven," it was probably due chiefly to the publication of Peters' book that "Blue Law State" became one of the nicknames of Connecticut, and that "The Blue Laws of Connecticut" became a byword.

As a matter of fact, Connecticut from the beginning had a strict Sunday observance law and a ban on certain Sunday activities is still on the statute books of the State.

CRIPPS MOVES IN

Meanwhile, the Prime Minister went to Buckingham Palace where at 6 p.m. he was received in audience by the King and informed His Majesty of Dalton's resignation and the nomination of Cripps to succeed him.

At 10.46 p.m. — 16 minutes after Dalton's resignation was announced at 10 Downing Street —a letter from Churchill was made public demanding that a select committee of the House be appointed to investigate the incident.

The Commons always has regarded budget 'leaks" in the most serious light, since details of government budgets always are closely guarded secrets to prevent speculation. In 1936, Colonial Secretary James H. Thomas, Labor, was forced to resign from Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin's cabinet after an inquiry tribunal held he had revealed budget secrets prior to their official disclosure.

The incident involving Dalton was not the first concerning revelation of supposedly secret information to newspapers by Labor members this session.

Garry Allighan, former Toronto newspaper man, was expelled from the House Oct. 30 for having written an article for a newspaper trade journal which contained such information, and Evelyn Walkden was reprimanded by the Speaker after the House found him guilty of selling reports of secret Labor Party parliamentary caucuses. He was asked to resign his seat, but refused, quitting the party instead and remaining in Commons as an Independent.

Continue Debate

Meantime the Commons continued the debate on Dalton's crisis budget with Glenvil Gall, financial secretary of the treasury — not Dalton — parrying criticism of the tax changes whereby the former chancellor intended to cut the "inflamatory gap" by £208,000,00 ($832,000,-000). Most critics charged that the measures were not sufficiently stringents to meet the country's needs.

At the first glance to most Britons, it seemed unlikely that Sir Stafford would ever be criticized on similar grounds for any future budget he might produce. Though he is the principal butt to those who rail against the government's austerity policies, he is widely respected as a man who looks reality square in the face and is not afraid to invoke the unpopular measures if he deems them wisest for the community.

Meanwhile into the darkness stepped Dalton, booming-voiced 60-year-old "Torquemada of the Socialist party," so called because of his industrial skill and zeal in debate.

How long he would be on the outside looking in was a question mark. Some observers attached significance to one phrase in Attlee's letter of acceptance of Dalton's resignation.

"This interruption to a distinguished career..."

Whether the "interruption" would be long or short few cared to guess.

ANEMIA ITSELF IS A SYMPTOM

How can you tell whether you are anemic?

The answer is that you can't, as a rule. Neither can the doctor, unless by examination of a drop of your blood.

Only by a count of the number of red blood corpuscles in a cubic millimeter (fraction of a drop) of blood under the miccoscope, or by a measurement of the amount of hemoglobin present, can anyone tell whether you are anemic.

Anemia means literally absence of or lack of blood but in general usage it means merely that the blood contains less than the 5,000,000 or 5,500,000 red cells in the cubicmillimeter or less than 15 grams of hemoglobin in 100 cubic centimeters. In a healthy man there is approximately 3 grams of iron in the total blood—or a small teaspoonful of iron in the entire body (insignificant amounts of the iron is in other tissues than the blood. Nevertheless as much iron as that is generally taken in the course of a few days by one with anemia — as we shall explain.

Physiologists, physicians, nutritionists estimate that a daily ration of one-fourth of a grain of iron in food form is required by the body. This means that the body must assimilate , utilize, metabolize one-fourth of a grain of iron a day. Much more iron than that is taken in food form if the diet is not artificially restricted or tampered with, as a rule. The suitability or availability of the iron present in various foods varies considerably. For instance, while there may be more iron in beef than in potato, carrots ,peanuts, egg yolk or celery, only about half of the irin in beef is available, absorbable, utilizable, whereas all of the iron in potatoes, carrots, peanuts, egg and celery or practically all of it is available. Still some of the best food sources of iron are lean beef, beef heart, beef liver, pork liver, dried beans, green peas, egg yolks, oats, dried prunes, spinach, peanuts, fresh or dried apricots, oysters, dates, dried figs, cooked ham, raw cabbage, potatoes, lettuce, raisins, celery canned sardines.

For years I have freely recommended the use of a home made iron medicine for anemia consisting of a solution of Iron and Ammonium ,Citrates in water. But it takes too much of my play time trying to assure timid customers that Iron and Ammonium Citrates is a standard preparation described in the U. S. Pharmacopoeia, etc., etc. But no matter. I have found a happy solution for the problem. It is iron gluconate in, a product of modern pharmaceutic chemistry, in capsules —hard capsules with special coating that is not dissolved in stomach but only in the intestine where iron is absorbed. Ferrous gluconate in this form, physicians report, has proved most tolerable, acceptable and efficacious in hypochromic, nutritional, secondary anemia—the kind of anemia people have in ninety-nine out of a hundred cases.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Stomach, Eh?

You may send me your literature on stomach breathing provided.

(R. W.)

Answer — Provided I go completely nuts and develop a delusion that the stomach is a respiratory organ. Anyway I must credit you for not saying "tummy." Send a stamped envelcpe bearing your address and ask in writing (a clipping will not suffice) for the pamphlet Belly Breathing.

Garlic

Kindly advise whether garlic is good for high blood pressure.

(G. F. M.)

Answer — It's as good as any other food, scent, flavor or substance. Don't delude yourself that "high blood pressure" can be intelligently treated without particular regard for what ails you.

Benjamin the Prevaricator

Have Ben Told you claim milk is not good to drink. I am surprised at such a statement. Please explain yourself.

(Mrs. H. B.)

Answer — By this time you should know that Ben is an incorrigible prevaricator. If anybody suspects I believe milk is not good to drink, just lead me to a cow, preferably fresh from the pasture, and I'll show you! No, Ma'am, my teaching has not changed. I still say every growing child should consume three pints of pure fresh milk daily or the equivalent in milk products, and every adult one pint daily.

No Jars

I read your description of a hand lotion . . . kindly send me a sample jar.

(E. P., ... High School)

Answer — You will find detailed instructions for preparing and using the lotion in the booklet Save Your Skin. For copy of booklet send twenty-five cents and stamped self-addressed envelope.

Speed-Checking Apparatus Causes Some Discussion

Oakville, Ont., Nov. 14. (CP) —A storm blew up today over use by Oakville police of a speed-checking apparatus purchased from a member of the Brampton police force. Thirty-five persons face charges of speeding following police use of the machine.

In Toronto, Secretary W. G. Robertson of the Ontario Motor League called use of the speed traps 'a reprehensible practice." The machines are in use at Brampton, Oakville and Etobicoke, all in the Toronto area, and the town of Bolton has ordered one.

Oakville officials said they believed most of the 35 due to appear in court today would settle their fines out of court, common practice on speeding charges. Police Chief John Derry, Mayor C. V. Hillmer and other officials said the only reason for maintaining the trap was to check speeding. They said its main objective was not to produce revenue for the town, adding that fines are divided 60 per cent to the town and 40 per cent to the province. The speed limit in the town is 30 miles an hour.

Mr. Robertson said the Motor League opposes speed traps because a motorist "should be notified and warned at the time of speeding so he won't go on speeding".

C. R. Magone, deputy attorney-general of Ontario, said in Toronto that Provincial Police do not operate speed detection devices, relying on highway patrol. The department had never enunciated a policy on traps.

3-Act Comedy Presented by Dramatic Club

"Every Family Has One" is the title of a three act comedy presented last evening to a large and appreciative audience in the auditorium of the B.C.I. & V.S., by the youthful "artists" of the Collegiate Dramatic Club, under the able direction of Miss N. P. Merry and Mrs. Elsie Reed of Kingston.

Mr. G. E. Currie, principal, welcomed the parents and friends of the cast personnel and said he was very much interested in discovering "Every Family Has One, —What?"

In acknowledging assistance received from firms and individuals, Richard Stackhouse, as business manager, expressed gratitude to Mr. Cooper and the members of the B.C.I. & V.S. Band, which furnished entertaining numbers prior to the rising of the first curtain and between the acts, adding considerably to the evening's entertainment.

The properties committee had been most industrious in securing the very home-like atmosphere necessary for the "setting" of this play. The scenery was well and attractively made, the plain decorative tones forming a perfect background for the colorful costumes of all the players, but especially for the beautiful ivory satin bridal gown worn by Donna Ferguson, and designed by Betty Zebedee.

The cast was well chosen both as a group, for united co-operative effort, and individually; as every player entered into the spirit of his or her particular role, so that the sequences of the home life in a modern middle-class American family were naturally and smoothly portrayed. Much credit is due to the members of the cast and to the directors for the presentation of this very amusing, entertaining and clean comedy.

Skilled Furriers' Knives Fly To Complete Elizabeth's Mink

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, (CP)—In the fifth-floor workroom of a busy furrier's establishment in Cavendish Square, 14 Londoners are working overtime on an evening mink jacket, Newfoundland's wedding gift to Princess Elizabeth.

The coat, which was ordered by the Newfoundland government, is being made from 75 Eskimo Bay mink skins from the Ungava Bay region of Labrador.

The skins are sepia brown, with a smokey-grey blue tint, and match perfectly in size and color. The coat is the second mink to be made for Princess Elizabeth. The first was from the people of Canada and will be presented to the Princess by Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

"These skins are recognized as the finest in the world," Calman Links, head of the firm chosen to make the coat, said.

Links, with his chief designer Stanley Frost, went to Buckingham Palace recently and the Princess spent half an hour examining the skins and different designs.

"The Princess told how she was thrilled by the high quality of the skins and showed a great interest in the work to be done on them," Links added.

The other day slim, white-haired Charlie Nichols, who has been chief cutter with the firm for 21 years, stood knife in hand, slashing up the skins in readiness for a staff of machinists who will assemble the finished product.

Its Design

Chief designer Frost said the jacket chosen by the Princess would be 28 inches long with a four-ripple back, a soft, rounded shoulder and a small, flat, semi-roll collar.

"The sleeve will be wide, tapering in at the wrist and held by a wrist-strand. The front will have a rounded edge at the bottom and the front working of the skins will be designed to follow the edging."

Five women machinists have the task of assembling the skins. They will do it in such a way that each skin becomes twice its original length and half the width.

"It takes a minimum of five years for a fur machinist to learn this job," vivacious Mrs. Hetty Mead said. "We'll do a good job all right."

Rose Gibbins, who made the three linen coat patterns from which the final design emerged, said: "It's exciting working for an occasion like this. I think the Princess showed excellent taste in her choice of the pattern."

Skin sorter Bert Yates, husband of one of the machinists, has the task of seeing that all skins match perfectly in color and size.

The coat lining will be of pure silk, specially dyed to tone with the furs. All the staff expect to work at least 12 hours daily until the coat is finished.

Royal Betrothal Recalls Heritage of Queenly Women

(By The Canadian Press)

Today when the good wishes of everyone are going out to Princess Elizabeth, it is interesting to look back at the long line of women who have held or fought for the throne designed to be hers— women whose imperious wills and emotions and tears still ring along the halls of history.

Matilda (1102-1164), daughter of Henry I, who warred for the throne long years with small success for herself—but who as a woman was victorious, for she secured it for her son Henry II and for her sons and daughters to this day 800 years later.

Lady Jane Grey (1637-1554), pawn of ambitious nobles, who was proclaimed Queen for a few days and then laid a fair young head on the block with dignity and serenity.

Mary I (1516-1558), most tragic of all, sincere in herself, but opposed to the will of the people, who failed in all she tried, who passionately wanted an heir to succeed her but who died childless and in bitterness.

Elizabeth (1553-1603), who barely survived the hatreds of her childhood to become the Queen of a Golden Era which laid the broad foundations of an empire.

Mary, Queen of Scots, (1542-1587), most tempestuously feminine, who lost one throne, failed to win another, who was executed but whose son, James I, succeeded to Elizabeth's throne and whose descendants hold it now.

Mary II (1662-1694), who reigned jointly with her husband William III on the condition of the great Bill of Rights.

Anne (1665-1714), who lived quietly as Queen of another Golden Era and whose womanly heart saw her children die in infancy.

Victoria (1819-1901), who saw her Empire establish firm foundations for the shock of two world wars and the perils of today.

Of these only Matilda, Mary, Queen of Scots and Victoria are blood ancestors of Princess Elizabeth.

These are the names written largest in history books. But with them stand a long line of other women consorts of kings, of proud lineage and humbler place, who have known every joy and sorrow, strength and frailty common to their kind—a long line of feminine forbears vital with both the mystic and practical power of women, clothed in the costumes of the centuries, a long-drawn pageant from a vast Tennysonian "Dream of Fair Women."

WEDDINGS

PALMER—BROWN

Standards of vari-colored gladioli and fern adorned St. Andrew's United Church, Oshawa, for the wedding recently of Eileen Margaret Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Brown, North Oshawa, and George Arthur Palmer of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Palmer, Deseronto. The Rev. George Telford performed the ceremony and Mr. C. J. W. Taylor played the wedding music. The soloist was Mrs. K. D. Gahan who sang "Because" and "Through the Years" while the register was being signed.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of snow white moire taffeta with a deep round neckline and cap sleeves. The softly draped overskirt was caught into a full bustle back and it fell into a long train. A coronet of white velvet rose petals held the full length veil of embroidered tulle. She wore a single strand of pearls and matching earrings. Her bouquet was a cascade of Better Time roses and snow white chrysanthemums.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Eric Branton, sister of the bride. Her long gown of flesh pink moire taffeta were fashioned in the same neckline and cap sleeves. The draped overskirt was caught into a butterfly bow at the back. Matching net and velvet made an attractive headdress. She carried an arm bouquet of yellow gladioli petals and yellow chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids were Miss Marie Shorten, cousin of the bride, and Miss Jean Brown, the bride's sister. Their identical gowns of blue moire taffeta were fashioned in the same style as that of the matron of honor, and velvet and net ruffles made their headdresses. Miss Shorten carried an arm bouquet of white chrysanthemums and pink gladioli petals, and Miss Brown's was of white and pink double and single chrysanthemums. All the attendants wore mittens to match their gowns and pearl necklaces.

The flower girl, Miss Bonnie Brown, niece of the bride, wore a floor-length gown of baby blue silk with a floral pattern. It was made with a rounded yoke with a gathered frill caught with pink ribbons. A headdress of pink tullo was fastened to a bandeau of ruffled net. She carried a nosegay of white and yellow chrysanthemums, and wore a strand of pearls.

The best man was Mr. Nelson Palmer, and the ushers were Mr. Murray Brown and Mr. George Norton.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents which was gaily decorated with pink and white streamers and Autumn flowers. The bride's mother was in pink and black silk jersey with a corsage of Virginia pink carnations, and the bridegroom's mother wore a gold suit with a corsage of Rosealee carnations.

The couple motored to the Thousand Islands and New York State for their honeymoon. The bride was wearing a silver grey crepe dress with a black topper, grey and black accessories and a corsage of red roses. Mr. and Mrs. Palmer will live in Toronto.

Guests were present at the wedding from Deseronto, Belleville, Consecon, Whitby, Ajax, Toronto and Brooklin.

MAYNARD—McLACHLAN

A marriage of considerable local interest was solemnized at St. George's Anglican Church, Banff, Alta., November first, when Norma Grace McLachlan, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Climo, formerly of Belleville, exchanged vows with Robert Gordon Maynard, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Maynard, of Vancouver, B.C., with Canon H. Tully Montgomery officiating.

The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father, to the strains of the 'Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin, was charmingly gowned in the traditional white satin, featuring a long fitted torso of lace, with square neckline; and a bouffant skirt of organdie and net. Her fingertip veil was edged with French lace, and fell from a Mary, Queen of Scots, headdress. She wore elbow length gloves of white kid and carried a Colonial bouquet of white baby 'mums, centred with forget-me-nots and red rosebuds. Her only jewellery was a single strand of pearls.

Mrs. N. J. Tabateau, who was her sister's matron-of-honor, chose a floor length gown of deep rose taffeta with pink net, and carried a bouquet of pink roses and white 'mums, with streamers of pale green.

The bridesmaid—was Miss Muriel Hutchins, who wore a gown of ice blue crepe with wrist length sleeves and high neckline. She carried white baby 'mums and pale pink roses, with pink streamers. Both attendants wore headdresses of white baby 'mums caught with ribbons matching their respective gowns.

Mr. James Hutchins, of Banff, was the groomsman, and the ushers were Messrs. Norman J. Tabateau and William Roberge, both of Banff.

The soloist was Miss Dorothy Trono, of Calgary, who sang "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register, with Mrs. Frank Dillion as accompanist.

The bride's gifts to her attendants were gold compacts. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold wrist watch, to the groomsman, a gold pen knife, and to the ushers, gold tie bars.

At a reception held at the Mount Royal Hotel, the bridal party were assisted in receiving the guests by the bride's mother and father, and by Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Allen of Banff, acting for the parents of the groom. Mrs. Climo was very "chic" in a two-piece street length dress of black crepe, with net yoke and short sleeves, with which she wore a three-skin neckpiece of brown squirrel, pink elbow length gloves, a black hat with pink ostrich plume and a corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. Allen chose a black suit with flowered hat, and wore a corsage of white garnedias.

Mrs. J. E. Hutchins, and Mrs. Albert Keyath presided over the tea and coffee urns at the bridal table, which was centred with a tiered wedding cake, flanked with vases of pink carnations and lighted tapers. Friends of the bride assisted with the serving.

Mr. and Mrs. Maynard left by motor for a month's trip to the coast and California. For travelling the bride chose a model suit of brown gabardine, with a "coachman's" jacket, topped by a brown mouton lamb coat, matching hat and accessories. complimenting her costume she wore a corsage of bronze rosebuds.

Following their return Mr. and Mrs. Maynard will reside in Banff.

Congratulatory messages were received from Belleville, Cobourg, Hamilton, Ont., and Hong Kong, China.

Hornets and Stirling Teams Win Games at Memorial Arena, Free-For-All Ends First Game

Belleville Team Defeats Bloomfield 8 to 6 While Stirling Trims Tweed 5-2

Belleville Hornets remain undefeated in the Belleville and District Hockey League but they had to come from behind last night at the Arena to eke out an 8-6 win over the Bloomfield Sky Chiefs, while in the nightcap Stirling plastered a 5-2 loss on the Tweed squad. The games were well contested, the first game ending in a donnybrook with practically every player on both teams being in the fray before it was over. Speedy St. Louis handed out four majors for fighting but could just as well banished both teams from the ice and called it a night. There was only a few minutes of playing time left when the free-for-all broke out.

Yorke and Platford started the fireworks near the Hornet goal and both traded punches freely. The referees rushed in to break up the melee but by this time everyone had someone else to pick on and soon sticks and gloves were flying all over the ice and every player was taking a punch at the closest player to him if he wasn't on his side. Platford came out with a cut over the forehead and the others were only ruffled up. St. Louis started to sort them out for punishment and he retired Platford, Yorke, Reeves and Pike. He could have got a lot more. Strenuous play is to be expected in hockey but roughhouse tactics have no place in the game. The fans want to see hard hockey but not dirty hockey and no doubt the league officials, will deal with the matter when the report of the referees is received.

Score Three Without Reply

After gaining a 3-2 edge in the first period, Bloomfield came to life in the second stanza and rammed home three goals without a reply and looked much the better team. The losers added insult to injury by scoring the first goal in the last frame and then condition began to tell. Semark put the winners within one goal of the Sky Chiefs but McNeil, who incidentally was the best man Bloomfield uncovered during the contest regained the two - goal margin. At this point the Hornets started to play the hockey they are capable of delivering and Day brought the crowd to its feet with a solo effort and a backhander that had Parks beaten all the way. Rutherford and Greatrix ended the scoring to put the winners two goals up.

McNeil for the losers turned the hat trick with three fine goals while Platford, Pike and R. Cork got the others. Along with McNeil, Parks in goal was outstanding and he was aided considerably by the Hornets trying to get too close before unleashing their shots. Greatrix, Wardhaugh and Day played good hockey with Yorke a standout on the defence. This player gets better every time out. Day spoils a lot of his effectiveness by sly pokes at the opposition, which naturally brings him to the sin bin and his mates have to work just that much harder to subdue the opposition. The game was exceptionally clean until the last period but one could see the growing storm as the game progressed.

Meagher Brothers Star

In the second game the Meagher brothers, Allan and Bernard, along with Don Bastedo and sound tactics behind the blueline by Armstrong and Utman, enabled Stirling to hang a 5-2 defeat on Tweed and this was a real slam bang hockey game with no quarter asked of given. The first period was scoreless and in the second frame each team notched a counter with Tweed opening the scoring on B. Gehan's perfect play after receiving a pass near his own blueline. The third period was torrid and Dickie in the Tweed twine did not have much chance on those that beat him as the shotmaker went right to his doorstep before firing. Allan Meagher then took over and fired one of the prettiest goals seen in the league this winter after taking brother Bernie's pass inside the defence area. Don Bastedo added another with Allan's assistance and then came back to notch another from Don Bastedo. Lavender, who produced the first goal in the second period, notched the last counter for Stirling.

Too Much Speed

The winners had a little too much speed and condition for the losers but Gehan, Stewart and Dickie stood out. The star would have to go to the Meaghers and Bastedo for a fine display up front and Armstrong was like a rock for the winners. He played perfectly, never leaving his position and his feed passes were generally on the target allowing his forwards to get away without opposition. The league generally is warming up and fans are missing good entertainment. The boys are beginning to hit their stride with respect to condition and the calibre of play is much better as the systems are clicking better. When playoff time rolls around the boys should be rolling.

5 New Players Turn Out With Olympic Squad

(By The Canadian Press)

Five new candidates for the 1948 R.C.A.F. Olympic Hockey squad turned out for practice at the coliseum in Ottawa last night.

They were Ross King, 28-year-old goalie who played with the Portage La Prairie Terriers in 1936 and 1938 and the Truro Bearcats 1941-43; Sgt. Andy Gilpin, 27-year-old left winger who played Junior Hockey with Westmount, Que., 1938-39; LAC. Len Beatch, 25, from North Battleford, Sask., LAC. Benny Ethier, 23, from Sudbury, and AC. Orva. Gravelle, 19, from Aylmer.

Tommy Lawton, centre forward on England's international soccer teams, was transferred yesterday to Motts County of the Third Division for a record price understood to be £17,000 ($68,000). Notts County outbid wealthy First Division Clubs after negotiations which started in August when Lawton asked his own team, Chelsea, to transfer him after a disagreement.

Doug Bennett, Dominion Singles Paddling champion and member of next year's Canadian Olympic games canoe team, has been named as winner of the Sportsmen's Association trophy, awarded annually to Montreal's most outstanding athlete. He was named over eight other candidates.

A sudden-death Rugby clash to decide the Intercollegiate championship of the Maritimes will be played at Truro, N.S., next Saturday between Mount Allison University of Saskville, N.B., and Acadia University of Wolfville, N.S.

New York Rangers of the National Hockey League have sent Eddie Slowinski, formerly with Ottawa Senators of the Quebec Senior Hockey League, to New York's American League farm team, New Haven Ramblers, to work himself into condition.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON Jr.

Pompton Lakes, N. J., Nov. 14 — (AP) — Joe Louis was sitting on the rubbing table in a crowded little room watching trainer Manny Seamon bandage his hands with solemn care of a mother diapering her first baby ... Joe was trying to carry on a conversation with reporters and was making tough work of it. The only subject that had come up was Joe's "lucky" bathrobe and the champ admitted it was "beginning to give out, too." . . . The door opened and Louis let out a gleeful shout, "How'd you do this morning?" . . . Welterweight champion Ray Robinson, wearing a red stocking cap, a toothy smile, a red sweater and dark slacks, bounced in, and shouted: "I did myself out of a set of golf clubs."

Exclusive Club

Robinson, it seems had been playing golf none too successfully..."I three-putted five greens," he laughed. "Then I busted up all my clubs." . . . "Like me in California," commented Joe. ... "Yes," Ray agreed. "When I broke my putter they said, 'All right, little Joe' ". . . . They both had a big laugh over that and Louis, who had trouble summoning a faint smile for photographers explained: "I was playing out there and was low medalist the first day with 72. The next day for the first eight holes I was under par. Then I hit about 300-yard drive and had an easy little chip about 45 yards over some water. I chipped that ball right into the water and I got so mad that I gave him all my golf balls and the bag and then I took off my shoes and gave them to the caddy, too, and walked in barefooted."

Serious Training

Louis, who has been training here about two weeks in preparation for his Dec. 5 bout with Jersey Joe Walcott, doesn't seem to be taking it lightly except when he's sparring verbally with Robinson, who also acts as one of Louis' seconds during his training bouts . . . He quit golf several weeks before beginning to train "because it bothers your muscles."

TWO ON TOP

Toronto, Nov. 14 — (CP) — Johnny Wilson and Gord Haldy of the undefeated Windsor Spitfires are leading the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A individual scoring parade, both tied with 13 points today.

Wilson has six goals and seven assists, Haidy chalked nine goals and four assists. There is a five-place deadlock in second position.

CANADIAN SPORT SNAPSHOTS

By MEL SUFRIN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 14 (CP)—In the sport sense, a split-personality type of individual is not uncommon. But it's seldom you find a player who changes as much as Bill Ezinicki does when you hand him a hockey stick and a pair of skates.

It isn't surprising, therefore, that Ezinicki, Toronto Maple Leaf winger, has become involved in one of the most rousing hockey controversies in years.

The question is just how hard opposing puckchasers may be checked before the National Hockey League officials begin to frown.

Doug (Windsor Star) Vaughan suggests that if you were to poll all the players in the N.H.L. to discover the most unpopular man—on the ice—Ezinicki would undoubtedly be the majority choice for that unenviable position.

Wild Man True

Suggesting that Ezinicki has definite "Jekyll-Hyde" tendencies, Vaughan says the Leaf forward has been trying his darndest to live up to the nickname "wild man" throughout his puck-chasing career.

"In action he impressed you as an individual who would cheerfully break every bone in an opponent's body and then expectorate disdainfully in the fallen foe's face as they hauled the bruised and bleeding hulk that once was a man off the ice.

"But that is only Ezinicki the hockey player. Meet the same gent in a lobby of a hotel or the locker room of a golf club and you'd never recognize him as the same person.

"He's quiet and soft-spoken almost to the point of being bashful. He doesn't boast. He doesn't read blood-and-murder mystery stories, and most certainly, it isn't true that he exists on a diet of raw meat.

"Frankly," says Vaughan, "the better you know the fellow who only last Saturday night in Toronto hit Edgar Laprade with such stunning effect that they toted the talented New York Ranger centre off to hospital suffering from a mild conclussion, the harder you find him to understand."

DIETITIANS FAVOUR HOT BREAKFASTS of WHOLE-GRAIN

MORNING DEPRESSIONS SAID CAUSE OF POOR SCHOLASTIC SHOWINGS—

An exhaustive survey by prominent medical men and dietitians shows that most poor scholastic showings are due to morning depressions resulting from breakfasts deficient in minerals and vitamins. These depressions could be eliminated by the simple inclusion of whole-grain cereals at breakfast.

DOCTORS AGREE

Medical research has proven that among the many foods which supply the essential Vitamin B_1 (thiamine), whole-grain cereals are one of the richest sources.

STAPLE DIET

Welfare workers are unanimous in their choice of whole-grain cereals as part of a balanced and staple diet. They recommend them highly where pupils show a lack of interest in their studies or show a tendency to tire easily.

Breakfast Can be Bright!

If mouth-watering, nutty-flavoured goodness means anything to your family, you must serve Vita-B soon. With cream and brown sugar, Vita-B is one of those rare treats that brighten any breakfast. And remember, Vita-B cooks in 3 minutes.

Lamplighter Blake Leads Way With Two Goals as Canadiens Crush Black Hawks by 5 to 2

Habitants Use Victory to Move Into Third-Place Tie in N.H.L.

By ROBERT CLARKE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

It's a fair number of season's since Hector (Toe) Blake picked up the nickname "The Old Lamplighter," but it's a tag that still is appropriate even though he is nearing the end of the hockey trail.

The rugged left-wing veteran of Montreal Canadiens isn't the hurly-burly performer of the early '40s. He doesn't bash his way through an opposing defence in his old bull-like style. Nor, for that matter, has he the trigger temper of a few years back.

Blake is down in the National Hockey League records as 35 years of age, oldest player in the circuit. But he still is able to show the young fry a few scoring tricks as he demonstrated last night in counting two goals in Montreal's 5-2 triumph over Chicago Black Hawks in the night's only scheduled game.

Canadiens used the victory to move into a third place tie in the standing with Toronto Maple Leafs at 12 points, one behind the pace-setting Detroit Red Wings and Boston Bruins. New York Rangers and Hawks follow a good deal to the rear with six and four points respectively.

Show Signs of Weariness

Hawks, playing their second game in as many nights, showed signs of weariness as the game progressed and Canadiens came through with two goals in the third period to put the game away. Bill Reay and Blake, scored for Habs in the opening period with Alex Kaleta squeezing a goal in between their efforts. Blake got the only score of the second period and Rip Riopelle and Doug Harvey tallied in the third before George Gee counted for Hawks in the last.

Meanwhile the lowly Rangers suffered a new blow when it was disclosed goalie Chuck Rayner would be out of action for three weeks with a broken cheekbone Rayner suffered the injury when struck by the puck in Wednesday night's game against Boston Bruins on a shot fired by defence Jack Crawford.

Rangers sent out an SOS for Sugar Jim Henry, netminder with New Haven Ramblers farm club but Rambler officials notified the parent club Henry is suffering from influenza and might not be available in time for Saturday's game against Chicago.

If that's the case, Rangers are expected to use either Doug Stephenson or Jack McGill of the St. Paul Saints in the United States League. St. Paul has a working agreement with Rangers.

Houston Huskies Trim Minneapolis Millers by 6-1

(By The Associated Press)

Minneapolis Millers still have a healthy six-point lead in the northern division of the United States Hockey League but the domination they showed in winning their first eight straight games came to an end last night. Houston Huskies gave the Millers the worst licking they've experienced this year, 6-1.

Goalie Frank Ceryance of Houston got credit for 28 stops, letting only a second period goal by Art Strobel get by him. Ceryance got plenty of help from his mates and centre George Agar added to his lead as the league's top scorer with two goals and an assist.

Tulsa and St. Paul battled to a 5-5 deadlock through an extra and scoreless period on the Saints' ice after the home club slipped from an early 4-0 lead. Mel Read, St. Paul, and Clint Smith, Tulsa, divided individual scoring honors, each scored twice.

Fort Worth pushed into a three-point lead in the southern division by winning a wild contest with Dallas, 3-1. Francis Kane, Fort Worth defenceman, and Joe Medynski of Dallas exchanged punches in the final minutes of the game and before the scramble was over Freddie Weaver, Fort Worth, and Tom Rockey, Dallas, received 10-minute misconduct penalties for joining in.

Len Mutcheson, Ranger wing, scored twice for the winners, getting credit for the winning goal without taking a shot.

Nick Pidsodny, Dallas goalie, accidentally deflected the puck into the net to put Fort Worth into the lead 2-1 in the second period and Mutcheson, the last Fort Worth player to touch the rubber, was credited with an unassisted goal.

No games are scheduled tonight.

COLLEGIANS SHOW REAL POWER IN DOWNING GUELPH

St. Michael's Majors Have Now Won Three of Last Five Games Played

(By The Canadian Press)

No more tears need be shed for Toronto St. Michael's Majors who today are hitting better than .500 in the Ontario Hockey Associations Junior A race.

Previously-pitied remnant of last season's Memorial Cup champions, the collegians displayed a surprising show of strength as they crushed the Guelph Biltmores 7-3 at Galt last night in their second successive win over Bobby Bauer's Guelph squad. This made it their third straight victory in five starts.

Loose defensive work was still Guelph's big weakness as they bogged down in their own zone for most of the first two periods. However, their infrequent excursions into enemy territory did pay off in the first frame when they notched their only three counters in the game to hold a 3-2 advantage after the first 20 minutes of play.

In the second stanza the Irish went on a four goal scoring spree that left Guelph goalie Hank Lawson wondering if his was a solo performance. Guelph rallied in the last session but were unable to beat Sommy Shea in the Collegians' net while the Irish scored once.

Only seven penalties were handed out.

Pete Whelan with two goals and one assist, and Bryan McAllister with two goals and two assists led St. Mike's goal-getters. Ray Barry with one goal and three assists. Joe Primeau Jr., with one goal and one assist, and Walter Clune's one goal completed Toronto scoring. Guelph tallies came from Frank Bathgate, Glen Sonmor and Bun Martin.

Tonight the junior loop's two top teams, Windsor and Oshawa meet in the border city. In the Senior A circuit Stratford Indians meet Toronto Marlboros at Maple Leaf Gardens, Owen Sound Mercurys meet the Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen at Waterloo and Hamilton Tigers face Hamilton Patricias.

The Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Maurice Richard edged into second place in the National Hockey League scoring race last night as he collected a pair of assists in Montreal's victory over Chicago. He now has 13 points, one less than the leader, Syl Apps of Toronto. Richard's linemates, Toe Blake and Elmer Lach also had a good night, Blake picking up two goals and one assist to move into a third-place tie with Buddy O'Connor of New York, and Lach adding an assist to share fifth place with Bryan Hextall of Rangers. Chicago's George Gee sniped a goal to take over seventh spot with 10 points.

The leaders:

Jackson, Atanas Two of Steadiest Players in Loop

(By The Associated Press)

Doug Jackson and Walter (Ants) Atanas are becoming two of the steadiest performers in the United States Hockey League this year.

Atanas, Minneapolis wing, has been near the top of the individual scoring parade since the season opening, and drove in two more goals last night. His two goals and an assist, cored while the Millers were losing at Dallas 7-4, give him a point total of 22 for the season. Houston's George Agar is the league leader with 23 points.

Atanas didn't get enough scoring help from his mates last night although Minneapolis held Dallas to a 3-all tie through the first period. The only Miller score after that was Atanas' second goal.

Jackson, Kansas city goalie, kicked out 37 St. Paul shots at the Plamor's goal last night to help Kansas City to a 5-0 victory.

HOCKEY GIVEN SECOND RATING BY COMPANIES

Insurance Brokers Claim Speedway Racing Fastest Game in World

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 14 (CP) — Hockey may be the fastest game on earth but insurance company officials — in Britain at least — give it second rating, as far as danger is concerned.

The helmeted motorcycle speedway riders who roar through dust and almost-deafening noise as they spin around a dirt track track at less than 50 miles an hour have top billing.

"Payments to speedway riders are much greater than to hockey players," said one insurance broker who handles most of the business in these two sports.

The official did admit, however his company had a "bad run" in hockey payments before the war —when English clubs manned by Canadians, were almost on a par with Canadian senior teams — and rates were increased.

The 1946 Canadian crop, warned by a least one rink promoter to cut out the rough stuff or "go home to Canada," quietened down injuries decreased and insurance rates took a corresponding drop.

Rink managements pay the premiums on all players at an approximate cost of 2s 6d (50 cents) a game and the insurance covers each player on both teams Here, are pay-offs:

Dependents of a player killed during a game or practice receive £500 ($2,000). The same dividend is paid if a player loses both eyes, two limbs or an eye and a limb.

The loss of one eye or limb means £250 to the player. The insurance company assumes rightly enough such accidents are rare and premiums are based more upon the amount they expect to pay out on the remaining benefits namely disablement preventing the player from following his occupation and medical expenses incurred by the injury.

One catch that weakens the insurance company's argument on the seeming danger of hockey, is that the players' teeth and dentures are on their own as far as the insurance is concerned. A broken or lost tooth, they figure is far to common an occurence for them to cover.

St. Louis Flyers Playing Better Hockey This Year

St. Louis Flyers this week have showed signs of life which may mean that they are now ready to terminate their three-year lease on the cellar of the American Hockey League's western division

Wednesday night, although downed by Springfield Indians 7-2, Flyers played better hockey than the score indicated. Last night in Providence, St. Louis had the game all but won when Reds rapped home two goals in 22 seconds in the third period to gain a 2-2 stalemate.

Indianapolis Capitals moved into a second-place tie with Buffalo in the loop's western division by whipping New Haven 6-2 in the only other game played last night.

The Flyers' main line of Don (Count) Grosso, Paul Gladu, and Ron Wilson again sparked the team. Gladu scored the one goal on passes from his two linemates. Other St. Louis tally was picked up by Ernie Trigg. Providence goals went to Pete Kapusta and Edward (Whitey) Prokop, veteran Hamilton-born forward.

Rodon Morrison was the big gun for Indianapolis in their triumph over the third-place New Haven Ramblers. Morrison bulged the twine twice while singletons went to Barry Sullivan, Fern Gauthier, Nelson Podolsky and Cliff Simpson. Bing Juckes and Angus Cameron scored for New Haven.

Gridiron's Gold-Dust Twins Joe Krol and Royal Copeland Chosen on Big Four All-Stars

Ottawa Rough Riders Place Greatest Number on Team With Five

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 14 — (CP)—For the third straight time, Joe Krol and Royal Copeland — gridiron's gold-dust twins who sparked Toronto Argonauts to two Dominion championships and are bidding for a third — stood side by side today on the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union's All-star team.

Their selection to the 1947 mythical squad, chosen for The Canadian Press by football writers and coaches in the league's four cities, capped brilliant records.

Both were all but unanimous choices of the selectors — Krol the 28-year-old product of Windsor, Ont., who even tried a spot of professional football with Detroit Lions in his varied career before joining Argos late in the 1945 season, and Copeland, the young blonde speedster from North Bay, who moved to Argos with coach Tedder Morris after a 1944 season with Toronto Navy.

Krol, who has proved he can do almost anything on a football field better than the next guy when he put his mind to it, drew 225 of a possible 240 points for his secondary defence ability while Copeland drew the same total for his brilliant receptions of Krol's forwards and his dangerous open-field running.

In all, the Argos placed three men on the All-star team. Ottawa Rough Riders, who led the regular schedule, placed the largest number with five while Hamilton Tigers and Montreal Alouettes each caught two berths.

Wagner Leads Voting

Only one player gained a better total than Krol or Copeland in the voting, weighted to give equal voting strength to each city in the league. He was Virgil Wagner, pile-driving Montreal Alouettes halfback who won the individual scoring crown with 71 points in the 12-game schedule. Wagner gained unanimous selection.

Wagner was one of four United States "imports" — so called under Canadian Rugby Union residence rules which call anyone not resident in Canada before Jan. 1, 1946, an import — selected to the dream - team from among the 15 Americans who played in the Big Four this season.

The others were quarterback Frank Filchock, Tigers' playing-coach whose U. S. National Football League suspension last fall caused a controversy before he was ruled eligible for league play and two big middles — Herb Trawick of Alouettes and Hank Christman of Riders.

The Krol - Copeland - Wagner-Filchock backfield was rounded out with the selection of Tony (golden boy) Golab, Ottawa's line-smasher, at flying-wing.

Two outsides also were named from the Riders. They are Bert Haigh and Matt Anthony, both driving tacklers and good pass receivers.

Snapback Don Loney, a great defensive secondary who moved to Ottawa this season after winning 1946 All-star rating with Argos, was the other Rough Rider chosen. To line up alongside him, the selectors named two husky insides — Tigers' Eddie Remegis and Bill Zock, the Argo socker.

Only Two Newcomers

Only two of the 12 players selected are newcomers to Big Four All-star teams — Filchock and Anthony. Two others — Golab and Remegis — missed out last season after being chosen in 1945 while the other eight all were hold-overs from the 1946 team.

The All-stars:

Flying wing, Tony Golab, Rough Riders; half, Virgil Wagner, Alouettes; half, Royal Copeland, Argonauts; half (secondary defence) Joe Krol, Argonauts; quarter, Frank Filchock, Tigers; snap, Don Loney, Rough Riders; inside, Eddie Remegis, Tigers; inside, Bill Zock, Argonauts; middle, Hank Christman, Rough Riders; middle, Herb Trawick, Alouettes; outside, Bert Haigh, Rough Riders; outside, Matt Anthony, Rough Riders.

Andy Lythe Says Contract With Conacher Altered

Claims President Campbell Intervened When Price Was Announced

Toronto, Nov. 14 — (CP)—Andy Lytle of the Toronto Star reported today that terms of the contract Chicago Black Hawks offered Roy Conacher stirred up such a National Hockey League row that only a last-minute revision enabled the most notable holdout in years to join the Hawks Wednesday night in their game with Toronto Maple Leafs.

A statement by manager Bill Tobin of Chicago that he offered Conacher "so much money he couldn't refuse" brought intervention by N.H.L. president Clarence Campbell, the Star sports editor wrote in a copyrighted column.

Lytle related that Campbell phoned Tobin in Toronto after the deal was announced Tuesday to remind him that the president had ruled Conacher could not be signed by any club for any more money than he was offered by Detroit — less $100 a game for each game he missed.

(Conacher refused to sign for $7,600 he was offered by Detroit Red Wings, for whom he scored 30 goals last season. He held out for $8,500. The Wings dealt him off to New York Rangers but the Toronto - born player couldn't reach terms with coach Frank Boucher. Then he announced his retirement from hockey.

(In announcing the deal Tuesday, Tobin said he had paid Detroit $25,000 for the rights to Conacher and was to deliver a player to the Red Wings at the end of Tobin's reply to Campbell was that he would sign Conacher to a new contract, Lytle went on. This was done after a consultation with the player and his notable brothers — Lionel and Chuck.

Campbell told Lytle in a telegram interview from Montreal "that all is well inasmuch as Tobin and the player had conformed with the rules."

Says Andy: "It might also be speculated that . . . ways and means could be discovered to live . . . within the law and not actually fracture the player's hope of a suitable reward."

CHEEKBONE BROKEN

New York, Nov. 14 — (CP) — New York's reeling Rangers, defeated four times in six days, made known today that one of their most valuable players, goaltender Claude (Chuck) Rayner, will be out of action probably for three weeks with a broken cheek-bone.

Officials said x-rays taken today showed that Rayner's cheekbone was broken in two places as a result of a shot fired by defenceman Jack Crawford of Boston Bruins, who defeated the Rangers 8-2.

LESS ALBERTA COAL

Edmonton — (CP) — Coal production in Alberta for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1947, showed a sharp decline — 837,159 tons — as compared with the corresponding period of 1946.

GOLAB TO PLAY DESPITE DEATH OF HIS FATHER

Will be Flown to Toronto Immediately After Service in Windsor

(By The Canadian Press)

Tony Golab, football's "Golden Boy," made plans today to play with Ottawa Rough Riders Saturday in Big Four final against Toronto Argonauts despite the death of his father yesterday in Windsor, Ont.

Funeral service for Michael Golab, Tony's father, will be held Saturday morning in Windsor and the big backfielder will take a plane shortly after for Toronto, site of the second game of the two-game, total-points round. Argonauts won the first game in Ottawa last Tuesday 3-0.

Golab told club president Eddie Emerson last night members of his family felt it would have been his father's wish that he play for Riders.

Argos, free of injuries, went through a short drill last night in frigid weather. Coach Ted Morris had the boys on the gr lop throughout the practice i which bodily contact was avoid studiously so that no playe would get "crocked."

Brush Up Plays

Meanwhile, Ottawa Trojan brushed up their plays yesterda with a drill in Ottawa and they'll leave the capital today for Hamilton for the Ontario Rugby Union sudden death final playoff Only absentee was quarterback Rod Smylie who missed the actice because of a heavy cold. owever, playing coach Wally asters said Smylie would be ady for the the game.

On Sunday, officials of the lub which emerge winners in e Big Four and O.R.F.U. struggles will meet to decide on the ite for the Eastern Canada fin l. Percy Robinson, secretary of he Canadian Rugby Union, said if the teams agree the matter is settled. If they don't then the C.R.U. will name the field.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Palookas deserve medals on 'em. Although of the rules they know none so many faults have they in common they manage to have lots of fun.

The gals were having their weekly meeting. They call it their bridge club because packs of cards are on the table. But they really gather to gab and eat. And they don't spare the horses with either.

Every so often somebody asks: "Whose deal is it?" Nor does the hubub slow down until after much "no it isn't; you dealt last; you bid first last time;" and stuff like that.

Who finally deals? Mrs. Jabberpuss with the dill pickle tongue; her husband's leash on life. Always positive, it is she who has the last word at a bridge party, too.

In such a group, south and north got the pair of hands shown here:

SOUTH
♠A K Q J 3
♥A K Q 9 5
♦K 7 5
♣None

NORTH
♠9 8 6
♥10 7 6
♦Q 6
♣7 6 5 4 2

South opened with a bid of two spades and west passed. With a sigh and two oh dears, north also passed. "Oh," snapped Mrs. Jabber, "you can't pass. That was a forcing two. We can make you go to game."

So, north took back the pass and bid something. The game went blissfully on until tea was served. And a good time was had by all.

You and I know the meaning of an opening two bid. In nearly all systems it is a signal for keeping the bids alive to game. All good players follow it.

But there is no bridge law that says you must. You may refuse to obey partner's request. Nor does any opponent have the right to force you to comply.

Good bridge players enjoy a game in which partners know and can follow signals. But if players can get pleasure out of it without knowing correct rules, hurrah for them, I say.

After all is said and done the game is played to have some fun.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 14 (AP)—Veronica Lake says a new career is starting for her.

The 92-pound actress hit Hollywood with a bang (peek-a-boo) 7 1-2 years ago. She admits that she slowly slipped into one bad picture after another, but things are picking up. Paramount bigwigs are pleased with her current "Sainted Sisters" an admitted "stepchild" which she undertook after other stars turned it down.

Now she has been told to stand by for a Paramount color epic next spring and Dick Powell wants her to co-star in "The Pitfall." In the latter she'll return to her famed sheep-dog hair-do. Fancy!

Deanna Durbin in bloomers! That appears to be in the offing since "Bloomer Girl" is being mentioned as a future vehicle for the Winnipeg warbler, who now is making "Up in Central Park."

U-I has assured her that "important properties" are being earmarked for her and that's a wise plan. Though the new regime may not realize it, Deanna is still the studio's best asset.

Dinah Shore appears set for "One Touch of Venus"...George Raft, who usually always escorts blondes, has been going out with a brunette Iris Bynum.

Peggy Lee is much improved and will be back on the Jimmy Durante show Nov. 26...Don't believe those stories that recording singers will beat the Petrillo ban by waxing in Mexico or with a vocal accompaniment. During the last record drought, singers who did so were considered "unfriendly" and pressure was brought for them to desist.

Ann Sothern still reports her marital relations are status quo, which still means she and Bob Sterling haven't resumed their marriage, though they are seen together often.

CHAPTER 4.

She murmured alluringly, "Mother would love to entertain a Nourse. Why not spend a few weeks with us—give the Millstroms a chance to go on with plans you so rudely interrupted?" She laughed carelessly. "They must be waiting for you to convalesce to the point where—"

"Where I do a fade-out?" he supplied gruffly.

"Exactly. Well, cousin—think over my invitation," she said, laying a hand caressingly on his shoulder.

Kay's face lighted with a resolve. "I'll do it!" she declared. "I can no more than fail—I can't go on like this!"

She jumped up and went to the telephone on the massive, carved walnut table at the end of the room. She sat down before it, trying to catch her breath. Finally, her trembling fingers dialed a number.

A switchboard girl sang out promptly, "Good morning! This is the Hotel Sward!"

"Mr.—Mr. Charles Nourse, please," requested Kay, clutching the receiver.

A vibrant greeting came like a clean fresh breeze over the wire. "Hello!" said Chuck Nourse expectantly.

"Chuck? This is Kay.

"Good morning! It's good to hear your voice, Kay."

"Really?" she said, completely forgetting what it was she had intended to say. Even now, she could sense his nearness. She wanted to blurt out, "Darling: Darling! Please—never love anyone but me!"

"I've missed you," he said low. "It's—it's a little strange—being here."

"But you—you arranged it yourself—you insisted upon leaving," she said quickly. "It was not my wish at all—you know that."

"Yet—under the circumstances—"

There was that dear silence between them that she had felt so many times before. Then he said gently, "My—dear."

They were two words that revealed utter longing.

Something surged within her and would not be stilled. She could not, would not give him up.

"The doctor came in today, He said I could go down to dinner tonight—on crutches. If you'll join me here in the main dining-room —I'll—" he laughed boyishly, "I'll cancel all my other engagements."

"It would be—" She paused, remembering that she must be home tonight to dine with Blare.

"Is it a date?" asked Chuck as if his very existence depended upon it.

"I—I—that is, I will another time. Not tonight, Chuck. Mother is having guests. I must be home."

"I expected as much," he returned. There was a savage edge to his voice.

"That doesn't mean I won't dine with you sometime," she encouraged.

"That's that, my dear." It sounded like studied carelessness. "Sometime often has a way of stretching out—"

"We won't allow it to," she promised quickly.

He seemed to be considering this. The intimate stretch of wire between them stirred Kay's pulses to racing speed, making him seem close beside her. It was as if she could reach out her two shaking eager hands and touch the fine soft blond hair at his temples, run her fingers over the dark stubble on his chin.

"Tomorrow evening at eight—could you manage, darling?"

If he were trespassing on another man's right, he thought desperately, it was just too bad. All was fair until Kay openly acknowledged her engagement. He would ask her point-blank tomorrow night.

"I'd love to come," she flung back recklessly. "Good-bye!"

"Until—tomorrow, my sweet," he said huskily.

Hennington Blare came into the Millstrom drawing-room that evening like a man treading air. His exaltation spread out and over Cora Millstrom, who stood beaming in the centre of the room to receive him. She looked regal in her plain black crepe gown and was filled with the splendid assurance that she was looking her best. Even a prospective son-in-law should admire her, she thought.

Kay, a picture in pink flowered crepe, sat at the ivory grand piano. She was playing a chopin waltz, either deliberately ignoring Blare's arrival or too thoroughly engrossed with the melody to notice him. Her mother glanced at her impatiently, then back at Blare.

"So nice of you to come, Henn!" she exclaimed, giving him her hand. "Perhaps—perhaps tonight you will not have come in vain." She inclined her head significantly toward Kay.

His dark brows lifted. "Really? I'm delighted. It's about time the minx stopped wearing me for a sleeve ornament. A man can endure just about so much, Cora—then he's all washed up."

She did not flick an eyelash over the "Cora". She liked having people call her by her given name, as did so many of Kay's modern-minded friends. It made her feel younger, almost as young as she looked. To be sure, having a daughter of Kay's age dated her. But Henn had begun calling her Cora, two years ago when he first settled in Deweyton after wandering for years in various parts of the world. Now and then a little gossip sifted back to his new home town concerning his life in foreign countries. Cora had already put it out of her mind. She felt that a man could bury his past and still be eligible—that is, a man with a sizable fortune.

"Talk to her after dinner," she suggested quickly.

"Very well," he responded, "after dinner! For the last time!"

His stocky medium-height figure in the elegantly tailored tuxedo waddled slightly as he crossed the room to Kay.

Her long slim fingers abruptly left the keyboard. She could see the bald spot on the top of his head when he folded his arms on the piano's top and leaned down to her.

He said, patronizingly, "You play well, my dear. Flawless technique, fine memory—but unemotionally. When you're awakened by the right man you'll have more understanding of a Chopin melody. Now take Bauer, for instance—"

"You take him, oh wise one! I'm famished!"

She slipped from the bench as Sartin finished announcing dinner. Her green satin slippers marched smartly down the room, her long, pink flowered gown swirling gently around the buoyantly moving youth of her.

Hennington Blare, shrugged his narrow shoulders, laughed mirthlessly, and followed the two women into the dining-room.

"Probably, Kay," he said tolerantly, "you had lamb chop pineapple for luncheon. You girls live on air—"

"No, indeed! That's mother's luncheon menu, not mine. I have mounds of food."

Cora sighed enviously and dropped into her armchair at the head of the table. "The joy of being young!" she sighed, tactlessly ignoring Hennington's probable concern over his waistline.

Hennington's face crimsoned. Cora was only five years older than he. He hastily cleared his throat, took a sip of sherry, thinking resentfully, "Women talk too much."

He turned to Kay with, "How is the Junior League garden party coming along? I've fifty friends to whom I must give tickets — that's how optimistic I am over it."

Kay's soft lips parted, her piquant face glowed. "You're a dear, Henn—and I'm grateful. We have a tremendous overhead on the league orphange this year—we need all the help we can get."

She dug a spoon into chilled bouillon to avoid further speech. She was doing a great deal of thinking. Little by little, this man was making her so indebted to him that nothing but marriage could even the score. Accidently green orchids on her shoulder her hands brushed against his when she lifted the spoon to her mouth. She frowned. Later tonight, she would make another attempt to persuade Cora against bringing him into the family circle. For the hundredth time, she would try it. How could she marry him?—with her heart leaning so far in another direction?

Sartin was serving the desert when Blare informed her nonchalantly, "I've purchased the Lester estate, Kay—you admire it I know."

Kay shut her lips firmly. So! He had even acquired their future town house! Well, she would show him!

"Yes—it would be wonderful for a civic club—or home for the aged. Such a generous man," she cooed spitefully.

"You know perfectly well I have no such intention! he flared. "It's one of the finest homes in the city. It cost—"

"Three-quarters of a million. It has solid gold bathtubs and jeweled colonnades. It has—"

"Kay!" he exclaimed, exasperated. "You know better. You danced in its ballrooms last season. You said then it was the most beautiful distinctive house in town. So I—I—well, I thought you'd like it, that's all."

Kay smiled her sweetest. "You're a lamb, Henn—forgive me," she offered cintritely. "For some reason or other, when you said you'd bought that place, it riled me. It's my unbearable disposition, I suppose. After all, I—I understand."

Cora Millstrom disapprovingly shook her dark head at this impudent daughter of hers. "If only she weren't so temperamental," she thought. She rose, her brown eyes snapping. She said crisply, "What we need is coffee."

Her tall, thin, black figure, relieved only by the diamond clip at her throat and the diamond and ruby bracelet on her arm, moved resolutely out to the terrace. She was counting now on the romantic setting of this particular spot under a golden moon. Tonight the effect was unusually magnetic. It was capable of casting a heady stream of emotion over the most unyielding soul. She almost wished for the South American.

They settled themselves in deep wicker chairs surrounding the coffee table. Sartin served black coffee in Wedgewood cups. The air was heavily scented with a potpourri of odors from the rose garden and cedar hedge. The eerie light from the heavens, augmented by the dimly illuminated terrace, made Cora nearly as beautiful as she'd ever been, Kay lovelier than any woodland elf, and Hennington Blare at least fifteen years younger than he felt.

Cora sprang her her feet. "Why, Gordon Wayland!" she exclaimed agitatedly. "Do join us! What — what—"

She paused out of sheer fright. This lawyer had brought her nothing but bad news lately. She clutched a hand to her breast, advanced a few steps, unable to speak another word.

"Sorry to interrupt, Cora," he began. "Good evening, Blare! How are you, Kay? If we could have a few minutes alone, Cora—"

HUSBAND LAYS CHARGE AGAINST WIFE

Toronto, Nov. 13 —(CP)— Police said last night they had arrested Ellen Pyke, 33, on a charge of abduction and were holding the woman for Sydney, N.S., police. They said the charge had been laid by the woman's husband on grounds she had left Sydney with their 11-months-old son without permission.

POLICE SAY 150 MEN WATCHING WOMAN DANCE

Toronto, Nov. 13 —(CP)— Police said 200 bottles of beer and 12 cases of empties were found on the premises in a raid on a club on Dundas Street West last night which led to arrest of four men and a woman. Police said 150 men were on hand, watching a dance by a woman who was later charged with giving an "indecent exhibition."

Cannifton-Corbyville H.S. Assoc. Meets

The regular meeting was held by the Cannifton and Corbyville Home and School Association on Monday at the school. Being the day before Remembrance Day, one minute of silent tribute was observed for those who made the supreme sacrifice. This was followed by Miss Audrey Archibald reciting "In Flanders Fields".

Reports were given by various committees and a special report given by Mrs. J. Latchford and Mr. N. Curlette on the euchre and dance being held this month.

The school oratorical contest was to have taken place at this meeting, but owing to circumstances beyond control it took place earlier and the judges were asked to choose the six best speakers, the prize winners included, to speak at this meeting. These boys and girls were especially good and Mrs Mac Taggart and Mr. Locklin deserve much credit for the training of these children.

Freddie Furmidge from Grade 5 whose topic was on the "Beaver".

George MacDonald from Grade 6 whose topic was on "History of Canadian Hockey".

Freda Vincent from Grade 6, whose topic was on the "Plastic Age".

Robert Archibald from Grade 7, whose topic was on 'The Man Who Gave Away Millions".

Audrey Archibald from Grade 8, whose topic was on "CJBQ".

Miss Barabara Williams the Senior winner and also the winner of the Thurlow contest was unable through illness to be present. The President, Mrs. R. Plumpton on behalf of the Home and School Association, presented one year's subscription "Calling All Girls" to the Senior winner, and one year's subscription of "Wee Wisdom' to Melleville James, the Junior winner.

Several musical numbers by the Senior room under the direction of Mrs. J. Parrot, the school music teacher were given and a play "The Three Little Pigs", featuring Margaret McCloed, "Porky" McPherson, Teddy Dafoe, Freddy Furmidge and Jimmie Palmer, all of Room 2, was much enjoyed by all. A sing-song conducted by Mrs. Parrot and Miss P. Plumpton brought a very enjoyable evening to a close.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. J. Latchford, the Social Convener and Tea Committee and a social half hour was enjoyed by all.

Difference Between Socialist And Communist Totalitarian Govt. Explained by Speaker

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Nov. 14 — (CP)—Sir Hartley Shawcross, Britain's Attorney General and delegate to the United Nations came down from New York this week and made a timely effort to explain to Americans the difference between a socialist government and a communist totalitarian government.

He was guest-speaker at a National Press Club luncheon attended by club members and their guests, many of the Congressmen. The subject had been prescribed for him — "Is Britain a democracy"— and he didn't much like it.

"I don't suppose there is anyone in this audience or anyone who knows anything about Britain who has any doubt that democracy over there is very much alive and kicking," he said.

"But we have a socialist government and some people seem to think that really means a communist and totalitarian government . . . if you accept, as I do, Abraham Lincoln's definition . . . then I should think it true to say that never in the history of the British people has there been such active democracy as there is today."

He talked about freedom in Britain beginning with the press. "With all its faults — and from a point of view it has many — on the whole I think we have a very fine press, perhaps the finest in the world."

"It can't be bought and it can't be bullied. Its professional journalists have a very high standard of honor . . . we may sometimes detest the things they say but we will defend to the utmost their right to say them."

Control of the police was a valued adjunct to successful dictatorship, he said. "We have, of course, no secret police. Our police forces remain, as they have always been, apart from London, substantially under control of local authorities whose political complexion may be quite different from the government's . . .

"I suppose it is true to say no country enforces its laws with a smaller number of police than we do . . . because we accept as the first maxim of legislative policy that the strength of laws depends upon the extent of their acceptance by the people, not in the amount of force behind them."

On individual freedoms Sir Hartley recalled that to win the war, many democratic freedoms had to be curtailed. At the moment Britain was fighting as great a danger to her future existence as any the war brought.

"I can assure you that if we are consenting to the temporary suspension of some of our liberties it is simply because we are determined to fight through the difficulties that face us now so that our liberties will be preserved, as realities and not simply phrases, for our children."

Papers Express Regret Dalton Leaving Govt.

London, Nov. 14 (CP)—Morning newspapers generally expressed regret today at the circumstances in which Hugh Dalton Chancellor of the Exchequer, was "compelled to leave the government" yesterday.

The Conservative Daily Mail said, however, that "his offence was of such serious import that it might have imperilled the existence of the government."

"Sooner than that should happen he left his post," the Mail said.

The Liberal News Chronicle expressed "general sympathy" for Dalton—who resigned following his apology to the House for a "leak" of the budget contents—and said "his political opponents as well as his friends will sincerely hope this unhappy incident represents the interruption and not the end of a colorful carreer."

The Labor Daily Herald echoed those sentiments, adding that "it is a tragedy that a career so full of achievement should be thus halted."

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express praised Dalton as a "man of integrity and high principles in the frank acknowledgement of his fault and his acceptance of the entire rsponsibility."

The Glasgow Bulletin said "a happening of this sort is bound to shake the Labor government very severely."

The Western Vail at Cardiff wrote that "the resignation of Mr. Hugh Dalton is a sensational event which must have profound effects on the waning prestige of the Socialist government."

"It is pitiful that a public man should be so tripped up by a triviality," said the Liberal Manchester Guardian. "But the Chancellor of the Exchequer's responsibilities are as great as his powers. His acts are not to be judged by the standards of common men.

"Of all political traditions, none is more hallowed by observance or more justified by reason than that of the inviolable secretary of the budget until the Commons hear it from his lips."

The Conservative Yorkshire Post, usually an opponent of Dalton's financial policies, said that the chancellor's apology in the House for his indiscretion might have seemed to many people to meet the requirements of parliamentary propriety. Dalton, thought he had made a grievous and inexplicable mistake, had done nothing dishonorable.

Freighter Ashore, Splits in Two; One Man Lost

Crew Will Attempt to Land On North Tip of Nfld.

Halifax, Nov. 15 (CP) — One man had been lost but the remainder of the crew was safe and preparing to attempt to make shore when the weather moderated, the captain of the British freighter Langleecrag, aground and broken in two at the northern tip of Newfoundland, reported today.

Two United States Coast Guard cutters, the Evergreen and the Duane, were rushing to the side of the 4,909-ton ship through the heavy winds of gale force and a driving rain.

In his message to the skipper of the Duane the Langleecrag captain said:

"All safe. One lost. Still on ship broken in two and organizing for landing as soon as weather moderates. What is estimated time of arrival?"

The British ship ran aground near Boat Cove in the Strait of Belle Isle early this morning. Her first S.O.S. message which asked "immediate assistance" was received by search and rescue division of the R.C.A.F. here at 5.40 a.m. A.S.T.

The Evergreen, on patrol off Labrador, started to the side of the broken craft at 6:22 a.m. and was expected to reach her side late today.

The number of crew members aboard the freighter was not known but shipping men here said a craft of her size should carry about 25.

The Dominion Public Weather Office here said that gale winds were whipping rain along the Strait of Belle Isle coastline and that the sky was overcast. Conditions were not expected to moderate for at least 24 hours.

Hudson's Bay Co's Gift to Princess Beaver Coat

London, Nov. 15—(CP)—Princess Elizabeth will receive a third fur coat as a wedding present—a full-length grey-brown beaver from the Hudson's Bay Company.

Canada and Newfoundland also have given the Princess fur coats for the occasion of her Nov. 20 wedding.

Canada's coat arrived yesterday by air and probably will be presented to the Princess some time this coming week.

Sir Patrick Ashley Cooper, governor of the Hudson's Bay Company, will present the third coat, following out the long tradition of giving furs to the Royal Family on special occasions. At the wedding the Queen will wear a sable cape given her by the company at the Coronation in 1937.

The Princess' beaver coat is in a full, swinging style, with a rounded yoke at the back, modified bell-type sleeves and split pockets.

Hunter Travels From Italy to Bag Moose Head

North Bay, Nov. 15 —(CP)— Somewhere along Smoky Lake in the Little Jocko River country, a wiry-looking man, whose continental manners seem inappropriate to the rugged northland, probably is hunting a moose he came all the way from Italy to find.

The man is Alfred Banfi who wants to mount a moose-head in his home in Turin, Italy, beside that of a chamois he bagged in the Alps and those of deer and bear shot elsewhere in Europe.

Actually, his main purpose in coming to Canada was to conduct trade negotiations here and in the United States on behalf of several Italian business concerns. But, when he told Ottawa forestry officials about his moose-hunting ambitions, they recommended North Bay.

Now the wheels of international trade will have to wait on the whim of a moose on the loose.

ONCE TRAPPED IN MINE AND LIVED ON MULE

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Nov. 15 —(AP)—William (Sult) Kinney, with six other miners was trapped in a mine in 1879 and remained alive for six days by eating a mule, died yesterday at the age of 88. Mules were used extensively in 1879 to pull the coal mine cars.

Testifies Bussey Had Full Senses Night of Slaying

Owen Sound, Ont., Nov. 15 — (CP)—Dr. C. S. Tennant, Superintendent of the Ontario Mental Hospital at Penetanguishene, testified at the Supreme Court trial of Fred Bussey on a murder charge that in his opinion the itinerant carnival worker had his full senses the night he is alleged to have slain 11-year-old Betty Playford of Owen Sound.

Dr. Tennant expressed his opinion yesterday and said he based it on two examinations he made of Bussey, on evidence submitted to him and on observations made during the course of the trial. The court had ruled a purported confession the youth gave in Montreal admissible as evidence.

Other Crown psychiatrists are scheduled to testify today. The case is not expected to go to the jury before late Monday or early Tuesday. The trial started Tuesday.

The defence rested its case after Bussey told the court he assumed full responsibility for deciding against an adjournment until Monday to enable the defence to bring forward army psychiatrists who had examined Bussey. Mr. Justice D. P. J. Kelly had ruled that documents dealing with Bussey's mental condition during his period of military service were not admissible without cross-examination of the persons who made the examinations and prepared the reports.

The ruling came as Dr. D. Gillies of Toronto, in the witness box, was prepared to produce documents concering Bussey's mental state.

The only defence witness to testify for the former Regina and Toronto man accused of bludgeoning the Playford girl to death Sept. 21 was Bussey's white-haired mother.

Mrs. Fred Bussey told the court that one of her sisters had been in a psychiatric hospital on several occasions. She said the accused would often withdraw into his own thoughts while in the presence of others and "we could never enter into that part of his life."

The Crown then called Dr. Tennant who said he examined Bussey Oct. 1 and again Oct. 10.

"What were your findings regarding the mental condition of the accused at the time you examined him?" asked Crown Counsel C. P. Hope.

"I came to the conclusion the accused was in possession of all his intelligence," Dr. Tennant said. "I found no evidence of mental illness."

"You have heard all the evidence," said Mr. Hope. "Assuming it to be true, have you any reason to change your opinion as to his mental condition at the time he killed the girl?"

"I have not. I am still of the opinion the accused was not mentally ill Sept. 21."

Large Numbers of Foreign Royalty Converge on London for Wedding

London, Nov. 15 (CP) —The impressive initial flow of foreign royalty into London for the royal wedding begins this weekend. Most of the royal visitors will occupy state rooms at Buckingham Palace, re-opened for the first time since the war, but a few have rented sumptuous west end hotel suites.

Twenty-five-year old King Michael of Romania, accompanied by Queen Mother Helena and his aunt, the Duchess of Aosta, are due late today at London airport from Switzerland.

It will be Michael's first visit to Britain since 1933. So far he has refused to comment on the report that he may quit the throne and seek a home among other royal exiles in Switzerland.

King Frederik and Queen Astrid of Denmark: are expected in London Sunday by ship. The King will remain here seven days and the Queen probably will stay for two weeks to visit relatives and friends.

Princess Juliana and Prince Bernhard of Holland are due at Hendon Airdrome, also on Sunday. King Haakon of Norway is expected Monday.

Queen Frederik of Greece, who is staying 12 days in London, boarded a Greek destroyer yesterday en route here. Landing in Southern France, she will proceed by special train to Calais and then by cross-channel steamship.

Occupying a large suite at Claridge's hotel is 58-year-old former Queen Victoria Eugenie of Spain, usually known in Britain as Queen Ena. A granddaughter of Queen Victoria, she has been living in a villa on the outskirts of Lisbon, with her son, Don Juan, pretender to the Spanish throne.

The state rooms allocated to royalty at Buckingham Palace have been restored to their prewar condition. Valuable furniture and pictures stored at Windsor and at Sandringham House in Norfolk during the war have been returned, together with costly china hidden in the depths of the Aldwych underground railway station in the heart of London.

20 DOUKHOBORS ARE SENTENCED IN B. COLUMBIA

Convicted in Arson Reign of Terror

Vernon, B.C., Nov. 15 (CP) — British Columbia's quest for a solution to the difficulties which for forty years have beset her trouble-ridden Doukhobor communities today seemed a step ahead.

Twenty Doukhobors, convicted of arson, were sentenced yesterday to terms reaching to seven years in penitentiary. Pleas that their burned offerings of homes and schools were intended to "awaken our brothers" to the danger of a third world war, were ignored.

Meanwhile, preparations neared completion for resumption next week at Grank Forks, B.C., of a government commisison enquiring into the strike. During October the commission toured other parts of British Columbia to hear testimony from the feuding sects — the Orthodox Doukhobors and the Sons of Freedom —and to view the damage they had caused.

Chief Justice Wendell B. Farris of the Supreme Court of British Columbia, saying their their professions of love of mankind were not borne out by their actions, yesterday imposed sentences on the convicted arsonists involving a total of 130 years. Two of those ordered to the penitentiary were women.

Incendiary Reign of Terror.

The court had held all twenty responsible for an incendiary reign of terror in the Kootenay district, including the burning of a British Columbia Land Settlement Board barn at Gilpin, B.C., last September 7th.

Their penalties varied from seven years in penitentiary to suspended sentence of three years.

The women were Mary G. Astafooroff, sentenced to three years and Mary F. Lazaroff, who received a five-year sentence.

The Doukhobors convicted yesterday had declined defence by counsel at their trials, one saying, "my lawyer is Christ."

All had refused to swear on the Bible, to them just the printed word of God.The oaths were based on bread, salt and water, symbols of their religious beliefs.

The incendiary outbreaks of which the group had been convicted were part of internal Doukhobor strife which has cost more than $1,000,000 in damage during the last forty years and taken ten lives.

Water, Coffee, Pop Banish Boredom

New York, Nov. 15 (AP)—Do you get bored at the opera? Does a long political lecture set you off to sleep?

If so, you "are in a state of conflict between the tendency to continue and the tendency to get away from a situation which has become unpleasant."

The solution? A tumbler of water, a cup of coffee, or a bottle of soda pop, says Prof. Joseph E. Barmack, who found experimentally that such drinks banish boredom.

Complaints about the ability of a dull lecture to bore a person to sleep are scientifically valid, Barmack said.

Confidence of Britons Grows in Cripps as Man To Lead Out of Crisis

By J. A. FARRELL

London, Nov. 15 (Reuters)—In times of peril and crisis, Britain has a reputation for finding adequate leadership in the nick of time.

In 1940, Winston Churchill was invested with nearly supreme powers and he pointed the way to victory.

Today, faced with an emergency hardly less immediate, Britons looked with increasing confidence to another "Knight in shining armor' to show them the way out of their economic crisis.

He is Sir Stafford Cripps, 58, often referred to with a sort of reluctant affection, as "austerity Cripps."

More Respect Than Affection

Actually, the teetotal, vegetarian Sir Stafford is regarded with more respect than affection. Even his enemies won't belittle his acute and finely-trained intelligence.

Even Churchill, a colleague during the war but now his political opponent, remarked recently:

"Cripps is the ablest brain in the administration. At least we have one first-class intelligence now brooding over our affairs."

Today Sir Stafford has good reason to "brood," for he watches over the country's finances as well as five other departments of state; and next to Prime Minister Attlee he is generally recognized as the most powerful man in the government.

Sir Stafford was the youngest son of a distinguished lawyer, later to become Lord Parmoor. Father and son shared the same religious convictions and in addition Stafford inherited radical views from his aunt, the late Beatrice Webb (wife of the late Sidney Webb, Lord Passfield, famed Fabian economist.)

After a brilliant school and university career in science, he turned to law and was called to the bar in 1913.

During the 1914-1918 war he was an ambulance driver on the western front and later he built a tremendous reputation as a lawyer and became Britain's highest-paid advocate. In 1924 he became a Socialist and was solicitaor-general in the 1930-31 Labor government. His expulsion from the Labor Party in 1939 for his support of a popular front movement cofirmed his opponents belief in his "suicidal honesty."

Services in World War II

When the second World War came he dropped his lucrative legal practice and offered his services unconditionally to the government—from an income of £30,000 ($120,000) a year he came down almost overnight to the £600 ($2,400) a year he earned as a member of parliament.

Sir Stafford, ascetic-featured, bespectacled, remote, fond of taking cold baths has been held by many to bear a striking similarity to Gandhi. Both are vegetarians, both are ascetics, both are lawyers by training and above all they are both deeply religious men, believing that the highest moral principles should govern all political activity.

Sir Stafford held the positions of Ambassador to Moscow, Lord Privy Seal, Minister of Aircraft Production and President of the Board of Trade during and after the war but he was not formally readmitted to the Labor Party until 1945.

Communist Violence in Italy Aims at Control of Nations

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst)

Indications are that the widespread Communist outbreaks in Italy and France represent concerted effort, and that they are aimed in both instances at gaining control of the governments by direct action and so establishing a grip on Western Europe.

This isn't to say that full-blown rebellion already has broken out, but we are witnessing preliminaries which are calculated to develop in due course the strength necessary to establish Red regimes. Indeed, the Italian Reds are bluntly talking civil war.

The consensus among observers is that these developments are under direction of the newly crated Communist Information Bureau— generally regarded as a rejuvenation of the Comintern, or general staff for world revolution—which has got into action from its headquarters in Belgrade. The powerful Communist parties of both France and Italy belong to the Cominform, and certainly wouldn't embark on wholesale, strong-arm operations without orders from the boss.

It looks as though the Bolshevists of Italy and France were adopting extreme measures as a matter of desperation. They had been employing their usual tactics of gaining control of trade Unions and then using these organizations as clubs to force concessions from the governments. In this way they expected ultimately to establish Communist regimes—and they did in fact make great strides in both countries.

However, the Marshall plan has upset the Bolshevist apple-cart Western Europe in general, and economically hard-pressed Italy and France in particular, have been reacting heavily against the Reds. Communism has lost much ground, and bids fair to lose a great deal more if and when the Marshall program becomes effective to save western Europe.

Then another great danger to Communism suddenly has arisen in France, and that is the sensational political comeback of Gen. Charles de Gaulle on an Anti-Communist platform which vows to drive Bolshevism out—lock, stock and barrel. This new threat comes out of the blue, and couldn't have been foreseen by the Communist High Command.

So we see the Cominform, as the Information Bureau is called, forced to adopt new and drastic measures to meet these emergencies —and to do so quickly.

Newspaper Aids School Girl to Get Dream Trip

Winnipeg, Nov. 15 — (CP) — A 16-year-old Winnipeg school girl will step aboard a Trans-Canada Airlines plane here today on a "dream flight" to London and a royal wedding reception.

The girl, attractive collegian Betty White, will carry in her pocket an invitation to attend a reception Tuesday in honor of the approaching wedding of Princess Elizabeth and Lieut. Philip Mountbatten.

The invitation arrived Monday, but it was not until Thursday that Betty discovered she could accept it. Until then, finances stood in the way. But the Winnipeg Free Press decided that a royal invitation to a local girl was something which could not be ignored. The newspaper made all the arrangements, and this morning Betty was on her way flying from Winnipeg to London.

It all started with a pair of nylons.

Last August, Betty read in a magazine that Princess Elizabeth was having difficulty obtaining the hosiery. So she sent her a pair. Last month a card of thanks was received from the Princess' lady-in-waiting.

Betty treasured the note and thought that was the end of the episode.

Cow in Dining Room Nightmare For Housewife

Forest, Ont., Nov. 15 (CP)— Not a pig in the parlor, but a cow in the dining room—nightmare of a tidy housewife became reality for the wife of Alderman John W. Gregg here.

Sequel to a wild chase of two blocks which involved all the elements of western melodrama black and white cow headed for freedom Thursday while being unloaded at a local stock yard, the cow plunged through the dining room window of the Gregg home and disappeared from sight in a clatter of glass and furniture.

Plants, radio, camp chairs and sewing basket were tossed in all directions as the cow skidded across the floor, ending up sitting in the Chesterfield with her head out the opposite window.

GENERAL STRIKE THREATENS ROME; STRIFE CONTINUES

Union Protests Arrest Street Car Conductor

By JOHN P. McKNIGHT

Rome, Nov. 15 (AP) — A general strike threatened Rome today as violence which racked scores of Italian towns and cities this week spread to the capital on wings of a concerted Leftist assault against the Christian Democratic Government of Premier de Gasperi.

Rome's Chamber of Labor discussed calling strike to protest the arrest of a street car conductor, identified by police as a Communist, in a Leftist-raid on an anti-Communist meeting of war veterans. The street car and omnibus workers union already had their members out in a flash protest strike.

The transport strike grew out of a meeting in the Piazza Esedra of the anti-Communist Association of war prisoners returned from Russia, which was raided by Leftists. The Leftists reported that Marshal Giovanni Messe, wartime commander of Italian troops on the Russian front, was scheduled to address the meeting, and he is assailed by the Left as a potential man on horseback for resurgent Fascism.

Roberto Lucifero, Liberal Deputy, declared in the constituent assembly that the subsequent transport strike was an example of Leftist attacks on the Centrist-Rightist de Gasperi government.

The strike paralyzed all municipally-operated transportation leaving only ancient Camionette privately - owned converted pickup trucks, to take care of crowds.

A short time before the Piazza Esedra clash, 200 to 300 men armed with sticks attacked police trying to arrest black market tobacco vendors in the Piazzo Vittorio. Police quelled an incipient riot.

The rioting has taken five or more lives in the past week and left countless Rightist newspaper and party officers in wreckage in scores of towns.

Dispatches from Perugia, 75 miles north of Rome, said Leftists, enraged when a bomb was tossed at Communist party headquarters, rallied in the town square and proceeded to devastate headquarters of the Rightist Common Man movement and shops of newspapers they accused of Fascist leanings.

Bullet Still Lodged In Neck of Girl

Toronto, Nov. 15 (CP) — With a revolver bullet still lodged in the base of her neck following an operation, 18-year-old Enide Neault of Mattawa, Ont., last night was expected to live but had not yet recovered from paralysis which set in Wednesday after she was accidentally shot.

"The bullet is not doing her any harm at all and we do not propose to operate again," said Dr. J. W. Cluff, who performed the operation.

The girl was brought to Toronto by plane for the operation. She was wounded at her parents' tourist resort home in Northern Ontario when a souvenir German pistol in the hands of a friend was accidentally discharged.

Toronto Mounties Justified in Use Of Whips When Attacked Says Board

Toronto, Nov. 15. (CP)— Mounted Police were entirely justified in using their whips on a mob of youths who attacked them in a goal-post raid after an intercollegiate football game at Varsity Stadium, the Toronto Board of Police Commissioners decided unanimously yesterday.

The decision was reached after evidence showed one officer was beaten and trampled and two others struck when the crowd fought to tumble the goal-posts after the game last Saturday, in which University of Toronto defeated Queen's University, 15-5.

The police were hired by Stadium officials from the city in their off-duty hours according to usual practice. Mayor Robert Saunders said he would ask the city solicitors for a legal opinion of the responsibility for injuries to police under such conditions.

"I want to know where we stand if one of our policemen got killed in such an accident," he said. "Are these constables, even though they are in uniform, civic employees while working for the university and being paid by the university."

Mounted policemen and constables on foot were ordered to guard the goal-posts by Chief Tom D'Arcy of the University police when an element in the crowd of some 16,000 mostly college students appeared likely to attack the posts the police commission was told.

One constable said he was rushed by a number of persons and knocked to the ground where a man jumped on his back. He said some of the attackers "had been drinking and they were cursing and swearing at me." By this time, he noticed that the posts were already down and mounted police came to his assistance.

Two mounted officers said they had used their whips to get to the fallen officer after first ordering the crowd to make way. They said the gangs struck them and attempted to pull them from their horses. The animals were also struck about the neck and wethers and the reins yanked against their mouths.

Casualty Toll In Palestine Violence Rises

16 Dead and 36 Wounded During Past Three Days

Jerusalem, Nov. 15 (AP) —The casualty toll resulting from three days of bloody gunplay in the Holy Land mounted today to 16 dead and 36 wounded.

A 20-year-old Jew was reported slain last night when unidentified persons shot up a bus in Haifa. Emanuel Ben-Gurion nephew of David Ben-Gurion, head of the Jewish agency executive, was said to have been wounded.

A Jewish witness said he believed the shots came from a military truck. Police informants said they were fired from a taxicab or private car.

That incident boosted to six the number of Jews killed and to three in number wounded since the most recent outburst of violence erupted in Palestine Wednesday.

Earlier in the day two British soldiers were killed in Tel Aviv and two British policemen were slain in Jerusalem. Police, said they thought the gunmen were members of the Stern Gang, an extremist Jewish underground group engaging in reprisals for a recent military and police raid on what was described as a Stern Gang arsenal and training centre north of Tel Aviv Nov. 12. Five Jews were killed and four taken prisoner in that raid.

The British casualty list for the three days stood at 10 killed and 33 wounded.

Mercy Flight May be Completed This Weekend

Winnipeg, Nov. 15 (CP)—Weather conditions permitting, Canon John H. Turner may be resting quietly on a hospital cot here within 24 hours, 1,700 miles from the lonely Arctic mission at Moffet Inlet where early in September he was wounded in the head when a rifle he was carrying accidentally discharged.

FO. Bob Race, pilot of RCAF Dakota aircraft commissioned to evacuate the missionary, his family of three and four army personnel from the post 400 miles within the Arctic Circle, said yesterday that he did not propose to allow the long Arctic night to interfere with rescue plans.

A week ago the Dakota flew from Rivers, Man., to Churchill on the southwestern rim of Hudson Bay on the first lap of the evacuation flight. At Churchill adverse weather conditions had grounded the aircraft for several days, but Thursday it was given clearance to Coral Harbor.

At Coral Harbor it was again grounded, but the pilot's message yesterday indicated that as soon as the weather clears sufficiently to allow air travel, the "Snowbird" will wing its way across the snow-covered Arctic wastes to Moffet Inlet.

If the makeshift landing strip there will permit the aircraft to land with wheel, immediate evacuation will take place.

Pope May Hold Consistory In Near Future

Vatican City, Nov. 15 (Reuters) —The belief is growing in authoritative circles here, following the death Oct. 24 of Carlo Cardinal Salotti, prefect of the Sacred Congregation of Rites, that Pope Pius will summon a consistory in the near future.

It is even strongly rumored that the consistory will be held before Christmas instead of the date previously mentioned — February, 1948. The feast of the Immaculate Conception, Dec. 8, is regarded as a likely date.

The death of Cardinal Salotti reduces the number of the Sacred College of Cardinals to 62 —23 Italians and 39 from the rest of the world. James Cardinal McGuigan, Archbishop of Toronto, is Canada's only Cardinal.

The full strength of the Sacred College is 70. While the College rarely has its full complement, it is believed in well-informed quarters that the Pope may decide shortly to fill all eight vacancies.

Opinion as to who the new Cardinals may be is divided. Some believe that the Pope will elevate certain foreign Archbishops.

Others stress that of the 62 existing Cardinals only 18 actually reside in Rome compared with more than 30 in the years before the war.

UK Will Not Take Over Any Financial Surplus in Palestine

London, Nov. 15 (AP)—The Foreign Office denied today that Britain plans to take over any financial surplus in Palestine before leaving, to pay the cost of evacuation and combatting unauthorized Jewish immigration.

"Not only is there no such plan, but there is no such intention," a Foreign Office spokesman told reporters. A report of such plans, credited to the New York Herald Tribune, had been published in London newspapers.

The spokesman declared there would be "very little" left in the Palestine account after the British withdrawal, chiefly because of the amounts which will have to be paid out in pensions to civil servants, "mostly Jews and Arabs."

"When all the expenses are met", he declared, "there is far more likely to be a deficit than a surplus left."

British operations in Palestine "never have been a profitable concern; to the contrary it had always been a very great drain."

Queen Mary H.S. Club Presents Fine Program

On Thursday evening, the Queen Mary Home and School Association held "Open House." The parents, guardians and friends turned out in large numbers to visit the classrooms, inspect the children's work and discuss their child's progress with the teachers.

During a short business meeting the treasurer, Mr. Pringle, reported that $25 had been donated to the "Save the Children Fund."

The program which followed was of very high calibre and was arranged by Mrs. Follwell, who acted as chairman for the evening.

Three lovely songs, "Autumn Lament", "Cradle Song" and "Night Song" were sung by the pupils of Grade 8 under the very capable direction of Miss Chapman and were enjoyed to the full by those present.

Mrs. Follwell introduced Mr. Len Fozard, Belleville's master of the legerdemain, who entertained and amused with his very clever feats of magic. Mr. Alex Nathan introduced the guest speaker, Dr. Bert Howard, of Albert College, who spoke on "Psychology Versus the Hair Brush." He expressed his subject in somewhat light vein, but got across to his listeners the seriousness of child training in the home.

He pointed out that a child is a nebulous mass of latent potentialities, the make up consisting of:

A—Personality — the tangible something that shows through the surface.

B—Character— that which is formed by contacts with others and environment.

C—Discipline—the child is more concerned about the "why" he is being punished rather than the "how."

In summing up Dr. Howard believed that all facts should be very clear to the parents before meting out punishment and that a child should never be punished while one is in a state of emotional upset. Also that a child should be answered sensibly and rationally.

Appreciation was voiced by Mr. Hunter to Mr. Fozard and Dr. Howard for a very entertaining and educational evening.

The junior attendance banner was won by Miss Houston's class while Miss Chapman's class won the banner for the senior grades.

Delicious refreshments were served and enjoyed by all.

Suspended Sentence For Theft of Blanket

Pleading guilty to the theft of a blanket which had been taken from a parked car on Station Street, Gordon Hems, 39, and Harold Baird, both of Toronto, were given suspended sentence for one year when they appeared in city police court Friday before Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

In addition to the theft charge, Hems pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal possession of liquor, while Baird pleaded guilty to a theft charge.

Both men were apprehended sleeping in a box car on the Canadian National Railways siding near Station Street and had the blanket in their possession at the time of their arrest. Owner of the blanket reported later that his car had been broken into and the blanket taken.

The two accused stated they had been on their way to Madoc to secure work on the highway there. Costs of $5.50 each were assessed against the pair.

Stranded Flier Walks into Camp

Sioux Lookout, Ont., Nov. 15 — (CP) — Four days of roughing it in Northern Ontario's timber-studded mining country ended last night for Central Northern Airways' pilot Ted Quirk when he walked into the Uchi mining camp approximately 75 miles north of here.

His Norseman aircraft, which developed engine trouble during a cartage flight Tuesday from Sioux Lookout to the Jason mine at Casummit Lake near Uchi, was left 20 miles away.

Fears concerning the the former Winnipegger's safety were expressed late Tuesday when he failed to arrive at Casummit after leaving Sioux Lookout. The flight normally takes about 40 minutes.

Storms were sweeping the district at the time and it was believed that the weather had forced the pilot down in some isolated section.

Other aircraft flying in the area maintained a vigilant eye for the Norseman — without success, but an organized search was hampered by low ceilings and swirling snow storms.

Engine trouble had forced Quirk's aircraft down before Casummit Lake was sighted. Atmospheric conditions prevented radio communication with his base. At first he stayed by his plane, loaded with 600 pounds of food and other equipment for the Jason mine. Then, his bearings set, he trudged through the rough lake-strewn country to Uchi, where he arrived none the worse for his experience.

Education Boards Plan To Spend $7,000,000 on New Schools, Addition

(By The Canadian Press)

Ontario Boards of Education have drawn up plans to invest more than $7,000,000 in new schools and additions to old ones to accommodate the province's steadily - increasing youngster population.

The shortage of school space—generally unnoticed in the clamor over the housing shortage—really began to make itself felt before the war, but plans drawn up then had to be shelved.

Now they are emerging again at Board of Education meetings and from architects' offices. Many centres have been asked to vote the necessary money by-laws to finance them and a survey showed today that nearly all larger communities have new schools in mind.

Owen Sound's Board of Education tried a unique method of easing its school crowding by buying a surplus air force hut and putting it up as a temporary, four-room, elementary school at a cost of $30,000. The city plans to add a new cafeteria to its collegiate by the same method and a further $200,000 will add four classrooms and an auditorium to another school, to be ready by the new year.

To Vote on Addition

Sault Ste. Marie, faced with providing accomodation for a rapidly-growing school population, will vote Dec. 8 to supply $262,000 to enlarge King George school. In the last two years the city has built two 10-room schools at a cost of $630,000.

At Cornwall, a 12-room separate school is being built at a cost of $162,000 and two more new schools are under construction.

Peterborough is adding a total of 12 classrooms and an assembly hall to two public schools for an estimated cost of $310,000.

Brantford faces the necessity of building a new building to cost about $22,000 for each classroom, and St. Catharines is planning to spend $550,000 to add a 10-room wing to Connaught public school and an addition to the collegiate, originally planned to accomodate 1,000 but with a present enrollment of 1,800.

Now under construction at Kitchener is a $890,000 addition to the Kitchener-Waterloo collegiate, including 22 classrooms, 10 shops, gymnasium, cafeteria and an enlarged auditorium.

School Being Built

Galt has a $225,000 public school under consideration, to have eight classrooms, kindergarten and auditorium. Guelph Board of Education is planning to build an eight-room school, estimated to cost $350,000, while the separate school board is also planning a new structure.

At Orillia, sevent municipalities: Orillia town and township, Oro, Rama, Medonte, Coldwater and Matchedash, will vote on the question of remodelling and enlarging Orillia Collegiate Institute at a cost of $610,000. Under the new high school area plan, the provincial government would pay 75 per cent of the cost, the rest to be shared by the municipalities.

Brockville and North Bay have new school plans under consideration, while Chatham is planning two five-room schools, one at each end of the city, at a total cost of $250,000.

St. Thomas is considering an eight-room school to cost $225,000 while Niagara Falls is planning an addition to the collegiate and technical school to cost an estimated $350,000.

SPEAKER AT 132ND ANNIVERSARY

When the Bridge Street United Church celebrates the 132nd anniversary of the founding of the congregation by the Methodist pioneers of this community on Sunday, they will hold special anniversary morning and evening services.

The guest preacher will be the Rev. George W. Goth, B.A., B.D., of Montreal. Special music will be rendered by the choir under the direction of Miss Leona K. Riggs, with Alec S. Gordon at the organ. At the morning service Mr. John W. Deacon will be guest soloist and will sing, "If, with all your heart, . . . " from the "Elijah" by Mendelssohn. A women's chorus will be featured in the evening service.

Humid Season Hits U.S. Doll Output

New York. (AP)—There will be fewer dolls under the Christmas tree this holiday season in the United States than in 1946.

But little girls and their brothers, too, will have a greater variety of playthings than at any time since the war began.

Sleds, and bicycles, mechanical toys, doll houses and furniture, and all kinds of construction sets will be more plentiful than a year ago.

Toy makers said there would have been even more toys this year if retailers hadn't held off their Christmas shopping for toy departments. Normally, they said, stores do their buying in the Spring. This year they were apprehensive about the business outlook and held down, so producers turned out fewer goods.

The weather, though, was to blame for a 15-per-cent decline in doll production this year. It is practically impossible to make dolls when it is hot and humid, so output was lost during the hot spells in July, August and most of September.

Material shortages have hampered output of steel and rubber toys too, and while they will be more plentiful than a year ago, there still will not be enough to meet demand.

As to prices, a given toy will cost more than in 1946, but the total family toy bill may be less because more moderate-priced playthings are available.

Regina is Proud Of Women Drivers

Regina. (CP)—The lordly male who continually brags of his prowess behind the wheel had better pull in his horns, for the chances are the little woman is a far more careful driver than her speeding spouse.

Regina police court records for the first nine months of this year show that of 391 motorists arrested for speeding only one was a woman, and of the 1,500 summonses issued for various offences during that period women received only 19.

Biggest offence for women was over-parking —six violations— followed by sneaking through a red light—five violations. Other offences included obstructing traffic, failure to signal on turning, driving without a licence and turning a car in the middle of the block.

Chief Magistrate W. B. Scott admitted that possibly a pair of sparkling blue eyes might have some effect on an otherwise hard-boiled traffic cop, but added that generally speaking women didn't enjoy speeding as much as men and were more law-abiding.

Chief Constable Duncan McDougall declined to comment.

Magistrate Scott said that women often appeared for their husbands in police court on traffic charges—and usually were very meek and mild.

"But I know that under different circumstances," he said, "they would raise the roof".

Approximately one-third of the women charged this year were unmarried, and only one of them was a second offender.

New Immigrants

Over 32,000 persons came to Canada to settle in the six months ending September 30th this year but this figure was 14,226 below that for the same period in 1946. Among the newcomers this year were more displaced persons from Europe than last year.

There is a marked decrease in the number of persons arriving from the British Isles. Last year there were in the six-month period 34,578 British immigrants whereas this year in the six-month period there were 18,266.

Reduction in the number of Britons arriving as immigrants may be partly explained by the fact that the dependents of Canadian servicemen who had served overseas had by last year mostly found their way to Canada.

Among newcomers to Canada people of the British Isles are always welcomed as they are more familiar with the ways of life of the Canadian people and with Canadian institutions than persons coming from other parts of Europe.

American residents coming to Canada were fewer in the six months period mentioned than last year, 5,375 compared with 6,667 last year.

New British Steel Works

A new steel works, the largest and most modern in Britain, is being built at Port Talbot in Wales at a cost of $120,000,000. The site covers 600 acres on which work was begun last April. To make way for the new structure, sand dunes, marsh, lakes and pastures have been dried, drained, levelled or filled in with deep layers of foundation material. Sixty coke ovens and part of an old steel works have been demolished.

This new unit is the keystone of a plan to modernize Welsh industry. Output from its huge blast furnaces will reach 1,000 tons of iron a day. A feature of the plan is a new hot strip mill for wide sheets. These will be finished in a cold reduction mill which will be set up either side by side with the hot mill or forty miles down the coast at Newport.

Sixty miles of railroad track will be laid within the works area.

Completion of the project will take two and a half years. The site was formerly the haunt of wild geese and ducks and apart from a little rough farming, it was mainly used as an outdoor set for films. 2,600 men with bulldozers and other equipment are at work clearing and levelling for the new plant.

The object of the steel works will help to provide steel for Britain's industry. Already the output of steel in Britain is increasing steadily. Output in September reached the annual rate of 13,841,000 tons. Pig iron production has touched the figure of 7,885,000 tons a year.

Saving Unnecessary Waste

Conservation of power in the winter time in private homes can amount to a considerable total of power and saving in accounts for lighting and power. Electricity is so cheap and convenient that there is danger of leaving on unnecessary lights when all the time the call is for the use of less power so as to help the power shortage which has developed, especially as regards expansion in industry.

Though the first week of restrictions on the use of lighting on the outside is not yet ended, there are evidences that many persons are cutting down very carefully in the use of the electric energy with the double purpose of helping to eke out the saving of power for industry and of reducing their customary accounts.

Every consumer knows the tendency which has naturally developed since the use of power became general. The tendency has been to add more and more to the lights and so use more power at many times when the use of so many is unnecessary.

Persons with electric appliances can save power if they use discretion.

If everyone makes some effort to reduce the use of power when it is not needed in the home, there cannot but be a big reduction in the amount of energy used. United action will be a great aid to the Ontario Hydro Commission and the municipal commissions and help pile up a great deal of power for which the Hydro has use and which so many have been wasting.

Everything by starts and nothing long.—Dryden.

Creator of Adventure Stories

The names of Baroness Orczy and of the title "The Scarlet Pimpernel" are familiar to many millions of readers and patrons of the drama and movie theatre. Baroness Orczy was the creator of a great series of adventure stories which never failed to thrill. Her stories possessed attraction which made her works eagerly sought after and she thereby added to the pleasure of millions through the gift she possessed in depicting political adventure and romance.

Born in Hungary she came of a people and country to which romance is native.

To possess the artistry and knowledge to make one's writings so interesting as those of a best seller writer like Baroness Orczy is one of the gifts with which some are endowed. They make life more interesting in this modern age when the attraction of a good novel with a gripping plot and fine characterization gives much enjoyment.

Modern fiction, like the theatre and the motion pictures, are among the essentials of modern civilization for the power to appeal to the human emotions is one of the necessities of life in the present age as it was in ages past.

Snow Dust Time

November is the brown month. There is brownness on the meadows, swamps and uplands. Brittle brown leaves cling to the scrub oaks on pasture hillsides and brown windrows of leaves are banked against walls, rail fences and in ravines at the edge of sidehill orchards. Furrows of fall plowing are moist brown ribbons carved in precise winding rows along the contours.

Each day the sun circles lower in the sky and each day time drops farther downhill. Among northern hills and valleys countrymen lift their eyes each morning to the granite ledges that cap evergreen mountain slopes. This is snow dust time. Before Squaw Winter sends its first falls of snow the stratus and nimbus clouds lightly brush the hilltops with snow dust. At day's beginning a man pauses to look across the valley to the mountains.

Snow dust paints the crags and cliffs with whiteness. If the day is bright the sun's rays light jagged peaks of gleaming white against a blue sky. If the day is cloudy the gray-white peaks remind one of the irregular dull-silver teeth of a giant crossant saw. Sometimes the Frost King shakes his brush over the countryside after he has whitened the heights, and the frost-bleached fields look as if they had been heavily sprinkled with salt. As the eleventh month works along to the dates when one may expect a succession of black freezes, snow dust in the morning is a reminder that Nature is posting its books. Chicadees and nuthatches come around the farmstead. A few melancholy crows stalk slowly over the corn stubble. Bluejays have ceased their ranting and woodchucks have begun their long sleep beneath stone walls. Day by day the red line in the thermometer drops lower. Winter marshals its legions. For an interlude before the major assault there is snow dust on the mountains.—New York Times.

Dutch Immigrants

The Maritime Provinces are establishing a joint immigration bureau for the purpose of encouraging immigration from The Netherlands. They expect 500 within the next year.

This is showing an initiative which the Maritimes will never regret. The Dutch have been among the most thrifty and prosperous of immigrants to this continent, right from the early days of settlement. They have played an important role in its development.

There is considerable spare land in the Maritimes, especially in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, some of it in the form of abandoned farms. The Dutch will make a go of it, and contribute to the welfare of the Atlantic provinces. They are among the best of all possible immigrants, says Windsor Star.

Admiration is the foundation of all philosophy; investigation the progress: and ignorance the end.—Montaigne.

WORK

Work appears to have no friend,
Yet it gives us all we spend:
Warmth against the winter's cold;
Ease and comforts when we're old;
All the various wanted things,
Motor cars and diamond rings;
Flowers to grace a loved one's bier;
Freedom from both want and fear;
Food and raiment; books to read;
Vine and tree and garden seed;
Pride and honor; childhood's toye;
Schools to teach our girls and boys,
And it puzzles me to know
Why so many hate it so.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What is golden ointment?

"Golden ointment" is the name given to any kind of eye salve. It was suggested by an ancient belief that rubbing the eyes with a gold ring would cure them of various disorders. "Ointment," now signifying an external remedy consisting of a fatty substance in which medicine has been incorporated, is derived through Old French from Latin "unguo, smear. "Unction" and "anoint" are indirectly from the same source.

How many is a myriad?

"Myriad" is from Greek "murioi" and literally means "ten thousand." Even in ancient times "murioi" had come to signify countless. As ordinarily used 'myriad" means a great but indefinite number.

What are sea legs?

When a person is able to walk on the deck of a ship and to stand the motion of the vessel without getting seasick he is said to have his "sea legs," a phrase borrowed from the cant of seamen. Many people, even frequent sailors, have difficulty in keeping their balance when starting out to sea and require a day or two to get their sea legs, that is, become able again to adjust themselves to the motions of the vessel in walking. The phrase is sometimes applied humorously to intoxicated persons.

Why are the records of a meeting called the minutes?

The official record of the proceedings at the meeting of an organized body was originally called the "minutes" because it was first taken down in "minute" or small writing later to be transcribed in a larger and more careful hand. In the 16th century "minute" was used as a verb in the sense of making record or note of. As early as 1502 the noun "minute" signified a note or memorandum for the direction of an agent or servant.

"Minute" is derived from Latin "minutus," small, little or tiny. Originally "minute" was pronounced the same when it meant small or tiny and when it meant a measure of time or space, as one-sixtieth of an hour. The Latin feminine form of "minutus" is "minutia." The plural. "minutiae (pronounced 'mi-NU-shi-ee in English) is still used in the sense of little things or petty details.

HARMLESS REMEDIES FOR RHEUMATIZ

To the best of my knowledge no one has found the cause of chronic rheumatiz, chronic arthritis, rheumatoid arthritis, progressive joint disability, whatever you prefer to call it.

My reading, my serious reading covers only the original literature in English, with abstracts of world contributions translated into English. But I have to be in top condition, in fine fettle, to read medical books and journals on rheumatiz, because it is all so dready and depressing that one lays it down after an hour or two with an unhappy sense of frustration — and you know what the psychologists or psychiatrists say about frustration. Why there's no telling what a frustrated individual may not do in such a mood.

Today's suggestion with the best wishes from Doc Brady to all of you sufferers from the rheumatiz is calcium and vitamin D. Specifically I recommend that you supplement your diet with two capsules three times a day, each capsule containing 4 1-2 grains of dicalcium phosphate, 3 grains of cilcium gluconate and 375 grains of vitamin D. This I believe, may give much relief in many cases of one or another form of chronic joint disability, and I am confident that it can do no harm in any case. If you decide to follow this suggestion please do not regard it as medicine. It is not medicine, but essential food or food accessories. So if you "try" it at all you can hardly expect to experience any benefit in less than two months, and if you do feel any particular improvement in that time it would be wise to continue taking it until you can be sure correction of your faulty diet and your inadequate exposure brings your daily ration of calcium and vitamin D up to optimum.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Lemon

Have taken the juice of a lemon in a glass of water on rising each morning the past year. Would you advise whether this is beneficial and whether one should continue it right along? (K.R.A.)

Answer — It is harmless, I believe, if you like it. Recently, however, some physicians have reported apparent damage to the tooth structure by lemon or lemon juice in that way.

Degeneration

You said lack of one or more wisdom teeth is a sign of degeneration, involution, slow death that threatens our existence. How do you reconcile this statement with the facts of evolution? Couldn't the failure of so many persons to cut wisdom teeth be a kind of vestigial. (G.P.)

Answer — Facts? The whole thing is theory, of course. That from one to all four "wisdom teeth" (third molars) are missing from the mouth of 50 per cent of Americans over 25 years of age is a fact which, to my mind suggests that we Americans are on the toboggan as a race, and we are being shoved along on the decline by (a) the namby-pamby refined diet most of us follow and (b) the wishy-washy attitude of physicians and dentists and health authorities generally in regard to conservation of the teeth. Send twenty-five cents and stamped self-addressed envelope for booklet Save Your Teeth.

Educational Notes

(Contributed by Belleville Teachers' Council.)

"THE WATERTOWN TRIP"

Replacing a Teachers' Convention this year the Belleville Public School staff had the privilege of observing in the classrooms, and discussing educational matters with the teachers of Watertown, New York

The Belleville teachers were guests at a dinner served from the cafeteria of the North Junior High School. They were welcomed by the Supervisor of Schools, the Principals of the city schools and the staff of North Junior High.

The Junior High School consists of Grade 7, 8, and 9. Their hours are from 9 30 a.m. to 2 36 p m. with a 25 minute lunch period Transportation difficulties necessitate these hours.

Here they have a school police system. All infringements of school discipline and school rules are referred to a Students' Court.

The students contribute current events to a national weekly newspaper.

The following points of outstanding interest were noted in the Watertown Elementary Schools.

Classes are small; a maximum of twenty-five pupils per classroom appeared to be the aim.

Principals do not teach, but organize and supervise all phases of the curriculum.

Most schools are well equipped with large auditorium, a music room, art room, and library.

The library is used by pupils of Grades IV, V, and VI. It has chairs and tables suitable in size for the children of these grades.

Physical training is part of the curriculum. Instead of recess there is a half hour recreation period in the gymnasium.

Dismissal is at 3.45 p m. The excursion method is used frequently in teaching social studies and Natural Science. For example a near-by dairy farm had been visited and the process of pasteurizing milk had been observed. A grade one class had recently visited a farm. Parents used their cars to transport the children.

Love and respect for country and flag and loyalty to democracy are stressed.

In many respects their course of studies is similar to ours and several junior grade teachers from Belleville reported practically the same progress in reading. Print Script is being used too, in the junior grades.

The friendly hospitality and cordial good-will offered by the Watertown teachers made the day one of lasting memory from the viewpoint of good neighborliness as well as good education.

A CODE OF BEHAVIOR

By a majority vote of some 100,000 pupils, New York City's junior high schools adopted the following code of behavior:

"(1) I will never knowingly, by word or deed, injure anyone's person, feelings, or property in any manner.

"(2) I will always respect the religious beliefs of others as I will respect my own.

"(3) I will show courtesy to other people at all times, particularly to my elders.

"(4) I will abide by the laws and regulations of my school and community.

"(5) I will be honest with myself and others and I will practise cleanliness of mind and body at all times."

Plays Guitar To Elephants

Johannesburg, (CP)—Twenty-four-year-old Mrs. Marie Abercrombie, wife of Hugh Abercrombie, of Parsons Farm, Olifants River, on the edge of the Kruger National Park, has no fear of wild elephants—she plays her guitar to them.

Elephants come and go at will on the farm. Five of them, a bull, two cows and two little ones, have made it their home.

Mrs. Abercrombie suggests that a school for elephants should be started in the Kruger National Park similar to the one the Belgians have in the Congo. Elephants, instead of causing complaints, could be used on the roads and in many other ways in the game reserve to interest visitors.

V.O.N. NEWS

The young mother bringing her baby home from hospital is often beset by many conflicting emotions. This precious bundle of humanity is such a new experience — and often a frightening one. Every fleeting expression on the baby's face is watched anxiously by the mother, for fear of some lurking disaster.

Imagine what it means to this mother to be able to call upon the V. O. N. to help her with the care of the baby. The nurse will go in this first morning and bath the baby, explaining every step of the procedure. She also will, if the baby is on a formula ordered by the doctor, explain how to make this or demonstrate it, if necessary.

The necessity of strict cleanliness regarding the handling of the baby's food and the care of the bottles and utensils which are used, are explained simply.

The discussion of baby's daily routine and the establishment of good health habits in these early days is an important part of the nurse's visits.

And you see the mother is given the advantage of good authoritative advice divorced from the prejudices and superstitions which have been built up over the years concerning the care of babies.

The V. O. N. is at your service at such a time, for the demonstration bath there is a small fee, but the weekly visits which follow for the purpose of health instruction are free to all. These visits are made until the babe is six weeks old.

France Still Short of Shoe Leather

By ODETTE LAGUERRE

Paris, (Reuters)— While the great Paris fashion houses are showing smartly tailored coats and suits cut on classic lines in soft tweeds and other wool materials, French women—and men as well—have been told that they will again be able to buy only one pair of new leather shoes in the next 12 months.

What is more, they will be entitled to have their old shoes re-soled only twice in the next year.

Production of shoes in 1948 is not expected to be much higher than either this year or last—and the present rate of production is around 2,000,000 pairs a month.

People of France today receive a coupon to buy their yearly pair of shoes in the month in which their birthday falls. Failing the use of forged identity papers, it is now scarcely possible to obtain an extra pair of leather shoes unless one is prepared to pay 7,000 or 8,000 francs (about $60 to $80) to have them made to measure at a shoemaker's in one of the lesser known streets of Paris, or in a select—and even more expensive —luxury shoe shop.

The French now complain not so much about the scarcity of shoes as about the quality of the leather which suffers from lack of grease and excessive use of chemical products in the tanning operation.

Thinner Leather

More grumbling is to be expected when they discover that the leather used for re-soling their shoes is twice as thin as it was last year—a new restriction necessitated by the fact that the amount of leather allocated to shoemakers for their repairs is being reduced. Although this amount was increased from 3,327 tons in 1945 to 8,750 tons in 1946, it dropped again to 7,000 tons this year and experts predict a further cut in 1948.

Some compensation for the shortage of all-leather shoes came at the beginning of the summer when rubber-soled shoes—usually with suede tops— were put on the market coupon-free. Although fairly expensive, ranging from 1,000 to 3,000 francs, these articles rapidly became popular.

Slippers, on the other hand, are becoming increasingly abundant. The shops are filled to overflowing with all sorts of felt, satin, fur-lined or straw slippers. In June this year, 4,757,443 pairs of slippers were put on sale—as against a monthly average production this year has been 3,000,000 pairs.

Slippers are sold without coupons in France—so are sandals, canvas shoes, overshoes, and all shoes with wooden soles.

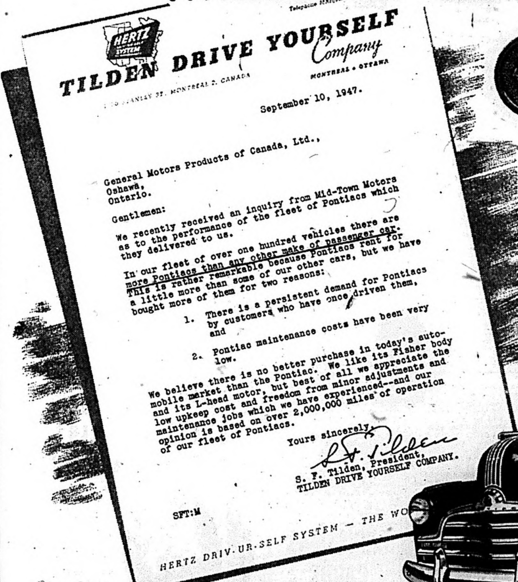
"..no better purchase ...than the Pontiac!"



TILDEN DRIVE YOURSELF Company

MONTREAL • OTTAWA

September 10, 1947.

General Motors Products of Canada, Ltd.,
Oshawa,
Ontario.

Gentlemen:

We recently received an inquiry from Mid-Town Motors as to the performance of the fleet of Pontiacs which they delivered to us.

In our fleet of over one hundred vehicles there are more Pontiacs than any other make of passenger car. This is rather remarkable because Pontiacs rent for a little more than some of our other cars, but we have bought more of them for two reasons:

1. There is a persistent demand for Pontiacs by customers who have once driven them, and

2. Pontiac maintenance costs have been very low.

We believe there is no better purchase in today's automobile market than the Pontiac. We like its Fisher body and its L-head motor, but best of all we appreciate the low upkeep cost and freedom from minor adjustments and maintenance jobs which we have experienced--and our opinion is based on over 2,000,000 miles of operation of our fleet of Pontiacs.

Yours sincerely,
S. F. Tilden

Church Rooms Present Attractive Appearance at Tabernacle W.A. Tea

Yesterday's bright sunshine lured a large number of ladies from all sections of the city out-of-doors to attend the Autumn afternoon tea and sale, sponsored by the members of the Tabernacle United W.A., in the school room of the church. Mrs. F. R. Harback and Mrs. G. Goraline, president of the association, received the guests and pointed the way to the tea room where Mrs. W. P. Cornell and Mrs. L. E. Grey were the hostesses.

Outside brightness was reflected in the cheerful inside decorations, effective in attractive baskets of "mums" in unusual tones, of golden yellow and bronze, against the greenery of potted ferns. The tea room was segregated by a surrounding "fence" of colorful "ropes" to match the ornamental festoons and streamers in the unique combination of autumn tones in golden yellow and rusty brown.

The table was very attractive with its cover of handmade lace; a central silver basket holding golden and bronze "mums" and triple silver candelabra holding tall yellow tapers, whose glow was reflected in the sheen of the twin silver services. Pouring the beverage were Mrs. G. French, Mrs. Geo. Ashley, Mrs. G. F. Lent and Mrs. M. P. Duff; while Mesdames George Winter, A. L. Ackerman, Wm. Judge, F. Farnell, G. Brickman, M.P. Buck, H. Langridge, Jas. Brennan, Donald Rowe, Arthur Miller, R. L. Johnston, L. N. Smith, E. Jerome and Miss Ethel Horton assisted in serving the guests.

Plates and tea pots were replenished by Mrs. F. Isard, Mrs. H. Brody, and Mrs. J.S. Wardner and the kitchen committee included Mrs. Slievert, Mrs. Wheeler, Mrs. Bruce Walker and Mrs. W.H. Weese.

The ladies parlor was the setting for the booths of the bazaar which was a continuous hive of industry. Mrs. A. E. Cornish convened the apron and gift booth, decorated in traditional Christmas colors, where aprons in all sizes, styles and shades, as well as several other useful household articles were offered for sale. Salesladies at this table were Mrs. Wm. Baird, Mrs. L. Robinson and Mrs. H. Brown.

As usual the home-baking table was the mecca for all home makers, with its attractive array of delicious confections, including cakes, cookies, muffins and buns; pies, tarts and dainties, all arranged to tempt the taste of every possible purchaser. Mrs. Percy Kerr convened this booth and was assisted by Mesdames W. Huffman, N. Robb and S. Lathangue.

Mrs. Gordon Miller and Mrs. A. H. Fisher were treasurers for the afternoon, the proceeds of which proved to be very gratifying to the ladies sponsoring this annual Autumn project.

Soroptimists Hear Outline of Fine Work Done in Montreal by Sister Club

Margaret E. Kerr of Montreal, editor of The Canadian Nurse, who is in the city to address the Registered Nurses Association of District No. 6 was the guest of honor at a reception and dinner of the Soroptimist Club last evening at the Lanthorn. Other guests present included Vera Dawson and Gertrude Maywood of the Soroptimist Club of Toronto, and Miss Margaret Crozier of the staff of CJBQ.

The tables were beautifully decorated with tall gold and blue tapers, and bowls of white, gold and blue mums. It was really a very sumptuous repast, coffee was served in the reception room where the program was presented.

Miss Muriel Clarke, of Albert College was the guest soloist and sang two numbers "My Johann" and "The Laughing Song" with Miss Leona Riggs as accompanist.

President Georgia Smith introduced Margaret Kerr, who is president of the Montreal Soroptimist Club. Miss Kerr chose as the theme of her talk "Unto whom much is given." She told of the Montreal club composed of 22 members, and of the welfare work that they had been able to do. The first aspect of any club is work. In most organizations there a few active workers, a few who will work if given something special to do, and a few drones, but she said that in her journeys from the Atlantic to the Pacific in meeting with Soroptimists wherever she has been, there are no drones or deadwood. Each member realizes that there is a piece of work to be done and each accepts her share.

Compliments Local Club

She complimented the Belleville Club on their effort of sending parcels of food and clothing to Europe, as well as the gifts already sent to the Sister Club in Bath England. Interesting methods of earning talent money were explained, they included mending stockings, washing dishes, record concerts, radio talks etc.

The Montreal Club is fortunate in having a man who is a wealthy philanthropist who wants to be sure that he is giving his money where it will do the most good. He has given them $100 per month for a year. Every three months he receives a statement of how it is spent, and at the end of the first year was so pleased, that he intends to continue the gift indefinitely. Many parcels of food have been forwarded regularly to Britain.

Belleville Philanthropists Please Note

The work with the older women in Montreal is much appreciated. An old Italian lady on her 75th birthday wanted above all else a violin, and they were able to get one for her. They try to help the cases that are not regular charity cases, as they are quite well looked after by the regular welfare agencies.

The abnormal situation in the world today is the result of the loss of faith, and its steadying influence, resulting in threatened breaks between governments and a general state of fear. All can do their share to restore faith in ourselves and humanity as a whole. Working together in groups is one means of accomplishing this end. Much of this work has been left to the men's service clubs, but it is time that the women did their share towards instilling a new courage and faith in their fellow man.

Need to Take Lead

The pledge to promote, uphold and defend these ideals, if carried out in the whole of life both individual and corporate would definitely help. "Unto whom much is given, of him much is required." "We have the advantages of freedom," said the speaker, "and we need to play a prominent part in clearing trails, in taking part in any community betterment program. Each club is only as strong as its individual members, whatever we want to do, we can do, if we want to badly enough."

Appreciation for the fine talk was expressed to Miss Kerr by Rachel Fox. Vera Dawson expressed the thanks of the Toronto Club, and gave a brief resume of their activities. Helen Keeler moved a vote of thanks to the guest soloist and to Miss Riggs who was accompanist for a very enjoyable sing-song of all the old favorites. After the formal closing, Miss Kerr, who is exceptionally versatile sang "My House of Dreams."

Young Speakers Display Outstanding Talent in Public-Speaking Contest

A large and intensely interested audience, composed of parents, teachers, school trustees and other friends of the 12 students entered as contestants in the public speaking contest, (sponsored by the South Hastings Educational Association) gathered in the auditorium of Queen Alexandra School last evening. Mr. Jas. A. Warren, of Frankford, president of S.H.E.A., was chairman for the evening, and expressed appreciation to all who had helped in the former semifinal contests in Frankford, Sidney, Thurlow and Tyendinaga townships. He said that of original fifty speakers, thirty-eight had been eliminated, leaving twelve to be heard in the present contest.

A great amount of information was embodied in each speech, and all were delivered with poise, courage and modesty, but in full clear tones, unhurried and with fine pronunciation and enunciation.

The history of submarine development since 1864 was traced by Robert Bleecker; "Thoughts of a Farmer Boy," as told by Alex Embury, disclosed the A.B.C. of intelligent farmers, whose lives are founded on action, but have developed to include the seven freedoms. "Chemurgy" explained by Jimmy Forestell, is the industrial development of farm by-products including penicillin; June Hamilton had all the artistry of a real elocutionist as she told the beautiful Indian legend of "How the Robin's Breast Became Red," and the historical theme of Joan of Arc, who in 1428 led the armies of France to victory, but was later burned at the stake, was convincingly told by Eva Hrachovec.

Story of Florence Nightingale

The well-known story of the courage of Florence Nightingale "The Lady of the Lamp" who created a womanly profession from the much despised "job" of nursing, was narrated by Audrey Purdy. Mary Rodd told of the achievements of the late Henry Ford, who labored 12 years to produce the well-known "Model T" but was later known as inventor, manufacturer, and organizer, and because of modest personal habits became one of the richest men in the United States. She said "Christopher Columbus discovered America, but Henry Ford put it on wheels." Gordon Sinclair, who became a newspaper reporter at twenty-two, and later a world traveller and writer of note, was the subject chosen by Jack Rushnell; while Carol Sine and Barbara Williams each sought to promote patriotism and love for native land and British traditions by their choice of subjects, "Why I Like to Live in Canada," and "The Union Jack."

A fine speech by Barbara Stickle, with the title "Do you Think it Easy to be a Queen?" developed into an unquestioned "defence" on behalf of Princess Elizabeth, heiress-apparent to England's throne; and Jacqueline Smith feelingly told the English folk lore tale of the faithful dog, Gelert.

In commenting on these speeches Mr. J. Musgrove, director of Guidance, B.C.I., said he had been pleasantly surprised with the poise and courage of the contestants. He considered their topics well chosen, especially in the case of the boy who spoke of "thoughts on farming" because he had chosen a subject which he understood through personal contact. This practice of speech-making during school years should develop the ability, in later life, to think when on their feet without former preparation.

Mr. Anderson, principal of Queen Alexandra School, presented the decision of the judges in awarding the following prizes —First, Mary Rodd; Second, Jacqueline Smith; Third, Jack Rushnell. The first two contestants received identical gold medals donated by County Council, and presented by Mr. E. S. Denyes, Clerk of Hastings County; Mary Rodd also won the Col. Vanderwater Public Speaking Trophy, (for one year) and an additional prize of books was given to each of the three prize winners.

Scholarship Awards were presented by Mr. R. H. Macklem, P.S.I., to Hazel Hearns, S S. 17 Sidney; Rosemary Latchford, S.S. 6, Thurlow; Marlene Brant, S.S. 1, Tyendinaga, and Beatrice Wood S.S. 4, Tyendinaga, each pupil having already received $25.00, the value of each scholarship. In addition the Warden's Medal for highest marks on the High School Entrance examination was received by Marlene Brant, twelve years of age in October of this year, of Shannonville.

School Improvement Awards from the Ontario Horticultural Association, sponsored by the S.H.E.A., were presented to the third prize winner and to all other contestants in this contest, by Mr. A. B. Allen, first president of the South Hastings Educational Association, to the tune of one silver dollar to each child.

Musical Program

Community singing led by Verna Fox, teacher in S. S. 5, Tyendinaga, with Mrs. Harry Harrison, Plainfield, as pianist; and an accordion solo, "A Medley of Patriotic Airs," by Marilyn Spencer of Frankford Public School, added considerably to the enjoyment of the evening's program.

Just before the singing of the National Anthem, Mr. Allen addressed the retiring S.H.E.A. president, Mr. J. H. Warren, expressing appreciation for his untiring efforts during the past year, and presented him with a small gift, as a token of the esteem in which his work is held by all interested. Mr. Warren thanked Mr. Allen and members of the association and said that whatever effort he had made had been done with no thought of compensation, but for the joy of seeing education progress in Hastings county.

In Manhattan

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York Nov. 15 —(CP) — Captivating is the word for June Lockhart, who has made an acting triumph on her first appearance on the New York stage.

Miss Lockhart, whose parents both are distinguished in the theatre world, enchanted the critics with her performance in the F. Hugh Herbert comedy, "For Love or Money."

While the critical reception of the play at Henry Miller's theatre was mixed, the daughter of Gene Lockhart, noted character actor who was born in London, Ont., and of Kathleen Lockhart, was hailed for her freshness, discriminating taste, gayety of spirit and fine sense of comedy. These are but a few of the laudable tributes she received on local drama pages for her part as a waif who falls in love with a mature actor who was sheltered her under his roof.

"The First Mrs. Fraser," St. John Ervine's comedy about a mature, fashionable woman who wins back her husband from his second wife, a young flibbertigibbet, is chiefly notable because it brings Jane Cowl back to Broadway in the name role. The play, first seen here 16 years ago, creaks a bit as it unfolds the astute tactics by which Mrs. Fraser regains the affections of her spouse, a man with a definite eye for a pretty girl. But it is worth seeing for the fine performance of Miss Cowl, opposite whom Henry Daniell ably portrays the harried husband.

Charles Laughton is to star in this season's first production of the Experimental Theatre on Broadway, his own adaptation of Bertrold Brecht's "Galileo." It is due here early next month ... John Garfield has agreed to star in the second Experimental Theatre production, "Skipper Next to Go," by Jan de Hartog, Dutch playwright whose "This Time Tomorrow" has just been produced here by the Theatre Guild ... producer Brock Pemberton will take over Frank Fay's role of Elwood P. Dowd in "Harvey," a a special performance Nov. 23 for the benefit of the stage relief fund.

For the past twelve years, the Quinte Skating and Tennis Club has been offering the young people of this city skating and tennis on the Club property at the corner of Queen and Dufferin Streets.

Starting only with the aim of providing a chance for young people to learn figure skating along with supervised recreation, we have, while maintaining an extremely low membership fee, purchased and equipped the present Club.

Owing to extensive changes in the growth of this residential area it became necessary for the Directors of the Club to take one of two steps.

(1) To dissolve the Quinte Skating and Tennis Club thereby depriving our young people of this form of recreation hence destroying every vestige of a popular sport and years of hard work.

(2) To construct a new building in keeping with this residential growth, adequately equipped for the purpose, thereby providing supervised recreation to our youth in the years to come.

After due consideration, the latter course has been adopted.

In undertaking this work the Directors of the Club feel that the citizens of Belleville, being acquainted with the service which has been rendered so far, will help in this undertaking.

Any financial assistance which you are able to give will be gratefully appreciated and will certainly add to this service now being given to our youth.

Please make cheques payable to the Quinte Skating Club addressed to the SECRETARY-TREASURER, J. E. DICKENS, 215 Front St., Belleville.

Father on the Farm

A Spirit of Tolerance for Animals

By KENNETH C. CRAGG

Father would never have been mistaken for a lover of animals.

Not that he was cruel to them or even indifferent to their comfort. His horses, in the spring, were in good shape as any man's. His cattle never had to winter through on straw and, while they might have been rough looking when first turned out to pasture, no one even in horse-play ever tried to hang his hat on one of their hip bones.

"How did your stock winter?" was a common greeting among the farmers.

When father would reply "Oh fair, fair," you could bet your bottom dollar that he wouldn't be ashamed to take any man through his stables.

But he wasn't a lover of animals, and, to be perfectly fair, they showed no great affection for him. Their relationship at its best was based on a spirit of tolerance, a fragile sort of thing that could be splintered in an instant, such as the time the ram chased father around the strawstack while he was carrying a pail of milk in each hand; or when one of the big bay geldings in heavy team trampled on his feet.

Clydesdales Were Awkward

Aside from two horses of mixed and indifferent ancestry, father kept Clydesdales, although he always said he liked Percherons, Clydesdales, he claimed, with considerable emphasis every time he was crushed in a stall or had a foot stepped on were "big dirty awkward things."

He would be fastening the hames of the harness around a collar and down would come a foot, "Blamed, big, dirty awkward things," father would howl meanwhile kicking the horse on the shin with his free foot.

While there might be horses that would catch on and lift the leg that was being kicked, not father's. It happened so often that it became almost a horse-stable ritual. The horse would always lift its other leg first thereby putting its full weight on father's foot.

There grew up a legend that they made a game of it, like children counting points for red barns and white horses — five points if they tramped father when they were unshod, ten if they wearing shoes. Whichever one caught him with sharp pointed steel caulks got a bonus.

Father was always touchy about getting a cow's tail in his eye. This was a frequent occurrence during fly-time because the fly sprays in those days were not so effective as the preparations of today. Consequently by midsummer both father and the cows were in a pretty temper every time he picked up a milking stool.

Livestock Troublesome

But if his temper at times did wear thin he could hardly be blamed, for all through his life he seemed to be afflicted with as moronic a lot of animals as ever breached a fence or stole into a neighbor's oatfield.

Among them were a number of out-and-out mental cases with definitely criminal tendencies, including the ram and a cow named Maybelle, whose sole asset was a phenomenal reach and a lightning-like drive with her right hind leg. Maybelle could pick off a milk pail at five feet without ever quivering in her stall.

Mother, in spite of her farm background, never acquired a feeling of ease in her association with animals. She was always certain that one or more was going to get sick and die. She was always afraid to go alone to the stable for fear she would find a horse or cow in trouble.

She lived in constant terror one winter because of a horse that was born deficient and deteriorated mentally as he grew up. He got his simple pleasure in putting one front leg over the halter rope. This always pulled his head down in what must have been a painful position, and if the rope was short he couldn't get his foot to the floor, but must stand on three legs until rescued. Mother was always afraid he would hang himself and father finally became afraid he wouldn't.

Maude Liked Wire Fences

There was another Maude a good worker but definitely low in I.Q. who liked to ride the wire fences in the still of the country night. Maude, who had a certain low cunning, as a substitute for intelligence, always picked between two or three o'clock in the morning for riding the wire.

In the field she would sidle up to the fence, place her right foot on the top of a strand of wire about eighteen inches from the ground and then put her weight on it. If she had picked the spot well, the wire for ten rods on either side would shriek through the staples as she bore down and again as she lifted up. For variation she would back into a fence and rock her big rear end on it, getting much the same sound effects. When the wire still had its spring and the staples were left in the posts she could be heard for half a mile or more downwind.

In the house, at the second shriek from the fence, mother was bolt upright in bed, shaking father. She always feared the worst. To her Maude was never just amusing herself. Maude had a leg caught in the fence. Maude's leg was cut to the bone or broken.

Father never learned. Everytime he would try to minimize the danger and go back to sleep. But he always had two choices. Either stay awake and listen to mother and the fence or pull on his pants and boots and go out and chase Maude away from the wire. The record was consistent. He would pull on his pants and boots, muttering to himself. Father's main sorrow at such times was being born too soon before electric fences.

Lazy Dog and Sow

He had only passing luck with dogs. Rover, a black and brown was good, in the sense that he would not harm anything, but so lazy that he could have won a medal for it in open competition. By the time one could find Rover and rouse him it was easier just to go for the cows oneself. Rover even took his meals lying down.

He was succeeded by a yellow stray, a collie of almost breathtaking beauty. But this beautiful dog had an addled brain that compelled him to move in circles. He would run in circles all day long. It began to get the family down, and after a bit the hired man, who unwittingly crossed his course and chased mother round and round and into the henpen, father had him shot.

There was nothing vicious about the sow. She was named Beatrice after a sow that figured in the farm stores written by the late Peter McArthur. Father's Beatrice was simply a hoodlum, a pig that knew no restraint and obeyed no laws other than her riotous impulses. She opened the gates and let the cattle into the garden. She broke into the granary and ripped apart the bags of feed ready for the mill. She was known to have eaten some of her young.

All these father accepted as reasonable penalties of farm life and, on the whole, he liked farming. He liked being his own boss and he liked being in the open.

Sheep Got Father Down

He was driven to actual rebellion but once, because of sheep. Actually it was just one of those things. He bought the ewes without much forethought and then had to borrow the ram, an evil-looking beast, definitely paranoiac, who took out his warped views on living by chasing everything not big enough to beat his brains out.

A system was developed by which everyone passing through the barnyard carried a club and left one at the gate for the protection of the next one to come that way. No system ever perfect and the flaw became apparent the day father ventured in the open with a full pail of milk in each hand. He had come too far to retreat to the stable when the ram saw him and not far enough to reach the gate leading into the house yard.

The cartoonists always have it that a man takes off when hit in the rear by a ram or goat. Maybe they do sometimes, but the barnyard was soft and father's boots were well gripped in the mud when the ram struck. Father simply toppled forward and the milk went up and over him.

The farm was cleared of sheep within the week and the only memory of them was in the tufts of wool sticking to the off fence strand and the anger in father's heart.

"It's one thing to be hurt by your own animals and another to be made a fool of," he said.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

A FRIENDLY MITE

"Here are the Chickadees! Let's try how near they will come if we keep still and give their call," Marjorie suggested.

"Chickadee-dee," Edith croaked hoarsely, over and over.

Talking merrily to one another, the tiny acrobats approached, clinging to branches upside down like flies on a ceiling, balancing first at one angle, then at another. Soon the two girls were surrounded by the grey and white feathered balls that came so close their soft notes could be heard as well as the ordinary call.

Edith smiled, but dared not move, as one friendly mite flew with little squeaks to a nearby twig; then giving a gentle "tch, tch, tch, wuk", suddenly landed on her shoulder. If only she had been prepared with food it might have shared her sandwich, for the Black-capped Chickadees are sociable and fearless, and will take food from the hand.

However, the ordinary diet of the Chickadees is not bread, but insects. Tent caterpillar moths are considered a special treat. The bright, prying eyes of the restless little birds search every crevice in the bark for insect pests. Some seeds are also eaten. The very best way to attract these useful, companionable winter visitors is to put sunflower seeds and suet on a slab attached to a tree trunk. Like children, they appear to enjoy cold, stormy days best. Then their laughing and joking is at its peak. We are more apt to see them than other species because they seldom take to the tree tops but keep almost at eye level.

If you are well acquainted with the Chickadee's "dee-dee" call but do not know its two, or sometimes three, pure whistled notes, you might never guess these came from the throat of the same bird. Though occasionally heard at other seasons, this song is true spring music. The first note is always high pitched. Various translations have been made, but "Spring's here" and "Back to you" seem to best catch the spirit of the song which, very unusually, is sung by the female as well as the male.

•

The pair's summer cottage is a hole, about 10 feet up, in an old stump or post, or even a bird house. They first clear out any debris and then move in their own furniture, which consists of moss, grass, feathers, and plant down. Here they bring up a large family, often as many as nine.

Ottawa "Olympics" Defeat Trenton Flyers 7-4 Before Biggest Crowd of Season

Flyers Extend Ottawa Crew to Limit Before Fading in Third Period

In a wide-open heavy checking game, that satisfied one of the best hockey crowds of the season, the Ottawa Royal Canadian Air Force entry in the Capitals City League, base of the Canadian Olympic team last night defeated the Trenton Flyers in an exhibition game by a 7-4 score.

The score did not indicate the difference in the teams but third period stamina and condition threw the match Ottawa way after the Flyers tried following two periods of hectic hockey.

The "Olympics" relying mostly on individual efforts due to the brilliant hockey, but they evidenced a lack of team play that will come when the final team is selected.

The game was hard-fought throughout with the Flyers going wide-open in an effort to tack a defeat in their namesakes from Bytown. By the same token the Boucher-coached squad, in their first exhibition game under the aegis of their national status, were not in any mood to absorb a licking. As a result the tilt was a heavy checking affair with both sides asking no quarter, nor giving any.

Ottawa racked up four goals in the first period when flashy Pat Guzzo, former Six Ardee softball pitching star, flashed the red light twice in the first three minutes of the game. Gravelle, tousel-headed centre and brother of Leo of Les Canadiens, who was one of the most aggressive players on the ice, rammed home Thomas' pass for the third count and Brooks eased in Maitland's pass for the fourth marker. Currie and Christy drove home the packet to make the score 4-2 and that is how the first heat ended.

The second period produced the best hockey of the night. Brackenburry, Miller, and Sargent aided and abetted by Middleton and Bullock, flashed up and down the ice and finally came within striking distance of tying the score at the twelve-minute mark when Brack took Miller's pass to bat King cleanly.

Ottawa maintained their high tempo in the third period when the Flyers finally found the pace a bit too fast. King in the Ottawa nets, however was a busy man as Nicky Sargent, Miller, Brackenbury and Middleton tested him time and again.

Gilpin put the Olympics further in the lead on a nice individual effort at the five minute mark and seven minutes later as the Ottawa team drove in on the Trenton net, Moore took Guzzo's neat flip to flash the red light behind McKenna in the Trenton nets.

Gilpin hit the rigging again with five minutes to go and Currie racked up the fourth Trenton goal on a nice individual effort with fifty seconds to go.

Olympics showed plenty of individual fire and dash, but their team plays were not clicking. Guzzo and Gravelle looked good as did Molinski, Maitland and Rooke. Louis LeCompte who has put on some weight since playing here with Trenton several years ago, played a bang-up game on the defence using his weight to good advantage. King in goal, one of the six netminders trying out for the team turned in a good job.

Sargent, Miller, Brackenbury and Middleton looked the best for the Flyers with Christie and Currie turning in stellar efforts.

Air Vice Marshall E. E. Middleton, C.B.E., air officer commanding Central Command, Trenton, faced the first puck after the players were introduced to the crowd.

Sports Shorts from Britain

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 15 (CP) —One of the most important fellows on the Wembley bench during a hockey game these nights is Gordon (Gabby) Pankhurst of Winnipeg.

When the players come off for a breather they want a gulp of water or a bit of new tape on a stick or maybe a hasty repair job to the harness that holds their pants up. Gabby looks after all these vital details.

His one desire is to become "a first-class player" himself; but he'll have to wait a few years before he can join his mates on the ice.

Gabby is only 14.

Gordon Richards may be Britain's perenial champion jockey but in the north country the most-followed rider is veteran Wally Nevett who's currently having the best season of his career.

He's already passed his previous high mark of 122 winners in a season and appears likely to hit the 140 mark before flat-racing ends Nov. 22.

Extremely hard going throughout much of the summer has reduced fields sharply and that's meant a big season for the front rank riders, five of whom have already scored their "century." Old-timers say it's many a year since that many jockeys rode 100 winners each.

The big five are Richards, the Smith brothers, Eph and Doug, Australian-born Edgar Britt who does most of his riding in the crimson-and-terracotta chevrons of the Gaekwar of Baroda, and Nevett.

I.R.A. Peebles, Middlesex and former England cricketer, suffered an attack of poliomyelitis but after only three weeks in hospital he's back on his feet and nearly recovered.

Friends gave credit for "a miracle cure" to the staff of St. George's Hospital, Knightsbridge, but the surgeon in charge there merely remarked he was "very satisfied with good results."

Rugger is a rugged game —as referee L.H. Cosway found out.

Handling a Devon League contest between Plymouth Albion and Newton Abbott he enraged a home town supporter by one of his hearty whistles. The fan rushed onto the field and popped Cosway soundly on the jaw.

Police led the customer away and first-aid men worked over Cosway. Ten minutes later he came to, but declined to referee any more that day.

PRIEST, 90, DEAD

MARLBOROS HOLD ONE-POINT LEAD IN SENIOR RACE

Oshawa Generals Hand the Windsor Spits a 6-5 Defeat

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto Marlboros held a mere one-point top-place lead after eking out a 3-3 overtime tie against Stratford Indians in an Ontario Hockey Association Senior A fixture at Maple Leaf Gardens last night.

The one Junior A game produced Windsor Spitfires' first defeat. The second-place Oshawa Generals took a 6-5 overtime win at Windsor which left them two points behind the Spitfires.

In other senior games last night Kitchener - Waterloo Flying Dutchmen overpowered Owen Sound Mercurys 8-3 at Waterloo for their fifth victory in eight starts and retained their second-place deadlock with Hamilton Tigers. Hamilton Tigers found Hamilton Patricias easy prey with a 6-1 victory in the Mountain City.

Tonight Hamilton Tigers are eyeing the senior loop's top rung when they visit the cellar-dwellers, Brantford Redmen. There are five junior tilts including an afternoon twin bill at Maple Leaf Gardens. Toronto St. Michael's Majors meet Toronto Marlboros in a four-point game with their sights on a fourth straight win, and Barrie Flyers take on Toronto Young Rangers. Spitfires move into Oshawa for a return engagement with Tommy Anderson's Generals. Stratford Kroehlers visit Galt Rockets and Guelph Biltmores tackle St. Catharines Teepees.

Joe Primeau's Marlboros took a first period offensive leading the Indians 3-1 at the end of the first session, but from then on found a smooth-clicking Stratford squad crowding their goal zone. Marlie's goalie Howie Harvey had his heavies workout on home ice this season. Bob Paul led Toronto with two goals and Johnny McCormack tallied the other Marlboro counter. Joe Fitzpatrick, Eady and Dzuira scored for Stratford.

With Owen Sound hampered by injuries, the Flying Dutchmen were never in danger except for a few minutes in the first and third frames at Waterloo arena. Flash Hollett, Johnny Blute and Dutch Hiller led the Dutchmen with two goals each. Don Bauer and Wes Gallagher tallied one each for Kitchener. Owen Sound counters came from Fred Smith, Lougheed and Miller.

Jack Eley's netminding was the only thing that kept the Bengals from swamping the Patricias under a heavier load of rubber as they outskated and outplayed their younger rivals. Bobby Laurent and Clarence Shillington with two tallies each led the Tigers, while teammates Polly Miocinovich and Frankie Liscombe scored twice. The lone Pats' goal came from Nick Phillips.

Russ Lowe scored the goal which won for Oshawa and set Windsor down to its first defeat. Windsor's largest crowd of the season — 4,649. Oshawa goalie Pete Piquette stopped 51 shots to Spitfire netminder Gord Buckley's 22.

Chicagos Bill Tobin appeared today to have given New York Rangers a "hot-foot."

It seems the bosses of the Rangers are sizzling over the manner in which the Black Hawks' President managed to sign up Roy Conacher after the lanky wingman had refused to come to terms with Rangers. The affair bids well to work into a first-class feud between the two National Hockey League clubs.

Conacher, as N.H.L. fans know, turned down a New York contract after Detroit Red Wings traded him to the Rangers following a lengthy holdout. Coach Frankie Bouscher of Rangers even made a special trip to Toronto from New York in an effort to talk Conacher into agreeing to terms but it was no dice.

Nevertheless, a week or so later, Tobin moved into Toronto quietly and apparently had little difficulty in getting Conacher to enter the Chicago fold. Tobin said at the time that he simply offered Conacher so much money that the player couldn't refuse. One guess is that Conacher is being paid $10,000 for his services this season.

Why Conacher turned down Rangers but came to terms with Black Hawks is something that possibly is only known to himself, since Boucher maintained that it wasn't a matter of price that prompted Conacher's "no" to Rangers.

Ned Irish, executive Vice-President of Madison Square Garden, has followed this up with the statement that Conacher could have had a contract with Rangers calling for a figure "in excess of $15,000." Irish says the Rangers were willing to part with $40,000 in cash and players to Detroit for Conacher.

Brig.-Gen. John Reed Kilpatrick, President of the Garden, also is reported hopping mad, along with other Rangers' executives, over the situation. Kilpatrick is quoted as saying: "We never had a chance to negotiate with Conacher."

Both Irish and Kilpatrick maintain that the N.H.L. should plug "loopholes" in the trading law. Irish claims that the law "doesn't give a club with a legitimate transaction on the fire a look-in."

At any rate, Rangers get the chance tonight to make things "hot" for Conacher and the rest of the Black Hawks. The clubs hook up in New York in one of three scheduled games. Red Wings play in Toronto against Maple Leafs while Boston Bruins are at Montreal against Canadiens.

All six clubs are in action again tomorrow night—Toronto at Chicago; Montreal at New York; and Detroit at Boston.

Meanwhile, General Manager Jack Adams of Red Wings has come up with a proposal that motion pictures be taken of all N.H.L. games Adams said it would be possible in this manner to settle disputes over plays as well as to help players spot faults in technique.

Crests Presented To Ki-Y Softball Champions

Winners of the Juvenile and Midget Ki-Y Softball League Championships for 1947 were presented with their crests at a gathering Friday evening at the Y.M.C.A. The crests were presented by Mr. Jack White, president of the Kiwanis Club, who was introduced to the boys by Mr. Ed. Shortt, Program Secretary of the Y.M.C.A.

In making the presentation, Mr. White congratulated the boys on the winning of the championships, and at the same time reminded them that, while a fellow had to be a good sport to win, he had to be an even better sport at times to lose, and that it was not so important who won, but how they won and how they lost.

Refreshments were served, and the members of both teams were invited to have a swim as guests of th "Y".

The Juvenile Championship was won by the Sluggers, managed by Tom Brown, with John Pigeon, captain. Other players were Clarence Meeks, Gordon Murray, Herbert Ford, Charles Doran, Ray Carey, Bob Tracey, Bill Stapley, Jack Cole, Tom Nickles, Bob Fargey.

The Midget winners were the 'Invincibles', captained by George Bongard, who also acted as manager. The players were: Ernie Brooks, Glenn Rodgers, Ronald Maxwell, Edward Schamerhorn, Don Ashline, Gilbert Waite, Don Wynne, Jim Carruthers, Richard Biasali, Donald Burr and Hugh Petrie.

Rabbit Shooting and Solunar Periods

While a great many of the hunters of the nation envision upland shooting in terms of wing shooting—pheasant, quail, grouse, woodcock, and so on—the men whose business it is to know about such things tell us that eight licenses out of every ten are bought by the rabbit hunters. Of course, these figures do not hold good for all the states in the Union, but in the New England, Atlantic, and mid-western states the ratio is perfectly true. Each year thousands upon thousands of men hunt nothing but rabbits. They raise, train and support dogs for the purpose and they are every bit as serious about rabbit hunting as is the most radical grouse or woodcock shooter about his favorite wing shooting.

As might be expected, these men have their set rules for rabbit hunting. They know the choice covers and they have their own ideas about favorable and unfavorable weather for their particular brand of sport. With all due respect to the rabbit hunters, here is one item which some of them may have overlooked.

During pleasant weather, rabbits are apt to be abroad and feeding most anytime of day or night. When inclement weather arrives, they are inclined to "hole up" and to stay that way until better conditions come along. Thus, during rainy, windy, snowy or excessively cold days, rabbit hunting can be, and frequently is, very bad indeed, with little or no game shooting. Even on fair days, when conditions seem to be ideal, often it is difficult to turn up game in satisfactory quantity. Just so that you won't be overlooking any bets, next time you go rabbit hunting try to plan your day so that you will be in good cover during the Solunar Periods.

• • •

This is about the way things work themselves out, Solunarwise, with the bunnies. To begin with a rabbit is semi-nocturnal; in other words, he is apt to be abroad and feeding most any time of day or night. Now, a rabbit, like any other living creature, must have rest and sleep. Daylight and dark being equally useful to him, obviously nature must have some plan for him whereby he can set up his own system of feeding periods and rest periods. From all indications, the daily cycle of Solunar Periods and intervening rest periods is the schedule to which he fits his pattern of behavior. In short, when a Solunar Period is in progress, he is out of hiding and feeding in the open cover; when the Solunar Period comes to a close, he has eaten his fill, temporarily, and he retires to the security of his resting cover where he is safe from predators, and there he indulges himself in rest and relaxation.

• • •

Some years ago a man wrote me to tell of his experience with rabbits and the Solunar Periods. He had been doing some boasting about an excellent piece of rabbit cover that he had located. Accordingly, one snowy day he and two of his friends drove out to hunt that cover. They had a good rabbit dog with them and they covered the area thoroughly without turning up so much as one single rabbit. Naturally, he was subjected to a great deal of kidding.

They returned to the car and hunted another good cover where they did manage to bag two rabbits. Meanwhile, he kept wondering why, in a cover that he knew held plenty of game, they had found no rabbits at all. Then he remembered his Solunar Tables, a copy of which he had in his pocket. Hurriedly he looked up the times of the Solunar Periods for that ray and found that there was time to drive back to the first cover and still be on hand for a major Solunar Period. After some argument, he persuaded his friends that it was a good idea, so back they went.

In the space of the next two hours, while the major Solunar Period ran its course, the dog started seventeen rabbits. Nine of these were shot and the remainder managed to elude dog and guns by taking refuge in the safe havens of stone fences and ground hog burrows. This mind you, in cover where they had found not a single rabbit some three hours earlier.

• • •

Things like that don't happen by mere coincidence. There must be a reason. Over the period of twenty-one years of active observation in the field, I can assure you that this is not an isolated instance. I have seen similar happenings many, many times. Why not make it a practice to clip out the weekly publications of the Solunar Tables and to carry these clippings in your shell box or your hunting coat? Then plan your hunting trips so that the Solunar Periods will not be wasted. Believe me—it pays to keep track of the Solunar Periods.

Apps Takes Fine On Brown for Alleged Apathy

(By The Canadian Press)

Frank Patrick, who probably has fathered more innovations leading to the modern game than any man in hockey, was not present at the birth of his latest brain-child—the raised-stick signal by the player scoring a goal. With the approval of President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League, Patrick's idea was tried out Thursday night when Montreal Canadiens defeated Chicago Black Hawks 5-2.

But most of the players forgot the hurried pre-game instructions and the debut was anything but a success. All a goal-scorer is asked to do is skate 30 or 40 feet from where he shot the goal and raise his stick at the proper altitude or angle. The spectators, the official scorers, the sports writers and broadcasters and all hands present will know instantaneously just who potted the puck.

John Vass of Syracuse rode his brown gelding, Panama, to first place last night in the first preliminary of the $1,000 knockdown and out stake of the Buffalo International Horse Show. Vass, who also won the working Hunter Class with the same entry, beat A. C. Texter's grey gelding, Toss-Up, from Welland, Ont., in the feature event of the three-day show. Three more preliminaris will be run before the event's final Sunday night.

A plan to suppress the intentional walk, baseballs most irking stratagem to the average fan, by making it worth two bases, has been proposed by Jack Sheehan, Director of the Chicago Cubs' farm system. In announcing the plan in Chicago yesterday, Sheehan also proposed a restricting catcher's box which would force the pitcher to throw the ball somewhere within the vicinity of the plate against all batters.

The Western Colts are still knocking off the teams that defeated them at the start of the Intermediate grid season. Yesterday they subdued Toronto Varsity Seconds 28-12 at London.

H. A. Reid, President of the St. Boniface-Norwood Legionnaires football team, Manitoba Intermediate champions, said yesterday he had received a bid from the Cobourg, Ont., football club to play an exhibition game there, pdobably Dec. 6.

Syl Apps, Ontario Athletic Commissioner announced yesterday he had fined Joe Brown, New Orleans boxer, $250 "for his apparent lack of aggression" in his bout with Toronto's Li'l Arthur King at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens last Monday.

A year's suspension from baseball will be imposed on any one who violates the rule prohibiting the signing of American and Canadian high school players, Commissioner A. B. Chandler, announced yesterday. Previously the penalty has been $500, with the player being declared a free agent and the club prohibited forever from acquiring his service.

Frankie Groves, Stinnett, Tex., high school linewoman, made her football debut at Stinnett last night, getting into eight plays as her team lost to Groom, Tex., 14-6. The diminutive 16-year-old girl athlete astonished spectators on her last play by bowling over the opposing linemen.

CANADIAN SPORT SNAPSHOTS

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 15 (CP)— The get-tough policy that Conn Smythe instilled in Toronto Maple Leafs — the old biff 'em and bash 'em system that paid off by lifting a green team to the Stanley Cup — must be extending down the Leafs' hockey chain judging by blasts from the opposing sides.

Both the junior and senior Toronto Marlboros, generally regarded in their respective Ontario Hockey Association divisions as Maple Leaf chattel, are drawing the same kind of criticism that National Hockey League opponents aim mostly at Bill Ezinicki.

The Marlboros seniors are accused of carrying high sticks, boarding and cross-checking — among other assorted acts of hockey villainry — by Chick (Stratford Beacon-Herald) Apel and he's joined in the general criticism by Al (Brantford Expositor) Rose.

Chick thought the limit reached in a recent Marlboros-Stratford game, refereed by George Hainsworth. He blamed Marlboros for most of the rough stuff and recalled that Marlboros coach Joe Primeau was always considered one of the N.H.L.'s cleanest pucksters.

"But Joe doesn't call the shots for the Marlboro seniors any more than staff Smythe does for Marlboro juniors," Chick said.

The latter's pop, Conny Smythe is the guy who wants his pro and amateur (?) players to be tough and rugged and any of his chattels who hopes to graduate eventually to the parent Toronto club stands a better chance if he plays it the hard way.

Al, after watching Marlboros trounce his Brantford seniors, decided that "the Marlies love to comb everyone's hair but fail to appreciate it when retaliation sets in." He suggested that after a few more road trips, they'd be "more careful in Hamilton, where the Pats and Tigers can maul with the best."

Just as a matter of record, Marlboros are at the top of the seven-team O.H.A. senior loop, Stratford and Brantford at the bottom.

Trace to one minor fault the defeat of most makeable contracts. It is simply neglect in counting possible losers in advance; failure to determine what chances must be taken.

At first it did not seem of a type that might interest you. But the more I think about it the more does it look like a lesson worth repeating. Perhaps you have a friend who needs it.

There is nothing odd about the bidding. South opened with a bid of one spade, North jumped to four spades. There the bidding stopped.

North has no biddable suit for a takeout. He has adequate support for an assist in spades. His hand contains five tricks; four high cards and a short in clubs.

Opener shows five tricks. So, north sees a total of ten; enough for a game in a major suit. The signal for this is a jump. So, it is only a matter of deciding what kind of a jump.

An immediate one-jump also guarantees two sure tricks. A higher jump does not. With only one sure trick (K Q of clubs), north does not one-jump to three spades. He high-jumps to four spades.

The opening lead from west was a club. East won this and came back with the singleton heart. Not yet knowing who held the king, it was a temptation for south to finesse the ten.

Had south done so, west would have won with the king. A heart return from west would be ruffed by east. And there was still the trump king in west for a trick to defeat the contract.

Instead of finessing, however, south hopped right up with the heart ace. He then promptly laid down trump ace and another trump. This gave opponents only a club, heart, and a trump.

Good play is in accord with what you can afford.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 15 (AP) — Conditioned by years of being peered at, the movie star conducts himself in public differently from most other human beings.

Since this colum is concerned with the behavior of these famous people, it is important that we understand what makes them tick. First of all, we must realize that they are under constant strain. Being famous and usually wealthy, they are eternally sought after for favors, appearance, autographs, loans, even smiles or looks of recognition.

The result is that only a few, such as Van Johnson and Bob Hope appear to enjoy being out in public. The vast majority try to avoid being recognized and venture outside film colony haunts only when necessary for business reasons. The extreme, of course, was Greta Garbo, who could not bear the glare of other eyes even inside a studio. There are many others with less advanced stages of Garbo-itis.

Bad Memories

Movie stars are notably bad at remembering names. The reason is because they meet 100 times more people than the average citizen and would have to be mental giants to remember everyone. I never strain an actor's memory for my name, even when I have met them many times.

The usual routine of a person meeting a star is: "We met at a premiere in Peoria in 1937 — don't you remember?" The star will always say, "Oh, yes, of course I remember," but it's 10-to-1 he doesn't.

Most stars have a phobia against telephones. They are pestered over the wires as they are in person. For that reason, they change their phone numbers with the seasons. They won't come to the phone, instructing their flunkies to take the number of the person calling and promise a return call.

The retiring nature of stars in public would not be as profound except for a certain type of people who follow them about. These are the scatter-brained kids, the professional celebrity hunters and the minor hoodlums whose greatest pleasure in life is to bedevil the famed.

Perhaps we should have a "be kind to movie stars week." Though it is sometimes hard to believe, they are also human.

BILLY FOX "BLACKJACKS" LAMOTTO IN 4TH

By MURRY ROSE

New York, Nov. 15 (AP) — Blackjack Billy Fox wants another shot at light heavyweight champion Gus Lesnevich and Jake Lamotto says he's going to stick to middleweights from now on.

The fighters made their decisions simultaneously in Madison Square Garden last night shortly after Fox stopped the Bronx bull in 2:26 of the fourth round of their slated 10.

A roaring, capacity crowd of 18,340, lured by the records of a puncher with a sensational knockout string and a rough, bruising mauler who had never before been stopped, saw Lamotto's standards broken in pieces under a furious barrage of blows in the fourth round.

It was the first time Lamotta ever failed to go the route. It was ruled a technical knockout, but when Referee Frank Fullam stepped between the two fighters, Lamotto was staggering helplessly under Fox's hammering. It was Fox's fight from the start. The 21-year-old Philadelphian jarred Jake with a right in the second and nearly floored him in the third.

Lamotto bored in in his usual style but his body punches didn't faze the solid, straight-punching Negro.

ever to stop Lamotta, Fox kept his own unique record alive. It was his 50th knockout in 51 pro

In becoming the first fighter bouts. In his other fight he was knocked out himself by Lesnevich in a title go last February.

CHAPTER 5

"Of course, of course." She was now clinging to his arm. "We'll go inside."

Kay, left with Blare, was scarcely conscious of what he was saying. That some dire calamity threatened the remainder of the Millstrom fortune, she was positive. Otherwise Gordon Wayland would not have come here tonight so unceremoniously.

She was plainly distracted, pitifully so, but Blare was resolved to settle his personal affair without further delay.

Adele knew her mother's weakness for family ties. This Vermont Nourse would be a find for her mother—and not so bad for herself.

"You're very kind, Miss Sanders," he replied vaguely. "Thank you—I'll think about it. I should be returning to New York as soon as possible—although Mr. Wilmore, the president of our firm, wired I was to take my time. Naturally, I won't be good for much until this leg of mine is whole again."

His smile was a grim smirk. He had been a guest in this elegantly appointed home for four weeks, with his heart threatening to elope with his head. But no longer! From now on, he would be the hard-boiled, daredevil Chuck his friends knew.

Adele hurried away and met Kay running up the stairs.

"Leaving so soon?" asked Kay, with feigned cordiality.

"Darling—I'm taking your cloud-man off your hands!" announced Adele impudently. "A cousin is a cousin, you know!"

She rushed past the stunned Kay, no waiting for a reply.

Kay forced laggard feet toward the blue room. She had this to face just after futilely begging her mother not to ask Henn for Sunday dinner!

Chuck Nourse did not turn at her entrance. He said, looking out the window. "I've decided—to move to a hotel. I—I can't wear out my welcome here, you know."

Kay clutched the back of the nearest chair, a sob in her throat. Sunshine played on the top of Chuck's tousled blond hair with loving insistence. She never had met a man who stirred her to the depths as did this one. He was her man; he needed her. And it was evident that Adele had somehow made his remaining here impossible. But pride kept Kay silent. Never would she allow him to discover how much she loved him. At any rate, he apparently was not interested in being the house guest of the Sanders. She left the room so quietly that he was not aware of her absence until some minutes later.

The following Sunday was a wretched gray day. An east wind brought gusts of rain that beat against delicate newly opened roses, weighed to the ground larkspur and bluebells in the old-fashioned garden, dripped rhythmically from the trumpet vine clinging desperately to the summer-house trellis. The fir trees by the swimming pool sheltered cringing robins, woodpeckers and sparrows, now friendly enemies in their extremity. Clustered flowers on the wet locust trees by the drive gave a too-heavy sweetish perfume that came insistently through any door or window which chanced to be opened.

Kay sitting in the library by a woodfire, was vaguely restless, She had a premonition that this day was to be momentous. Chuck had moved to a hotel, Hennington Blare was coming for dinner. Since early this morning her mother had been going about the house with an expectant, complaisant air. It would have puzzled Kay had she not known her parent so thoroughly. Now, she had gone to church, leaving Kay alone.

Kay cupped her softly rounded chin in her hands, wondering how to solve the problem of duty against love. And yet—if a man did not love you? Bdt Chnck's every action during the time he had been in this house denoted something stronger than mere attraction for her. And she had allowed him to believe there was some one else who mattered to her! How sthpid! She must correct that impression. She would go to him, explain about Henn. This having too much pride, when only love counted, was ridiculous. Of course, there was Cora. She too must be considered. But she surely would be sensible in the end. She surely wouldn't insist upon her daughter marrying a man she could scarcely tolerate.

One thing amused Kay. That was the emphatic manner in which Chuck had refused to become the house guest of the Sanders. However, he would find it difficult to escape them entirely. The Sanders, both mother and daughter would swoop down upon his new haven.

He had arranged his departure for an evening when Kay was attending a Junior League meeting.

"Very clever of him!" Kay said aloud, kicking the toe of her blue sandal against the polished brass rail. "If only Cora could realize luxury isn't a necessity for me! She has trained me to expect it—now she thinks I must marry to keep it. Poor Cora!"

Kay's heart was heavy. She was constantly aware of the load resting on her slim shoulders, a load which would grow heavier each day that brought no Chuck Nourse into her life. She was filled with a deep, painful aloneness now, after so many happy weeks of feeling herself essential to a man she could never forget.

Scalding tears gushed to her eyes. She swallowed valiantly to check a hysterical outburst. There was nothing in this room but an aching silence that smothered and dulled her senses. Her world had become a monotonous, endless void.

Suddenly, she glanced at her wrist watch. Eleven-fifteen! Too late to go to church. Her mother was doubtless saying her prayers there, thinking that she had made provident, roseate plans for a contrary-minded daughter. She wouldn't return until around one o'clock!"

He said gently, "Kay—you and I have provrastinated long enough. What do you say to announcing our engagement?"

"Oh, no!" came from her sharply. The cup and saucer she held trembled precariously, slipped suddenly to the brick floor, and shattered into bits.

He set aside his coffee, moved his chair in front of hers, took her hands in his.

"My dear," he began lamely, "You're excited because Wayland is here. There's nothing for you to worry about—I'll take care of everything for you and Cora."

Kay could say nothing. She felt cold, frozen to ice. She could only stare stupidly up at him. Possessions, love, marriage—a jumble of unrealities in her swirling brain.

Finally, she pulled away, shoved back her chair and rose, saying, "I'll decide,—later. Now, I must know what it's all about. Cora—" she could not go on.

Kay ran blindly into the house. She paused at the entrance to the library.

Gordon Wayland was saying, "I've done all I could to save this home—you know that, Cora. By the end of the month you will be obliged to decide where you will move. We've lost out and—"

Cora Millstrom, sitting by the carved rosewood desk that her husband had used, buried her head in her arms on its top and broke into violent sobs.

Kay wheeled and ran back to the terrace.

Breathlessly she halted before Hennington Blare, her tortured eyes black in her intensity. "We'll—we'll be married!" she exclaimed tearfully.

Then, before he could stop her, she turned and fled into the house.

Aimee was waiting for Kay when she reached her white and gold dressing-room. Kay dismissed her promptly. As soon as the door closed behind the girl, Kay flung herself on her bed and lay there motionless, trying to sort her thoughts into constructive order. Her world had suddenly tipped upside down; there was nothing she could do about it.

Suddenly she pulled herself up on her elbows, brought face to face with a difficult problem. Chuck would expect her to dine with him tomorrow night—and now she was engaged to Henn! She ran cold fingers perplexedly through her tangled golden curls, held her head in a vise-like grip. It was a heavy head, a very weary head, filled with the weight of complete defeat. She was about to bury love. From now on, love would have no place in her life.

Through bleary eyes she made out the hands of the electric clock on her dressing table, pointing to midnight. She wondered if Chuck were awake. The sooner she told him of her engagement, broke her date with him for tomorrow night, the better it would be for both of them. She would never see him again—voluntarily.

She swayed on her feet, clung an instant to the post of her bed, then staggered across the room to sit tautly in the chair before the telephone. She dialed a number with painful precision. She got the Hotel Sward and asked for Mr. Nourse.

Sleepily, he answered, "Yes? Who—what is it?"

Kay's lips quivered. Her tongue refused to move. In a panic, she slammed the white ivory instrument into its cradle. She sat rigidly upright for several seconds, feeling nothing, trying mentally to piece things together. What a hairbrained creature she was! Calling Chuck Nourse in the middle of the night.

The entanglement she was in now seemed worse than ever after hearing his richly modulated voice—his dear voice. Her numb fingers began unhooking her pink gown. She stood up, lifted it over her head, flung it carelessly on a chair. She tossed her silk undergarments on top of it, and went to stand in her chrome-trimmed shower.

The sharp needles of cool water somewhat revived her physically, but were no salve for her harrassed mood. Fate was making too much of a tool of her for that.

She began taking herself severely to task. She had so little real courage. She had tried to break her dinner engagement with Chuck and failed miserably. She was a rank coward. "So—what to do?" she asked herself bitterly.

Perhaps by morning she would be more of a Spartan. She slipped into gay yellow silk pajamas and crawled between heavy silk sheets, feeling like any old-fashioned, lovesick girl, in spite of these modern luxuries.

MARMORA

Horse Rescued From Deep Well

Marmora, (Special)—A horse owned by Mr. Alex. Vanvolkenburg had the misfortune to fall in a well on the farm of Mrs. D. McGrath in Marmora Township on Thursday afternoon. It broke through the wooden platform of the well, which is about thirty-five feet deep, and having five feet of water in it. Mr. Vanvolkenburg, who is a son-in-law of Mrs McGrath, and resides with her, called several neighbors to assist him. The horse was almost removed from the well, when the rope broke. It then lay with its head and neck over the edge of the well with its body suspended. Fresh tackle was procured from the farm of Everett Derry and with a tripod placed over the well and with one end of the cable attached to the horse and the other to a tractor the animal was rescued from its perilous position and appeared to be none the worse after five hours in the well. Blankets were placed on it and it was given plenty of exercise before being taken to the stable.

International Issues Outlined In Book Display

With the problems of international relations pressing closer upon Canadians the Canadian Institute of International Affairs has sent to the Belleville Public Library a display of books and pamphlets of interest in the present crisis.

Never before have Canadians found it so necessary to keep themselves informed on the international issues presently disturbing the building of the peace and the library display presents an excellent opportunity to Belleville citizens to become acquainted with the literature and services of the Institute which is an independent, non-political, non-profit making organization interested in facts and worthwhile viewpoints.

The Institute was founded in 1928 by men who realized that a non-political and unofficial organization would be useful in helping Canadians understand the complexities of foreign relations. Today the Institute has 2,300 members in 26 branches from Halifax to Vancouver. It is in constant touch for informational purposes with similar independent institutions in 14 other countries.

Included in the current display of publications at the Corby Library are pamphlets in the "Behind the Headlines" series, also "Contemporary Affairs" pamphlets, providing a more detailed discussion of the subjects treated.

Kinsmen Club Sponsors Concert Of Noted Pianist

Numbers by many of the old masters including Bach, Beethoven, Debussy and Chopin, will be heard Tuesday evening, when George Haddad, one of Canada's outstanding concert pianists, will make a personal appearance at the Belleville Collegiate auditorium.

Mr. Haddad will do a full concert at the Collegiate auditorium in the evening, while efforts will be made to have him appear at the Collegiate in the afternoon to play a few numbers before the students. His recital is being sponsored by the Kinsmen Club.

Just recently having completed a two-month tour of Mexico and Central America, Mr. Haddad is already booked for a busy period in the United States and in Canada.

Less than one month this talented young pianist from Windsor, Ontario, played at the Town Hall in New York City and between that concert and his appearance with the Toronto Symphony Orchestra on October 24th., he gave recitals in Detroit and in Flint, Michigan. The concert at Belleville will be the seventh in eight days in the Montreal-Quebec-Ottawa region.

Today he is having the honor and privilege of playing for Their Excellencies, the Viscount and Viscountess Alexander at Government House, Ottawa. Not many musicians have been so recognized.

Acclaimed by music critics wherever he appears, Mr. Haddad is qually at home in modern music as in that of the old masters and his Belleville concert program promises his interpretation of both. Local music lovers are assured of a high class evening's entertainment Tuesdav evening at the Collegiate.

Tickets are on sale from any Kinsmen or at Bill Cook's Cigar Store

New Walk to Accompany 'New Look' Frowned on by Many Women

By MARILYN LAMBORN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 13—(CP)—Most women don't mind discarding their wardrobe to conform with current dictates of fashion, but when it comes to developing a new walk to accompany the "new look," some say "enough is enough."

But professional models, whose livelihood depends on the "know how," say the whole effect of a new low hemline gown is lost if the wearer walks the same way she did when her skirts dangled at her knees.

A tight no-way-stretch dress 11 inches from the floor necessarily cramps the style of a long stride female. On the other hand a woman encased in swirls of material is tempted to walk with a swing. But whether she must or should change her gait to suit her dresses, a sophisticated walk is a natural consequence of glamor gowns, say the models.

Dainty, smooth steps no longer than the foot, no bounce and less arm movement are recommended for the woman who wishes to acquire the elegance of the newest gowns.

As well as the walk, dances threaten to be changed by the newest fashions. String steps and wild swoops are no longer appropriate. But the girl in the spindle skirt need not confine her dancing to rumbas. Shorter waltz steps with emphasisis placed on dainty swirls can be accomplished with or without a hoop skirt.

But all these ideas of new walks and wiggles to match the latest styles were strictly professional — some girls say they'll keep on striding and fox-trotting along wartime lines and in wartime dresses; others who have succumbed to the idea of no longer giving males a peek at their knees say they'll walk and pivot just as though their hemlines had never fallen.

One Toronto housewife, who has walked the same way for 45 years, said flatly, "You can show me what to wear, but nobody is going to make me practise the new walk."

Urge Extension Immigrant Plan Of Ontario Govt.

London, Ont., Nov. 15 (CP) — Extension of the Ontario Governments air immigration scheme in order "to settle the wastes of Northern Ontario" was recommended by the executive of the Western Ontario Progressive - Conservative Association in annual session here.

The resolution was sponsored by William Burgess, Lambton delegate. It praised the progress of Premier Drew's selective immigrant plan but thought that the quota should be raised beyond the present 7,000.

Premier Drew declined comment on whether the scheme might be extended, but said that "the type of immigrant has been excellent so far, and we are satisfied that it will remain so."

The executive met in closed session, attended by several Conservative members of the Provincial and Federal Houses. Up to 30 members were expected to arrive before the day's program ended.

TRUMAN REQUESTS RATIONING, WAGE CEILINGS

Princess Receives Treasured Gift Of Gems, Jewels

King, Queen Give Daughter Necklace Diamonds, Rubies

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 17. (CP)—The King and Queen gave Princess Elizabeth a necklace a pea-sized diamonds and rubies today for her royal marriage Thursday to Lieut. Philip Mountbatten.

The glittering jewels were from the personal collection of the Royal Family. The necklace, an inch wide, was the most dazzling present shown to reporters in a display of more than 1,200 gifts including many from Canadians, which already have arrived at St. James's Palace.

The King and Queen also gave their heiress presumptive two strings of pearls the size of small grapes.

Queen Mother Mary presented her granddaughter with two diamond tiaras, two diamond necklaces, pearl stud earrings, a diamond bracelet, a diamond bow brooch, and a diamond stomacher. The Queen Mother inherited some of the gems from Queen Victoria.

There were enough gifts to stock a small department store and more were arriving. They ranged from jewels to handkerchiefs.

Amid the fabulous collection of wealth stood a small wooden frame containing the plain black-and-white photograph of the Dionne quintuplets inscribed with the signature of Yvonne, Cecile, Emile, Marie and Annette.

This was perhaps one of the most humble among the wedding gifts—yet it drew a crowd.

"Why they're quite grown up!" exclaimed a dark-haired young woman who, was the representative of East Indian newspapers in London was among the 200 newspaper men and women attending the press preview which will be followed this afternoon by a preview for royal guests of the King and Queen.

All Drawn to Picture

Both men and women were drawn to the picture because of its essential simplicity in the centre of the display of jewelry, fine art, and costly tableware.

The most conspicuous and impressive Canadian gift on display is the set of costly silverware in a glass case, valued at about £2,000 ($8,000), and inscribed 'from the government and people of Canada."

The set comprises 24 Georgian silver-gilted dinner plates with gadroon edges engraved with the Royal Arms; a two-handled silver loving cup and cover engraved with contemporary armorials; a pair of large silver square-shaped salvers, The centres engraved with armorials and the borders

Hope Abandoned For Safety of Stratford Man

Goderich, Nov. 17 (CP) — Hope was abandoned last night for safety of James R. Misener, prominent Stratford business man who was last seen drifting helplessly in a 10-foot skiff on storm-lashed Lake Huron.

On Saturday it was reported he had been saved but this later was proved to be erroneous.

The 41-year-old Misener, accompanied only by his bird dog, were last seen tossing in heavy seas before they drifted out of sight of land. A power boat manned by a volunteer crew bucked the seas and a 40-mile wind without getting a trace of the missing man.

Four grain freighters also had crews alerted in the vicinity where Misener was last seen but they reported no trace of him. One of the big freighters itself was in difficulty in the heavy seas and gale and had to heave to.

An airplane piloted by Keith Hopkinson of Goderich joined the search encountering a 60-mile gale at only 1,000 feet. Hopkinson said he circled a wide area 12 miles from shore without sighting the skiff.

Misener had been within 150 feet of shore when he was blown out onto the lake after shooting a duck Saturday morning. Two farm youths, Earl Martin, 21, and his brother, Gordon, 23, were first to attempt a rescue but their small craft was forced back in a sinking condition.

Seek Survivors Of Freighter In N. Nfld.

Halifax, Nov. 17 — (CP) — Struggling through a howling wind and lashing rain, a weary search party moved slowly along the shores of Pistolet Bay in Northern Newfoundland today in their search for the crew members of the abandoned British freighter Langleecrag.

Without contact with the outside world, the survivors of the 4,909-ton ship were huddled somewhere on the northeast shore of the bay as their wireless operator worked through the night to piece together a radio transmitter from parts salvaged from the broken ship yesterday.

However, residents of Ship Cove reported today that they had seen one flare shortly after midnight and a number of red, green and white flares about dawn from Sacred Island, east of Cape Bauld and northwest of Pistolet Bay. But the weather was too stormy for small boats to set out for the island to investigate.

Battered on the rocks where she ran aground in the early morning mists Saturday, the freighter had already broken in two and was being pounded to pieces.

Search parties from Quipon, on the opposite side of the isolated bay, worked slowly down the shoreline yesterday but reported no sign of the stranded sailors.

Last word received from the survivors was a report yesterday that said the ship's "sparks" put out alone to reboard the ship and salvage the radio transmitter.

As he returned to shore with his one remaining link with rescue forces racing to the men's aid by sea and land his frail craft was tossed against the rock shore and his radio apparently lost. Up to a late hour last night no further word had trickled into listening posts along the Atlantic seaboard.

Only one man was lost as the ship's company— possibly 30 men — launched their lifeboats and crashed ashore through the angry breakers.

FORMER PREMIER REYNAUD LIKELY TO FORM CABINET

Ramadier Will Resign Toward End of Week

Paris, Nov. 17 (AP) —Sources close to Premier Ramadier's office predicted today that former Premier Paul Reynaud would take over the reins of government before the end of the week and choose a new cabinet to succeed the present Socialist-headed coalition.

One informant said Ramadier was prepared to present his resignation to President Vincent Auriol as soon as Reynaud "is assured of the 310 votes necessary to give him a constitutional (absolute) majority" in the National Assembly.

Auriol, this source said, will then formally name the former wartime premier to constitute a new government.

Reynaud is expected to overcome the difficulties of establishing a majority in the National Assembly by basing his government as widely as possible, the source added.

He is already assured of Socialist and Mouvement Republicain Populaire support as well as the support of his Independent Republicans, it was said.

Persons close to Ramadier said he felt he should give way to a stronger government which could maintain Republican institutions in the face of assaults from the Communists and from Gen. Charles de Gaulle's Rassemblement du Peuple Francais (Rally of the French People —R.P.F.).

Ramadier was reported to have assured Reynaud, however, that he would be willing to serve in a new cabinet — perhaps as vice Premier.

Paris police, meanwhile, took special precautions to prevent a repetition of last week's bloody Marseille riots in Paris, where the newly-elected city council was scheduled to meet to name de Gaulle's brother as chairman —or mayor.

Freighter Ashore Near South Bay

Point Traverse, Nov. 17. (Special)—A Great Lakes freighter, registry and name unknown went aground off Petticoat Point near South Bay here today.

The big ship is lying about a quarter mile off shore and appears to be in no immediate danger. There was a light wind blowing, but it is felt by commercial fishermen here that if a strong breeze sets in, the ship's exposed position, might prove injurious to her.

The freighter, now awaiting the arrival of a salvage tug from Kingston, appears to be aground on a light shoal off the point. It was not ascertained whether she is loaded or light.

'Drastic Measures' Urged to Halt Rising U.S. Prices

Special Congress Session Given Combined Program

Washington, Nov. 17—(AP)—President Truman asked Congress today to restore authority for rationing important consumer goods and imposing wage ceilings once more.

The President handed his combined program for helping Europe and fighting inflation to the special session of Congress as it met to consider those two Allied problems.

The President laid down a 10-point program of what he called "drastic measures" to halt the tide of rising prices in the United States:

While urging continued voluntary attempts to combat inflation, Truman proposed that Congress legislate to:

1. Authorize "consumer rationing on products in short supply which basically affect the cost of living."
2. Authorize "price ceilings on products in short supply which basically affect the cost of living or industrial production and to authorize such wage ceilings as are essential to maintain the necessary price ceilings."
3. "Extend and strengthen rent control."
4. Authorize allocation and inventory control of scarce, cost-of-living commodities.
5. Authorize regulation of speculative trading on commodity exchanges.
6. Restore consumer credit controls and restrain inflationary bank credit.
7. Extend and strengthen export controls.
8. Continue authority to allocate transportation facilities and equipment.
9. Provide measures to induce livestock and poultry marketing so as to obtain the most efficient use of grain.
10. Allow the agriculture department to expand a program for encouraging conservation practices and authorize measures intended to step up foreign food production.

Truman addressed Congress in person at a time when, he said, "the future of the free nations of Europe hangs in the balance" and "the future of our own economy is in peopardy."

He repeated the administration's bid for $597,000,000 of interim aid to Italy, France and Austria through next March.

But here at home, he said, inflation is an "ominous threat" to prosperity. It no longer can be treated as "some vague condition we may encounter in the future."

Inflation already is here "to an alarming degree" and it is "getting worse."

Accordingly the President set forth his program to combat it by three types of measures:

To relieve monetary pressures; to channel scarce goods into most essential uses; to deal directly with specific high prices.

Elaborating on his proposals for authority to restore rationing and price controls, the President said ceilings should be permissible on "vital commodities in short supply that basically affect the cost of living."

Basic Element in Living Costs

Food, clothing, fuel and rent were basic elements in living costs.

In addition, the legislation he wanted from Congress should be broad enough to allow imposition of price ceilings on scarce vital commodities basically affecting industrial output.

"This will enable us to stamp out profiteering and speculation in these important areas."

He said that this does not mean that price ceilings should be imposed on all items in the classes he mentioned. Ceilings would not be necessary, for example, for staple food and clothing items

'Thousands' of Jap Mines to Sweep B.C. Coast in Next Two Years

By WILLIAM BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Esquimalt, B. C., Nov. 17 — (CP) — Japanese mines now are said to menace Canada's Pacific coastline and shipping plying the route, but Royal Canadian Navy forces assigned to guard them say they are hard put to do much about the situation.

Told last week by its scientific advisers that "thousands" of Japanese mines likely will sweep up along the Vancouver Island and mainland coasts during the next two years, the navy high command surveyed the much-thinned-out resources it had to deal with the threat.

One senior officer said:

"It looks as if we might even have to equip the fishing fleet with rifles and get them to dispose of the mines for us as they appear."

The navy has upwards of 3,000 miles of indented coastline to guard with three commissioned vessels — a handy Fairmile motor launch known as H.M.C.S. Q-124, the destroyer Crescent and the frigate Antigonish. The Fairmile is said to be the most effective

The Crescent and the Antigonish are too large, not manoeuvrable enough for minesweeping and too expensive to operate.

In reserve at Esquimalt are a cruiser, three destroyers, three frigates and three minesweepers.

Of the minesweepers the officer said they could not bring them out of reserve without a change of the national defence policy which laid them up.

Caught in a pennywise peacetime policy, officers say they are unable to lay real plans to deal with the threat.

Officers have worked out an approximate cost of $2,000 a day, including crew's pay, food, vessel depreciation, for the operation of a destroyer, $1,700 for a frigate and $700 for a Fairmile. Economically, Fairmiles appear to them as their best bet.

It was the lack of immediate resources at the navy's disposal which prompted the senior officers to suggest arming the fisher fleet. Hundreds of these craft, watching with the navy and ready to act on sighting mines, might compensate for the lack of service ships.

His Majesty May Award Order of Merit to Prime Minister Mackenzie King

By JOHN DAULPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 17 (CP)—United Kingdom sources hinted today at the possibility of honors being awarded by the King to eminent commonwealth citizens, perhaps including Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada, to mark the Royal Wedding, Thursday.

These sources said it was obviously impossible to anticipate the King's personal decisions and confirmation of their suggestion must await official publication of any awards made. Presumably such publication would be in the London Gazette.

It was recalled, however, that Prime Minister Smuts of South Africa received the Order of Merit in last January's' Honors list. If an award is made to the Canadian Prime Minister, it is considered likely that it will be to this select order whose membership is limited to 24.

The O.M. and the Companionate of Honor, limited to 50 persons, confer no title or precedence. They are given as a special distinction for service to the United Kingdom and the Commonwealth with statesmen, servicemen and authors now among the members.

The Prime Minister would become the only Canadian to receive the O.M. if the hints are true. While it is well-known that the Canadian government is opposed to the idea of granting Canadians honor bearing titles, belief was expressed here that he probably would feel able to accept the O.M., the highest award in the King's bestowal which does not involve a title.

The O.M. has military and civil sections and Smuts is the only Commonwealth member.

Mr. King, who arrived back in Britain Sunday from a brief trip to The Netherlands, went to Buckingham Palace today bearing Canada's wedding gift to Princess Elizabeth.

In addition to the fur coat which is Canada's official present, the Prime Minister carried with him a piece of silver as a token of an antique silver set being selected by the Princess as a further gift from the Dominion.

The Prime Minister also took along, on behalf of the Canadian Legion, a replica of the Legion's badge in diamonds.

He was expected to remain for lunch and see other wedding presents to the Princess, who marries Lieut. Philip Mountbatten, Thursday. It will be his opportunity to give the royal couple a personal invitation to visit Canada. When he arrived in Britain Nov. 6 he said he would press strongly that they visit the Dominion as soon as convenient.

The Prime Minister is recovering from a slight cold.

Ottawa, Nov. 17 (CP)—Government sources here had no information on reports from London indicating that Prime Minister Mackenzie King may be awarded the Order of Merit by the King to mark the Royal wedding.

ITALIAN GOVT. STRENGTHENING NATIONAL POLICE

Ready for Any Blow Against Democracy

Rome, Nov. 17 (AP) — The Italian government, plagued by widespread political disorders which have claimed ten lives in the past week, moved swiftly today to strengthen the national police force and announced it was prepared to "deal energetically with any assault on Democracy."

Mario Scelba, Minister of the Interior, disclosed the strength of the Carabinieri was being increased from 65,000 to 75,000 men and said that all security forces were being overhauled and tightened.

Scelba's statement coincided with a new blast against Premier de Gasperi's Christian Democratic government by Communist leader Palmiro Togliatti, who dedeclared in a speech at Milan that the government was toadying to "foreigners" and was "allied to the neo-Fascists."

"All who think to recreate Fasicism in Italy must take into account the organized force of labor," Togliatti said.

"Naturally," he added, "the Italian situation is linked to the international situation, where there is accentuated the contrast between Democratic, Progressive Social forces and the most reactionary imperialistic groups."

Italian press dispatches, meanwhile, reported fresh disorders yesterday in several small communties in the vicinity of Rome Siena and Venice.

Rightist followers accused the Communists of fomenting the disorders to embarrass the government, while the Communist party blamed the government for the rioting.

Dispatches from Venice said that 200 Leftists had wrecked the offices of the avowedly-Fascist Italian Social movement and had broken up a Monarchist meeting in a theatre.

At Prato Carnico in the northeastern province of Udine, according to another Venice dispatch, an unidentified man fired four pistol shots at the Communist Mayor without effect and then fled.

At Viterbo, north of Rome, demonstrators invaded and smashed up a headquarters of the Uomo Qualunque (Common Man) movement but were presented by police from wrecking the headquarters of the Italian Social movement.

At Chiusu, near Siena in Northern Italy, ex-partisans demanding the release of five arrested comrades, locked approaches to the town, the news agency Ansa reported.

Pacts Expected To Change Tariffs On Some 700 Items

Canadians Face Decrease In Standard of Living

Ottawa, Nov. 17 (CP)—Canada's Customs Act of 1907 and its accompanying schedule and revisions are expected to be practically rewritten through the 17 trade agreements which Canada signed at the Geneva trade conference and whose details will be made public tonight.

Guarded since their signing with as much secrecy as the budget, the agreements are expected to change tariffs on some 700 or more items, possibly eliminating tariffs on some and reducing them on others. Canada's whole international trade structure will be affected by the changes which will become effective Jan. 1.

It is also expected that certain big changes will come in the tariff structure in effect between Canada and the United States. The Dominion's heavy buying from her neighbor has piled up an adverse trade balance expected to reach close to $1,000,000,000 by the end of the year while Canada's supply of American dollars with which to meet this debt steadily dwindles.

Transport Minister Chevrier dealt with the adverse balance in a Saturday speech to the French Chamber of Commerce here. And he said that "substantial" increase in exports to the United States and limitation of imports was "the most efficient remedy to settle the dollar crisis."

The Minister also said that Canadians faced an "appreciable decrease" in their standard of living if Canada's adverse trade balance with the U.S. was to be remedied. A United States loan, he said, would be only a temporary expedient at best.

Referring directly to the Geneva trade agreements, the minister said that the state must encourage and guide international trade and it was in this spirit and with the determined intention to maintain Canada's position on world markets that the pacts were signed.

King to Broadcast

With release here of details of the trade treaties, Prime Minister Mackenzie King will make a broadcast from London over a National network of the CBC at 10:15 p.m. There are also unofficial reports that Finance Minister Abbott may go on the air after Mr. King, possibly to make some statement on Canada's adverse trade balance with the United States. This, however, could not be confirmed.

It is believed here that the trade agreements will disclose changes in possibly half of the intermediate tariff rates as well as a larger number of British preferential items. It is expected that the general rates will remain unchanged as a foreign country which has no trade agreement with Canada will not receive any benefit from the agreements.

The general rate is usually the highest and applies to goods from all countries which have no trade agreement with the Dominion, but this list is diminishing as new pacts are signed from time to time. However, neither Russia nor any of the former enemy countries have trade packs with Canada at present.

The intermediate tariff applies to all foreign countries which have trade agreements with Canada and these number about 30, including the United States, which entered a trade pact with this country in 1936. These agreements have a most-favored-nation clause which provides that if Canada reduced its tariffs against any one country, the reductions apply to all countries having agreements with the Dominion.

The British preferences are generally lower than the intermediate tariffs and are extended to all countries under the British Crown. Most favored foreign nations cannot claim reductions extended to countries within the Empire.

Excitement Over Royal Wedding Mounts as Crowned Heads Gather

London, Nov. 17 — (CP)—Britain's excitement over the wedding of Princess Elizabeth and Lieut. Philip Mountbatten mounted today with the big day but 72 hours away while Europe's crowned heads gathered for the greatest Royal assemblage since the coronation.

Already three kings, five queens, one royal pretender, one prince regent and one princess regent are here in addition to the British rulers, while a fourth king — Haakon of Norway — is expected today. In their wake came lesser royalty and many other distinguished figures.

As the captains and the kings gathered — guest rooms at Buckingham Palace were filled and the sleekest suites of exclusive West End hostelries were all in use — the common folk also jammed London which is expected to see its greatest crowd in years when the Princess and the King leave the palace for Westminster Abbey Thursday morning.

Few would see the actual ceremony but from all over Britain, the Commonwealth and the world they are surging into the capital to catch a glimpse of what they can.

As last minute preparations went forward at Buckingham Palace, Westminster Abbey and the honeymoon home at Romsey, Hampshire, today's major event was scheduled to be an afternoon party given by the King and Queen at St. James' Palace where 1,000 guests will view the wedding presents, still streaming in from all quarters of the globe.

Invited are plain people like members of Philip's skittles team from the pub at Corsham, Hampshire, where the bridegroom is stationed with the navy; and dignitaries like Prime Minister Mackenzie King and other Commonwealth leaders and representatives of foreign lands.

Scotland Yard, with the heaviest responsibility since wartime on its shoulders, had scores of special officers guarding the safety of this line-up of European royalty: King Frederick and Queen Ingrid of Denmark, King Peter and Queen Alexandra of Yugoslavia, King Michael and his mother, Queen Helen of Romania, Queen Frederika of the Hellenes, Queen Victoria Eugenie of Spain with her son, Don Juan and his duchess — the Spanish pretender and his consort travelled here as the Duke and Duchess of Barcelona — Princess Regent Juliana and Prince Bernhard of The Netherlands and Prince Regent Charles of Belgium.

Prince John and Princess Elizabeth of Luxembourg, Prince and Princess George of Greece and Princess Eugenie of Greece also are among guests here.

Meantime London is taking on gala dress — gay as austerity permits — in preparation for the wedding. Many more Union Jacks than usual are flying. Large photographs of the bridal couple are appearing in shop windows. Souvenirs — notably compacts with Elizabeth's likeness on the case— are on sale in gift shops. Many restaurant menus are topped by a picture of Philip and Elizabeth.

Body is Found Under Car Wheel Shot Thru Head

The rifle-blasted body of Eugene Way, naval war veteran son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Way, Bloomfield, was found in his car early Sunday morning near a farm close to Demorestville.

The young ex-sailor was found slumped under the wheel of the automobile with a .22 rifle which had been fired lying close by. No foul play is suspected according to reports from the scene of the accident. Way had been shot through the head.

The body was discovered shortly after seven o'clock in the morning by farmers, parents of a young lady with whom Way had been keeping company. It was not learned if an inquest would be held.

The young man had resided with his parents in Bloomfield. He served overseas with the Royal Canadian Navy during the latter years of the war.

City and District News

DISTRICT BLANKETED BY WHITE MANTLE

King Winter dropped in over the weekend for his first visit to the city and district, blanketing the countryside in a white mantle of snow.

The snow followed a course east from Toronto and other western points and accompanied by dropping temperature on Sunday morning made travelling hazardous.

City motorists had trouble negotiating hills as the streets were converted into slippery, treacherous surfaces.

Highways east and west of the city were also covered with a sheeting of snowy ice and transports had difficulty in making hills. Speed was reduced considerably and in some cases, drivers were halted.

TRACTOR DRIVER FACES DRUNK DRIVING CHARGE

That farm tractors are classed in the same category as automobiles insofar as drunk driving is concerned was discovered Friday evening by a Carrying Place farmer who found himself in the confines of the police station after being in a minor accident on Bridge Street. The Prince Edward county farmer was driving his tractor along East Bridge Street when he bumped into an auto.

Police arrested the man and charged him with drunken driving. He was released on bail this morning to appear in court Tuesday.

MRS. LLOYD HICKS SHOOTS 200-POUNDER

In between designing, building and assisting with the construction of speed-boats not to mention a few mechanics and driving, Mrs. Lloyd Hicks, Moira Street East, can take a turn at doing a spot of deer hunting.

At home with a rifle, Mrs. Hicks is now the centre of admiration of the hunting party with whom she is spending a few days near Millbridge.

For to her keen eye and unerring marksmanship went the first buck of the party to be shot, a 200-pound beauty.

Mrs. Hicks is with her husband and two friends in a camp in the north country and got her deer the second day in the runways. Now the men of the party, not to be outdone by one of the little women are out gunning daily for their share of the hunting spoils.

Mrs. Hicks is the first lady of the district to bring down her deer.

SCHOOLS WILL CLOSE ON WEDDING DAY PRINCESS ELIZABETH

On recommendation from members of the Belleville Board of Education at a special meeting held Friday evening, the public schools in the city and the Belleville Collegiate will be closed on November 20th, the day on which Princess Elizabeth is to be married.

Members voted that in view of the memorandum of the Hon. George A. Drew, Minister of Education, regarding the closing of schools, that public secondary and elementary schools be closed. Note was made of the quotation from Mr. Drew's letter: "If any school board desires to close its schools on that day, the pupils will be counted as having attended school for the purpose of computing grants."

LECTURE, STUDY CLUB TO BROADEN ACTIVITIES

Continuing its practice of sponsoring five lectures throughout the winter season, the Belleville Lecture and Study Club this winter will broaden its activities and will sponsor a series of round table discussions on local, national and international problems. These discussions will be broadcast over CJBQ.

Members of the Lecture and Study Club believe that these round table discussions will provide a sounding board for public opinion and will enable the club to stimulate an important phase of adult education.

Public School inspector for the South Hastings District, R. H. Macklem, is president of the Belleville Lecture and Study Club with G. E. Currie, as past president and Mrs. Alice Burr as recording secretary. Vice presidents are Mrs. F. R. Harback and N. A. Beach, Albert College. Treasurer is R. B. McCulloch.

BAY BRIDGE OPEN FOR VEHICULAR TRAFFIC

After several weeks in which the highway artery has been closed to traffic during the daylight hours while repairs to the structure have been underway, the Bay Bridge between Belleville and Rossmore this week was re-opened for traffic for the full 24-hour period

Closing of the bridge during the daylight hours was necessitated because of the need for resurfacing the bridge.

Now one half of the bridge has been asphalted and this portion of the bridge is being used by motorists while the other side is being done. Guards are stationed at both ends of the structure to direct traffic.

WHITEFISH, HERRING RUNS REPORTED GOOD

Christian Church Needs to Remold Civilization to Fulfill Its Mission

Rev. G. W. Goth, Montreal, Preaches at Bridge Street Church Anniversary

Declaring that civilization was the sick man of our time and that this self-sufficient age had reached the end of its resources after giving us war, insecurity and the atom bomb, Rev. George W. Goth, B.A., B.D., of Montreal, stated Sunday that the Christian Church was the one institution competent to lead this tottering world once more to high places.

As guest preacher for both morning and evening services at anniversary services in Bridge Street United Church, Mr. Goth said that present day humanistic emphasis had not carried the world to the promised land. "If the Church is to take a leader's role in the building of tomorrow's world it must do at least three things for civilization," he said.

First of these was that it must be the creator of civilization, pouring the stuff of life into the cold bones of the 20th century. "Our age needs to be remade — transfigured," stated the speaker. "The Church is the custodian of a truth which can release man and make him the master of events."

Church Must be Fearless

"Furthermore in an age when men and women are measuring their behavior by inadequate standards, the Church must hold high the ethics of the New Testament. It must be fearless of its enunciation of the Truth and also its condemnation of evil. It is the Church's task to be the conscience of civilization."

"Finally, the Church ought to be the judge of civilization bringing to the people who have turned in upon themselves the perspectives of the Kingdom of God. It can perform this role by involving itself in man's struggles and hopes. It can lift and redeem this age by its own ineffable goodness even as the Master on being lifted up drew all men unto Himself.

For his evening sermon Mr. Goth chose the subject, "Victims or Victors."

Bridge Street Church was well filled for the anniversary services which marked the 132nd anniversary of the founding of the Church. Rev. Donald C. Amos, minister, was in charge of both services with Mr. Goth as the special speaker.

Special Music

Special music was rendered by the church choir under the direction of Miss Leona Riggs with Alec S. Gordon at the organ. During the morning service John W. Deacon sang "If, with all your heart . . ." from "Elijah" by Mendolssohn, while a women's chorus was featured during the evening service.

On Friday evening various families of the church congregation attended an anniversary supper party where a potluck supper was enjoyed. Taylor Franklin led in a sing song with Alec Gordon at the piano. As part of the program pictures of the old Bridge Street Church and former members of the congregation were shown.

One of the features of the evening was a presentation by Geo. Hatton of a lovely bouquet to Mr. and Mrs. Amos on the occasion of their seventh wedding anniversary.

Winners Selected In Townships' Speaking Contests

The Thurlow Public Speaking Group held their contest recently in Cannifton school. The thirteen contestants were encouraged by a large audience. Since the contestants were divided into a junior and senior group (two prizes being given for each group), the judges, Rev. Trampour, Mr. Philips and Mrs. Arthur Boldrick had an exacting decision to make.

Mr. Harry Harrison, Reeve of Thurlow, conducted the proceedings with the contestants in the following order: Gerald Badgley, Gr. 6, of S. S. 17 speaking on "Our Forests"; Mary Ellis, Gr. 6, S. that are not scarce, or for delicacies or luxuries. And the same kind of selection would apply to industrial items.

Truman said he thought that even should shortages of a few commodities at the consumer level remain serious for a while he believes that fair distribution can be accomplished largely without consumer rationing.

Shortages

But no one can tell how serious some shortages might become, so rationing authority should be on hand.

Price inflation was having "harsh effects" on wage earners, farmers and business men. The housewife for instance, pays $10 today for food that cost $7 about 1 1-2 years ago.

Since mid-1946, the cost of living has risen an average of 23 per cent, fuel 13 per cent, clothing 19, food 40.

Furthermore price inflation "threatens our entire program of foreign aid."

Misuse of Confidence Stated as Reason For Dalton "Leak"

New York, Nov. 17 (CP) — Hugh Dalton's resignation as Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer has presented the Labor movement a "grave crisis" after the storm is weathered, a "period of vital decisions must be faced that may tear the ... movement apart," The New York Times said today in a London dispatch.

Sir Stafford Cripps' appointment to Dalton's post, in addition to his duties as Economics Minister, has committed the Labor party "to a policy of the right," said The Times story, written by Herbert L. Matthews, the newspaper's political correspondent.

In selecting Sir Stafford for the Chancellorship, Matthews wrote, Prime Minister Attlee had the approval of Foreign Secretary Bevin and Herbert Morrison, Deputy Prime Minister, but not of several other cabinet ministers inclined to the left.

On the incident which led to Dalton's resignation Thursday a "leak" the previous day to a newspaper man about the interim budget the former chancellor was about to bring down in the Commons, The Times Story said:

"Dalton ... ran into his old friend John C. Carvel, lobby correspondent of the London Star.

"Dalton, in his jovial way, threw his arm around Carvel's shoulder and walked along the corridor to the chamber with him. Knowing Carvel's love of a 'nip' now and then, he said to him: 'John, your whiskey is going to cost you a bit more from now on. You'll have to pay a penny more for your beer, too.'

Scott, Lee, McCabe and Miller Party Loses Two Dogs And Secures but One Deer in Hunt

"Nothing was right. The breaks were all against us. The deer were so plentiful that they left tracks like a small herd of cattle, yet we only came out with one. We lost two valuable dogs say plenty of bear and wolf tracks but the fortunes of the hunt were against us."

That is the mournful plaint of Dr. Russell Scott, Jack Lee, Herb McCabe and Bill Miller (Mountain View) who arrived in the city on Sunday after a week spent in their hunting lodge that borders the National Park.

Hunters all around the quartet got their kills. Deer roamed the forests in the vicinity but Miller was the only one to get his buck.

On one occasion the dogs flushed a trio of the animals. A shot rang out and two deer went into the lake while the other disappeared in a thicket. On another occasion, one of the hunters fired four shots into a magnificent buck, and although they followed the blood trail were unable to locate the wounded animal.

Bear and wolf tracks were numerous. The guide related the story of how the animals are ruining apple and other fruit trees on the widely-scattered farms in the vicinity.

"One farmer," he said, "in an effort to save some of his fruit, picked the apples and put them in the hay loft in his barn. The next morning the door had been broken down and there was evidence of a bear or bears climbing into the loft and gorging themselves on the picked fruit. According to the guide one of the bears had climbed up the barn side and entered through an open trap door. A trap set that night caught the Bruin neatly and that was the end of the nocturnal visits of the furry apple thieves.

Lost Two Dogs

The quartet lost two two of 4 dogs they took back with them, and as is usually the case, the dogs were better trained of the four. It is believed that the dogs flushed a deer, another hunting party shot the animal, fed the dogs and they followed the hunters to their camp.

Further evidence of the bad hunting luck that dogged the hunters came when a magnificent buck stood on a nearby hill plainly outlined against the sky, and the hunter's rifle jammed. Before he could get it in working order the deer had disappeared in the woods.

The quartet also brought back the story of a lady hunter who had wounded a deer and which had taken to the water. She raced back to the cabin to get more shells and returned to wait the landing of the deer. Even as she watched, a motor-driven boat loaded with hunters rounded a point in the lake. There were quick shots, and before she could raise her voice the men had retrieved the deer from under her very nose, so to speak, and made off with the kill.

"It was disappointing to say the least," Jack Lee sighed, this morning, "but surely luck like that can't last forever. We'll have a roast of venison each, and maybe go back next weekend to see if we can get our quota."

Road Conditions Responsible For Minor Accidents

Slippery street and highway conditions were responsible for several minor accidents over the weekend, it was reported today by both city and provincial police. Fortunately, however, no one was injured in any of the accidents.

In the city motorists found difficulty in negotiating many of the steeper grades as the light fall of snow resulted in slippery conditions. Murney Hill on Bridge St., West, was possibly the worst offender in this respect as throughout the day motorists attempting to negotiate the hill at slow speed were forced to back down the grade and make another try.

During late afternoon conditions eased a bit as snow on the roadway turned to slush and later the hill was sanded by the public works department.

Today Police Chief Walter Probert appealed to motorists as well as to pedestrians to exercise greater care in driving or walking and thus avoid accidents as result of slippery street conditions.

Bus Company Gets Taken for Ride

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 11—(AP) — Peoria's Bus Company got taken for a ride today. The company issues weekly passes for $1 which entitle adults to ride at any time — and the passes are transferable. Children under six don't have to pay.

Mrs. Minnie Graham, a kingarten teacher, had promised ed her 50 charges a trip downtown. She borrowed a fellow teacher's pass for herself and herded the 50 children to the nearest bus. She got the children aboard, showed the driver her pass and told him the youngsters were all under six.

The kids had a wonderful time downtown. Then they returned to school — on another city bus and again free of charge.

Laymen Take Part in Service

Men and Missions Day was observed in Victoria Avenue Baptist Church on Sunday with several of the laymen taking part in the services. In the morning W. G. Smith, President of the Brotherhood, was in charge. A series of short talks dealing with "Missionary Motives" were given by the men under the following topics: "I Am a Debtor" by Lloyd Faulkner, "A Good Investment," by H. R. Fox, "Missions Pay Dividends" by R. V. Hannis and "To be Christian is to be Missionary" by the Reverend H. O. Eastman.

Lloyd Faulkner stated that we, who are Christian, owe a debt of gratitude to those who brought the Gospel to us, thereby making it possible for us to know the saving grace of Jesus. He said that this debt could be paid by our interest and contribution to missions, so that the Gospel could be brought to others.

A story was told by H. R. Fox of a young farmer, called John White, who was convicted of murder through circumstantial evidence. Protesting his innocence he was led to the scaffold but was miraculously saved when the noose broke. His sentence was commuted to life imprisonment but a few months later another man confessed on his death-bed to the crime for which John White had been sentenced. The young man was released and went back to his former work on the farm. One night in a dream he saw a vision of Jesus and he decided to invest his all to study to be a missionary. He spent many years in North China and was the means of leading thousands of Chinese to Christ.

"As they advanced from island to island our Allied forces in the Pacific saw missions from a different viewpoint than we at home," stated R. V. Hannis. "Fliers forced down and lost in the jungle and shipwrecked sailors washed up on strange shores, were rescued and led to safety by natives who once were headhunters but who had been converted by Christian missionaries. Wherever missionaries had been they saw native people that were clean and intelligent. They saw missions in reverse as Christian natives set example in righteous living before white men, many of whom had no Christian profession." Mr. Hahnis further stated that the only defence against the atomic bomb was the Bible, because it had the power to change the hearts of men.

"To be a Christian is to be a missionary," said Rev. H. O. Eastman. "Sometimes I meet a Christian who does not believe in missions. It makes me wonder if such a one knows the mind of Jesus. Dr. Merrick of Bolivia says: 'We have prayed for a doctor. Now we have a young Bolivian, a graduate of the university at LaPaz, but we have not the money to pay his salary'. This is a challenge to us. Most of us are not able to go as missionaries to foreign fields; but we can dedicate ourselves and use our money as God directs us."

James Fox read the scripture lesson and the pastoral prayer was given by R. L. Orr. A vocal solo, "Lord I Want to be a Christian," was sung by A. H. Wynne.

In the evening the pastor spoke on the theme "The New Day" with deacons Eric Naylor, F. H. Chesher and Bob Turner assisting in the service. A picture by Sallman, "Christ at Dawn," was shown on the screen and interpretation given by the pastor.

with fine flat chasing; three fivelight candelabra with octagonal baluster on square concave bases; and a set of six candlesticks.

The gleaming silver attracted a continuous stream of admirers and also focussed attention on a four-drawer walnut chest directly underneath a glass case containing a complete canteen of silver cutlery.

The entire display is of British manufacture purchased here by the Canadian government, but a printed sign underneath mentioned the Canadian-made full-length mink coat flown to Britain and delivered at Buckingham Palace today by Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada.

An official said he thought it was "tactful" of the Canadian government to make the Princess a gift of "some of Britain's finest manufacturers" in addition to their native product of the mink coat.

"The Princess went into raptures over the silverware," he said, "and though perhaps I should not say it, she is simply thrilled with the mink coat."

In an adjacent room, one of five given over entirely to the gifts, was a white hand-decorated casket containing, a pendant and ear-rings from the Local Council of Women from Brantford, Ont., and a display of 12 pairs of nylon stockings from the Shilo Ladies' Club of Manitoba.

Among other gifts were a selection of blankets bound with satin from the Canadian Woollen and Knit Goods Manufacturers Association, and a silver casket fitted as a jewel case from the Argyll and Southerland Highlanders of Canada.

Others are en route and hundreds of small personal gifts received included tokens from men and women in Canada as well as from all the Commonwealth countries.

"Unfortunately, it was found impossible to give full identification to the gifts," the official added, "In many cases we received no addresses of donors."

The gifts were growing so numerous that a sixth room in the Palace may soon be opened to accommodate them.

Scores of detectives and representatives of the Crown jewellers, working in relays, kept an unbroken watch over the gifts and special attention was given to the magnificent ruby-and-diamond necklace from the King and Queen.

FRANCIS REID
A Pioneer in the AO Belleville Plant

Yes, Miss Frances Reid is a real pioneer in the Belleville plant of American Optical Company Canada Limited. She came with us 24 years ago, shortly after the plant started operations, and over the years has established herself as a most efficient, loyal and cooperative employee. Her length of service proves one important fact: we like her and she likes us.

Recently plans were formulated to create an organization to honor AO employees for their years of loyal and faithful service. Called the Ten and Fifteen Club, the new group selected for its secretary and treasurer the most logical choice. Yes, it was Miss Reid, and you can be sure they won't regret their selection.

Miss Reid has charge of AO production control records. Shown above at her desk, she enters lens orders in record books, posts the shipments after the lenses are manufactured, expedites special rush prescription orders. Her bookkeeping requires absolute accuracy because annually we produce many lenses of different foci, curves and additions.

Interested in missionary work, Miss Reid is secretary of the Evening Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary, Christ Church, which devotes itself to such activities. She likes to view sports but her main hobby is attending the movies, her favorite actor being Fred Astaire.

Frances Reid is representative of AO Belleville people who realize they have a stake in Canadian industry. She believes in the teamwork that has made AO one of Belleville's leading industries. Belleville can indeed be proud of Miss Reid and her fellow-employees. Good citizens all, they have helped American Optical Company Canada Limited establish itself also as a good citizen and a good neighbor, ever-conscious of its responsibilities to the community and to the ophthalmic professions it serves.

Helicopter

The helicopter has been one of the wonders of the modern world, and one of the greatest as it has with the plane opened up an entire new world, that of the air. The spurt of aviation which came with the concentration of effort on the production of planes and new devices during the war led men to foresee an immense development in the after-war period. That it is being achieved everyone knows.

The helicopter has conquered the imagination and man predicts a great future. Igor I. Sikorsky, the great Russian inventor, in Toronto at the weekend, predicted its use in projects of making rain and in opening up Canada's north country. The helicopter he sees as occupying a very important place in taxiing passengers to and from airports. Another use he foresees is its use in fogs in carrying airline passengers to their destination if their planes are prevented landing by fogs.

He sees a future of hundreds of thousands of helicopters in the air over Canada and the United States.

The helicopter has intrigued man with its possibilities and he would be a foolish man who would venture an opinion against the magnitude of plane and helicopter developments in the future.

Centennial of Hymn

Many of the hymns of the Christian Church were written centuries ago and live today in translation into modern tongues and are still sung at religious services. There are also mell-known modern hymns and probably the one which has brought the greatest consolation to people in the English-speaking world is "Abide With Me," written one hundred years ago by the Rev. Henry Francis Lyte, an Anglican clergyman. Other familiar hymns of his are "Pleasant Are Thy Courts Above," "Jesus, I My Cross Have Taken," "Far From My Heavenly Home," "God of Mercy, God of Grace,' 'and "Praise, My Soul, The King of Heaven."

The hymn's universal appeal is known to every churchgoer in the beauty of its sentiment of the abiding presence of Christ in the lives of His followers at all times and in the sense of their trust and dependence upon Him. The sincerity of its expression has been felt by Christians ever since the hymn was written.

In thousands of churches in the English-speaking world the anniversary of the centennial of "Abide With Me" was observed and a memorial tablet was placed in Westminster Abbey in the Poet's Corner in memory of the author.

Approach of Festive Season

An item of news from the Saint John Telegraph-Journal brings up the perennial question of the approach of Christmas. The newspaper pointed out that "the evergreens that New Brunswick farmers trade for greenbacks have a way of turning up in U. S. living-rooms despite all handicaps. If as predicted, 400 carloads go from this province, it means an export of about 800,000 trees, because a single flat car can carry 2,000 of the tightly-bundled fir and spruce."

That brings up the question that with the first definite evidence of snow that winter has come, Christmas is just a short time away, about five and a half weeks.

The tardy spring, the partly cool summer and the delightful period of the months of September and October and of the first part of November have tended to distract attention from the fact that the year is moving swiftly onward to the great Christmas festival.

So salespeople and buyers will have to carry on trading in a briefer spell of time than in other years when people had a long time of cold before the winter solstice to think about the celebration of the festive season.

Modern business however is very flexible and can do a tremendous amount of trading in four or five weeks. It is accustomed to handling rush of trade very effectively, though the principle stands, that he is the wise buyer who buys early and avoids the rush.

Business anticipates such events and therefore is ready. Its plans are laid long ahead and anticipation of a happy Christmas is not to be disappointed.

Considerable buying already has appeared in Canada as friends have been getting ready parcels for Britain. In the United States gift trains are proceeding across the country to the east coast ports for shipment to European lands in need of food.

World Population

World population is rising. Today the population stands at 2,250,000,000 and by the end of 1955 it is said that it will reach 2,438,000,000, according to a forecast in a study made by the United States State Department. According to these figures a fifth of the human race chiefly in Western Europe has a stable or slowly rising population trend. In Eastern and South Europe, Russia and Japan, another fifth of the race, has declining death as well as birth rates and the remaining three-fifths of mankind (Asia, Africa and Latin America) have greatly decreased death rates as well as maintaining steady birth rates.

Millions died directly or indirectly as result of World War II but the population of the world is higher than it was at the beginning of the struggle.

One of the indications of the world trend is a declining death rate. That means that people are living longer. The life expectancy now is higher than it ever was. This is due largely to the greater knowledge and application of health laws. On many occasions of late the question of the growing average age of the population has been considered, as it brings up one of the problems of sociology concerning the care of the elderly and their part in production. There was a time when a man on the average faced the possibility of not reaching even the fifties. But today there are patriarchs in the world in many lands.

Science will play a part in solving the economic problem of the world population which is showing the tendency of becoming older on the average. It has made possible greater populations with modern invention and discoveries as it has added to the average length of life and to human enjoyment, knowledge and experience.

Splendid Record of R.M.C.

The last estimate is that 114 graduates of the Royal Military College lost their lives during the most recent war, with a total of 1,358 ex-cadets known to have been on active service. Of this number, 961, or approximately 71 per cent, held commissions in the Canadian Army. Of these 252—or approximately 26.1 per cent — served with the Royal Canadian Artillery. Sixty-nine graduates were engaged in special war work.

During the war, 200 graduates of Canada's only military academy held the rank of colonel and above or equivalent rank. Twenty-nine ex-cadets attained the rank of general.

Approximately 50 per cent of all graduates who served in World War II earned decorations. In all, some 677 awards, including mentions in despatches, went to R.M.C. graduates.

The honors included one Victoria Cross, 78 Distinguished Service Orders with three bars, 89 awards of Officer of the British Empire, 27 Military Crosses with two bars, 16 Distinguished Flying Crosses with two bars, two George Medals and 100 foreign orders. — Brockville Recorder and Times.

Men Won't Carry Pocket Books

Something called the Fashion Foundation recommends that men carry "pocket books like women's" instead of using their pockets for "odds and ends." It wouldn't work. The methodical man, with 12 to 15 pockets at his disposal, has a place for everything and everything in its place, says Ottawa Journal. But dump into a purse such items as pipe, tobacco pouch, cigarettes, money, pen-knife, keys, wallet, handkerchief, old letters, pencils and pen, matches, and the poor fellow would be reduced to hopeless confusion.

JUST FOLKS

NOT MECHANICAL

Though fifty years have come and gone
Since first I put a ribbon on,
I've never learned, as typists do,
Just how to change the old for new.
Though oft the feat performed I've seen,
No art have I with a machine.

My grandpa, dead these many years,
Loved things requiring cogs and gears.
He had a most inventive mind,
To curious gadgets was inclined,
But though it might have been his will,
He left to me no trace of skill.

"'Tis easy!" I have heard them tell,
Who manage the achievement well,
But I, who such assurance lack,
Wind up with palms and fingers black
And smudges on my brow and cheek,
Which to remove will take a week.

So helpless through the world to go!
So little of its things to know!
So oft for help to stand and wait,
Has taught to me this lesson great—
Far more than text and preaching can:
How much I need my fellow man.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Why is the American flag called Old Glory?

The American flag is supposed to have been christened "Old Glory" by William Driver (1803-1886), a native of Salem, Mass.

According to tradition, Driver became a master mariner in 1824 on his 21st birthday and his mother and other ladies made and presented him a beautiful American flag on the occasion.

On August 10, 1831, Driver was placed in command of the brig "Charles Doggett' at Salem. Captain Driver had his own flag hoisted to the masthead of the ship and when he saw the flag unfurl in the breeze he exclaimed: "There it is — Old Glory! I name thee Old Glory." Thereafter the captain always referred to his own flag as Old Glory.

His first voyage as captain of the "Charles Doggett" was to the Pacific. A year earlier the settlement on Pitcairn Island, established by some of the mutineers of the "Bounty," was broken up because of a food shortage caused by drouth. The settlers moved to Tahiti but because of sickness and unfavorable conditions they wanted to return to the island they had abandoned, and Captain Driver took them — 63 in number — back to Pitcairn.

When Captain Driver, who sailed twice around the world and once around Australia, retired from the sea he settled at Nashville, Tenn. He kept his old flag — Old Glory — through the years and on special occasions had it flown from a staff in front of his house. When Tennessee joined the Confederacy in 1861, Driver remained loyal to the Union and his Federal flag was offensive to the Confederates. Governor Isham G. Harris sent officers to seize the flag but Driver refused to give it up on the ground that they were without search warrants. He then concealed the flag by having it sewed up in a bedquilt, saying to his family that the North would win the war and he would yet see Old Glory floating over the Tennessee statehouse.

Federal troops under General William Nelson occupied Nashville February 25, 1868, and a troop of soldiers under Lieutenant Thatcher helped Captain Driver raise Old Glory over the capitol of Tennessee amidst the cheers of the troops and loyal citizens present. Twenty-four years later Driver died at the age of 83 and was buried in the City Cemetery at Nashville.

Gradually "Old Glory" became a rival of the "Star Spangled Banner" and "The Stars and Stripes" as a poetic nickname of the United States flag.

The original Old Glory was presented to the Smithsonian Institution during the administration of President Harding and is now in the National Museum at Washington.

90 Young People To Compete for Dominion Honors

Toronto, Nov. 17 — (CP)—City lights have little attraction for many boys and girls born and bred on the farm. At least, that is the opinion of the majority of 90 young people here from all parts of Canada to compete today for Dominion honors in boys' and girls' farm club competitions held in conjunction with the Royal Winter Fair, opening Tuesday.

Even though they might have always wanted to see an esculator or a museum, most freely admitted that the "big city" has not the appeal of rural life, in spite of an average 14-hour farm work day and a hand-operated pump.

All champions in their own right, the boys and girls have won regional or provincial agricultural competitions and are termed "the brightest young people in Canada" by A. E. MacLaurin, general secretary of the Canadian Council on boys' and girls' club work.

Most of the boys and girls admitted they were nervous about the results of the competitions, so they reported for bed at an early hour last night.

"We're representing the whole province and we want to do our best," said Christene Cameron of Caldonia, P.E.I.

As soon as the competitions are over, the group, consisting of 33 girls and 57 boys, will tour meat packing plants, farm machinery factories, study the Royal Winter Fair exhibits, go to Niagara Falls, and visit Ottawa where they will be greeted by the Governor General and Lady Alexander.

They are looking forward to the trips and tours, mostly because it gives them a chance to learn more about agriculture and get to know other young people from different parts of Canada.

"Trips of this kind help us get rid of provincialism," said 16-year-old Anita Simpson, whose family lives on a poultry farm on the outskirts of Sydney, N.S.

Doris Kirkpatrick, of Paris, Ont., said all farmers should be forced to kill as many weeds as possible on their farm property.

Despising Our Gold

(Ottawa Journal Editorial)

E. Lang Millar, president of the board of directors of Wright-Hargreaves Mines Limited, said at the annual board meeting that the Canadian gold mining industry is now operating at 50 per cent. of its pre-war capacity. Said he:

"While all other industries and employment are at their all-time peak, tonnage and development in the mining industry are far below the anticipated post-war level."

While the president of the Wright-Hargreaves mine was revealing this condition, extraordinary in the light of what it means, the Northern Miner was saying this:

"Macassa follows Central Patricia in cutting out disbursements. Within a year Bralorne, Paymaster, Sheep Creek, Silbak, Toburn, Young Davidson, companies which had paid dividends in 1946, have joined the ranks of non-payers. The year before Buffalo-Ankrite, Siscoe, Broulan, had to quit. There are very few dividend-payers left among the gold mines of Canada, and almost without exception those remaining have been forced to reduce their payments some by as much as three-quarters of their former rate."

Nor is this the whole story. In addition, there are scores of smaller mines which since the war's end have either been operating at a loss or barely paying operating expenses, while one by one prospecting and exploration enterprises have been holding up. Today, in truth, not merely has the number of active mining companies in Canada declined to about 50 per cent. of what it was in 1946, the prospector has disappeared.

During 1942, gold mines distributed $34 million in dividends; this year the amount will be $14 million—much of it out of past earnings. The grave thing, however, is not in the loss of dividends, but in the loss of national moral and confidence, plus the threat of loss to tens of thousands of people in once-prosperous and hopeful communities. It was in what it meant to the development of communities, in what it meant in work and wages and purchasing power throughout the country in allied industries, and in what it meant also in steadying international balances, that gold mining was important.

For more than two years we have had Government talk about "doing something for gold". It has never got beyond talk. Either our planners, who sometimes seem to take in the affairs of the whole world, have been incapable of devising aid, or they have been unware of its need. Even when devaluation of the Canadian dollar placed the gold industry in a worse state than before, they could do nothing but continue their promising.

It is all one of the most deplorable and discreditable things in our post-war economy.

Husband and Wife Injured, Automobile Stops of Itself

The car stopped by itself.

COMPULSORY VACCINATION

My belief and opinion is that vaccination, inoculation with the virus of cowpox, is practically an absolute protection against smallpox, and therefore I advise everybody to be vaccinated. The best time for vaccination is infancy, say at the age of four to six months. But if vaccination has not been successful at that time, it may or should be done at any time in life (a) before the individual travels far from home or (b) immediately if or when an outbreak of smallpox occurs in the community or neighboring community.

Believing as I do that vaccination is virtually absolute protection against smallpox, I think that those of us who are vaccinated have nothing to fear if certain individuals in the community or visiting or travelling through or working or playing in our neighborhood are not vaccinated and therefore may come down with smallpox. That is too bad for them, but we are immune, thanks to vaccination, so we need not worry about it.

Carrying this line of reasoning to its logical conclusion I say it it not only absurb to compel any one to submit to vaccination against his or her will—provided he or she is adult and not feeble-minded or insane, but it is unjust.

The safe and sane attitude for honest physicians and health authorities to take in regard to vaccination is this: Here it is, folks. Come and get it. We believe in it for ourselves and our families and advise you to be well vaccinated. If you don't believe in it, that's your privilege. What may happen to you because you are not vaccinated is none of our business.

If any physician, health authority, epidemologist can point out an error in my belief and opinion about compulsory vaccination, I'll be glad to print his or her statement here, if it is not too long, with or without identifying the author, as he or she permits.

I am sincere about this, and I mean just that.

I believe that more harm than good is done the health of the public and the public health administration and the medical profession by school board and health board officers who persecute people in the community under the pretense of enforcing the law— when the wretched law gives these politicians the power to arrest parents who fail to send children to school, on the one hand, and to exclude children from school, if they are not vaccinated, on the other hand. That little trick of the law is something decent people should strive to erase, not honor by observance.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Yankee Scandinavia

We allowed our twelve year old daughter to be tested for tuberculosis at school. They claimed she gave a positive reaction. We didn't believe it, took her to child specialist who made X-rays of her lungs and said they were clear. But two weeks later he called to tell us he had asked a tuberculosis specialist to interpret the X-ray pictures and he said the pictures show active tuberculosis in one lung and that our daughter must rest most of the time in bed for a year. (H.W.S.)

Answer — So the school doctors and their tuberculin test were right in the first place. Your "specialist" muffed it impressively didn't he? It should be lesson to you and millions of other people who are dazzled by the "specialist" label. They are plenty of good doctors, just plain family doctors, in your community — why not quit messing around with trick "specialists" and place your daughter under the care of a real doctor?

Rose Cold in Any Other Season

Several years ago I wrote to you about my Rose Cold and you suggested a course of calcium and vitamin D supplementation of my diet for several weeks in advance of the season. I followed the suggestion with the happiest results. Have kept practically free from the trouble every season since except when I forgot the calcium and D one spring until the trouble was on me. It has only now occurred to me that I have never reported my experience or expressed my thanks. (R.J.D.)

Answer — Thank you, sir. On written request (no cliping) any reader who provides stamped self addressed envelope, may have the pamphlet on Hay Fever or the pamphlet on Asthma, either of which tells how to supplement the diet with calcium and vitamin D. If you ask for both pamphlets inclose ten cents.

Varicose Veins

Our doctor say "no" to injection treatment for varicose veins, for there is only a fifty-fifty chance of cure and you have to go to a hospital for injection treatment. (R.B.)

Answer — Rarely is hospitalization required, and the chance of cure is at least as good as with any other known method of treatment. Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing for pamphlet on Varicose Veins.

Pea-Soup Fog May Blanket London On Wedding Day

London, Nov. 15 (AP)—There's a possibility, although no weather forecaster is saying so out loud just yet, that London may be blanketed by one of those pea-soup fogs on Princess Elizabeth's wedding day, Nov. 20.

The weathermen noted that Nov. 20 was foggy in six of the last 15 years and rainy in seven of the remaining 10, but a Buckingham Palace spokesman declared: "Fog or no fog, the wedding goes on."

One dignitary in the Lord Chamberlain's office choked at the very thought of fog on W-Day, remarking with a shudder: "It's too horrible to contemplate."

Yes . . . Sir Oliver

THERE WAS ROOM

SIR OLIVER MOWAT
Premier and Attorney General of Ontario, 1872 to 1896. First President of The Imperial Life.

"The projectors of The Imperial Life thought, in view of the great amount of life insurance business done and to be done in the future, that there was room for another Canadian Life Insurance Company."

Sir Oliver Mowat, at the First Annual Meeting of The Imperial Life, 1898.

Imperial Life policyholders will smile at Sir Oliver's understatement. "Room for another Life Insurance Company" there certainly proved to be. The Imperial Life has today 1½ times as much insurance as there was in the whole of Canada with all companies at the time he spoke!

Investments in Imperial Life policies by the public in 1946 reached an all-time high. The figures are:

Insurance Purchased in 1946	$ 60,786,000
Assets to meet obligations to policyholders	137,775,000
Total Insurance in Force at the end of 1946	437,339,000

See your Imperial Life representative for advice on insurance to fit your own particular needs.

Flower Growers Nurse Blooms For Wedding Day

London, Nov. 17 (CP)—All over Britain carnation-growers in great country houses and in cottages are nursing their choicest blooms for Princess Elizabeth's wedding Thursday.

The idea came from F. W. Alesworth, Honorary Secretary of the British Carnation Society, who wrote to the Princess offering a gift of carnations from members.

"There is this about the carnation," Mr. Alesworth said: "It is the flower of the poor man equally with the rich. It can be grown at this time of the year in any little greenhouse, or even a homemade cold frame, just as well as in a large greenhouse."

He told the Princess that among his 1,500 members he had miners in Wales and Nottingham, steel smelters in Yorkshire, fruit growers in Kent...little tradesmen with only a backyard in big cities.

Hundreds of members have since promised blooms. And some of them, now in South Africa and the United States, plan to fly their blooms over a day or so before the wedding.

The Princess will receive a list of all who have contributed. The flowers will decorate the state rooms and dining tables at Buckingham Palace duirng the wedding week, supplemented by blooms from the Palace gardens.

Princess Elizabeth's wedding bouquet will be presented to he. by the worshipful Company of Gardeners. It is a tradition that the company presents a wedding bouquet to a British Princess and to a Queen on her cornation.

How the custom started is not certain since records were destroyed during an air raid. But it is known that the company was founded in 1345 and given its charter in 1606.

Analyzes Problem of Lonely Woman

By STUART UNDERHILL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London. (CP)—The problem of the lonely woman, widowed or deprived of the opportunity of marriage by the war, is tackled by Leonora Eyles in a briskly written book entitled "Unmarried but Happy" (Gollancz).

"Figures are not yet available to help determine how many single women are facing life as a consequence of the Second World War," she writes, "but the number must be very great. ...

"Many of them are very unhappy or have every anticipation of being unhappy unless they can resolve their personal conflicts and see a way through their practical difficulties; and a nation which has amongst its citizens numbers of unhappy people is not a healthy nation. So their problem becomes as much a matter of grace social concern as a personal and family one."

Mrs. Eyles, author of "Common Sense About Sex" and other "problem" books, tries to advise on probable day-to-day difficulties: how working mothers can dispose of their children, what jobs are likely to be congenial, the necessity of saving and guarding health, the sublimation of frustrated instincts. But her advice is larded with many a pithy phrase.

Polygamy is not a solution to women's loneliness, she says, because apart from the moral aspect: "I believe that most men want peace and quiet with one woman; they don't want the stress and struggle of being a sort of Trieste battled for by two opposing powers."

Other Samples

'Most women detest their work. They like the comradeship of shop or factory, with all its kindness, its spite, its jealousy and scandal—but they dislike the actual work."

"The single woman living alone naturally tends to become intemperate. I don't mean that she gets drunk with alcohol, but she may become a passionate gardener, a bridge fiend, a cinema fan and so on."

"We have had it deeply forced into us from childhood that marriage is woman's most desirable estate. . . . But you have only to look around your own circle of acquaintances, to read the daily papers, to listen to lectures on social problems of the moment, to realize that marriage waves no magic wand conferring miraculous happiness."

Mrs. Eyles recalles an address in 1919 by Lady Emily Lutyens, who said: "A woman's arms are shaped to shelter something weak, a child perhaps, a tired or sick man of her own. . . Often it is not until she realizes that such things of her own are denied her, that her arms are really filled."

"The problem of the empty arms and empty hearts of women is universal and, it seems, eternal," Mrs. Eyles writes. "And perhaps this woman's solution of the arms more abundantly filled when they have nothing of their own' is the answer today to many women."

Women's Activities

BORN IN THE YEAR OF Queen Victoria's Golden Jubilee

IN 1887 the Empire celebrated the Golden Jubilee of Queen Victoria. In the same year the Manufacturers Life Insurance Company was incorporated by an Act of the Parliament of Canada.

The company was born in an age of peace and growing prosperity. The world was then on the threshold of great technical and scientific achievement but no one visualized the turbulent times of war and economic stress which lay ahead. The sixty years which have elapsed have witnessed severely testing times for any life insurance institution but, in its Diamond Jubilee Year, the Manufacturers Life looks back upon an unbroken record of growth and increasing financial strength.

Slippery Roads Factor in 16 Fatalities

(By The Canadian Press

Wintry weather, with snow and sleet making highways hazardous, was a direct cause of several of the 8 weekend fatalities recorded today by The Canadian Press throughout eastern Canada.

Of the total eight deaths were due to traffic accidents, four were drowned, three died in shootings and one died of injuries received in an unknown fashion.

In Ontario two persons were drowned. At Niagara-on-the-Lake the body of Douglas Fairley, 24, victim of a duck-hunting accident, was washed ashore late Saturday. A companion, William Smith 28, of Niagara Falls, swam to shore with the aid of a bag of decoys when their boat capsized. A second duck hunter, James Misener, 41, of Stratford, last seen drifting helplessly in 10-foot skiff on storm-lashed Lake Huron, was believed drowned.

At Moncton, N.B., the bodies of Emile Richard and Emile Daigle, fishermen from the Northumberland village of St. Louis, were recovered Saturday. They were drowned Wednesday when swept from their tiny craft while setting out salmon nets.

Two died in traffic accidents in Toronto. Mrs. Vera Conquest, 43, was fatally injured Sunday when the automobile in which she was a passenger skidded on slippery pavement into a hydro pole, and John W. Elliott, 85, retired railway station agent, died Sunday of injuries suffered Oct. 18 when struck by an automobile near his home. He was a native of Mount Pleasant, Ont.

Mrs. Elizabeth Docker, 81, of London, Ont., died Saturday in hospital from injuries received eight days ago when struck by an automobile. She had not regained consciousness since the accident.

Five in Quebec

The five other traffic deaths were in Quebec. Oscar Robillard, 38, of Montreal was killed instantly early yesterday when struck by an automobile while walking along a highway near Hull, Que. At Sherbrook, Que., Ronald Wilson, 16, was killed Sunday when a car pinned him against a wall in sideswiping another vehicle.

Eight-year-old Justine Dupuis was killed Saturday when knocked down by an automobile while crossing a Montreal street near her home. Charles James Williams, 75, was also knocked down by a car and killed in Montreal and Jacques Cousineau, 18, seriously injured in an automobile accident Oct. 18, died in hospital Sunday.

At Port Maitland, N.S., Donald Souther, 23, was accidentally shot Sunday by his brother in a hunting accident and Dominio Poirier of Montreal was killed in woods near Lachute, Que., during a hunting trip.

Third victim from shooting was Rev. J. D. Griffith, 39, of Princeton, Ont., whose body was found shot through the head Sunday on a Willoughby township side road. Coroner E. T. Kellam pronounced it a suicide.

Kenneth Neilson Langley, 25, of Toronto suburban York township died Saturday of a skull fracture and police said yesterday they were investigating circumstances of his death. Police said investigations so far indicated death due to accident and that Langley had walked into, or fallen against, some obstruction.

After a six-hour search in the storm-swept waters of Lake Huron, nine miles north of Goderich, these three men failed to find James R. Misener, Stratford businessman, who was blown out of sight by an off-shore gale Saturday when he tried to retrieve a duck he had shot at Martin's Point. Left to right are Bert MacDonald, owner of the 30-foot power boat Captain John; his nephew Bruce MacDonald and Harold Corbett, dock radio operator at Goderich. They returned with the boat covered with ice and numb with cold. Their dog, Pal, went along and was almost frozen.

Above is a view of Lake Huron's horizon and the presumed grave of Mr. Misener (inset) following the storm Saturday when he tried to retrieve a duck he had shot into the water from the "blind" shown in the foreground. He borrowed a skiff from the beach and used a seat for a paddle when he was caught by the wind and taken out. He was last seen five miles out, sitting quietly and helpless in the skiff.

Sees Man Climbing Through Window, But All in Order

It may have been that one of the residents of the apartment forgot his key, but the sight of a man gaining entrance to a third floor apartment of a Front Street business block caused an investigation by police officers Friday night.

The night constable was making his rounds at the rear of Front Street stores when in looking up he noticed a man climbing in through an apartment window. He called to the man but he disappeared through the window. An investigation by officers revealed everything in the building to be in order.

Car is Dragged By Freight Train, Occupants Unhurt

Peterborough, Nov. 17 (CP)— A Canadian National Railways train dragged an automobile 145 feet from a level crossing Saturday night but the car's two occupants escaped with their lives.

Mac Lees, 21, of Cobourg, and John Cecil Munro, 23, of Port Hope suffered scalp, leg and abdominal injuries. They were pulled from the wrecked car and doctors said today they would recover.

Lees, who was driving, said he stopped at the level crossing when he saw the warning wigwag signal swinging but the front bumper of the car overhung the track. Locomotive caught the car by the bumper and carried it along until the train was stopped.

HORNETS, BEARS STILL DOMINATE AMERICAN LOOP

Pittsburgh Team Has Not Lost a Game Since Opening Night

(By The Canadian Press)

Pittsburgh Hornets and Hershey Bears today continued to dominate the American Hockey League after an eight-game weekend. Hornets led the loop's western division while Bears are perched on top in the east.

The high-flying Wasps, who haven't lost a game since opening night when St. Louis Flyers turned the trick, continued their undefeated string Saturday by turning back the charging Buffalo Bisons 6-2 in the Hornets' only outing.

Hershey were not as fortunate, salvaging only a tie in two games. On Saturday, New Haven battled the league-leaders to a 4-4 stalemate while on Sunday Buffalo earned a weekend split by dumping Bears 6-3.

New Haven continued their climb up the ladder, downing St. Louis 5-3 last night to give them three points in two games. Providence Reds bounced Indianapolis 7-3 in the only other Sunday tilt.

In other Saturday games, Indianapolis downed Springfield 4-2, Cleveland tripped Providence 7-6 and St. Louis belted Philadelphia 6-4.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON Jr.

New York, Nov. 17 — (AP) — Apparently even Branch Rickey has found he can get too much of a good thing . . . When Dodgers sold Ed Stevens and Stan Rojek to Pirates the other day, the Brooklyn deacon commented: — "Our over-the-limit roster has long been a source of concern, if not embarrassment . . . We wanted to go into the recent draft and acquire two or three pretty good players. We couldn't draft anybody." . . . Brooklyn, you know, has so many farms that chief plow-jockey Mickey McConnell, former sports editor of the Kearney, Neb. Hub, claims he doesn't know how many until he reads the morning reports . . . It seems they're turning out prospective major leaguers faster than the parent club can assimilate them.

Monday Matinee

Lightweight Roberto Prioletti of Italy, who fights Johnny Williams at St. Nick's tonight, and middleweight Marcel Cerdan of France are the only undisputed European boxing champions . . . Emile (Cat) Francis, Chicago Black Hawks goalie, probably set a record when he was penalized for fighting in two successive hockey games . . . Of course, it's a great temptation for a goalie to slip in a punch. He's protected by all those pads — and another guy has to sit out the penalty.

All or Nothing

Hughey Duffy, one of baseball's great all-time hitters, is the only National Leaguer who ever hit four home runs before he stooped to socking a double or triple . . . Duffy, breaking in with Chicago June 23, 1888, hit nothing but singles until July 11, when he touched Hank O'Day for a homer . . . He had four circuit blows to his credit Aug. 3, when he made his first triple and he didn't get a two-bagger until Aug. 9 . . . . Seems the boys had to work for their extra base hits in those days.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

There was pride of achievement tinged with heartbreak on that Albert College gridiron the other day. Students and players watched a stout-hearted youngster turn in the best performance in his football career — but the most of them did not know that the youth had lost one of his best friends. As he ripped through for yards after yards, giving a scintillating performance — as he was smashed to the ground in heavy bruising tackles there was a smile on his face but beneath it all his heart was heavy.

• • •

He was youthful Jimmy Taugher, who climaxed two years of hard football plugging with a sensational performance against the ancient gridiron foes of the school, Belleville Collegiate Institute. Jimmy not only was the standout for the big Yellow-garbed squad of his school but he outshone any player on the field. He played hard — and well. His heart aching beneath the grime of the dirt-covered sweater, young Taugher climaxed two years of effort with a grand show. He had lost his father a few days previous to the game — but the stout-hearted youngster went out there and gave all he had for the school.

• • •

Hockey fans hereabouts will recall Jimmy's uncle who was well known in this and the Kingston district as a hockey player of outstanding ability. Young Jim is a hockey player too, but his first athletic loves are football and basketball. A grand youngster, there looms ahead a brilliant future in athletics for him. And that is what he wants. His teachers and athletic coaches speak very highly of the youngster, and predict for him an outstanding career in his chosen field.

He hit the BCI line in that game with battering-ram force. On some occasions he drove through for ten or fifteen yards with three enemy tacklers draped over his body. One of his most brilliant plays came when he hit the enemy line, bounced off three tacklers and plunged through for thirty yards before he was brought down.

• • •

Young Jim is the epitome of the type of youth that carries the colors of Albert College on the basketball floor, hockey cushion or football gridiron. Proud in victory, gallant in defeat he typifies the fine character that good coaching, adaptibility and the desire to achieve produces. And he has had the benefit of excellent coaching in all phases of athletics. He has worked hard on fundamentals, and has set for himself a goal which be all the more valued because of the hard work, preparatory and otherwise that is necessary before it can be achieved.

• • •

Taugher has a great future in both football and basketball. He wants to finish his high school education and enter university where he will take up physical education. He hopes to coach and administer in high school athletics. That he will succeed there is no doubt. Albert College is, and should be proud of the Taugher type. Jimmy will go a long way in his chosen vocation. Best of luck, fella.

REFEREE'S LAMENT

"You can bet your boots," quoth embarrassed 'Toots'
"Or a car, or a ship or a clipper,"
That no matter who wins,
I'll take safety pins
Instead of a gol-darned
zipper.
"Ah, yes chum," he sighed, as the zipper he eyed,
I've ordered a car load
shipment,
I'll stop all those grins, from now on the pins,
Will be part of my standard equipment."

• • •

One of the Belleville juniers promising players is looking for a nice place in which to room and board. The youngster is Nolan who recently arrived in the city, and is anxious to secure a place to live. Anyone having these accommodations are asked to contact Bill Cook, at Cook's Cigar Store, Front Street.

• • •

There was some criticism over the weekend about the RCAF Olympic squad which played here last Friday night against the Trenton Flyers. A lot of people apparently were under the impression that the team which wore the colors of the Ottawa RCAF is the squad which will represent Canada in the Olympics next year. Such is not the case. The team is the basis of the Olympic squad and will add and subtract until the best hockey talent in the Air Force is located, then it will go into serious training as a whole.

• • •

Coach Frank Boucher emphasized this point. "We are doing the best we can to get the best air force players in the service. The team here tonight is composed of candidates, but nothing definite has been arranged yet. There will be plenty more trying out, before the final selection is made."

• • •

Montreal Canadiens absorbed the worst defeat of their career at the hands of the Boston Bruins on Saturday night. The rampaging "B's" rammed home no less than nine goals against Les Habs one in one of the "drubbingest" games ever witnessed by the Montreal faithful. That stifled roar you heard was Coach Hap Day attempting to smother his mirth as his Maple Leafs raced to a 5-3 victory over the Detroit Red Wings on the same evening, as the Rossmen from Boston, smothered the hated foe from Montreal.

• • •

The Point Anne squad, with plenty of power takes on the Napanee team in the first half of a Belleville District Hockey Association twin bill in Memorial Arena tomorrow night. In the nightcap those ancient foes from Stirling and Madoc will cross rapiers, and that, brothers, should be one for the book. Madoc, which was shorthanded last week when they took it on the button from Campbellford are still smarting under that defeat. They might at that be minus the services of some of their players but we are given to understand they have sent out an SOS for help. In any event Stirling turned the trick neatly against Tweed, and are quite cocky over the whole thing. Tomorrow night will tell the tale. First game 7.30.

Queen's University officials are administering a verbal spanking to one J.T. Morgan, manager of the schools senior football team, who, a Canadian press despatch stated invited the Calgary Stampeders to play an exhibition tilt in Kingston. It seems that M'sieu Morgan "had no authority to invite the Stampeders and the invitation was entirely unofficial."

• • •

However in all this indignant smoke there must be a little fire for the Queen's masterminds went on record as saying they would hold a meeting today to arrive at a decision as to whether Queen's will inyite the winner of the western inter-provincial conference to play in Kingston Nov. 22.

• • •

Any action on the part of the university will not be taken until it has been decided whether the Stampeders or Winnipeg Blue Bombers will carry the West s hopes into the Dominion finals. As the western team usualy travels east well in advance of the Grey Cup match, Queen's officials hoped the Westerns might wish to practice here and play a warmup contest.

Houston Huskies moved into second place in the southern division of the United States Hockey League, one point ahead of Dallas by downing the Texans 4-3 Sunday night.

COMPARE THE CARS OF THE "BIG 4"

OF THESE, ONLY KAISER-FRAZER BUILDS POSTWAR CARS!

Prove It Yourself—
Inspect Them All!

Of the world's four largest automobile makers, only Kaiser-Frazer builds genuine postwar cars! The public wants the comfort, safety, styling, roominess and ride that only postwar engineering can achieve. It is this definite demand for something better that has made Kaiser-Frazer one of the "Big 4" in less than two short years. The Kaiser and the Frazer are so new, so different, so directly in line with popular preferences, that they are already the most widely-copied automobiles in the industry. So compare them all! You'll understand why Kaiser-Frazer has made such a spectacular success in so short a time!

THESE ARE THE FEATURES THAT DISTINGUISH TRULY POSTWAR CARS:

Improved Design—combines medal-winning beauty of line with such practical advantages as wider seats, greater visibility, and the safety of a lower center of gravity.

Improved Engineering—that means a new distribution of mass and load; the rear seat set well forward of the rear wheels; better roadability; a higher ratio of horsepower to weight; greater riding comfort and safety; maximum service accessibility.

Improved Performance—the result of ultra-modern engine design and more horsepower to weight. It means quicker get-away, more rapid acceleration, fatigueless driving.

Improved Roominess—Both seats two inches more than five feet wide—comfortable relaxation for six adults; plenty of leg room and head room; extra baggage space!

Improved Ride—result of placing the passenger load between the front and rear wheels, and lower to the ground. The "soft" springs are controlled by airplane-type shock absorbers. You get a "cradled" ride never known before at any price!

Improved Safety—result of better visibility (larger windshield and rear window), super-adequate, easy-acting, fully-hydraulic brakes; super-abundant power; finger-tip steering.

Improved Economy—result of high-compression, 100-horsepower, 6-cylinder, L-head engine, and a low weight-per-horsepower that delivers unbelievable miles per gallon of gas, is miserly in the use of oil.

Improved Ease of Control—you can drive all day without tiring. Car steers itself on the straightaway; hugs the road on curves!

Built in a 100%-Postwar Plant

Willow Run is the only 100%-postwar automobile plant! It produces four 100%-postwar cars—the Kaiser, the Frazer, the Kaiser Custom and the Frazer Manhattan. Take your choice—in the price range that best fits your pocketbook. Whichever you select, you may be sure, it is a thoroughly modern automobile—embodying all of the vast technical improvements of the war years. These cars need no changes to bring them up-to-date! Think this over before you invest in personal transportation you will want to use for years!

Economical Mass Production

Kaiser-Frazer cars really have no competition. Many other cars sell in the same price range. But they are not postwar cars. Every product of Willow Run is the result of engineering and design progress made since 1941! And these cars are produced economically. Kaiser-Frazer has, in two years, installed at Willow Run the finest, most efficient, precision mass production equipment available in the world. Much of it was never available before! Many processes have been newly developed by men whose production genius is famous the world around. It was this equipment and this genius that enabled Kaiser-Frazer to break all industry records for its first full year of production—by building more than 125,000 fine automobiles—and selling every one of them!

Investigate Before You Buy!

If you do not know the many important advantages of fully postwar automobiles, built in a fully postwar plant, read the important items in the box at the left! Toronto Leafs Win Two Games Over Weekend to Move into First Place; Canadiens Lose Two

Rangers, Detroit and Chicago Each Win One Over Busy Weekend for Loop

By HARRY ECCLES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Any time now the forums on the rejuvenation of the Chicago Black Hawks are due to be replaced by the "what's the matter with Canadiens? society?".

In a full card of six weekend games the Toronto Maple Leafs won twice to go into undisputed possession of first place in the National Hockey League. By the same token, two losses for Montreal Canadiens put them in an unaccustomed fourth spot, four points blow the Toronto squad.

In between, tied for second place only a point back of Leafs are the Detroit Red Wings and Boston Bruins. The fifth-place New York Rangers are only four points back of Montreal—and only two points ahead of the tail-end Hawks.

Leafs Win at Home

Toronto won at home Saturday night by 5-3 over Detroit, and then at Chicago Sunday night hung on to a 5-4 lead at the final bell. Canadiens were soundly trounced by the Bruins at Montreal Saturday 9-1 and at New York last night they lost to Rangers by 4-2.

The four teams apart from Toronto and Montreal all shared victory and defeat. Detroit Red Wings Sunday edged Boston 3-2. Chicago had beaten Rangers 5-3 at New York Saturday.

Saturday at Toronto the Leafs spotted Detroit three first period goals two by Ted Lindsay and one by Jim McFadden. They tied it up in the second and won in the third as captain Syl Apps accounted for two tallies.

Then Sunday night Apps scored two goals at Chicago. Gus Mortson, Harry Watson and Ted Kennedy bagged the others. Max Bentley got two assists against Detroit, nothing against Chicago. The Hawks' goal-scorers were Dickens, Hamill, Kaleta and Doug Bentley. Canadiens were trounced 9-1 Saturday night by the Bruins. Montreal's lone counter was counted by Elmer Lach in the third. Pete Babando scored two Boston goals and the others were divided among Smith, Harrison, Sandford, Wilson, Schmidt, Dumart and Crawford.

Rangers Full of Steam

After losing 5-3 to Chicago Saturday night the Rangers were full of steam when they met the Montrealers last night. A revamped forward line gave Rangers three goals within a minute and 21 seconds early in the first period with Trudell scoring twice and Frankie Eddolls once and only Harmon's goal kept Canadiens in the running. There was no score in the middle frame but in the finale Kullman made it 4-1 before Quilty scored Montreal's second goal.

The Sunday night game at Boston where Detroit won 3-2 was notable for the fact that nary a penalty was handed out. Bep Quidolin a newcomer to the Detroit team collected a goal and an assist against his former Boston team-mates. Horeck and Roy Conacher got the others. Crawford and Babando were the Boston goal-getters.

Sprague Cleghorn Dismissed as Cornwall Coach

Montreal, Nov. 17 — (CP) — Azarie Choquet, president of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association announced last night that Sprague Cleghorn, who was dismissed Friday as coach of Cornwall Cougars of the Provincial Hockey League, has been suspended indefinitely by the Association for acting in a manner detrimental to the best interests of amateur hockey.

Choquet said that Cleghorn was suspended following an Association meeting for his failure to answer charges of using a suspended player in a hockey game following an Association suspension of that player for three games.

The player, Marcel Lebrun of Cornwall, who was suspended for fighting, in a game against Verdun last Tuesday, appeared in a league game Friday night against Victoriaville.

Choquet said that Cleghorn "purposely used this player in defiance of my ruling."

At the same time Choquet disclosed that the Association has granted a request from Cornwall to sign four additional players to strengthen their team. Cornwall have yet to taste victory in nine games.

HAMILTON TIGERS IN TOP PLACE OF SENIOR RACE

Oshawa Generals Move Into First Place Tie in Junior Tussle

(By The Canadian Press)

Hamilton Tigers regained top position in the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior A loop after swamping the Brantford Redmen 9-4 at Brantford in Saturday's only senior game.

In the five junior games during the weekend Oshawa Generals moved into a first-place tie with Windsor Spitfires when they defeated Jimmie Skinner's squad 4-2 at Oshawa. It was their second win over the Spitfires in as many nights with their Friday 6-5 overtime victory.

Toronto Marlboros joined Stratford Kroehlers in second place after taking a 5-1 overtime victory from Toronto St. Michael's Majors in the opening tilt of Saturday afternoon's twin bill at Maple Leaf Gardens. In the second match Barrie Flyers swamped the circuit's cellar dwelling Toronto Young Rangers 11-2 for their fourth win in seven starts.

St. Catharines Teepees racked up their third victory in eight starts when they overpowered Guelph Biltmores 6-4 at St. Catharines. Stratford Kroehlers battled Galt Rockets to a 2-2 overtime tie at Galt. It was the second deadlock between these teams.

Tonight the injury-ridden Owen Sound Mercurys visit Stratford Indians in the one senior game. There are no junior games slated.

At Brantford the locals led 2-1 at the end of the first stanza but the Tigers outscored them 4-1 in each of the second and third periods. Only five penalties were handed out, four to Hamilton.

A fight broke out between some rabid Brantford supporters and the players on the Hamilton bench in the second period after Pear and Wilson were banished for fighting. All of the Hamilton players joined in the melee before police escorted the intruders from the rink. Defeat left the luckless Brants in the cellar with the one point picked up at Owen Sound in a tie game with the Mercurys at the season's start.

Shillington Gets Three

Clarence Shillington led Tiger scorers with three goals. Johnny Conick and Tommy Tindal each tallied twice with other Hamilton goals coming from Frankie Liscombe and Tommy Smelle. Brantford counters were scored by Wiacek, Wilson, Dennenay and Hutchinson.

St. Michael's Majors and Marlboros battled for 54 minutes before Bobby Hassard beat St. Mike's goalie Tommy Shea assisted by Ray Timgren and Frank Kent. Pete Whelan tied it for the Irish.

Marlboros went on a scoring spree in the overtime period knocking in three goals within 4 minutes and tallying the fourth five minutes later. Doug French, Hugh Bolton, Bob Clarke and Knowles scored other Marlboro counters. St. Mike's lone tally came from Pete Whelan.

Barrie Flyers out-weighed and out-played Ed Wildey's Young Rangers. Netminder Lloyd McLennan played well in the Toronto net although practically buried under rubber. Gil St. Pierre, Gerry Reid and Rusty Aiken led Barrie scorers with two goals each. Stan Long, Bob Bingley, Bill Barrett, Bruno Favero and Guarda tallied the other Barrie counters. Marlboros' goals came from Doug Ashbee.

Tallied Twice

At St. Catharines Topper Topazzini tallied twice in the game's final four minutes to break the tie in favor of the Teepees. Wayne Service scored twice and other St. Catharines counters came from Fred Hildebrand and Moon Mullins. Guelph scorers were led by Yacker Flynn with two goals while Gord Miller and Speck tallied the other counters.

Pierre Cadieux put Stratford Kroehlers into the tie in the last two seconds of the third frame and Joe Beda scored the other counter. Wiggy Wylie and Harry Marchand scored for Galt. Some 2,000 fans witnessed the game in which the Rockets displayed more fight and better combination than they have in any previous game. Playing sparkling offensive hockey and throwing up a stonewall defence, the Oshawa Generals were full value for their win. They led 2-0 at the end of the first, added another in the second and scored another in the final stanza before Windsor notched their counters. Dick Gamble led Oshawa with two counters while Ross Lowe and Dick Blair scored once. Windsor goals came from Butch Houle and Bruce Giesebrecht.

C·C·M LAMINATED
HOCKEY STICKS (PATENTED)

HOCKEY GAMES are seldom won by large margins — usually it's nip and tuck with photo finishes.

That is why the boys who score on most teams pack that extra "umph" with a C.C.M. Laminated Hockey Stick — it's "The Scorer's Stick". And C.C.M. were the originators of high grade laminated hockey sticks over 12 years ago and are still the best.

Here are some of the features which make the C.C.M. Laminated such a favorite:

THE BLADE — Gets most of the rough play of hockey, is made from carefully selected and seasoned straight-grain, second growth rock elm which is noted for its tenacious fibrous structure and its ability to withstand shock and abuse.

THE HANDLE — Made of tough, straight-grain ash or of laminated hardwoods, the handle of the C.C.M. Laminated Hockey Stick is made to stand up to the slugging, checking and shooting a stick gets in any hockey game.

LAMINATED HEEL — This is where the C.C.M. gets its great strength and liveliness. The Heel is a lamination of five layers of wood bonded permanently together with moistureproof glue. Two of these laminations are the dovetail of the blade, two are the dovetail of the handle and the four are further reinforced by C.C.M.'s patented construction with hickory wedge. At this point of lamination the ice-lays of the sticks are set and cannot change.

ICE-LAY — Hockey players vary in size, height and in their method of stick handling and so — C.C.M. Laminated Hockey Sticks are made in a choice of ice-lays.

If you are going to play hockey this winter equip yourself with C.C.M. Laminated Hockey Sticks in the ice-lay that suits you best.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitser

With skookum length and outside strength my partner has a he-bid. With bold affront he gives a grunt and starts out with a three bid.

You have the south hand shown here:

♠ 7
♥ A K Q J 7 6 2
♦ A Q
♣ J 7 5

It is an opening bid of some kind. No doubt in your mind as to that. Decide which. Always open with a bid of one unless your hand is eligible for a higher opening. So, see if you have a higher.

First count what your hand contains. A trick is any high card or any short card. A high card is any ace or king or queen. Count eight tricks; five high, a short in diamonds, two spade shorts.

An opening of one heart would show a biddable heart suit in a hand of five tricks, four high, two sure. You have all this and more. So, it is a bid of one unless it fits a higher bid.

An opening of three promises nine tricks. This hand counts up to eight. Therefore, you jolly well know it is not an opening of two. So, see if it is enough for a three or a four opening.

An opening of thre promises eight tricks, a re-rebiddable suit (of at least seven cards), and an outside sure trick. Sure enough it has all of this. Thus, it is an opening of three hearts.

Would you wonder if it is also an opening bid of four hearts? Such a bid shows a long suit with not enough high cards or sure tricks for an opening one bid. Cut that out here.

With very few hands will there be a three bid that does not also have the qualities for a bid of one. Where both apply, use the three bid. It gives the additional information that partner may need.

What is the additional information? That your suit is strong enough to need no trump support from partner. And that you need only two tricks in his hand to help make a game.

Let partner in on your secrets.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 17 — (AP) — Victor Mature, former bad boy of Hollywood, is on the brink of marriage.

Vic, who has eschewed nightclubbing and publicity-grabbing since his return from the Coast Guard, apparently has gotten over his torch for Rita Hayworth and has found the girl he wants to marry. She is Dorothy Berry from Pasadena, and she isn't in the film business.

The actor is the pride of 20th-Fox these days due to "Kiss of Death." After "Ballad of Furnace Creek," he's set for "The Chair for Martin Rome," "Strictly Dishonorable" and "Road House." The former "beautiful hunk" is a changed man.

Bergman to Britain

Ingrid Bergman says "Under Capricorn," which she'll make for Alfred Hitchcock after "Joan," will be filmed in England. After that she has planned nothing. Having concluded her Selznick pact, she is happy to be free of contractual demands . . .

Charles Korvin plans to tour the coast in "Pursuit of Happiness" after he finishes "Berlin Express." He may join Luise Rainer, Karen Morley and Albert Dekker in "Christ in Concrete," which will be filmed in Italy. The story takes place in New York! Then why go to Italy, you ask? The answer has something to do with the thawing of frozen funds.

June Haver is preparing for "Sweet Sue," a 1910 musical with Alan Young at 20th Fox, as well as "Silver Lining" at Warners. As part of the latest deal, she will do a yearly film for Warners in the next three years.

Comedy — or Else

Rosalind Russell says her next after "The Velvet Touch" will be a comedy — or else. That's what she said after her last three dramas, but this time she'll probably get her wish. Virginia Van Upp, a comedy expert, will produce Roz' next at Columbia . . .

Clyde Rogers is deserting the Freddy Martin band to tenor on his own . . . Jack Carson, pride of Carman, Man., finished "April Showers" and starts, he hopes, a 12-week vacation from films. "But," he added, "I'll probably be back to do 'Two Guys from Hunger.'"

Teen-Ager Steals Show in Bull Ring

Mexico City, Nov. 17 — (AP) — A teen-age youngster stole the show Sunday during the fifth bullfight in the world's largest building, Plaza Mexico.

Leaping from the stands into the ring, the lad flourished a home-made cape and took the bull away from matador Alejandro Montani. The crowd howled with delight.

The youngster made a half-dozen beautiful passes before police and ring attendants could get close enough to get him out of the ring. The boy was released by police when the crowd shouted protests.

ARGONAUTS MEET OTTAWA TROJANS IN FINAL SERIES

Joe Krol and Company Swamp Ottawa Rough Riders While Trojans Upset Hamilton

By ROBERT CLARKE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Canadian football fans looked back today at a Saturday of upsets without parallel since the start of the season three months ago as the time drew near for the east-west classic with the Dominion title and the Grey Cup at stake.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers carried the Western hopes into the final, victorious over Calgary Stampeders for their sectional title after three playoff games, while eastern honors remained to be decided between Toronto Argonauts and Ottawa Trojans. They meet in a sudden-death clash in Toronto next Saturday.

Argonauts clamped onto their third straight Big Four title Saturday with a 21-0 triumph over Ottawa Rough Riders, winning a two-game, total-point round 24-0. It wasn't so much an upset that Argos won, but it certainly rated as a surprise on the basis of the ease with which they topped the club that finished first in the standing over the regular schedule.

But a major upset was produced by Trojans, who hammered out a 15-3 victory over Hamilton Wildcats in Hamilton for the Ontario Rugby Football Union championship.

Another upheaval, although it had no bearing on the Grey Cup race, was University of Toronto's feat in fighting University of Western Ontario Mustangs to a 12-12 tie at London. The Mustangs still captured the college crown despite the draw.

With 19,400 fans watching the battle, Argos never allowed Riders to get on the move.

Krol Scores 16 Points

Joe Krol accounted for 16 points, on top of the three singles he had booted in Argos 3-0 first-game victory at Ottawa last Tuesday. He scored two touchdowns, a field goal from placement, a convert and two singles on attempted placements. Bryon Karry's picked up the remaining points with a touchdown.

Copeland, although he didn't score a point, still managed to stand out as one of the game's dominant figures. Two brilliant runs of 50 and 40 yards set the stage for one of Krol's touchdowns and his placement.

Sammy Fox, who guided Riders to first place in his freshman season at coaching in Canada, said after the game he intended to return to the United States for a coaching job there next season.

At Hamilton, Doug Smylie scored two touchdowns to lead Trojans into the eastern final. One came on a 60-yard spring after a pass interception only three minutes after the start of the game and the other also in th first quarter, on a 20-yard sweep around end.

Come From Behind

Bombers, even at 19-19 with Stampeders after two playoff tilts, were forced to come from behind in the third contest when Billy Wusyk booted a 40-yard field goal in the first quarter. Bombers whittled that margin with a single point in the same quarter, picked up a field goal by Don Hiney in the fourth quarter and a converted touchdown by Bob Sandberg.

In London the Varsity blues built up a six point lead in the opening quarter on a touchdown by Ted Toogood that was converted. The Mustangs replied with two touches, one by Fabien Curry and the other by George Arnott, in the third quarter and both were converted.

But the Blues, needing a victory to force a playoff with Mustangs under the college rules, swarmed back for a touchdown by Jack McReynolds, in the fourth quarter, plus a single to the deadline booted by Bruce Cummings. If the convert on McReynolds' touchdown had been good, it would have been curtains for the Mustangs.

McGill Redmen defeated Queen's Gaels 11-6 in the other collegiate windup to finish in third place in the standing.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Jinks, June, Ronnie and Mrs. E. Jinks, motored to Toronto an Sunday, and Mrs. Jinks, Sr. remained to visit her daughter in that city.

The cemetery here already presents a better appearance since workmen cleared the brush away. Much more remains to be done, but with the interest of the Women's Institute, more may be achieved.

THIEVES DESPERATE. STEAL FURNACE PARTS

Hamilton, Nov. 17 — (CP) — The wintry weather has made some thieves desperate for new furnace parts. They broke into St. Christopher's United Church early Sunday and removed blower and other parts from the furnace in the basement.

Dalton May be Reinstated Within Year in Cabinet

London, Nov. 17. (Reuters)— Hugh Dalton, who resigned Thursday as Chancellor of the Exchequer, may be reinstated in the Cabinet within a year, it was suggested in informed quarters today.

There is evidence of growing uneasiness among a section of government supporters and others over the possible long-term effects of the events which culminated in Dalton's resignation after he had admitted leakage of budget information.

Feeling on the question, it is suggested, threatens to divide the Labor Party.

Dalton, generally acknowledged to be a brilliant Chancellor, had been steadily rising in popularity. Some quarters argue that it would be a tragedy for the party to lose his ability for all time as a result of a singe indiscretion which had no ulterior motive.

These points may be brought out if, as expected, opposition leaders, headed by Conservative Winston Churchill and Liberal Clement Davies, are given time next week to debate the case for an inquiry into the incident. Dalton gave budget secrets to a correspondent of the London Star shortly before he made his announcements in the Commons last Wednesday.

ESCAPE ON BOXCARS

Camden, N. J., Nov. 17 — (CP) — Two fleeing automobile thieves yesterday pulled a hair-raising Hollywood stunt to escape from pursuing police.

The fugitives were halted by a freight train which rumbled across the highway in front of them. But as police closed in with guns blazing, the men hopped on one of the passing boxcars and got away.

CHAPTER 5

She slept fitfully. When she opened her eyes at dawn, squinting at the stream of sunshine drifting in through a half-drawn white brocaded drapery, her heart cried out in anguish. All the gripping torment of last night enveloped her now. There was nothing but a broken-spirited shell of her former resolve with which to begin this new day. Yet she must dominate the situation somehow. Oh, it would take real effort ,when she wanted only to give. When she wanted only to give herself, her joys, her hopes, wanted to share whatever grief came to the man she loved.

From force of habit she drank the tomato cocktail and coffee Aimee brought in at nine o'clock. Aimee gave her mistress a swiftly discerning glance and suggested a facial.

"Yes, it would be soothing. Your facials are always a luxury, Aimee."

"Out, mademoselle," said Aimee pretending to be French when her ancestry was pure Irish. It generally amused Kay,, but nothing could do that this morning.

Later, wearing a rose string frock, Kay met her mother for luncheon in the downstairs breakfast-room. Cora was gay.

"My darling child!" Cora took Kay's firm little chin in her hands, kissed her smooth hot cheek. "My dear! What heavenly news! You and Hennington! Oh, he's so happy! Why, I've never seen a man so happy! He's begged you to accept him for so long—and now—"

"Please, Mummie." Kay sounded desperate. "Let's not talk about it."

"Kay! With an arm linked through hers, Cora Millstrom led her daughter to the luncheon table, set to command a view through its glass end wall of June roses in the garden, the, the sundial in one corner, the birds that came to dip in the bird bath.

Sartin was in the room immediately to serve them, but Cora was too excited now to care what he overheard.

"I can't decided whether we should go to New York for your trousseau," she babbled. "Of course, we could have things made here—Madame Roen does such beautiful work. It would be far less expensive. Yet expense," she giggled self-consciously, "that won't matter too much."

Kay's prettily curved dark brows lifted over startled eyes. "I should think it had to matter," she remarked, after Sartin left the room.

Clearly before her now was revealed her mother's purpose. It was Henn's generosity that would make possible the entire splurge of this wedding. It was revolting, it was humiliating; she wouldn't be the victim of it.

"It doesn't matter," repeated Cora. "It's quite all right."

She winked slowly and meanfully at Kay. "In fact—it's all settled."

Kay choked back a bitter retort. She could say little here, where servants might over hear. Later she would try to argue her mother out of the impossible plans made by her and Henn.

Kay buttered a piece of hot graham muffin, tasted the asparagus salad. She started when Sartin placed a small parcel beside her plate.

"A messenger just brought it, Miss Kay," he informed her.

"Oh—thank you, Sartin," said Kay to his retereating back.

Kay flashed her mother an inquiring glance, but Cora was intent upon helping herself to a ripe olive in the silver comport beside her. Immediately, Kay was suspicious.

She tore off wrappings, uncovered a small white box and opened it. There, surrounded by much tissue paper, lay a tiny white case. Kay picked it up gingerly.

Cora, bubbling with excitement, got up and came to lean over Kay's shoulder. "Quick, dear—open it! Perhaps it's—"

The usual remembrance—from the man in the affair," supplien Kay, with maddening unconcern. But she did not snap back the lid of the little box and surprise herself by exclaiming, "How exquisite! Did you ever seen so lovely a sapphire?"

"Gorgeous!" agreed Cora Millstrom, her brown eyes glowing. "Hennington Blare never does things in halves. It's—priceless. Try it on, darling.'

Reluctantly, Kay slipped the ring on a finger of her right hand.

Kay tried it on her engagement finger,, hastily removed it, and set it in the case again. "What an unromantic manner to present an engagement ring—by messenger," she got out in a thin voice.

Cora's heart sank at the bleak expression registered on her only child's face. Was that pilot the cause of it? A nice enough young man—but no daughter of hers could marry a pilot.

She laid a plump white hand caressingly on Kay's fair curls. She said resignedly, "Perhaps we'd better call off this wedding, dear. If it's so much against your wishes, I can never allow it—even to save ourselves."

For answer, Kay flung both arms around her mother's waist, laid her head against her breast, tears rolling down her cheeks. She got out tremulously," "Of course, I'll marry him, darling! It's all pretty new to me, that's all. Henn isn't half bad—in fact I like him very much and—and I'm going through with it."

Cora Millstrom's sigh was one of relief. "Well—don't think I'm urging you into it, dear," she said, paving the way for an alibi in case anything went wrong with this marriage. "Not many girls have such an opportunity."

"Yes—I know," came faintly from Kay. But she felt far beneath the ideal she had held for herself—so horribly dishonest. No man deserved the unresponsive kind of wife she would make Hennington Blare.

Kay had decided that one last evening with Chuck could do no harm. Anyway, she must take that chance, she must see him once more. With her lips set in a tight line and her eyes determined, she entered Hotel Sward's lobby at eight to keep her engagement with him.

She paused and glanced around with half-frightened intensity. Somewhere in this milling crowd of well-groomed men and women Chuck must be waiting for her. She had come here with brave intentions, but now that she had actually arrived, she wondered if she could manage to fulfill them.

She was startled when she heard Chuck's voice behind her. Color flamed in her face and she tried to be casual, but it was not easy when he stood before her so magnetically handsome, depending upon those ugly crutches for support. And she had come here to wound him still further!

"It's grand of you to join me, Kay," he greeted, as if she were all that mattered in his world. "We're dining on the open roof—under stars, moon, and what have you." His short laugh was filled with that boyish reverence a man reveals only to the woman he loves.

She trembled violently and was alarmed at the tempting setting he had arranged, but forced herself to respond gayly. "Perfect! I wouldn't be surprised to see wood nymphs dancing from an improvised forest—goblins—fairies—"

"Oh, come now—I'm no magician," he said, following her to the elevator, his eyes not leaving her an instant.

His nearness, his strength, penetrated every fibre of her being. Their love was such a soaring, fragile, beautiful thing, she thought gladly. But within the next few minutes she was drooping again when they were seated at a table he had reserved not too near the orchestra.

He set aside the crystal vase of shasta daisies centering the satiny whiteness of the cloth. Soft lights, the tinkle of ice, intimately polly parties and there, waiters rushing about, gave the place a highly festive air.

"Nothing must come between us, Kay," he said gently, "not even—flowers."

Her lips quivered. She took a deep breath of the sultry night air. "It's—it's warm enough to rain, isn't it?" she said, and took a menu from the waiter.

Chuck looked puzzled but gave his attention to ordering iced cantaloupe, frogs' legs, lyonnaise potatoes, avacado salad, raspberry ice, French pastry, demi-tasse. They would dawdle a long time over so much food. She wondered how she could endure it.

"I should like to kiss—those lovely hands," came from him low.

She remembered that he had once before expressed a similar desire when he was staying in her mother's home. She mustn't allow this to go any further. She must do something to cut him completely from her life.

"Perhaps I couldn't permit it—now," she said soberly, and turned over her left hand with the sapphire in plain sight.

Still, he refused to recognize the special significance of this rare jewel. He went on rapidly. "I've news, Kay—good news! The Bringo Corporation is building an airplane factory here—in Dewayton. They've asked me to take charge of it. No more barnstorming for yours truly. How's that?"

Her finger traced a pattern on the cloth. She avoided his eyes. "It's very nice," she uttered coolly.

"Why—you sound anything but enthusiastic! I thought—I'd hoped you would be very happy at my remaining in town—glad of my promotion. It means so much, Kay. It means that you and I—"

URGES HOUSECLEANING OF COMMUNISTS.

Farming Future Threatened Says Association Pres.

Carleton Place, Ont., Nov. 17—(CP) — H. H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, charged Saturday that the future of farming in Canada, and particularly the livestock industry, is being seriously threatened by action of the Dominion government in removing price ceilings from feed grains along with the feed grain subsidy.

In an address to the annual meeting of the Lanark County Federation of Agriculture, he said the new government policy was having far-reaching effects and already had reduced the amount of bacon for overseas shipment.

Mr. Hannam did not advocate a return to former policy, but suggested the government should allow an adjustment in price for farmers who otherwise could have no confidence in the profit of raising livestock and would kill off or sell what they had.

He strongly objected to proposals that the American market be opened up so that farmers might receive higher prices for hogs. Such a step, he thought, would endanger the long-term contracts with Britain.

The meeting endorsed a resolution urging that the government allow an increase in the prices of animal products equivalent to the costs of production, ensure an adequate marketing policy, end speculation in coarse grains, and to ensure sufficient coarse grains were available for winter stock feeding.

CHURCH IS BURNED

Fort Frances, Ont., Nov. 17 — (CP)— St. Margaret's Indian Mission yesterday was reduced to a smoking pile of charred rubble after flames last night swept the Roman Catholic building.

One of the largest churches in the district and of frame construction, it stood on the shore of Rainy Lake. Extent of the loss was not immediately known, but it ran into thousands of dollars.

Cause of the fire has not been determined.

The building was empty at the time of the blaze, the fire first being discovered by children while eating in a nearby school.

New York Had 'Son' in Caruso

Many New York residents of long standing, when they read a few days ago that a silver bust of Enrico Caruso had been presented by his widow to the Metropolitan Opera House, surely put aside temporarily the perusal of their morning papers in order to pay, during a few moments of retrospective day dreaming, a silent tribute to that most renowned and glorious and spectacular of all grand opera singers, writes a New York Times columnist.

And some of them, as they paid it, doubtless recalled that there were three Carusos: the Caruso of the matchless voice, in whose throat there seemed to be a clarion made of gold; the Caruso who was above all, an enjoyer of life, a clown, a Peter Pan, a light hearted caricaturist who loved to caricature anybody and everybody, particularly himself; and, finally, the Caruso who, though a foreigner to the end of his days, managed to make himself; and, finally, the Caruso self a part of the New York of his era. It is with this third Caruso that these reminiscences are primarily concened.

Meeting His Fans

That was the Caruso whom one might meet any day in New York—lounging in the lobby of the Hotel Knickerbocker, at Broadway and Forty-Second, where he lived in a grand 14 room suite; standing in front of the Met; walking on Fifth avenue (do celebrities ever walk nowadays?), flanked by a squad of admirers, a regular ambulatory orchestra of excited gesticulators, in the midst of whom he himself was the super-excited, ultra-gesticulatory conductor.

That was the Caruso who, with the best food at the most fashionable New York restaurants his for the asking, preferred spaghetti at little Italian eating places. At these he used to leave a standing order: "Reserve for me for every night for the next month a private dining room, and prepare enough Italian food for me and half a dozen guests." He might not appear. The guests might not appear. But he paid just the same— and never looked at the bill twice. "The trouble with Caruso," said one who knew him well, "is that he makes too much money."

Christmas Shopping

About his life in New York, in the heydey of his renown, there was an Abraham Nights quality. His widow (a New Yorker), in the book she wrote about him, described thus what it was like to go shopping with him on Fifth Avenue.

"He walked through the aisles of Tiffany's looking very large in his fur lined coat. He stopped at a counter and peered into the lighted case . . . 'Look, Doro, nice little boxes for powder and red.'

"'Please, the little boxes, said Enrico, pointing not with one finger but with his whole hand . . . . He examined the design of each box with fastidious care.

"'Fifty like this, 30 like this, 10 like this . . .' The clerk stammered that he would have to find out if so many were available. By this time everyone in Tiffany's knew that Caruso was doing his Christmas shopping. The manager came to greet us. 'Very much obliged,' said Enrico, and shook him warmly by the hand. 'I like now to give you special order.'

Outlined Design

"We sat about a table while Enrico made rough sketches of the design he wantd for a gold watch charm, that year's gift to his closest friends. 'You will make 20 like this and send.' We shook hands with everyone and left the shop without any idea of how much money we had spent."

Always he remained a Neapolitan) The late Salvatore Cortesi, dean of foreign correspondents in Rome, in whose book of reminiscences a whole chapter is devoted to Caruso, once drove in a cab with him along the Toledo, the main street of Naples:

"Everybody knew him and he knew everybody and everybody saluted . . . Suddenly he stopped the carriage, and said: 'How can I enjoy my Naples if I go about in a cab?' 'As soon as he set foot on the ground he was surrounded by a crowd of admirers, and for all he had a smile, a joke, a hand shake?. . . Anyone unaccustomed to Neapolitan demonstrations of affection and respect would have thought that a riot had broken out."

"On days like this," said Caruso to Cortesi, "I wonder why I ever leave Naples!"

Yet the 100 per cent Neapolitan became an integral part of New York. He made New Yorkers take him to their hearts. He never abjured spaghetti. He never learned English. Yet he belonged as much to the New York of his era—the New York of trolley cars and L trains and derby hats—as did Pierpont Morgan and Diamond Jim Brady, Mrs. Astor and Mayor Gaynor and Fire Chief Croker.

INDIA SENDS AID TO MOSLEM-INVADED KASHMIR

Bone of contention between the Dominion of India and the Moslem state of Pakistan, the state of Kashmir, ruled by Maharajah Sir Hari Singh, became a new battleground for Indian strife when the Maharajah decided that Kashmir should become a part of the Dominion of India. Moslem raiders from Pakistan crossed the border, killing, burning, pillaging, and were advancing on the capital, Srinagar, until the Dominion of India sent troops to help stem the tide. Here some of those troops are shown arriving by air. They are British-equipped.

Canada to Take Leading Role At Trade Parley

New York, Nov. 17 (CP) — Canada will press hard for complete acceptance of the international trade organization at the Havana World Trade Conference which opens next Friday, Dana Wilgress, head of the Canadian delegation, said in an interview here yesterday.

Wilgress said that Canada, with the prestige of a leading trading power, will strongly oppose any efforts to water down the charter, drafted at the 17-country preparatory I.T.O. conference in Geneva which finished a month ago.

Fifty to 60 States will attend the Havana Conference, which is under United Nations sponsorship and may last three months.

Wilgress, who also led the Canadian delegation during the Geneva negotiations from which Canada emerged with 15 new trade agreements, arrived here last night by plane from London. He leaves Tuesday for Havana.

"The Canadian delegation will try hard to persuade the other countries, who were not at Geneva but who will be at Havana, to accept the I.T.O. charter as it is," he said.

"It is not perfect and there are more escape clauses in it than we would like. But we want to see it adopted for Canada puts great importance in the I.T.O. being established and starting to function."

Supporter of the new charter hope it will begin to function by 1952.

Between now and then, it is anticipated that the Marshall plan will have enabled Western Europe to recover sufficiently for trading to begin on the scale contemplated.

United States State Department officials say that the Marshall plan and the I.T.O. do not conflict, despite the fact that under the Marshall plan trading routes over the next four years would largely be from North America to Europe.

But it is feared the question may be raised by some delegates at Havana, particularly by non-European representatives whose countries will not benefit by the Marshall plan.

Like Canada, the U.S. position at Havana will be one of keeping "escape clauses" few and of a temporary nature, and of supporting the charter as a step in the direction of multi-lateral trading, with the world's products moving with a minimum of nations hindrances.

Evidence in Bussey Case All Completed

Owen Sound, Nov. 17 (CP)—The case of Fred Bussey, 23, charged with murder in the hammer-slaying Sept. 21 of 11-year-old Betty Playford of Owen Sound, is expected to go to the jury of 12 district farmers late today.

It is expected the early part of today's hearing will be taken up by the addresses of counsel—Louis Isaacs of Toronto is defending and C. P. Hope of Toronto is acting for the Crown—and by Mr. Justice D. P. J. Kelly's charge to the jury.

Trial of the former resident of Regina and Toronto who since the war has lived as an itinerant carnival worker, started in Ontario Supreme Court here last Tuesday.

Crown evidence was given Saturday by medical experts in treatment of personality disorders who testified that in their opinion Bussey was normally intelligent the night the girl was slain. Bussey went to a Montreal newspaper office and offered to give himself up to police four days after the child's body was found in a weed-choked ditch.

Dr. C. S. Tennant, superintendent of the Ontario Mental Hospital at Penetanguishene, said his examinations of Bussey convinced him Bussey was in his full sense the night of the child's slaying. Dr. W. A. Carswell of the Ontario Mental Hospital at Whitby and Dr. H. R. Brillinger, director of the Mental Health Clinic at the Ontario Hospital in Hamilton, gave similar evidence.

The only defence witness heard was Bussy's white-haired mother, who told the court one of her sisters had been in a psychiatrist hospital. She said Bussey himself had a habit of "withdrawing into his own thoughts."

The Crown succeeded in entering as evidence a purported confession Bussey made to a Montreal newspaper reporter, Harold Gardner.

CANADIANS FACE RESTRICTED LIVING STANDARDS

49 DEAD, MISSING IN CHRISTCHURCH, N. Z. FIRE

Three-Storey Department Store Is Destroyed

Dramatic Rescues Made; Cause of Fire Unknown

By J. C. GRAHAM
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Christchurch, N. Z., Nov. 18 — (CP) — Forty-nine persons were known dead or missing today in a flash fire which transformed the three-storey Ballantyne Brothers department store, largest retail concern in this south island city, into a blazing death-trap at the height of the mid-afternoon shopping period.

Authorities feared that the final casualty list, which will not be available until the smouldering shell of the building is thoroughly searched, would make the fire disaster the worst in New Zealand history.

The blaze started on lower floors and trapped many in the upper parts of the three-storey building, which covers an acre. The store employed 300 persons.

Hundreds of onlookers saw women trying frantically to escape from upper floors and heard the piercing screams of those trapped by the flames. Several girls jumped from the top storey to lower balconies and two of them were taken to hospital unconscious.

29 Known Dead

The charred bodies of 28, including shoppers and employees, were recovered mostly from the area about the doors. A 29th person died in a hospital.

The cause of the fire was not determined. Damage was estimated at $1,600,000.

First figures showed 13 persons listed as missing but many charred skeletons, seen hanging from steel rafters of burned - out upper storeys, had not been counted.

Firemen had been unable to approach the upper windows because of the intense heat from the smouldering ruins. They had carried out many bodies from the building before the search for victims was suspended when darkness descended with the store still burning.

The store, in the centre of the city's main shopping area, was partly of wooden construction.

Tariff Changes To Large Extent Partly Nullified

Ottawa, Nov. 18 — (CP)—Tariff changes agreed to by Canada at Geneva and made public yesterday were to a large extent temporarily nullified last night by Finance Minister Abbott's program to save American dollars.

The tariff concessions, which likely would have reduced the consumer's costs of a wide list of imported goods, were due to become effective Jan. 1. Now they will not come into force at least until the government abolishes the restrictions imposed to conserve dollars.

A finance department official explained that Canada, under the terms of the agreement could take any action she felt necessary to meet problems arising out of her adverse balance of trade with such countries as the United States.

The effect of sweeping restrictions in imports would be to withhold temporarily from the consumer any benefit from the tariff reductions. This was because most of the finished consumer products affected by the reductions were in the new prohibited or restricted list of imports.

There were some unfinished products on which tariff reductions would be effective at the first of the year, but official indicated that this list was limited and the benefit, if any, to the consumer would be small.

Government Fires Two Quick Blasts At Auto Trade

Ottawa, Nov. 18 — (CP) — Dreams of a shiny, new post-war auto sometime soon proved just a bubble that burst before the eyes of Canadians last night — a victim of the Dominion's "austerity" program to save vital American dollars.

Announcing restrictions, the government fired two quick blasts in the direction of the auto trade in the form of an import ban and taxes that dashed hopes of car-hunting Canadians.

Finance Minister Abbott said that the import of motor vehicles — most of which come from the United States — are banned, effective today though shipments on the way will be allowed entry. It is hoped later to remove the ban and place autos on an import quota basis.

As for cars made in Canada, most of which have at least some American - made parts which drain U. S. dollars from Canada, the government slapped on a tax.

Effective today anyone buying a new car, whether it be imported, manufactured or produced in Canada, will pay a 25 per cent tax — instead of 10 per cent — on a machine valued at $1,200 or less; 25 per cent on the first $1,200 and 50 per cent in excess of that amount on a car valued at not more than $2,000.

On a car valued at more than $2,000 Canadians will have to pay 25 per cent on $1,200, plus 50 per cent on $800 plus 75 per cent on the amount in excess of $2,000 before they can drive it away.

Willmington, Del., Nov. 18 — (AP) — A Constellation plane crashed and burned at New Castle airport today and state police said at least seven persons were killed.

The big plane identified by the airport telephone operator as a Trans World Airlines plane, was reported carrying only seven persons on a test flight prior to being placed into service for overseas service.

Impressive Service in Old Abbey Will Mark Marriage of Princess

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 18 (CP) —When Princess Elizabeth enters the great west door of Westminister Abbey for her wedding on Thursday she will see in the distance, beyond the choir, the high, tapestried altar mounted with ancient gold plate glimmering from the rays of the lighted candelabra in the sanctuary.

Along both sides of the nave, the length of which she will walk to reach the sanctuary, will be assembled the entire collegiate body of Westminster Abbey, the clergy in rich crimson robes, the choristers in white and scarlet, the Children of the Chapels Royal in gold and scarlet livery and the King's Scholars of Westminster School.

As the King, with Princess Elizabeth on his arm, reaches the nave, the whole group, according to ancient custom, will bow to His Majesty as bearer of the title "Visitor of the Royal Foundation of the Abbey."

Immediately a fanfare of silver trumpets will be sounded from the Henry V chantry above the shrine of Edward the Confessor. The whole procession will then move towards the high altar, the trumpets sounding the introduction of the opening hymn, "Praise My Soul the King of Heaven."

"This hymn has been sung at Royal weddings for generations past," said the precentor of the Abbey, Rev. Cyril M. Armitage.

The Dean of Westminister, Dr. Alan Don, will recite the introduction to the service. Then the Archbishop of Canterbury will step forward to perform the marriage ceremony, using the words of the Anglican book of common prayer.

When the Archbishop has pronounced them man and wife, the bride and bridegroom, attended only by Princess Margaret and the two pages, Prince Michael of Kent and Prince William of Gloucester, will move to the high altar, while the King takes a seat beside the Queen.

The actual service ends with the final blessing of the Archbishop of Canterbury and the choir singing "amen." Then the vast congregation rises as a trumpet fanfare precedes the National Anthem.

The bride and bridegroom go to the chapel of Edward the Confessor where the register will be signed with a golden pen.

FRANCE'S LABOR POT BOILS OVER THOUSANDS QUIT

25 Per Cent Salary Advances Demanded

Paris, Nov. 18 (AP) —France's labor pot boiled over again today, tying up or threatening wide sections of nationalized industry as the centre parties negotiated formation of a strong government to meet the crisis.

These were the labor events:

1. Seventy-two per cent of the country's 714,000 coal miners were on strike, with the rest expected to follow later in the day.

2. The 25,000 employees of the nationalized Renault automobile concern stopped work.

3. Merchant Marine union locals debated calling their second strike in a month. The merchant marine likewise is nationalized.

4. The federation of all unions in the Paris region threatened a general strike.

5. The civil servants union called a strike for Friday if their demands are not met.

All have demanded 25-per cent salary advances pending negotiations for raises.

On the political front, former premier Paul Reynaud continued the conversations he began yesterday with various political leaders in an effort to set up a working majority in the national Assembly which would permit formation of a strong government to succeed the Socialist-led cabinet of Premier Paul Ramadier.

The apparent alternatives, should he fail, were appointment of Socialist Leon Blum as Premier or enlargement of the present cabinet to include both Reynaud and Blum as members.

In any event, political observers believed that Reynaud would emerge from the political manoeuvering, designed to strengthen the government's front against the Communists, with powers that would make him practically the economic chief of France.

Proposes Kingston Make Donation To Start Food Fund

Kingston, Nov. 18 — (CP) — The municipal finance committee has announced it will recommend the city donate $1,000 to start a fund for food for the people of Britain as a Royal wedding gift. Further donations from citizens will be welcomed and food parcels will be sent overseas as money becomes available.

Could Re-Impose Price Controls and Rationing By March 31 -- Abbott

Ottawa, Nov. 18 —(CP)— Finance Minister Abbott said today he could not state definitely whether price control and rationing will be re-introduced as a result of import restrictions to conserve United States dollars.

At a press conference in the railway committee room of the House of Commons, Mr. Abbott told reporters that the government has until March 31 the power to re-impose price ceilings and rationing. Parliament would decide whether those powers should be extended.

Action of the United States Congress, which yesterday was asked to re-impose some price ceilings and rations, will "certainly have some bearing on our action," said Mr. Abbott.

At the press conference with Mr. Abbott was Reconstruction Minister Howe who will have charge of a program aimed at cutting down imports of capital goods and increasing their export.

Mr. Howe said the government had restrictive and expansive programs in mind and that it might use both. Each industry would be dealt with separately and would be asked to contribute to the solution of the American dollar shortage problem.

He did not anticipate that unemployment would result from the government's restrictions on imports. There was every incentive for industry to expand rather than to contract.

Among other points at the conference were these:

1. Mr. Abbott said he did not wish to disclose how much the government estimated it would save as a result of steps taken to meet the dollar crisis.

2. He did not know whether Canada would ever draw on the $300,000,000 loan from the American import-export bank, but it was there in case of need.

Less than 2 Per Cent.

3. The rate of interest on the loan has not yet been fixed, but it was expected it would be slightly higher than 1⅞ per cent.

4. A contemplated loan from private investors in New York might be used to pay off the bank loan or it might be in addition to the bank loan.

5. Mr. Abbott could not prophesy how long the import restrictions would remain in force, but it likely would be until the balance of payments situations made their removal possible.

6. It was expected that the prohibition on the importation of new automobiles would be replaced in eight or ten weeks by a system of quota imports.

7. Mr. Abbott said he did not think the over-all inflationary rate would be great as a result of the import restrictions, because most of the banned goods were non-essential or not absolutely essential.

8. Mr. Howe said every effort would be made to increase the output of such things as base metals, gold, finished forset products, coal and the like.

Details on December 5th

9. The ministers could see no reason why the motion picture industry could not print in Canada some of the movies filmed for distribution.

10. American branch plants now importing many parts from the United States would be asked to see if they could not make some of the parts or manufacture for export parts complementary to those they were importing.

Mr. Abbott indicated that the full details of the dollar conservation program and of plans for correcting the adverse balance of trade would not be made known until after parliament meets Dec. 5.

Details of the offer to pay $7 an ounce more for gold produced in excess of the production for the year ended June 30, 1947, would be given when the necessary legislation was introduced in the Commons.

Plans for economic "co-operation" between Canada and the United States likely would remain "vague" until perhaps during the debate in parliament.

Mr. Abbott said he was most optimistic as to the outcome of the constructive measures planned to bring about a long-term solution to the balance of payments problem. Naturally, the Marshall plan for aid to Europe would assist Canada, if the United States wanted to use funds to buy any Canadian surpluses.

'Must Have Help in 48 Hours' For Wrecked Sailors, Says SOS

Halifax, Nov. 18 — (CP) — "Only 36 hours left to save their lives" . . .

This was the message passed by rescuers today as plans were made to speed the United States Coast Guard cutter Evergreen to Sacred Island on Newfoundland's northern tip where some 30 wrecked seamen fought the effects of exposure.

The sailors have hung grimly to life after losing one shipmate when the 4,900-ton freighter Langleecrag smashed aground and broke in two Saturday.

Rescue attempts so far have been foiled by bad weather of the locality and while lashed by a bone-chilling rain yesterday the mariners' only means of contact with the outside world was a spluttering radio. A dauntless "sparks" foundered through the breakers to his shattered vessel and tapped out a message of entreaty.

"Boys in pretty bad shape," he said, "must have help in 48 hours."

The cutters Evergreen and Duane had been recalled to their Argentia, Nfld., base from a previous dash to the shipwreck when it was believed that a whaler from the northern outpost of St. Anthony could effect the rescue. Inclement weather forced the small craft to run for shelter last night, however.

R.C.A.F. search and rescue division here said they had been advised by the United States Coast Guard the Evergreen was due to leave for Greenland and might be able to pick up the men en route.

Premier Drew Calls for Revival Wartime Spirit

Toronto, Nov. 18 —(CP)— Premier Drew of Ontario called last night for revival of wartime 'spirit of co-operation" in conserving electricity throughout the province.

The Premier said in an address prepared for delivery over a provincial network of the CBC that electricity is "the key to our prosperity here in Ontario.

"The most rapid growth we have ever experienced in all fields of production, outstripping as it has the most rapid possible construction of new electrical plants, has not created a shortage which is going to remain with us.

"The future is very bright. As present construction is completed, new work will be undertaken. The present 1,000,000-horsepower program of expansion is only the beginning, not the completion of our post-war plans."

Mr. Drew said "every possible source" of extra power is being tapped. Negotiations had been completed today between the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission and the Polymer Corporation at Sarnia for purchase of 30,000 horsepower "which will be produced next year by the steam power plant of the Polymer Corporation."

GLOBAL TRADE OPENSFORCANADA BY NEW PACTS

Restrictions Aimed to Bolster Dollar Reserves

By JOHN LEBLANC
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 18 — (CP) — A long-range prospect of freer trade in the world's markets was opened to Canada today, but it was tempered for the near future by the exigencies of the Dominion's dollar scarcity.

A general swapping of tariff concessions with 17 nations was the major point of a series of trade treaties announced by the government yesterday, all aimed at opening the door to global commerce for the Dominion.

Canada obtained new footholds which government spokesmen said should bring a big increase in her export trade over a period of years. At the same time, she lowered tariffs to allow foreign-made goods easier entry to this country and, by consequence, cut down their cost to Canadians.

Over a long term — perhaps five years — these new trade movements might shore up Canada's faltering dollar position. But they won't do that right away, so the government almost simultaneously announced import restrictions designed to bolster its dollar reserves.

The result of these will be to nullify temporarily many of the import concessions Canada has granted, though it was not expected they would affect the tariff advantages gained by Canada from other countries and going into effect Jan. 1 for a three-year period. Under the treaties, countries are permitted to take measures to counteract balance-of-payment difficulties.

Run Long Gamut

The concessions gained by Canada in its series of agreements run a long gamut of primary and manufactured products, though primary articles are predominant.

Eagle Loser In Epic Battle With Horse

Stockholm, Nov. 18—(Reuters) — A battle between a horse and an eagle was reported by a farmhand returning to his island home off the south coast of Sweden.

He said the bird suddenly dived at the horse and attacked its chest. The horse reared and struck back with its hooves.

After the fight had lasted 15 minutes, the horse landed a blow killing the bird which, when measured, was seven feet from wingtip to wingtip.

Dollar-Saving Program Bans Cars And Curbs Travel

300 Million Dollar Loan Negotiated in United States

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 18 —(CP)— Canadians faced restricted living standards today as the government launched a dollar-saving program embodying new excise taxes on semi-luxury goods, sweeping prohibitions and restrictions on imports and pleasure travel and announced a $300,000,000 loan from the United States.

Aimed directly at halting the deterioration of Canada's dwindling U. S. dollar reserves, these economic measures became effective at midnight last night and, though temporary, are expected to continue for many months and possibly into another year.

They came less than four hours after the government had announced widespread tariff reductions negotiated at Geneva with 17 other countries and served only to dampen hopes that the trade agreements would bring a wider list of foreign-made products to Canadian bargain-counters.

Official sources confirmed that the economic program nullifies, if only temporarily, the concessions Canada has granted on the import side of the tariff arrangements but said the Dominion's action was within the framework of the general agreement. The arrangements become effective Jan. 1, 1948.

TWO BROADCASTS

The dollar-saving program was announced in broadcast messages by Prime Minister Mackenzie King, speaking from London, and Finance Minister Abbott, in Ottawa, and both made it clear that Canada's economic ills arose from the inability of her overseas customers to pay for their purchases with U. S. currency.

While Mr. King dealt with the broad aspects of the economic steps, Mr. Abbott outlined the measures being given effect and announced that the government had rejected suggestions that the Canadian dollar be devalued.

He made these disclosures:

DOLLAR-SAVING—Page 5

Dollar Shortage May be Relieved By Marshall Plan

Ottawa, Nov. 18 CP)—Finance Minister Abbott indicated last night that Canada's American dollar shortage may be relieved by purchases made under the Marshall plan for aid to Europe.

In his speech outlining the emergency steps taken to relieve the dollar shortag, Mr. Abbott said:

"The United States government now has recommended to Congress that it should authorize the use of funds voted for aid to Europe in making purchases outside the United States.

"In expectation that this policy will be implemented, we are ascertaining what supplies can be made available from Canada for this purpose."

Such a program would resemble in many respects the Hyde Park agreement that was operative during the war.

Because Canada could not wait for the Marshall plan to become operative, she was borrowing $300,000,000 from the American export-import bank. Consideration would be given the possibility of obtaining a loan for private investors in the United States.

Mr. Abbott said that in considering solutions to the dollar problem, the government had considered but rejected devaluation of the dollar.

"Our difficulty in obtaining United States dollars in adequate amounts from our exports arise from the international financial difficulties in which some of our best customers find themselves, and these would not be corrected by depreciation of the Canadian dollar," said Mr. Abbott.

"So far as imports are concerned, we find no reason for thinking that exchange depreciation of an amount which could be deliberately undertaken would exercise any considerable restraining influence.

"After all, the prices of our imports from the United States have risen by nearly 40 per cent since June, 1946, and at the same time our imports have continued to rise mouth after month.

Health of Britons Will be Subjected To Most Severe Test of Modern Times

London, Nov. 18 — (AP) — There's an old saying that the quickest way to make a fortune in damp and chilly Britain is to put out a new remedy for the common cold.

The jest may be a bitter one this winter.

The expressed view of many physicians, privately backed by experts in the government, is that the health of the people will be subjected to its most severe test in modern times in the winter months ahead.

The common cold, influenza, skin diseases and ordinary infections may cut deeply into working hours at a time when every man-hour is needed to fight the country's economic crisis.

The reasons are skimpy food rations, over-crowding and a tight fuel position — the government has warned that many homes may be cold this winter.

Many private physicians say that the people are not getting the food they need to maintain their energy and resistance to disease.

The government acknowledges that the average intake of calories is "just under 2,700" a day.

Vegetarian Sir Stafford Cripps, austere economic affairs minister, after announcing that figure in the Commons, said at a press conference that 2,800 is often considered "the lowest figure to which we ought to go for a fully working population."

Two small boys were injured on Station Street last evening when in separate accidents occurring only ten minutes apart they were knocked to the pavement by passing cars. It was reported that in both incidents the boys darted out from the curb in front of the passing autos.

Five-year-old Bernard Ladoucier darted out from the north curb in front of 131 Station Street and was knocked to the pavement when struck by an eastbound car driven by William Thompkins, Toronto. The boy suffered abrasions to his face when he slid on the pavement and a gash inside his cheek which required five stitches to close.

The other lad knocked to the pavement was reported to be not seriously injured.

In the aldermanic field the term of office for seven of the council members, Aldermen Tice, Wilbur, Harvey, Chamberlain, Hyde, Allin and Butler, will have been completed and it is possible that all of these men will seek re-election.

Two Injured In Car Crash

Bancroft — An accident occurred Saturday night about midnight at the northern extremity of Bancroft Village on Highway 62 when a car driven and owned by Leo Coe struck a car broadside that was owned and driven by Raymond Saulay of Turriff. Coe was on his way north out of Bancroft going home and had his wife and infant baby, his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. James Coe, with him. The impact threw the passengers about. Mrs. Coe, Sr., was the worst injured and is still in the Bancroft hospital suffering from shock, cuts and bruises, the driver, Leo, had stitches placed in one hand and also a cut on the forehead. The Saulay car came out from a side street and into the path of the Coe car. The latter car swerved to the left to miss the impact but instead met the Saulay car broadside, turning the latter car over on its side in front of R. G. Kellar's residence. The passengers in the Saulay car were Miss Margaret Saulay, Mr. Mike and John Malloy and Bernard Lefauriehon. These passengers were not injured to any degree other than a few cuts and a shaking up. The Sauley car was righted and drove away under its own power, but the Coe car was damaged considerably. County and Town Constable Roy Robinson investigated the accident. Charges are pending.

Keluskys Shoot Big Black Bear Near Bessemer

Bancroft (Special)—The second bear has been shot in the vicinity of Bancroft, this time by Mr. William Kelusky of Faraday, and Mr. Jack Kelusky of Bancroft. Both men were out hunting in the vicinity of Bessemer, southeast of Bancroft, Friday, when nearing the twin crossings going into Bessemer they spied Mr. Bruin ambling across the railroad right-of-way. They each took a shot at the animal which was about seventy-five yards distant and it fell. Bill was all for going right up but Jack says "no we might as well wait a few moments." At that the bear again got to its feet and then fell down and commenced a succession of complete rolls. When it steadied again they each fired again and the animal lay motionless for a few moments and for a second time got up and tried to crawl the railroad embankment seemingly, from the distance, it had one front paw in its mouth. They fired again and this time the animal rolled back downward and died. One of the last shots seemed to pierce its lungs for steam shot upwards for some six feet. The animal had also been shot through the paw, shoulder and nose and split right down the underside of its neck. Both hunters were quite a distance from their car and wondered just how they were going to get their three hundred pound burden home but at that moment the I.B. & O. train going into the Bessemer branch passed them. They cleaned the animal and when the train came back, on its way to Bancroft, it stopped to see the bear and the trainmen were good enough to hoist the animal aboard and saved two hunters a heavy trek with such a load.

Council Unanimously Accepts W.C.A. Offer to Turn General Hospital Over to Corporation

Certain Restrictions Were Suggested With Respect to Formation of Governing Body

City Council at a special meeting held Monday evening voted unanimously to accept the offer of the Women's Christian Association and take over and operate the Belleville General Hospital.

Offer of the W.C.A. to the city was made last September when it was decided by the Association that operation of the hospital by the city would be in the best interests of the citizens. Under terms of the offer the hospital would be turned over with its equipment and accounts receivable and accounts payable, and all assets and liabilities of the hospital under certain conditions.

According to the offer made to the city, it was suggested by the W.C.A. that if the city took over the hospital the Board of Governors should be made up of representative citizens and to include, amongst others, two representatives from each of the following bodies, city council, county council, medical profession and the Women's Christian Association, or persons appointed by them.

Council Did not Agree

The above was one of the clauses of the offer to which council did not agree, it being the decision of council that if the hospital were taken over it would be operated in the same manner as a public utility and would be managed by a commission. Council agreed, however, that two members of the W.C.A. would be included on the Board of Governors as it was felt their experience in operation of the hospital would prove valuable.

Also included in the provisions of the W.C.A. offer is that there be no sale, transfer or leasing of lands now belonging to the Women's Christian Association and used for the hospital or intended for hospital purposes.

The city would also accept responsibility for all undertakings, obligations and responsibilities of the Women's Christian Association in connection with the trust fund of $100,000 from the Provincial Government.

Had Private Offer

In making the offer to council for the city to take over and operate the hospital, the Women's Christian Association pointed out that they had rejected an offer from private interests to purchase the hospital and decided it should not be sold to private interests.

The letter further pointed out that the Association had operated the Belleville Home for the Aged for over 60 years as one of their public services. This institution was stated to be crowded with expansion needed.

"It would be greatly appreciated if the council could see their way clear to assist us to the extent of $60,000 toward the required addition to the Belleville Home for the Aged," the letter from the W.C.A. concluded.

Consensus of opinion by members of council in discussing the report of the special committee and their recommendation that the hospital be taken over, was that, although the hospital was currently operating at a small deficit, the institution could be operated at no great cost to the city.

Faced with Responsibility.

"The way I see it," stated Mayor Follwell, "is that the city is faced with the responsibility of taking over the hospital regardless of the cost to the city. We should take over the hospital on the terms recommended by the special committee and also provide the $60,000 required for the Home for the Aged."

Alderman Butler also felt the hospital should be taken over as with the present city expansion he stated that under the present set-up undoubtedly the city would be asked for more money to keep the hospital in operation. "If we owned the hospital we would have full control over its operation," he stated.

Private Bill Necessary.

Here it was pointed out that a private bill would be necessary to take the hospital over, while Alderman Armstrong declared that a private commission on the same lines as the public utilities would be the proper way to operate the institution.

Council voted unanimously in approval of the special committee's recommendation to take over the hospital. Present at the meeting were: Mayor Follwell, Aldermen Allin, Armstrong, Butler, Chamberlain, Clarke, Duffy, Follwell, Harvey, Hyde, Lattimer, Lazenby, Tice, Vanner and Wilbur.

The report and recommendation of the special committee passed by council is herewith given:

His Worship Mayor Follwell and Members of Council,

Gentlemen:—Your committee, composed of Mayor Follwell, Alderman Clarke, Alderman Lattimer and the City Comptroller, appointed to consider the offer of the Women's Christian Associated, dated September 24th., relative to the city taking over the Belleville General Hospital, beg to report as follows:

Our municipal auditor was instructed to prepare a limited survey of financial affairs of the Belleville General Hospital and his report was delivered to your committee on October 25th. and is on file in the municipal office. Several meetings of this committee were held to examine and study this report and to obtain all the facts which, in their opinion, were necessary to get as clear a picture as possible of the corporation's position if council should decide on accepting the offer of the Women's Christian Association. We beg to make the following recommendation for council's approval:

Recommended: "that the corporation of the City of Belleville accept the offer of the Women's Christian Association under date of September 24th. as soon as all the necessary legislation can be obtained but subject to a satisfactory arrangement being made between the Women's Christian Association and the corporation of the City of Belleville, regarding Item 'A' and the $60,000 required to provide accommodation at the Belleville Home for the Aged."

All of which is respectfully submitted.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 18 (CP) —Opening highs for golds were cut sharply by the end of the third hour on the stock exchange today as customers evaluated the government's bonus in terms of individual mines. The bonus, $7 a fine ounce of gold produced in excess of the year ending June 30, 1947, announced last night, boosted golds listed on the exchange substantially at opening and eager investors and speculators rolled up a share volume far above the average of the last few months.

Industrials were less active but showed good form.

Volume for the first three hours was 2,896,000 shares, about 2,000,000 more than yesterday's similar period.

Gains for golds, junior and senior producers, still were substantial but retreats from opening highs were sizeable.

Campbell was up 10 at $3.10 ($3.30 high for the morning), Canadian Malartic 15 at $1.10 ($1.25) Cariboo 15 at $2.90 ($3.05) Cochenour 9 at $2.90 ($3.10), Delnite 10 at $190 ($2), Dickenson 3 at $1.15 ($1.35), Donalda 4 at $1.20 ($1.32), East Malartic 10 at $2.17 ($2.35), Giant 50 at $6.65 ($7.15), Hollinger 3-4 at 12 7-8 (13 1-2), Kerr Addison 1 at 16 3-4 (17 1-2) and Kirkland Lake 10 at $2.19 ($2.30).

Price of Gold Up $7 an Ounce

Ottawa, Nov. 18 — (CP)—Assistance will be given to gold mines which increase their production under a plan designed to step up Canadian output of the yellow metal.

The assistance will be a payment of $7 a fine ounce toward the costs of production in excess of that in the year ending last June 30.

The measure, announced last night by Finance Minister Abbott, is designed to bring marginal properties into production or keep them producing and is also a step in the government's program to meet its United States dollar shortage.

The United States pays $35 an ounce for gold but sale to that country dropped from $184,000,000 in 1939 to $96,000,000 in 1946.

Some administrative details have yet to be worked out, including fitting in of the plan with Canada's obligations under the international monetary fund, and determining the position of properties only recently in production which produced only part time in the last year or which have not yet come into production.

R. Monoghan, Wooler, Suffers Fractured Leg

Apparently caught between the bumpers as he was having his stalled auto towed on Highway No. 33, Richard Monoghan, 23, of Wooler, suffered a compound fracture of his right leg on Monday evening.

Monoghan had been driving his car north when the battery cable of his car broke. His vehicle still would not start when another cable was procured and James B. Young of Glen Miller attempted to tow the vehicle to get it started.

Monoghan was adjusting the tow chain between the two cars when a south-bound car driven by Malcolm C. Neal, Trenton, was hit by a north-bound car driven by Keith C. Fox, R. R. 2, Belleville. The Fox car struck the Monoghan car which in turn struck the Young car apparently pinching Monoghan between the two bumpers.

The injured man was taken to Belleville hospital where he is under the care of Dr. Jack Farley of Trenton, and Dr. G. S. Cronk of Belleville. All cars involved in the accident were damaged.

Director Heardby Members Of Kinsmen Club

Parents should be trained for parenthood, the same as workers are trained for their jobs, members of the Kinsmen Club of Belleville were told at their regular dinner meeting Monday evening when they were addressed by James Musgrove, Director of Guidance for the Belleville Board of Education.

Speaking on the various phases of his position as director of guidance in Belleville public schools, Mr. Musgrove told his listeners that his job went much further than guiding students into certain professions. Students had many problems besides that of choosing a vocation and studying for it and it fell within the duty of the director of guidance to assist in solving these problems.

Present day living conditions with advanced industrialization had done much to disrupt the former tight family circle which permitted family problems to be threshed out within the family. Now parents, especially fathers, and in many cases mothers, who are also working, have little time with their children with the result that many children have to look elsewhere for answers to their problems.

"Each day more and more students are coming to their guidance director with problems which 20 or 30 years ago would have been answered at home," said Mr. Musgrove. "This home situation is becoming more and more unsatisfactory."

Not an Alarmist.

Claiming that he was not an alarmist, the speaker nevertheless, warned that if present home conditions continue to worsen municipalities will have to spend much more money than at present in setting up additional reform schools and other institutions.

Mr. Musgrove stated that a worker in many instances spends five years or more in training for his job or profession, but no thought was given to training for parenthood, and bringing up a family. The answer to that question, he said, will determine future generations. He would like to see compulsory parent education put into effect.

Final arrangements for the George Haddad piano recital to be given this evening at the Collegiate Auditorium were discussed at the meeting. This afternoon a 15-minute recital will be given before collegiate students, the program to be broadcast over CJBQ.

Among the guests at the meeting was Joseph McCann, Kinsmen member from Kingston, who favored with several much appreciated solos.

COULD RE-IMPOSE

en to lift the present embargo on the shipments of such meat. He said he did not wish to comment on the matter in the absence of Agriculture Minister Gardiner.

While the restriction and prohibition of certain imports would reduce the supplies of some goods in Canada, he did not think there would be any great price increases. While some imports likely would attempt to increase their margins, by and large the industry and trade could be trusted to be reasonable.

Most of the articles banned or restricted were non-essential or were the type of things which people could do without.

Will Discuss Discussion

The 25 per cent excise tax being imposed on a large range of durable goods and the increase from 10 to 25 per cent in the excise tax on automobiles were aimed at making people defer non-essential purchases.

Mr. Howe said the amount of American dollars used to purchase parts and similar requirements by Canadian firms totals some $300,000,000 annually.

He planned to discuss the situation with the various lines of industry. For example, Canadian subsidiaries of American firms would be urged to make more of their component parts here and parent firms would be asked to offset as far as possible the movement of parts into Canada by purchasing parts their subsidiaries can make to be used in American plants.

This would apply to the automobile industry as well as others. The heavy excise tax being placed on higher priced models of cars possibly would lead to the re-establishment of the practice of making such cars in Canada.

Everything possible was being done in the way of immigration to fill the labor needs required in the resources expansion program. Mines particularly were short of help, Mr. Howe added.

Ceylon a Dominion

Ceylon, set in the Indian Ocean, has changed her status from a Crown Colony to that of a Dominion with membership in the British Commonwealth of Nations. It has been known from as early as 543 B.C. when it was conquered by Vijaya, a prince from the mainland of India, under whose dynasty the island for several generations enjoyed great prosperity, a great part of the island being covered with towns and cities, built by the Hindu immigrants who came with or followed Vijaya. Invading Malabars ultimately gained the sovereignty. In the twelfth century the line of Vijaya returned and there was a revival of the ancient splendor of the island. Little was known of Ceylon in Europe until the Portuguese established trade relations in the sixteenth century. The Dutch followed. In 1802 by the Peace of Amiens the whole coastal territory was ceded to Britain. The King of Kandy had ruled so tyrannically that his own people entreated Britain to depose him.

British rule has contributed very largely to the material advancement of the island by the construction of roads and railways, the extension of the Dutch canal system and the restoration of irrigation tanks, the bridging of rivers and the development of the natural resources of the island. Economic prosperity came with the establishment of large plantations. Tea and rubber are now among its chief exports. A large measure of autonomy was given the island in 1931 and during the recent war Ceylon was assured of Dominion status. In 1943 Ceylon became headquarters under Lord Mountbatten for all land and sea operations of the United Nations against Japan both on the India-Burma frontier and in waters as far distant as the East Indies. A few days ago the change to the Dominion status officially took place.

Place of Residence

Arrival recently in every home of cards calling on income taxpayers who in 1942 paid income tax and have since moved to communicate with the Department of Finance, Ottawa, according to the form on the card so that there will be no delay or difficulty in making repayment of the refundable portion of their taxes, revives interest in these forced loans of the war years. That refundable portion with interest will prove very attractive now to a large number of persons. All concerned should follow the advice to notify the Department in the event of taxpayers having changed his or her place of residence since paying their taxes. Immediate action now will save delay and greatly assist the Department's staff.

Money returning with interest will assist considerably the taxpayers' treasury.

Fire and Heating

Man's use of fire was one of the steps in the development of civilization. What man was like before he learned to handle fire and how to start it must be left to the imagination.

Even today all the problems of fire and heat are not solved. In this age when nothing is certain of not being submitted to the analysis and test of scientific knowledge, engineers with all the knowledge of centuries of association with fire are studying the question of the better heating of houses and of the saving of fuel. Britain has its Building Research Station of the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research working on these problems.

Before the war one third of the coal consumed in Britain was used for heating houses and much of the heat was wasted up the chimney or through poorly insulated walls and roof or was carried off by cold draughts of air. Present scarcity will mean naturally reduced consumption, but it is said that houses should be warmer than they used to be.

Greater output of heat per pound of coal was achieved in the inter-war period. Coal consumption per unit of electricity decreased from 3.47 pounds to 1.43 pounds in recent years. Now two large-scale experiments are under way to provide a picture of the thermal conditions of houses today.

The first experiment is concerned with the thermal insulation of houses, and is being carried out in eight specially-built similar dwellings. In these houses the heating systems are the same, while the insulation differs. They have now been lived in by families for more than a year while the experiments continue.

The second investigation is based on twenty houses of similar size and design, with identical thermal insulation. The variable factor is the method of heating, which consists in some cases of a central heating system, and in others of devices to carry convected heat to the bedrooms. Several types of stoves and open fires are being used. Each room is fitted with instruments for recording temperatures over the whole twenty-four hour period. Ventilation is controlled, and the amount of fuel used is carefully recorded. Consequently, the amount of heat put into the houses and the amount used will be known.

For the first period of the experiment the houses will be empty, so that scientists can carry out their investigations without the variables which residents cause. Each house will be assumed to be occupied by an imaginary family consisting of father, mother, and two children of school age. While the mother stays at home, the father leaves in the morning, and returns at night. Later, specially selected tenants will move in, but they will not, of course, be expected to follow the time-table of the imaginary family.

As a result of these experiments, it will be possible to say what is the best method of construction to ensure good insulation, and what are the best heating appliances for a dwelling. Laboratory investigations and experience have already made it possible to give advice on these problems, but the application of operational research will enable the advice to be used on actual living conditions.

Clockmakers' College

Britain's first clockmakers' college, the National College of Horology, was opened in London on October 6th. The new school is sponsored by the Ministry of Education, and affords proof of the government's determination to revive an industry in which Britain was once pre-eminent. Its function is to train executives and designers for the clock and watch-making industries.

The college's equipment is of the most up-to-date type, and much of it is Swiss-made. The basic course offered is of three years' duration. There is also an adcvaced course lasting for two years, and a graduate course. Accommodation is provided for fifty students, and it is hoped to attract recruits from the forces and industry, as well as direct from school.

Considerable progress in the development of the clock-making industry has already been made since the end of the war. Britain is now making some 3,000,000 clocks annually, compared with 800,000 before the war. She is now importing less than 1,000,000 as against over 4,000,000 in 1938. It is planned to increase home production still further in order that there will be a surplus for export.

Research in Idiom

The establishment of the snail's speed at 0.000363005 miles an hour by scientific tests at an American university may be taken as a boon to the English language. Henceforth, when anyone refers to "a snail's pace," we shall know exactly where we are, says Manchester Guardian.

The new discovery gives deeper meaning, too, to Lewis Carroll's famous line "Will you walk a little faster said the whiting to the snail;" we may now picture the whiting as thinking in terms of, say, 0.000463005 mph. Perhaps it would be too much to suggest to the University of Maryland that its scientists might proceed farther along the same lines and tell us what are the relative speeds of greased lightning and the time required to say "Jack Robinson." And how much is "less than no time?"

They might even tell us the area (or should it be volume?) of "half a tick." After which we might safely allow the Maryland scientists to enjoy a well earned rest — on their laurels, of course, provided always they first ascertained how restful laurels are.

Cultivate forbearance until your heart yields a fine crop of it. Pray for a short memory to all unkindnesses.—Spurgeon.

Whoever perseveres will be crowned.—Herder.

NOVEMBER

Against the dullness of November skies,
Winds moaning in our ears,
The mark of death which on the cold earth lies,
How lovely May appears!

Heads down we walk into the driving rain
And brave the wind's sharp bite,
Forgetting June will shortly come again,
With all its gay delight.

November trees stand rigid, bare or leaf,
Perhaps that we may learn
That happiness may follow after grief,
And brighter days return.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How do the buckeye and the horse chestnut differ?

Many confuse the Ohio buckeye (Aesculus glabra or ohioensis), with the European horse chestnut (Aesculus hippoastanum), which was introduced into the United States about 1746.

Both species belong to the same genus, and they are similar in some respects but easily distinguishable. Neither species is a true chestnut, which is an entirely different family of trees.

The European horse chestnut is larger, sturdier, hardier and more symmetrically and beautifully formed than the wild American horse chestnut known as the buckeye. An Ohio buckeye leaf has five fingers or segments, while that of the European horse chestnut is much larger and normally, when well developed, has seven lobes.

The flowers of the European horse chestnut are creamy in color, profuse and showy, while those of the Ohio buckeye are greenish yellow in color, less profuse and not so ornate. The buds of the Ohio buckeye are somewhat resinous and the fruit has prickly projections on the husk. As a rule it is a solitary tree found growing along river banks and seldom in large numbers close together.

Buckeye wood is soft, light and easily worked, and was used by early settlers in the Ohio Valley for building purposes, but it is not durable. The bark exhales an unpleasant odor and for that reason the species is sometimes called the "Fetid Buckeye." A closely related species of native horse chestnut is the 'Sweet Buckeye."

The nuts, leaves, branches and roots of the Ohio buckeye contain a toxic principle and wild animals, livestock and even insects generally avoid it. A poison made from buckeye is used to stupefy fish. Ordinarily roasting does not destroy the poison, but it is soluble and some of the Western Indians ate buckeyes without ill effects after soaking them.

Many buckeye trees were cut down because farmers regarded them as dangerous to their livestock.

Formerly it was widely believed that buckeyes would prevent rheumatism, and they are still used as charms, amulets and good-luck pieces. Even Woodrow Wilson carried a shiny buckeye in his pocket for luck.

Drew Believes St. Lawrence R. Project Will Start

Toronto, Nov. 18 (CP)—Ontario Premier Drew said last night he is "not in any doubt that within the next few years work will be commenced on the St. Lawrence River power project."

"Whether it proceeds as a combined power development and waterway or simply as a power development, now is up to the Congress of the United States," he said in an address prepared for delivery over a CBC provincial network.

"If it should appear that they have reached a decision that they are not going to proceed with the waterway, then I believe the Province of Ontario can and will proceed with the power development in co-operation with the State of New York. I am not in any doubt that we have the constitutional authority to reach agreement on the construction of power plants on the St. Lawrence.

"If the waterway is to be developed, it would be of course be unwise to proceed with the other separately.

Mr. Drew said: "I think it can be taken as definite that either by one method or the other we may look forward with confidence to the day when Ontario will be drawing considerably more than 1,000,000 horsepower...from the St. Lawrence..."

Letters to the Editor

Dalton's Resignation

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer,

The astounding and unprecedented incident of a Minister of the British Crown being forced to resign as a consequence of a gross malpractice is an event fraught with potential repercussions so serious in their character that it would be quite impossible to exaggerate them.

For one thing, the Conservatives, who don't believe in mixing sentimentality with politics, pounced upon this blazing indiscretion like war upon an unprepared world; not only did they give it the widest publicity, but they must have decided to extract all the meat out of the kernel. Wise Mr. Churchill tabled a motion for an exhaustive enquiry. This to some, might seem an ungenerous turning of the knife in the wound; a moment's reflection however, shows in what an awful dilemma this demand places the whole labor party and government.

Either Mr. Attlee will refuse to allow enquiry to take place, and in that case it doesn't require great imagination to picture the delight of opposition who will promptly revive in their own press dormant memories of the German Gestapo and of the Russian Cheka, the white-washing of political offenders by conniving of their "party" the thinly veiled accusation that the whole thing was a put up job, enacted in order to discredit one of their members who had long become a thorn in the flesh to the Prime Minister; all of which will leave a most unsavoury taste in the peoples' mouths and, coming right after the crushing defeat recently experienced by the Labor Party at the Municipal Elections, will cause them to lose face.

Or Mr. Attlee will bow to the demands of the Opposition and allow the enquiry to go through and in that case, there is little doubt that he will soon bitterly regret his decision. Under pretense of conducting an impartial investigation, the Conservatives will certainly not limit their denunciation to the case in point. They will see in this a Heaven-sent opportunity to bring into the debate a whole series of facts in no way related to the controversy at issue, which although they will have but small effect on the investigation "per se," will nevertheless serve to bring before the public gaze every minor or major detail of maladministration which the opposition can possibly think up in order to discredit the Labor Government, not in the eyes of the British public only but in every country of the world.

There is absolutely no end to the possible implications of this untoward situation.

We have often seen in the past that the most trivial incidents are liable to have the most far-reaching consequences; in 1914, a madman's gesture plunged the whole world into a horrible war which caused untold misery and cost the lives of millions of people. Similar instances could be repeated "ad nauseam." It does not require a transcendental mind to forecast the storm of criticism vituperation and obloquy that will descend upon the shoulders of the British Cabinet, once the Conservatives launch their great offensive, with no holds barred. They will certainly do their best, and may perhaps succeed in raising such a hurricane, that the bemused government might consider it advisable to go to people and ask them for a new mandate.

HEAD CLEARING DRILL FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN

Sneezing is a natural way to eject from the upper respiratory tract—nasal passages, throat, sinuses orifices of Eustachian (pronounced U-stake-yen) tubes—the vents of the ear cavities where the famous little hammer, anvil and stirrup bones are housed—irritants, including disease germs, which, if not removed promptly, may gain a foothold and do harm.

Therefore it is unwise to attempt to suppress a sneeze. Indeed it is my opinion that one should sneeze not once, not twice, but three times whenever one does sneeze—never forgetting, of course, to screen or mask the sneeze if any one else is within range.

At least once every fifteen or twenty years I have described here and commended to parents, teachers, nurses and physicians, a head clearing drill that has proved beneficial to school children in England. The drill is as follows:

First thing each morning the pupils stand beside their desks at attention—teacher should have and impart to pupils knowledge of the essentials of good posture—each pupil having handkerchief or piece of disposable tissue and a good pinch of simple dry soap powder between thumb and finger. The children stand as far apart as possible, in a room with windows wide open. At the command "One" all assume erect posture—according to the principles every child should be taught. At "Two" hold handkerchief or tissue opened out in left hand below nostrils. At "Three" grasp nose with right thumb and forefinger high between the eyes without compressing nostrils, and keep right elbow on a level with shoulders. At "Four" blow the nose, at the same time bow head forward and downward and bring right elbow down to the side but still hold the upper part of nose between the fingers and do not compress the nostrils. At "Five" breathe in, with mouth closed if possible, and at the same time raise right elbow again to level of shoulders. Then repeat "One" to "Five" two or three times.

The English doctor who described this drill in a British medical journal reported that if the children take a wee bit of soap powder as snuff, that is, sniffing a pinch of it into the nostrils before the drill, it improves the drainage of the nacal passages and throat. Each child drops the tissue into a paper bag for disposal by burning, after the drill is over.

In schools where the drill has been a routine morning exercise children have shown diminished nasal discharge, improved general condition, better appetite, better speech, diminished mouth breathing, less frequent C-R-I—(my term for whatever common respiratory infection the English doctor means by his term)—he used the term, "nose and throat infections". You need not hesitate to say C-R-I because of uncertainty about pronunciation. Pronounce it kree or(if you prefer, use the letters C-R-I as so many people use the letters T-B for tuberculosis. If you do choose to say common respiratory infection watch out you don't mispronounce respiratory, as a good many doctors do. The accent is on the pie—res-pir-a-tor-y.

Children with enlarged tonsils and adenoids are usually poor blowers and poor sneezers. They seem to prefer constant ineffectual snuffling to proper blowing of the nose to clear the nasal passages. They are poor sneezers if they sneeze at all.

But parents and others should remember that ordinary nose blowing, with one or both nostrils compressed between thumb and finger, is as dangerous as it it harmful.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Sulfur

..What can you tell me about the beneficial effects of sulfur to the body. The sulfur and molasses spring medicine of our childhood ...health resorts where sulfur springs...sulfur baths... is sulfur a blood purifier? (O. J.)

Answer—Your letter is a brief of the sterotyped questions about sulfur that are perennial. Sulfur internally is laxative, that's all. Sulfur water and sulfur baths are harmless enough if you like 'em, that's all Sulfur purifies the blood as little or as much as any other nutritive element Rich food sources of sulfur are egg yolk, milk, wheat, oats, lean beef, peas, beans, cabbage, cheese, peanuts, oysters, clams—so, you see, you can't miss it, unless you are a nut following some freak diet.

GLOBAL TRADE

Agriculture is perhaps foremost in the Canadian products whose export will be eased, with the farmer described by a government spokesman as a major beneficiary, but the lumberman, the fisherman and the producer of metal also comes in for big shares of the prospective new trade.

On incoming products, the duty reductions include those on farm products, coal, tea, coffee, some fresh and processed fruits and vegetables, textile products, liquors, chemicals, hardwood flooring, some primary steel products and many items of household equipment.

Thrown Out For Time

Many of these are thrown out for the time being, for all practical purposes, by the import restrictions. Some will stand, though, and these include reductions of 50 and 25 cents a ton, respectively, in anthracite and bituminous coal; a sizeable drop in duties on tableware, largely from Britain; and reductions in the duties of excise taxes on tea and coffee.

Canada had extended duty reductions in many textile products, ranging up to the fully-manufactured articles of clothing in some lines, but most of these were eliminated for the present in its import restrictions. Just about everything past the yarn stage is barred from import until the dollar situation improves.

In the new markets opened to Canada, producers in the Dominion will find barriers to outlets lowered by as much as 50 per cent in a large number of cases.

The great bulk of the new markets will be found in the United States, and officials said that the agreements affected about 90 per cent of Canada's normal pre-war business with the U.S.

Besides these lowering of the actual tariff barriers, Canada and other countries have agreed to streamline customs practices — such as arbitrary valuations — which have been hindrances to trade in the past. These changes will call for special legislation; the customs reductions will not.

The agreements, effective Jan 1, 1948, will run for three years originally. After that, they will continue unless abrogated on six months' notice.

Will Benefit Largely

Government spokesmen at a press conference preceding the announcement of the treaties yesterday said it had been impossible to assess the actual effects of the new tariffs on a cash basis.

But over a period of years, they said, it was expected Canada would benefit largely and its dollar position as against that of the United States would be improved. That was strictly on the basis of trade, and not taking into account the dollar-conservation measures announced last night.

In calculating the effects of the agreement on Canadian production, government spokesmen saw major markets in the U. S. opened by a 50-per-cent reduction in the duty on Canadian wheat going into that country along with a removal of the Canadian quota plus the enlargement of the quota on Canadian cattle, halving the tariff on beef and veal carcases. Canada gave reciprocal concessions on these.

The Dominion gained a big range of concessions on its exported fish products, principally from the United States, but also from 11 other non-empire countries. It gave up some lesser duty reductions on fish and also yielded a few British Empire preferences, but Canada appeared to have come out ahead of the game on this particular product.

In one country or another, the Dominion obtained tariff reductions on almost every type of salt-water and fresh-water fish handled in this country.

Lumbes Reduced

In lumber, too, Canada got duty reductions on almost all her exportable products. American tariffs were halved on almost all Canadian woods and wood products shipped to that country, and Canada also received concessions from France, India, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

Canadian potato and turnip growers were aided by the United States. The U. S. quota on seed potatoes was hoisted from 1,500,000 to 2,500,000 bushels a year, while the turnip duty was slashed 50 per cent.

In the horse-trading, Canada relinquished her United Kingdom preference on apples, but she won new tariff reductions from several other countries with whom she used to deal before the war.

The reductions were granted by the U. S., France, Norway, Czechoslovakia, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

The new agreements have two technical effects on Canada's previous trade treaties. The Canada-United States agreement of 1938 is suspended — not terminated. It remains inoperative while the two parties are both contracting countries to the Geneva agreements.

Canada's previous agreement with the United Kingdom, too, is altered in this way: while neither country will raise its duties against the other, either may reduce the preference by lowering tariffs for other countries.

Consumer Goods

Officials here said that the goods coming under restrictions were largely consumer goods and there would be no dislocation of Canadian production or employment. At the same time, there were no controls on domestic consumption or production.

Mr. King, in his broadcast, spoke of the "severe emergency measures" being imposed temporarily to strict expenditure abroad but said Canada should keep her policies directed towards the long-range objectives of the International Tariff agreement.

Mr. Abbott traced Canada's heavy loss of foreign exchange reserves to Europe's critical economic position and the "tremendous" increase in the quantity and cost of imports from the U.S. in the main, the country's difficulty in obtaining U.S. dollars arose from international difficulties in which some of her customers found themselves.

He expressed the hope that the Marshall plan would result in U.S. purchases in Canada of goods for shipment to Europe and said that in the expectation that his policy would be implemented the Canadian government was "ascertaining what supplies can be made available from Canada for this purpose."

No Devaluation

Turning to the question of revaluing the Canadian dollar, Mr. Abbott said currency depreciation was a measure which may be appropriate to deal with a situation where a country was in balance of payments difficulties because its costs and prices were at a level which did not enable it to compete in world markets. But this was not the case with Canada.

He wondered what reason there was to assume that a further price of, say, 10 per cent brought about by currency depreciation would restrict "to any reasonable extent" Canadian buying in the U.S. If Canada was able to reduce the value of her currency far enough she could restrict imports from the U.S. But the penalty would be "an immediate and violent rise" in prices, far beyond anything experienced in this country.
